OTTAWA, Jan. 5—(CP).—The international joint commission confirmed a recent forecast that under existing conditions it was reporting against the proposed construction of a deep waterway from Montreal to New York by way of Lake Champlain. The commission has filed its report with the governments of United States and Canada.

The report suggested the proposal be further considered in the event of the St. Lawrence seaway project being completed.

Request for an inquiry as to the engineering and economic practicability of a water thoroughfare from Montreal to New York by way of Lake Champlain came originally from the United States Congress and was transmitted to the commission by joint action of the two governments early in 1936.

The investigation involved the consideration of several possible routes from the St. Lawrence to Lake Champlain, one of the deepening of the existing all-water route from Montreal down the St. Lawrence to Sorel, up the Richelieu to Lake Champlain, and by way of the present United States canal to the Hudson, and the other canals from various points on the St. Lawrence to Lake Champlain and thence by the existing waterways to the Hudson.

From 12 Million Up

The estimated construction cost of these suggested improvements to navigation run from $12,884,000 for a 12 foot channel, and $50,000,000 for a 14-foot channel, to $342,205,000 for a 27-foot channel, by the all-water route via the Richelieu. The cost of a 27-foot channel by the various routes involving a canal from the St. Lawrence to Lake Champlain, run all the way from $344,000,000 to $443,100,000.

The Commission found that, of the five considered, the all-water route was the most practicable from an engineering standpoint and the least impracticable from an economic point of view. Even in the case of this Richelieu route, however, it appeared that the estimated annual carrying charges for a 12-foot waterway from the St. Lawrence to the Hudson would amount to approximately $963,000, while the maximum potential annual saving in transportation costs that would result from using this waterway rather than the existing routes would not be more than $58,800.

The corresponding figures for a 14-foot waterway would be $2,738,600, and $75,600; and for a 27-foot waterway, $17,646,400 and $4,710,240.

Devitt Preceptory Elects Officers

After the opening exercises three candidates were duly initiated into the Royal Black degree.

When several important business items were dealt with the Wor. Preceptor asked Rt. Wor. Sir Knight C. Devitt to take the chair for the election and installation of officers, which resulted as follows:

Wor. Preceptor, H. Johnston, Janetville; Dep. Preceptor, Les. Brooks, Tyrone; Chap., Rev. Bell, Blackstock; Register, Sir Knight H. Thompson, Nestleton; Treas., Dr. McArthur, Blackstock; 1st Lec., Les. Thompson, Tyrone; 2nd Lect., P. Hamilton, Janetville; 1st Censor, F. Ellis, Enniskillen; 2nd Censor, C. English, Janetville; 1st S. Bearer, C. Hill, Blackstock; 2nd S. Bearer, L. McGill, Janetville; Pursuivant, W. Fitze, Janetville; Tyler, F. Harris, Port Perry; Committee, C. Devitt, J. Byers, R. Hamilton, D. Heaslip, L. Wright, L. Jobbin.

The officers were installed and each made an appropriate speech. Later lodge was closed and all enjoyed a social hour and lunch.

FEAR FLIER DEAD

New Yorkers Welcome The New Year In Spite Of Rain

SUCCESS SCORED BY AMATEUR PLAY

WARKWORTH, January 4. — Saturday night a large crowd attended the three-act comedy-drama "Forever True" put on by the Young People's Society of the United Church. The story: Fifteen years before the play proper, David Churchill (W. Grant Allen), a happily married man on the verge of great prosperity, loses his wife and child through the efforts of his mother (Miss Sara McComb), who disliked the pleasant Irish girl who had come to be mistress of the Churchill mansion. Constant (Mrs. O. E. Kelly), the wife, believing that she can help her husband and not be a hindrance to his advancement, returns to her native Ireland with her young daughter, also Constant. David, trusting his mother's word that his wife had grown tired of him, refuses to put any difficulties in her way by attempting to regain her respect and love. The years pass and David is again seen with his sister Amelia (Miss Jean Walker) the very counterpart of his mother, established in his home with her adopted son Jack (Jack Allen), whom David is putting through college. Amelia, influenced by her former experience with poverty, is determined that nothing shall displace her in the affections of David or in the management of his home. Into this situation young Bob Stanton (A. G. Bowen) son of a dear friend of David's, while on a trip through Ireland, has found that the first Constant has died and left her daughter. He brings the younger Constant (Mrs. W. Grant Allen) back to America with him and greatly surprises David by presenting her to him. David had never ceased loving his wife and immediately transfers all that love to his daughter by taking her into his home and lavishing on her all that love, affection, and money can secure.

Amelia, in an underhand manner, proceeds to follow her mother's example to plot to get the girl out of the house and to get her in an unfavorable light in her father's eyes. The fifteen years' lapse of time is a help to her in this, since many of the ties that bound are broken or weak from disuse. Carefully, she works to hide the girl's natural charm and to get her dissatisfied with the situation. In this she is not aided by the fact that her foster son, as well as Bob Stanton, have fallen in love with Constant. Matters come to a head at a party David has arranged to introduce his daughter to his friends, but through the watchfulness of Patrick (O. E. Kelly), an old retainer of the family who had known the first Constant and who knew of the plot which resulted in getting her to leave, Constant is saved from leaving and she finds herself at the end firmly established with her father and with Bob whom she has come to love.

The players under the direction of Mrs. A. M. Smale enacted their roles exceptionally well.

OBITUARY

JAMES McALPINE.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

BANCROFT, Jan. 5. — The funeral of the late James McAlpine took place in Rochester, N.Y., on Monday morning, December 27. He was born near Maynooth, Ont., about sixty-seven years ago and lived in that vicinity until about eighteen years ago, when he moved to Rochester, where he resided until his sudden death on Thursday, December 23.

Surviving are four sons and one daughter, Morris and James of Prince Edward County, John and Martin of Rochester, N.Y., and Catherine (Mrs. Walter McConnel) of Rochester. His wife predeceased him several years ago.

MRS. McILROY

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LIFFORD LINE, Jan. 5. — The funeral of the late Mrs. McIlroy of Toronto, aunt of Mr. Cecil Tims of Lifford Line and sister of the late Mr. Harry Tims, took place to St. Mary's Cemetery, Lifford, on Friday afternoon.

A few close friends occupied a car which followed the hearse from Toronto, leaving the city at an early hour in the morning, and arriving at Lifford early in the afternoon.

Archdeacon Simpson, rector of Cavan parish, officiated at the funeral service. Owing to the severity of weather conditions, the entire service with the exception of the committal of the remains to the grave was held in the vestry of the church, with a small attendance present.

Mrs. McIlroy had suffered a stroke a few days before Christmas which was followed by a second and fatal one a few days later. She had been a visitor to Lifford during the funeral of the late Mrs. Tims.

CHARLES MUFFITT.

COE HILL, aJn. 5.—Charles Muffitt, Sr., one of the oldest and most respected pioneer residents of Coe Hill, aged 80 years, passed away on Tuesday, December 28 after a lingering illness for the past year.

The late Mr. Chas. Muffitt, Sr., was born in Cobourg, where he received his schooling. In his earlier years he was a resident of Campbellford, moving to the township of Wollaston some thirty-five years ago. During his illness, he and his wife stayed with their youngest son, Mr. Danel Muffitt, of Coe Hill. He was very active in church work until his health gave out, and at one time rang the Anglican bell to call people to worship. Flower tributes were many and beautiful.

The pallbearers were Messrs. Tobias Sexsmith, Robert McCaw, John King, L. H. Gordon, Thomas Hanthorne, Henry Offenburg, all old neighbors of the deceased.

The hymns sung were "O God Our Help in Ages Past," "There is No Night in Heaven" and "Peace, Perfect Peace."

He leaves to mourn his loss four sisters, Mrs. Jack Whitman of Lindsay; Mrs. Chris Blenbarican of Campbellford; Misses Mary and Carrie Muffitt of Campbellford; his sorrowing widow, aged 81 (the daughter of the late Joe Cassan, of Seymour), besides five sons and six daughters: Tom of Buffalo, N.Y.; Jack, of Niagara Falls; Robert of Toronto; Charles and Dan of Coe Hill; Mrs. Fred Little, of Port Hope; Mrs. Fred Bennett, of Campbellford; Mrs. George Grills of Campbellford; Mrs. Robert Dunk, of Oshawa; Misses Verda and Blanche Muffitt of Toronto.

Interment took place on Thursday, December 30, in Coe Hill Anglican cemetery.

The funeral was conducted by the Rev. Reeding of Bannockburn, in the Anglican church.

Mr. Jack Muffitt, of Niagara Falls, Mr. Thomas Muffitt, of Bufalo, N. Y., and Mrs. Robert Dunk of Oshawa, were unable to be present.

Canadian Imports Up 31.7 Per Cent

OTTAWA, Jan. 5.—(CP).— The Dominion Bureau of Statistics today reported Canada's imports the first eight months of the 1937-38 fiscal year were worth $584,217,797, a gain of $136,892,214 over the figures for the corresponding previous period.

During the first eight months of the fiscal year which ends next March 31 imports from foreign countries increased 31.7 per cent. to $405,991,656, those from the British Empire countries 27.6 per cent. to $178,226,139.

Leading source of this country's imports was the United States which sent $346,060,460 worth compared with $251,473,449 worth the previous period. Next came the United Kingdom with $107,193,272 worth compared with $89,567,280.

Tweedsmuir Suggested As Washington Envoy

LORD TWEEDSMUIR — SIR R. VANSITTART — SIR R. LINDSAY

Coupled with a report that Sir Ronald Lindsay, Britain's ambassador to United States will retire in the spring, a London story printed in New York suggests the name of Lord Tweedsmuir as a successor. Ottawa officially lacks confirmation that the governor-general is being considered for the important diplomatic post. Sir Robert Vansittart, permanent, under-secretary in the British foreign office, is also mentioned as a possible successor to Sir Ronald.

"Officially Dead" Man Turns Robber When Wife Bars Home To Him

Everett, Wash., Jan. 5 (AP) HARLEY G. Weston, 36, told authorities today he turned robber after he failed to get a job or a social security number because he was "officially dead."

Weston said he left his home in Glendive, Mont., five years ago after a dispute with his wife and went to work on a government construction project at Rapid City, S.D., where a man was accidentally killed and identified as "H. G. Weston."

"I let it go at that," he was quoted by sheriff's deputies Ray Ryan and Fred Plymale.

He said he returned to see his wife, Bertha Weston in Manhattan, Mont., last month but she kicked him out and told me to keep moving as I was dead and she was drawing a compensation cheque.

"However, she said she and the children would come to live with me if I got a steady job, but I couldn't because I was dead."

CAROLINA MURDER CHASE FINISHES IN HAMILTON

Sales Slump Blamed By G.M. Head For Firing 30,000

Worst Drop in History, Knudson Tells U. S. Senate; Declines to Approve Roosevelt's Work Proposal

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—(AP)—William S. Knudsen, president of General Motors Corporation, told a special United States senate unemployment committee today his company experienced the severest sales drop in history during November and December. He said this made the layoff of men essential. General Motors laid off 30,000 men January 1.

Taking a quick look at the future, however, the automobile builder told the committee he hoped for an upturn in business by spring.

The lay-off of 30,000 men, he said, was considered "only temporary." He added that the automobile business ordinarily picks up in the spring.

A sharp drop in sales occurred during the latter part of November Knudsen said, but the company then hoped the low point had been reached and that its employees could be kept at work.

He said the corporation suffered a further severe decline in early December "and it became necessary to adjust the working force."

Worst Slump in History.

"The drop in sales in so short a period is the most severe experienced in the history of General Motors," he added. "It was wholly unexpected and beyond our control."

Knudsen devoted much of his early testimony to the relation between consumer demand and employment.

Knudsen asserted manufacturing costs rose sharply during 1937, with labor rates increasing 25 per cent. and material prices swinging steeply upward.

"The over-all increase in car costs amounted to 13.5 per cent in 1937," he added. "General Motors selected to carry this burden without increasing prices, until the period of August to October 1937, when price increases of 8.5 per cent were put in force on all cars."

Discussing labor problems, he told the committee that "shop efficiency suffered in the first half of 1937 to a considerable extent through strikes and unauthorized stoppages, the actual man-hour loss being about $40,000,000."

Change For the Better.

He added, however, that the

$25,000 HOLD-UP COSTS TWO LIVES

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Jan. 6 (AP).—Rudy Evans, 36, was shot to death by one of three men 18 miles north of here last night five hours after three men had killed a post office messenger and escaped with $25,000 at Guthrie, Ky.

Evans was visiting his father, William Evans, proprietor of a combination store and filling station.

Officers said descriptions of the men were similar to those of the Guthrie robbers, and added there was evidence the trio had not intended to rob Evans' place.

Accounts of the affair by witnesses, the officers said, led them to believe that the fatal shot was fired when the gunman feared he had been recognized and believed the younger Evans was reaching for a gun.

FOUR TIE FOR COUNCIL

HAILEYBURY, Ont., Jan. 6 — (CP).—Councilor Fred Radley was re-elected to Buck Township Council yesterday when Frank Mountford, municipal clerk, cast a vote in his favor to break a four-way tie created when the annual election was held yesterday.

Mr. Radley, John Pinnerty, Thomas Fenton and Olaf Nelson each polled 63 votes and were deadlocked for the fourth seat on the council.

9 U.S. PUBLISHERS CALL ON HEPBURN IN SECRET PARLEY

TORONTO, Jan. 6 (C.P.). — A delegation of United States newspaper publishers visited Premier Mitchell Hepburn to-day to protest it was believed, a reported plan of Ontario and Quebec to control newsprint production an dthus maintain present prices.

Yesterday Mr. Hepburn and Hon. Peter Heenan, Minister of Lands and Forests, met officials of the Canadian Newsprint Manufacturers' Association.

"Just nine anonymous newspapermen paying a friendly visit," was the way Col. Frank Knox, publisher of the Chicago News, described the delegation. Other members of the party refused to identify themselves and, at their request, the Premier's office made an effort to keep the meeting secret. Mr. Hepburn refused to admit there was a meeting.

"Has your visit anything to do with the newsprint situation," Col. Knox was asked.

"I have nothing to say," he said cheerfully.

3 WORKERS HURT IN PERTH STRIKE

PERTH, Ont., Jan. 6.—(CP). — Three men were slightly injured today in a snow-ball volley which accompanied a strike of union workers at the Perth Shoe Company where pickets were on duty.

Members of Local No. 1 Shoe Workers' Union and Allied Crafts voted last night to strike after failure of its representatives and those of the company to reach an agreement replacing one which ended a strike last spring.

Joseph Carrier, union organizer, said the union asked for an increase of 10 cents in the hourly pay rate and a 16-per-cent increase on all piece work. The former agreement, which expired three weeks ago, called for a 2½-cent-an-hour increase on time work and a five-per-cent increase in piece-work rates.

Eric Sabiston, company executive, said the old agreement expired last Dec. 15 and that it had been renewed verbally the following day. He said the company received no notification that the strike was impending.

The plant employs about 70 workers. Non-union employees continued on duty and it was not ascertained immediately how many were on strike.

The three men were slightly hurt when persons in a gathering outside the plant pelted them with snowballs as they sought to go to work.

China's Man-Power Being Mobilized

Military Genius Kai-Shek Hopes to Have by Spring 80 Divisions Ready for Relentless War Upon Japs

HANKOW, Jan. 6.—(AP)—The man-power of this nation of 400,000,000 persons was being recruited today on a national mobilization basis for an unrelenting war against Japan.

All cities and towns outside Japanese-occupied area swarmed with troops. In some cities recruits outnumbed civilians. By spring China expects to have 80 full divisions in the field.

Guiding the mobilization of men, money and munitions was General Chiang Kai-Shek, vested with full power over military and civil life of China under a government reorganized on a war basis.

Under Chiang, Dr. M. M. Kung—Chiang's brother in-law and China's leading finance expert—was placed in charge of economic affairs and industries. Last summer Dr. Kung toured European capitals enlisting credit and munitions.

SOLLOWAY'S CASE IS GIVEN TO JURY

TORONTO, January 6 — (CP). — A General Sessions jury retired here early this afternoon to consider a verdict in the case of Isaac Solloway, former strock broker charged with theft, fraud and breach of trust.

Evidence and legal argument required 34 days as the jury under Judge Daniel O'Connell heard scores of witnesses, some of whom were on the stand many hours.

Charges against the former broker, whose company operated branches across Canada, involved more than $2,000,000.

Solloway's counsel, C. W. Bell of Hamilton, told the jury yesterday: "I don't recall any case which has so struck me with such a sense of cruelty. I pray never to be in another like it. We have been acting for a man who is a wreck of his former self."

In reply, Crown Counsel J. W. McFadden, K.C., said Solloway got money from customers "all over the country" and used it to pay dividends and $50,000 for the McDermott mining property in Lightning River. He said Solloway charged for services never performed and charged interest on money his firm never advanced.

Youth 19, Is Arrested For Slaying Hotel Proprietor

Famed Deputy Sheriff Trails Suspect 5 Months Over Half Continent; Finds Final Clue in Boston

HAMILTON, Ont., Jan. 6.—(CP)—A trail that criss-crossed over half a continent for the past five months ended today when Herman H. Grimm, Carthage, N.C., deputy sheriff of Moore County, faced Robert Svendsen, 19, at police headquarters here and told him he was wanted on charges of murder and robbery.

The charges rise from the slaying of an elderly tourist hotel proprietor near Pinehurst, N.C., last August.

Svendsen was arrested yesterday by detectives Herbert Witthun and Orie Young after they received word from Grimm, then in Boston, that the youth might be here with his father. He was locked up on a vagrancy charge and the southern sheriff sped here by train.

The youth was remanded eight days at the request of the Crown when he appeared before Magistrate H. A. Burbidge today. He told Sheriff Grimm he was relieved the chase was over and would not fight extradition. He made a statement to the Carolina officer.

Svendsen, a clean cut youth of more than six feet, looked worried in police court. When the vagrancy charge was read, he said: "That is not what I'm charged with."

"I would suggest an adjournment of eight days," said Crown Attorney George Ballard. 'I am given to understand that the accused is wanted by authorities in the United States and that a deputy sheriff will be here to take him back."

Glad Long Hunt Over

Widely-known throughout the United States for his work on the Statler poisoning case at Pinehurst last year, Deputy Sheriff Grimm said he was glad his lengthy manhunt was over and that he might soon return home.

Grimm told the details of the crime on Aug. 6 to Chief Ernest Goodman here. On that day, Sheriff C. J. McDonald received word from Mrs. J. E. Carraway that her husband, 55 years old, was missing

HEAVY R.A.F. TOLL IS LAID TO SPEED, LACK OF TRAINING

LONDON, Jan. 6 (C.P. Cable). — The death yesterday of a Royal Air Force flier, Acting Pilot Officer H. G. Clitheroe of Toronto, provoked some frank speaking last night by Air Marshal Sir William Mitchell at the Royal United Service Institution.

The year 1937, Sir William said, saw 93 R.A.F. crashes with 156 deaths—the highest year since the War. There were also 29 civil aircraft crashes in the United Kingdom, with 45 killed.

The officer admitted that pilots frequently were obliged to fly high-speed machines before they were experienced, and that the R.A.F. suffered from a shortage of bad weather instruments. However, he said the incidence of accidents was not alarming when it was considerde that the R.A.F. more than doubled its flying mileage in 1937 as compared with 1935, and that hundreds of the newest machines continually were entering service. Home defence strength had been more than trebled.

Concentrating on Production.

Replying to a question as to why R.A.F. pilots were not taught bad weather flying, Sir William said the problem had been given much thought but that conditions for flying were notably bad in this country and there was a shortage of the necessary instruments and

Their supply boat is believed to have been wrecked on its way out for provisions.

Mother Of 40 To Go On Trial As Hunted Sheep-Killer

Township Officials Sure 'Fannie' One Of Dog Pack That Has Slain 200 Victims

WINDSOR, Ont., Jan. 6 (CP). — Sometime in the near future—probably about a month from now — Fannie, fair-haired mother of more than 40 puppies, will go on trial for her life. Owned by Leo Talbot, Colchester North Township farmer, the dog is accused as a sheep killer.

Sheepowners and Anderdon Township officials are certain Fannie is one of a pack of dogs which have slaughtered more than 400 sheep in three Essex County townships. Approximately $3,000 has been taken from the collective treasuries of Anderdon, Colchester, North and Sandwich South Townships, to compensate the owners of the destroyed sheep.

Talbot, however, is so sure Fannie had no share in the brutal killings, he has ignored an official order to have her destroyed and is prepared to fight to prove her innocence in the courts.

Reeve Edward Renaud, of Anderdon Township, laid the charge against Talbot, which will bring him

Guards Don't Jump For Firecrackers

London, Jan. 6 (AP).

IT'S no use throwing fireworks into a squad of Guardsmen on the march in order to see them jump. They simply won't do it.

A small boy on Guy Fawkes' Day (Nov. 5), dared by his school friends to throw a cracker among men of the Guards on the march, did so. But all he got was arrest and a summons. The Guards just marched on.

At the Juvenile Court, the Magistrate dismissed the incident as a boyish prank.

Admits His Birch Soup Wasn't a Hit But Men Liked Pet Magpie Stew

QUEBEC, Jan. 6.—(CP).—Octave Lapointe, 36-year-old woodsman from the Gaspesian village of Maria who did what little cooking there was to do during the five almost foodless weeks a Quebec survey party of 15 spent in the province's northern wilds before its rescue New Year's Day, will be "ready to go back on the same job in a month or so—provided there's plenty of eats to dish up for the men."

First though, he's heading for his home in Bonaventure county to "let somebody do the cooking for me for a while."

Arriving here from Moosonee, Ont., with 11 other members of the survey group also homeward bound, Octave told last night of cooking "everything around the camps for the boys except rabbit skins and shoe-grease" during the 39 days the little party waited at the Missixjabi river for help that came finally four days ago.

From August, when the surveyors, under Lieut-Col. G. R. Guenet started their task of laying a survey line until late November, there was "plenty to eat," said the tall, bearded cook.

"Then," he added, "we were supposed to reach a big food cache laid for us in advance. But we

U.S. Buys 10 Million Less From Canada But Sells Her 8 Million More

Washington, Jan. 6 —(AP)

THE commerce department reported today that while Canada increased its purchases from this country, imports of Canadian merchandise into the United States fell off. Canadian purchases of United States goods totalled $43,545,000 last November, an increase of approximately $8,000,000 while United States purchases from Canada declined nearly $10,000,000 to $28,610,000.

Most other countries, particularly Great Britain, France, Russia, and Argentina increased purchases from this country. Among those nations selling less to the United States last November than the year before were Argentina, Belgium, Italy, Holland and Britain.

Seeks Riches

Lieut. Harry E. Rieseberg, famous deep-sea diver, who will lead an expedition to the Caribbean in search of treasures on the ocean's floor. The expedition will sail on the 4-masted schooner, Constellation, with a crew of nine and a company of technicians. They will carry an "iron man," a mechanical man capable of descending to a depth of 1,000 feet to seek out the riches of long-sunken galleons. The "iron man" is equipped with finger-like projections to enable it to pick up small coins.

GREAT DOME TOPS BROTHER ANDRE'S GROWING SHRINE

MONTREAL, Jan. 6 (C.P.). — A thin little man slipped peacefully into death a year ago to-day. Mount Royal's snows have vanished and come again since the "miracle man of the mountain" died on a bleak January day, but the changing months have done little to slow the patient work Brother Andre began in life.

Up the long hillside to the $1,000,000 shrine he built to St. Joseph, the pilgrims still trudge.

And the shrine, erected out of the contributions of grateful visitors to Brother Andre, still grows. Before he died, he wanted to see the monument to his patron saint finished. The ailment that had reduced his diet to bread and water much of his late years took him off before he realized his ambition.

A year after his death the work is nearing an end. A great dome now rears itself from the body of the shrine overlooking Montreal. It is the biggest of its kind in North America. Inside, more work continues.

BLACK SEA GALE SCARES MICHAEL

The 16-year-old prince, on his way to Athens as Rumania's representative at the wedding of Crown Prince Paul of Greece and Princess Frederica Luise of Brunswick, had shivered in freezing darkness for 36 hours before changing ships in the storm.

The destroyer Queen Maria, aboard which Michael was travelling until it ran into a near-hurricane that battered cabins, damaged the rudder and froze pipes, was towed in by the Dacia.

166,204 ADDED TO U.K. JOBLESS LISTS IN MONTH

Highest in Past Year, Says Labor Ministry.

LONDON, Jan. 6 (CP Cable) — The number of unemployed in the United Kingdom increased by 166,204 during the period from Nov. 15 to Dec. 13, the ministry of labor announced yesterday.

The total of unemployed at Dec. 13 stood at 1,656,407, the highest since last January, the figures showed. The increase for the period covered by the report was the highest for any month since January, 1936.

The ministry noted severe weather the day the returns were taken out down the amount of outdoor work available, thus accentuating the rise in the figures.

On a comparable basis, it said, there was a decrease of 51,000 in wholly unemployed compared with December, 1936, but an increase of 145,000 in temporarily jobless.

WINDSOR STORE LOOTED OF $5,000

WINDSOR, Ont., Jan. 6 (CP).— Burglars who sawed through the steel bars of a second-floor window took diamond rings, and watches, worth about $5,000 from the Cherniak Department Store here during the night. Exact amount of the loss was undetermined pending an inventory.

Several fur coats were found on the floor of an adjoining department, but it is not known if any were stolen. Police believe they may have been too bulky to take through the narrow opening made by the burglars.

The burglars climbed to the roof of an adjoining building. From there a metal ladder was used to reach the department store window. The jewellery was in locked showcases and scissors were used to pick the locks.

3 MEN ARRESTED TRYING BREAK-IN

SCHUMACHER, Ont., Jan. 6.—(CP).—Arrested at gunpoint by Police Sergt. Hugh Douglas as they allegedly attempted to burglarize a store here, three men were held in custody to-day as suspects in a series of robberies here during the past week. Names of the men were not revealed by police.

Sergt. Douglas said he noticed the three men trying to gain entry to the store through the front door. Hiding where he could watch the men, the officer saw them fail to break into the store. Then they went around the block and were alleged to have attempted to enter the rear door.

While they were working on the door Sergt. Douglas said he approached quietly and arrested them. They made no effort to resist and when searched were unarmed. One of the men was sent to Timmins, five miles from here, while the others were held at South Porcupine.

Burglaries of two service stations, a number of shops and a jewel robbery have been puzzling police of the nearby town of Timmins and South Porcupine and Schumacher police.

When arrested the men were alleged to have been in possession of articles identified by business men who were victims of recent robberies.

Police said the men told them they came here from Sudbury. They stayed at a Timmins rooming house since their arrival, police added. The men were not employed here.

CHINESE FLIERS ACTIVE

HANKOW, Jan. 6 (CP-Havas).— Advices reaching here said a Chinese bombing squadron staged a surprise raid to-day on Japanese-occupied Wuhu, 50 miles up-river from Nanking, destroying six Japanese planes and damaging the city's airport.

A total of 76 bombs were dropped by the attacking fleet. One of the Japanese planes that was destroyed was taxi-ing to a landing and the other five were bombers poised for a take-off, Chinese sources said.

The five-day week is being inaugurated in Capetown, South Africa.

U.S. To Spend Cash $13,450 A Minute

Washington, Jan. 6 (AP)

THE Budget which President Roosevelt sent the United States Congress today called for the spending of $13,450 a minutes in the next fiscal year.

2 Hours On Public "Worrying Rock" Nets Drunk $15.62 In Collection

Hapeville, Ga., Jan. 6 (AP).

IT was a profitable two hours which Lamar Couch spent seated upon Hapeville's public "worrying rock" as a sentence for New Year's drunkenness.

Couch said today sympathetic passersby and photographers had tossed $15.62 into his hat while he worried on the stone slab down by the railroad station with an ice-bag on his head.

Recorder C. McNeil Leach had offered Couch the choice of the 2-hour term on the "worrying rock", newly dedicated civic landmark, or paying a $10 fine.

N.L.R.B. DENIES FORD'S APPEAL FOR REHEARING

Firm Decides to Ignore All Decisions of Board

DETROIT, Jan. 6.—(A P)—The decision of the National Labor Relations Board that the Ford Motor Company violated the Wagner Act was headed toward the United States court of appeals today.

Almost immediately the respondent filed with the Detroit office of the board notice it did not intend to comply with numerous provisions of the board's decision, including an order to rehire 29 persons allegedly dismissed for union activity.

The Ford Company in its latest pleadings stated its position as follows:

"It is the intention of the respondent to obey in the future, as it has in the past, the provisions of the National Labor Relations Act upon which the decision and order purport to be based."

The company contended it had not violated the act, that most of the charges made against it were "unjustified by the facts and unsupported by the evidence," and that the board exceeded both its constitutional and statutory authority in ordering the company to desist from certain activities connected with labor policy.

The N.L.R.B., announced in Washington it would go before the court of appeals for an order to enforce its decision.

HAMILTON LEADS IN FIRE LOSSES

TORONTO, Jan. 6 (CP)—Of Ontario's five largest cities, Hamilton had the greatest per-capita fire loss in 1937, it was shown last night in figures released by Fire Marshal W. J. Scott. London had the smallest number of fires and the lowest monetary loss.

Hamilton, with a population of approximately 155,000, had 794 fires during the year, with a total loss of $567,888, the report said. Only $365, 31 of this was covered by insurance. London, with approximately 71,000 residents, reported 350 fires with a total loss of only $70,423, of which $68,780 was covered by insurance.

Toronto suffered the largest number of fires, 3,898, with a total loss of $769,562. Fire insurance companies paid $738,437 of this. Ottawa reported 864 fires, occasioning a total loss of $262,726, covered by fire-insurance payments of $247,706. Windsor had 374 fires with a total loss of $141,480, the insurance loss being set at $134,928.

CASH IS PROVIDED TO HUNT AVIATOR

DAUPHIN, Man., Jan. 6.—(CP)—Three airplanes continued search in Riding Mountain National Park to-day for Pilot Mike Sawchyn and his home-made monoplane, missing a week on a 126-mile flight from Souris, Man., to his home at Sifton, north of here.

Despite cold weather and the fact 22-year-old Sawchyn carried no food, search pilots believed Sawchyn might have made a forced landing but been unable to make his way through the heavily-timbered, rugged terrain to a settlement.

Problem of financing the search was relieved temporarily yesterday when Dauphin Municipal Council authorized further expenditures and the Manitoba government guaranteed expenses for at least one more day's search. Land parties continued the search.

CHIEF CHANGES MIND

EVANSTONE, Ill., Jan. 6 (A.P.)—Police Chief William O. Freeman called traffic squads into his office for a pep talk on how to arrest motorists who have not purchased city licenses for 1938.

"I have given them two days' grace," he said. That is enough. Go out and arrest them."

But Freeman called off the drive within five minutes—"until we get 1938 licenses for the squad cars."

KILLED BY BLOW

SAINT JOHN, N.B., Jan. 6 (CP)—Said to have been struck on the temple by a piece of ice Monday, Joseph F. Fitzpatrick, 16-year-old high school student, was found dead in his bed today.

Daniel J. Doyle, grandfather of the lad, said Fitzpatrick was hit on the forehead by a piece of ice thrown by another boy. He fell to the ground and crawled on hands and knees to his home, a short distance away.

SLUMP IN LABOR LAID TO FALLING DOMESTIC DEMAND

OTTAWA, Jan. 6 (CP)—A report on phases of employment conditions in Canadian industry prepared through co-operation of nearly 10,000 employers was released today by the national employment commission.

Questionnaires were sent to the employers in November, 1936, soliciting assistance in compiling data relative to Canadian employment. Reports were received up to April, 1937, and the results were compiled through the summer and fall.

The report deals with employment comparisons, hours of work a week, seasonality in employment, hiring practices, employee relations plans and plant modernization. It is essentially statistical and the commission draws no conclusions from its compilations.

Dealing with employment comparisons, the statistics disclosed that decrease in domestic demand was the salient cause of decreased employment from 1929 to 1936 among the firms that reported decreases.

Increased use of alternative products was the next contributing cause to unemployment during that period and others were decrease in export demand, introduction of new machinery and changes to a new line of product or activity.

Strikes have stopped, Knudsen said, "and labor relations are much improved."

"The corporation's policy," he said, "is to keep the maximum number of people working consistent with the demand for its product.

Knudsen said his "one hope" for immediate stabilization of work was that "the people generally will feel a little more confident of the future. We need more assurance all the way down the line about this year and the year after."

Knudsen declared the decline was the severest in his company's history. He blamed it not on car prices but on a view held by the "average man" that "work is going to be slack."

"Even if he has the means," the motor magnate continued, "the average man won't permit himself a car under such conditions."

Not Backing Roosevelt Plan.

Knudsen declined to approve, as far as its effect on the automotive industry was concerned, President Roosevelt's current suggestion for planned industrial production as a way of keeping the bill of employment reasonably steady.

The General Motors chief said he knew no way to forecast a sudden sales drop such as that of November and December.

Knudsen disclosed for the first time that General Motors share earnings amounted to $4.48 for 1937 compared with $5.35 in 1936.

He said General Motors tax bill increased $5,000,000 in 1937 to $76,140,000, exclusive of the automobile excise tax.

As to the prospect for an early upturn in business and an end to the recession Knudsen expressed optimism, saying the trend should be upward in the spring.

Sees Recovery Shortly.

"I believe it is only a temporary recession," he said. "I have said so all along. I look for recovery and we are making our plans accordingly."

Talking of lack of confidence as a recessive influence, Committee Chairman Byrnes (D-S.C.) asked "when General Motors lays off 30,000 men, what effect doe sthat have on confidence?" He followed this with another query as to whether General Motors had considered drawing its holdings of $211,000,000 in cash and government securities rather than cut off workers. He said the sum would have kept the entire force working for six months.

"I'd rather write an answer to that when I have time to think it over," Knudsen responded, but later elaborated, "I always want to keep the men working, but constant employment never can be assured unless there is work to do."

WHEAT HITS '38 HIGH

WINNIPEG, Jan. 6.—(CP)—The second big price bulge in Winnipeg wheat futures in early 1938 trading today put prices 9⅞-10⅛ cents higher than 1937's final values.

Large North American export sales Thursday largely accounted for a five-cent advance of May and July wheat to be followed today with a broader commission house business and continued outside interest.

Today's rise on Winnipeg grain exchange was 3¼-4¼ cents, placing May at $1.28¼ and July 1.20½. October future which came on the board today eased 3½ cents to close at 98½ cents.

navigational adjuncts for night and fog flying and it was a question of "getting production to keep pace with the demand."

Asked why civil pilots were more successful in bad weather, he said, "we have inexperienced pilots, turned out in 10 months and put into squadrons where they fly high-speed machines with which they are really not experienced."

"Experience comes only with time and things will undoubtedly improve," Sir William said.

He admitted civil pilots were better but said it was because they were experienced before starting civil flying and were often former R.A.F. officers.

ALEX. McDOUGALL DIES AT HIS HOME

Band sergeant of the Salvation Army Band here for a number of years, Alexander McDougall died at his home, 313 Bethune street, this morning after an illness of a year. He was 61 years of age.

Widely known in the city, Mr. McDougall was a native of Barhead, Scotland, son of the late John McDougall and Isabelle Reid. He came to Peterborough 12 years ago after residence in Toronto.

All his life he was devoted to the Salvation Army work and was forty years a local officer in the organization. He was also a member of the St. John's Dalmuira A.F. & A.M.

Surviving are his wife, one daughter, Marjorie at home; five sons, John and Alfred of Toronto, William of Glasgow, Alexander of India and Robert at home; and one brother, Robert of Clydesbank, and one sister, Mrs. Charlotte Fowler, of Melbourne, Australia.

The funeral will be held Saturday, a private service at the residence at 1.30 o'clock, to be followed by a public service at the Salvation Army Temple at 2 p.m., Adjutant Warrander officiating. Interment will be made in Little Lake Cemetery.

MARMORA GARAGE IS SWEPT BY FIRE

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MARMORA, Jan. 6.—Fire of an undetermined origin completely demolished the garage of C. E. McElwain on Matthew Street, Marmora, shortly after noon on Wednesday. The building owned by the Joseph Dale Estate of Belleville and its contents were completely destroyed, along with two trucks within the building, one owned by G. B. Airhart, Belleville, and the other by William Sweet and Sons, Marmora. The McElwain private car and tow truck were outside, and thus escaped destruction. Warning of the fire was given Mr. and Mrs. McElwain by Garth Sabine, who is a neighbor.

As the garage doors were hastily opened, Mr. McElwain and his mechanic, "Dusty" Miller, were met with a sheet of flame. Removal of the trucks and other effects was seen to be impossible. Fanned by a northwest wind, the flames quickly enveloped the building. Chemical engines were called into action by the volunteer fire brigade, and with other villagers giving assistance, a real battle was waged to save nearby buildings. Streams of water were eventually played on to the roof of the adjoining McElwain residence, and in about an hour the blaze was under control.

It is understood that the garage and contents were insured. The loss has been estimated at $3,000.

Owing to the garage having been owned by the Joseph Dale Estate, it is not yet known if it will be rebuilt. Though only residents for about a year, Mr. and Mrs. McElwain are held in high regard and many have been the expressions of sympathy in the misfortune which befell them through the fire.

The Rambling REPORTERS

GIRLS HELP OUT TRUCK.

Drivers of trucks delivering The Examiner to outside points in the County have the same slogan as carriers of His Majesty's mails: Deliveries must go through. However, it was only through the assistance of four very little girls that completion of deliveries in Lakefield was possible yesterday.

In deep snow on a side street, the Lakefield truck spun its wheels uselessly. The driver was ready to give up when the four little tots offered their help. More amused than hopeful, the driver accepted the offer. In a moment he was surprised to find that the push given by the youngsters was all the additional momentum required to free the vehicle. YOUTH ARRESTED IN SLAYING CASE

Carraway, prosperous and friendly, was known to carry large sums of money, Grimm said.

"A boy hired a tourist cabin from him and stayed there three nights, hiring Carraway to drive him every day to Pinehurst where he was seeking work. On the morning of Aug. 6, they set out as usual. Carraway didn't return. When Mrs. Carraway called us, we organized search parties. A boy found his automobile at the head of a small lake for or five days later.

"We continued searching and found the body hidden in a bush about 75 feet from the road. Apparently he had been sandbagged, pulled out of his car, stabbed through the heart with a hunting knife and robbed of $250.

"The body was found near Pinehurst. Five days had elapsed since he set out from his tourist camp. The knife was found three feet from the body."

Taximan Provides Clue

A taxi driver who drove a youth from the vicinity of the crime to a point 75 miles away, gave police information that sent the sheriff hunting on certain streets in Boston.

The knife was identified as having been bought in a Cambridge, Mass., store. Other clues took the officer to New York, Washington and Baltimore.

Grimm said Svendsen was injured in Baltimore last August when a motorcycle he had bought in Washington, collided with a street car. His leg was broken and he was taken to hospital. Five days later, his mother came and arranged his removal from hospital.

A native of Somerville, Mass., Svendsen came here last month to join his father, a Hamilton resident for nine or ten years, Grimm said. He was arrested in west end residence while making a call.

OBITUARY

MRS. STANLEY LUCAS.

Following a brief illness the death occurred this morning at Nichols Hospital of Pearl McClure, the beloved wife of Stanley Lucas, 9 Dumble Avenue. She was in her 28th year. A daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis McClure of Hamilton, she had resided in Peterborough all her life and attended George Street United Church. Besides her husband and parents, she is survived by two daughters Marie and Kathleen at home; also three brothers Gerald, John, and James McClure, all of Hamilton, and two sisters, Shirley also of Hamilton and Mrs. Robert Hamilton of Peterborough.

The funeral is to be held on Saturday at 2 o'clock p.m., from D. Bellegham & Sons' Funeral Home, with the Rev. M. C .Parr officiating. Interment at Lakefield Cemetery.

MARSENA DAVEY.

Funeral services for the late Marsena Davey were held Wednesday afternoon in Roseneath United church.

Mr. Davey dropped dead on Sunday evening in his home, Roseneath, following an illness of a few days.

Born in Cornwall, England, in October, 1871, Mr. Davey came to Canada with his parents when one year old. The family settled at Centreton.

A Public school teacher, Mr. Davey taught Fenella school for a period of eighteen and one half years, and was principal of Roseneath Public school for approximately twelve years. He retired about nine years ago.

Mr. Davey was widely known and highly esteemed, a prominent Liberal and a public spirited citizen. A steward of Roseneath United church, he held the office of secretary-treasurer for many years. He was tax collector for Alnwick township and secretary of C.O.F. Order for Centreton. He was a past president of Alnwick Liberal Association.

The service was conducted by Rev. L. W. Scott, his text was Matt. 25:13, "Watch Therefore, For Ye Know Neither the Day Nor the Hour Wherein the Son of Man Cometh." Mr. Scott's theme was "Sudden Death," wherein he stressed the messages of the voices of sudden death and the clear vision of heaven produced by sudden death.

Previous to the address Mr. Scott paid tribute to the departed by reading a poem, "Faithful Few" and stressed the loss suffered by the church and community in the passing of Mr. Davey.

Rev. A. C. Hle of Bracebridge, a cousin of deceased, offered prayer. A solo, "One Sweetly Solemn Thought," was sung by Mrs. L. W. Scott.

The hymns were read, the closing hymn being Tennyson's "Crossing the Bar."

There were many beautiful floral offerings, from church, board, church organizations, relatives and friends.

The pallbearers were three elders, Messrs. Archie Mouncey, Norman Sherwin and Andrew Brown, two stewards, Alfred Braithwaite and Albert Halstead, all of Roseneath United church, and Leslie Tucker, who was in the home when death occurred.

Interment was made at Centreton cemetery.

Surviving are his widow, formerly Pearl Hoyt of Haldimand township, two sons, Clark of Rochester, N.Y., and Wilfred of Toronto, three brothers, Thomas of Craigmyle, Alberta, Albert of Calgary, Alberta, and W. Henry of Centreton, and two sisters, Mrs. William Rogers of Centreton and Mrs. R. Rusk, of Castleton.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, Jan. 6 (CP).—Good general buying pushed wheat futures more than four cents higher on Winnipeg Grain Exchange to-day. Despite profit-taking and spreading operations final values were 3¼ to 4¼ cents higher, May $1.28¼; July $1.20½, and October 98½c to 98¾c.

Trading was spurred by sharply higher stocks, steady upturn at Chicago and anticipated large export trade on any market recessions.

Traders virtually ignored minor setbacks at Liverpool. Commission house buying broadened with intermarket spreading. Canadian wheat export sales were placed at 200,000

G.M. HEAD CALLED TO EXPLAIN VIEWS ON WORK SCHEME

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—(AP). — The unemployment committee of the United States Senate sought today from President William Knudsen of the General Motors Corporation an expression of his attitude toward President Roosevelt's suggestion for planned industrial production.

Knudsen's opinion especially was desired, Chairman Byrnes (D-S.C.) indicated, on whether such a procedure would eliminate the sharp gains in unemployment which the busines recession has engendered. General Motors laid off 30,000 men Jan. 1.

The President's proposal was that industry estimate its probable consumer demand six months or a year in the future, and then schedule production to meet those needs. His goal was the smoothing out of employment peaks and valleys.

MOTHER OF 40 TO GO ON TRIAL

to court to defend his dog. The information contends he failed to carry out an order of December 6 to have his dog killed.

Fannie was first suspected when an Anderdon farmer found his flock was attacked by dogs and several killed.

A posse of sheep-owners and township officials was organized and followed dog tracks over four miles of snow-covered countryside. Two sets of paw prints led to Talbot's farm and that of a neighbor.

Talbot said the posse examined the dog but found no signs of sheep-blood on her, and no indication she had just completed a four-mile run.

25% BUSINESS INCREASE.

The Imperial Life Assurance Company of Canada reports new business written in 1937 was over $5,000,000, or 25 per cent greater than in 1936. Increase of assurances in force was more than $7,000,000. Corresponding increases were registered in premium income, interest income and

JOYOUS FAMILIES GREET SURVEYORS

QUEBEC, Jan. 6—(CP). — Not fully recovered from effects of their ordeal, 12 members of a Quebec Government survey party which spent 40 almost foodless days in the Northern Quebec wilds arrived here to-day.

For five of them it was homecoming. Relatives— parents and wives, brothers and sisters — met the train which the dozen pale and weakened men boarded last night at Makamik, near Amos, Quebec.

The other seven still have further train journeys before they reach their folk. Five were going to Maria, little Bonaventure county town on the Bay of Chaleur, another to St. Alexandre, in Kamouraska County, and the last to his Three Rivers, Que., home.

The group received a tearful but joyous reception from 40 odd members of the Guenet and Laflamme families from Lauzon, just across the St. Lawrence River, and the Bernier and Dorval families from Quebec.

Mrs. Guenet, two sons and four daughters, were grouped on the station platform to greet Lt.-Col. G. Romeo Guenet, head of the party of 15. The family's eldest son, Rober, for whom the survey trip was his first into far-northern Quebec with his father, came back too.

A Happy Moment.

Joseph Dorval and Leonard Bernier, the 23-year-old Quebecers with the survey, stepped from the private car which carried the party here from Makamik into the arms of members of their families.

Tall, grain-haired Mrs. Joseph Dorval, her surveyor son's four brothers and two small sisters, greeted Joseph. Kising the youth she had "expected home for Christmas and cried over all New Year's Day" she told him:

"We are going to keep you with us from now on Joe—I remember last August when you left you were as happy as a little prince. But you're glad to come back, aren't you."

Bernier's people hardly recognized the short, hollow-cheeked boy who was the first one to be flown to Moosonee after the party was located New Year's Day by Pilot G. R. Spradbrow of Dominion Skyways.

N.B. MEMBER DIES IN W. M. RYAN, K.C.

SAINT JOHN, N.B., Jan. 6.—(CP)—New Brunswick paid tribute today to William M. Ryan, K.C., Liberal representative of Saint John-Albert in the House of Commons since 1935, who died here yesterday.

Born in Saint John 50 years ago, Mr. Ryan was the son of the late Patrick and Catherine Ryan. He was graduated from St. Joseph's University, College Bridge, N.B., with a degree of Master of Arts, and received his law degree from University of King's College at Halifax.

After his graduation from King's he found his way into newspaper work, working as a news writer on the Saint John Globe and the Daily Telegraph and the Regina leader. Later he set up law practice here and was made a King's counsel in 1934. He contested an Ottawa seat in the Federal House in 1926 and 1930, but met defeat both times.

Returning to the political field in 1935, he was elected member for Saint John-Albert.

Ex-Slave Who Enlisted With Canadians When 69, Still "Perking" At 93 In 'Peg

Ottawa, Jan. 6 (CP)

OLD George Hubbard, gigantic Negro who enlisted with the Canadian Expeditionary Force at the age of 69 and got away with it till the time came for him to go to France looked under 45 when a medical officer passed him at Winnipeg in 1914.

Military records officials today thumbed up the card of the former slave who celebrated his 93rd birthday anniversary at Winnipeg yesterday. It showed he enlisted at the beginning of the war, said he was born in 1876 and didn't look more than 45.

Standing six feet, 2½ inches in his socks, old George tipped the scales at 193 pounds. He was sent overseas as a cook, but did not get to France. A medical board subsequently found he was born in 1845.

Old George, however, was not the oldest man to enlist in the Canadian forces. Departmental records show three men enlisted at 72 years of age, two of them officers who got to England. One enlisted at 73, one at 77 and one at 80.

At the other end of the age scale three lads of 10 were recruited, four of 12 years, 35 of 13 years and 137 of 14 years. Practically all were buglers who did not get beyond England.

3 PLANES KEEP UP HUNT FOR FLIER

DAUPHIN, Man., Jan. 6 (CP). — Airmen in three planes today continued search over forest-covered slopes of Duck Mountain, eyes alert for a trace of Michael (Spud) Sawchyn, 2-year-old Sifton, Man., flier, missing seven days in the bush country 200 miles northwest of Winnipeg.

Ground searchers were handicapped by heavy drifts on the rarely-used trials. Scores of false reports the flier had been seen have been received by Royal Canadian Mounted Police directing the search. A report of smoke signals seen from Baldy Mountain in the Duck Mountains proved to be smoke from a lumber mill in the woods.

Sawchyn left Souris last Wednesday to fly 125 miles to his home in Sifton in a home-made, open-cockpit monoplane. He carried enough fuel for a three hour flight but no food.

John Bull Scores A Hit

In order to get the Arabs to understand the Italian viewpoint part of the plan was for the Italian authorities to present medium wave receiving sets to the Arabs so they could pick up the news sent from the Italian station at Bari, Italy. One report has it that some thousands of these receiving sets were distributed for this purpose.

British Broadcasting Corporation was also desirous of sending news to the Arabs, and the Italian receiving sets will also receive what the B.B.C. has to send. So John Bull is now talking to the Arabs in their own tongue through the receiving sets supplied by Italy.

John may putter about at times in strange ways, but on this occasion it would appear that in the propaganda game with Italy he had popped out a home run with the bases full.

The Farmer Was Annoyed

The Examiner met a farmer standing on the corner outside of this office, and the farmer was moved to do a little protesting. Not about the price of hogs or the markets in general, but about the way in which some of the people drive their horses. Pointing to one driver of a delivery rig he said this:

"If I were that horse I would want to get out of the harness and kick that driver, and I might also feel like biting him. He's a regular and confirmed jerker is that driver. Watch for a minute and you will see. For no reason at all he keeps on jerking on the lines, and I dare say he will do that all day and you can imagine what that has done to that horse's mouth. If that animal ever was a good driver that sort of treatment has spoiled it, and the worst of it is that driver might tell you he uses his horse well, feeds it enough, cleans it and beds it properly. He may do all those things but he is a miserable driver.

"I have been with horses almost since I can remember, and I am sure a horse prefers to be driven with a steady rein not too tight. In that way the mouth of the horse remains sensitive to the touch and it will respond quickly. But that everlasting jerking ruins a horse's mouth and it must keep the horse in a state of irritation because horses are just as sensitive as people."

Truth is the driver of that horse was doing exactly as the farmer had noticed. He was jerking on the lines, and he was doing it as regularly as could be. The horse was going at a good enough pace for a city street; there was no need to urge it to greater effort, but there he was—jerking, jerking on the lines, and each jerk being registered on the bit in the mouth of the horse. After the farmer had called attention to it, that method of driving did suggest something which was either stupid or cruel.

A Touch Of Stupidity

They are not holding what might be termed an official recount following municipal elections in Galt, but Judge E. W. Clement is conducting a survey in the court house at Kitchener. It was found that F. Landreth, highest of the defeated candidates for the Board of Education, made a net gain of 51 votes the first day of the recount. At one place, a double polling booth, the successful candidate for mayor, was given 64 additional votes as a resultof the survey of ballots, and the gain registered by the unsuccessful candidate for the mayoralty was 123. At booth number 10 the unsuccessful candidate is credited with an increase of 49 over the total given to him when the election returns were first made.

We take it that the idea of holding an election in Galt would be about the same as having an election elsewhere. It would be for the purpose of finding out whom the people wanted to elect to office, and the finding out process would be made operative by marking ballots and then having them counted. There is nothing intricate in the process, and nothing new. It has been going on for years. Something rather close to stupidity must enter and take possession when a recount shows such wide variation from the original figures.

The Value Of An Old Car

An individual can go ahead and purchase a car and secure the best value he can find on the turn-in of his old car, and no person pays much attention to it. But when a municipality is doing the same thing it is not possible to hide the transaction under a bushel. The critics are bound to appear under the claim that it is the money of the dear old general public which is being spent.

That is what has taken place in Stratford where it became necessary to purchase a new car for the Board of Health. Tenders were asked and the dealers who did not get the sale of the new car appear to be disgusted. They unitedly purchased a block of space in the Beacon-Herald and set forth their claims. There were 11 cars offered, and the price of each as well as the trade-in value placed upon the old car is given. The prices of the new cars ran all the way from $850 to $1,450, but six of them were from $1,000 down. The strange feature in the list is the difference in the allowance made for the old car which the Board of Health admitted was no longer fit for service. The car which was selected and priced at $1,030 allowed but $80 for the old car; another dealer with a lower-priced car would knock off but $50. Two dealers landed upon the same figure, $150, while one was ready to make an allowance of $258, which is five times as great as the lowest estimate placed upon the old car which had to be turned in.

We learn from the discussion being carried on over this car deal that the Board of Health does not turn in its car each and every year. Far from it. The car is supposed to run nine or ten years, and bills for repairs had been mounting recently to the point where it forced the decision to get rid of the thing and allow some person else to worry about it. And dealer who happened to get that order from the Board of Health in Stratford would have had the same old car on hand. It is not likely that one dealer could get rid of it to any better advantage than another. And yet the trade-in value on that old car ranged all the way from $50 to $258. The dealers in Stratford who advertised the fact that public money was being spent too freely because the lowest-priced car was not secured, have also presented to the public a rather confused system of valuing an old car which was admittedly in bad shape.

Alabama Can Experiment

During the Christmas season 550 men and women from the prisons of Alabama were allowed to leave so they might spend the time at home. These people were considered trustworthy and they merely gave their word that they would return at an appointed time. Reports indicate that the "great majority" of them had done so. Exact figures have not been given.

Officials in charge of similar institutions in Ontario do not believe the plan would work here, and we do not see any particular reason why it should. One may have more than his share of sentiment, but it is difficult to get away from the cold fact that people are sent to jail, reformatory or prison for the purpose of punishment. They are deliberately and properly cut off from association with other free people. Being denied freedom is essentially the idea in all sentences and that includes holidays at Christmas, in the summer or any other time.

It is questionable too if there could be much pleasure in having holidays knowing that at the conclusion one had to return to prison. One would need a greater faith in human nature than the history of prisons and prisoners warrants in order to expect that all those allowed out for holidays would return. If prisoners are behaving then it is possible for most of them to earn a reduction in the length of their term.

The granting of holidays to a certain number and denying the same privilege to others would not make for good feeling among inmates in any jail or prison. Alabama can experiment with it, but we are certain Ontario will not.

Getting Into Big Figures

Big figures have been finding their way into print. The C.N.R. plans to float a loan of $50,000,000, and on the same day it was announced that the national debt of United States had been increased by $1,000,000,000. One of the financial critics in Washington was speaking in a way which seemed almost familiar about billion dollar increases. The word or the amount it represented seemed to bother him not at all.

We doubt whether there are many people in existence who have adequate idea of what a billion dollars really is. It is not too difficult to think of $1,000, but in order to reach even the million dollar mark it is necessary to gather together $1,000 a thousand times. Then to attain the standing of a billion one would have to bring together a million dollars one thousand times.

The reason why the average individual cannot think intelligently or with any degree of familiarity about a billion dollars is not hard to understand. The individual thinks in terms of his own surroundings. A man who is making $35 per week thinks and acts and plans in terms of $35 per week. The amount he can spend for rent, clothing, food, etc., is all built around the central idea of $35 per week. The extent to which such a person can think past the $35 mark depends on the thrift or success which has been his, but even then his financial thoughts centre on $35 per week.

The difficulty is that when governments get to the point where they reckon their debts in billions—and most central governments do—they have arrived at the point where they do not discharge this debt. They just carry it along and a good deal of our taxation goes for that carrying business. Governments too are composed of average men who cannot comprehend a million dollars, so they are in the position of accepting as a fact something which the individual members cannot thoroughly understand. If our public finances could be arranged with the same careful scrutiny as that which is given to his weekly earnings by the $35 man then we would probably have better government financing. For this reason: The $35 man knows and realizes his financial ability and recognizes the limitations it imposes on him. He is disciplined by the size of his income and he can understand the reasons for such discipline. A government working in millions and billions does not experience that self-imposed discipline. Men talk and deal in terms of millions there who in private life deal probably in hundreds or thousands.

For 47 Years

Charles E. Wheeler, F.C.C.O., has resigned as organist and choir master of St. Andrew's United Church, London, Ont. And that might mean little enough unless it were stated he had been organist in that church for 47 years. He has seen seven ministers come and go in that time; he has played for the Presbyterians and now for the United folk.

We dare say he must have played some of the hymns several hundred times. It would not be possible to continually produce new anthems, and the older ones in the course of 47 years would surely come to the surface in times which could be best reckoned by dozens. To each succeeding generation which was entering the church they would at least be new. Mr. Wheeler would hardly have to look at the notes on the printed score; some of those notes would probably wink at him as at an old friend. Mr. Wheeler started playing that organ while Sir John A. Macdonald was prime minister of Canada, and he has continued to make sweet music through the times and days of Sir J. J. Abbott, Sir. J. Thompson, Sir. M. Bowell, Sir Charles Tupper, Sir Wilfred Laurier, Sir Robert Borden, Hon. Arthur Meighen, Hon. R. B. Bennett and into the days of Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King.

A man who could do that is worthy of consideration. He would have to live and worship with those who said he played too loud, and with those who could not or would not agree with the point he gave to the Psalms. He would have to tactfully suppress the ambitions of those who felt their mission on earth was to sing solos. For those 47 years he would always have to be on time. We think Mr. Wheeler has earned a bit of rest.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Canada's navy has gone south for the winter. Being a sailor is not such a bad job after all.

When a municipal clerk has to cast a ballot to break an election tie people get an idea then of how really important an official he is.

Leopald Macaulay says the business of government is the biggest in Canada. From the standpoint of payroll it undoubtedly is.

Some 32,946 Canadians have borrowed under the Home Improvement plan. And that means that 32,946 Canadian homes are better and more comfortable places in which to live.

Captain D. J. Kenney of Gananoque is chairman of the Seperate School Board in his 90th year. The good folk in that town probably have never even heard of Dr. Osler.

Orillia man after paying a fine of $100 for illegal possession of liquor is now going to apply for relief. That is the kind of case that turns the hair of welfare board members prematurely white.

The kind of advice that makes the average man hot under the collar is when the health authorities say that the best way to fight a cold is to stay in bed and rest.

Dozens of roses were in sight on the occasion of the inaugural meeting of Toronto city council. The members like to start out saying it with flowers even if brickbats are likely to be substituted later on.

The Brandon Sun says a truly Christian woman is one who will lend her solid silver to a church social. That may be so, but would she not at the same time tie little bits of red string around the handles of the knives, forks and spoons for purposes of identification?

RIGHT AT HOME

(By A. R. K.)

¶ I see where people head for Spain, (while right at home I shall remain), they're going to fight out there; I also read about where some will get themselves a spear and gun, while others take the air.

¶ Perhaps my views are old and tame, for I don't want to go to Spain, I like being left alone; for I find out most every day, that I don't need to go away, there's war much nearer home.

¶ I have to fight the bailiff now, or he will seize my brindle cow, and jump upon my farm; my creditors are not content, they hound me for their bills and rent, they'd grab things from my barn.

¶ The man who sells me feed and chop, says that my shopping there must stop, unless I pay my bill; the drug store man has shut me off, no matter if I sneeze and cough, and shiver with a chill.

¶ They'd take my stone boat if they could, they'd gladly grab my pile of wood, and swipe my cross-cut saw; and I was threatened just today, unless I galloped forth to pay, they'd tie me up with law.

¶ So when a lot of things get tough, and people start to use me rough, my duty is quite plain; I get enough of war right here, encounter every kind of fear —without going off to Spain.

MANY VOLUMES have been written about Cleopatra's life; about her grave, however, Lilliput points out, there has long been mystery. When Napoleon undertook his Egyptian campaign there were in the motley army of the Republic some enthusiastic archaeologists who dug up a number of ancient Egyptian sarcophagi and sent a whole boatload to Paris.

There the brightly painted coffins were stored away in an airy cellar in the National Library with more care than understanding and there they still were when Napoleon's power had blazed and waned.

❖ ❖ ❖

Later on under a new director of the Library it was discovered that in one of the sarcophagi lay none other than Cleopatra. A search was made for the mummy of the beautiful queen and she was found near another in an indescribable condition in the damp cellar.

❖ ❖ ❖

To have revealed the secret would have caused a scandal and so a few who were in the secret met by night; a grave was dug in the little garden of the National Library and the remains of the body of Cleopatra and the companion of her fate were buried there.

❖ ❖ ❖

The secret was kept for almost half a century and then known only to a few. Every day thousands of people pass the little garden of the Library —incidentally it has meanwhile been altered—without suspecting that in the heart of Paris, within a stone's throw of the boulevards lies Cleopatra.

Whale Theories.

WHEN A SCHOOL of stranded whales died on the Australian coast Professor W. A. Osborne of the University of Melbourne wondered why. Whales breathe like land-lubber animals; further because their blubber supplies nourishment they never starve. Yet ashore they always died.

❖ ❖ ❖

Professor Osborne asked fellow professors for an explanation. In a letter to Nature, British scientific weekly, he reported a variety of answers. Some of them were "The blood now being acted on by gravity produces anemia of the brain. "The weight of the body impedes breathing . . . The unaccoustomed warmth induces heat stroke . . . . The temperature gives rise to internal chills and pneumonia . . . . The whales do not die because they are stranded; they are stranded because they are dying.

❖ ❖ ❖

Professor Osborne summed up: It was amusing to note that in most instances the explanation was colored by the special study of the colleague interrogated.

Supreme Patriotism.

SUICIDE, particularly shinju or love suicide, we are told in Parade, is a characteristic of Japan which has survived from feudal days. To settle trouble by death is traditional moral viewpoint. Harakiri, the act of suicide by cutting the abdomen was an honorable act in ancient Japan and is still nowadays regarded by many as sacred, in accordance with the code of the warrior. From a nationalistic point of view harakiri which is suicide performed for the sake of personal or national honor is not regarded as mere self-destruction but as a supreme expression of patriotism.

Is Japan Able to Defy the World?

No Move Has Been Made to Help Chinese Nation; China Has Had to Face Terrible Odds From Start

Editor Examiner:

Sir: The profuse and fluent apologies of the Japanese Government over the bombing and subsequent sinking of the U. S. Gunboat Panay apparently have been accepted by the U. S. Government at Washington at face value. Technically and officially the affair has become another one of those "closed incidents."

Undoubtedly Tokio has expressed its lamentations over the "unavoidable and unfortunate affair," and averred that the aviators who did the bombing were blinded by the sun, therefore could not make out the nationality of the Panay.

If Washington makes no further protests, the world at large must perforce, accept what it hears and reads, and we must reconcile ourselves to the fact that we are powerless to affect the destinies of nations.

After seeing the destruction of the Panay in the news-reel, what will be the attitude of the American public towards Japan? Can anyone doubt that the latter's deliberate act of destruction will increase the antagonistic feeling that is already in existence? In view of Japan's utter disregard for property, good-will and human lives, there is practically and virtually nothing she can do now to redeem herself in the eyes of the world. No man, woman or child with any sense of justice will condone her for her atrocities.

And, to the officers and men on board the Panay, what must they have thought when missiles of death and destruction were screaming at them from the skies? What material compensation can take the place of a human life? What consolation can replace the loss of a loved one?

In these "incidents" of the past few months Japan has carried a chip on her shoulder, and dared anyone to knock it off. Not only has she affronted the United States with this aggressive attitude, but other nations have also felt and known it for some time.

Yet, with the exception of China, none has had the initiative nor temerity to challenge and confront Japan's effrontries.

Why? Because China as a nation is jeopardized and others are not. China's national existence is threatened with imminent danger of annihilation; she is fighting for her very life, for her right to world recognition. From present indications she is fighting for a worthy cause that seems beyond the possibility of achievement, because she is struggling against overwhelmingly odds.

For years China has been attending to her own internal troubles and interfered with the affairs of no others, and at no time was she ambitious or covetous of what was not rightfully hers. Through the centuries she has cultured her arts and literature; treasured her philosophies and guarded her ancient civilization, and in her peculiar ways pursued her own destiny.

In the eyes of the world and in her own knowledge, China has made amazing strides socially, economically, and in some measure, financially, during the last decade. Under the wise guidance of her present leader, Generalissimo Chiang Kai Shek and his wife, Madame Chiang, China has emerged from a long state of internal chaos to a state of promising security.

Then, like a lightning bolt from the sky came Japan's sudden attack in the summer of 1937. By land, sea and sky, came the hordes of the Mikado's invaders. Equipped with the most modern weapons of war-fare the Japanese blasted their way into China. From on high, winged squadrons released tons of screaming death and destruction on combatants and civilians alike; floating arsenals sent shells whistling into the shelters of terrorized women and children, and a bullet of cold steel was the lot of the unfortunate victim encountered by the soldiers of Japan's war-machine. Centuries of priceless treasures were ruthlessly destroyed and millions of dollars of property blasted into oblivion.

Grimly China's defenders contested the intrusion of her invaders, activated by the instinct for national survival, and encouraged by the strength of a new unity that had not been felt before. Fired with the spirit of this new patriotism and intensified by the heroic deeds of many of their brothers, the defenders thrilled the world by their determined heroism and sacrifice.

Yet this availed them nothing.

Furious at this unexpected and affective resistance by the Chinese, Japan redoubled her efforts and threw her entire military resources into the attempted subjugation of her neighbor. In the face of this added onslaught the battered Chinese armies slowly and reluctantly retreated—by order of their leader, Chiang Kai Shek.

And who can blame them? Who can call them cowards? We cannot expect human flesh to last forever against iron and steel. It is rather surprising that China has been able to resist the foe for so long. The world wonders; even Chiang himself did not expect his loyal troops to show the stamina and tenacity with which they repulsed the aggressor.

Perhaps it is because of Japan's strength that no nation has ventured to interfere in her past and present imperialistic career. Even though the world is aghast at her atrocities in China, no one nation has so far made any tentative offer of aid to the latter country, other than sympathy. Japan's open violation of all existing treaty pacts has engendered no stronger rebuffs nor any more materialistic retributive measures than toned-down warnings and "protests." The League of Nations is absolutely impotent in the present Far East crisis. Even concerted economic boycott of Japan is impossible, because of "private interests" and the fear of international complications.

Yet we talk of democracy and saving the world for democracy by ending wars. There are wars being waged in several parts of the world, and we do nothing about them. We can't, because we are only the population and we have nothing to say in national affairs. What a mockery, and what a paradox! We are the population, hence we must be democrats, yet we can't have our wishes granted by our governments.

And we call this world of ours civilized! I failed to see where civilization is a fact when the rest of the world will watch one nation being torn asunder by another, and do nothing to stop it.

But China will never be subjugated, even though she may be conquered. The spirit of her children is rising, and confidence and inspiration in her new national unity is increasing. China can never perish! Surely if there be right and justice in the Creation of the Creator, forty centuries of civilization will not be allowed to be obliterated and forgotten in the timeless March of Time!

Yours sincerely,
W. W. KENYON.

The Drunk Driver Can't Plead Innocent

Blood Test Shows Exactly the Alcoholic Content; Little Gadget Will Also Tell the Story by Breath

(From the New York Times)

WHEN THE drunken driver, the highway's worst menace, is waved to one side by the uniformed officer on a motor cycle in a traffic accident, the same argument follows from the Atlantic to the Pacific. Heaven is called upon to witness that not a drop has been touched in weeks. To which the usual retort is, "Tell it to the judge."

But not in the State of Indiana. Or, for that matter in Berkeley, Cal., or Arlington, Texas. What the judge hears in these enlightened communities—enlightened by Dr. R. N. Harger, professor of biochemistry and toxicology in the Indiana University School of Medicine—is a chemical argument.

"His blood contained 1.5 parts of alcohol per thousand," testifies the policeman or some one from headquarters. "Chemically speaking, he was drunk."

There is usually no defence after that. According to Dr. Preston M. Nesbit, one of Professor Harger's pupils, all but two of sixty-four drivers who proved to be chemically and physically drunk pleaded guilty after having been arrested and tested during the first six months of the present year in Arlington, which lies on the fourlane highway between Dallas and Fort Worth, Texas.

Alcohol affects the brain and higher nerve centres. When brain alcohol amounts to one and one-half parts per thousand by weight intoxication sets in. With five parts per thousand the verdict is "dead drunk." If some carry their liquor well it is not because they belie these findings but that they rid themselves of alcohol more rapidly than others, and hence require more alcohol to affect the brain.

Living brains cannot be examined for alcohol. But blood can. And the concentration in the blood indicates what the concentration must be in the brain. Any other liquid of the body is equally useful in making the determination—the spinal fluid, for example.

In the United States, where some principles of the common law still hold good, it is doubtful, in the absence of a permissive statute, if blood may be legally withdrawn without committing a technical assault. But air, in this case a drunkard's breath, is free.

The trick, then, is to collect breath and test it. Professor Harger has developed a new reagent for alcohol—a purple solution of permanganate of potash in a mixture of sulphuric acid (specific gravity 1.42). When a drunk breathes into such a solution the purple color fades. A definite amount of color bleaches a definite composition of liquid. Hence, the reagent shows how much alcohol there is in breath.

Dr. Harger has devised a small apparatus which is no bigger than a camera of medium size and which can be carried to the scene of an automobile accident. Anybody can operate it after a little training. It takes not more than five minutes to test breath for alcohol. The drunk simply blows up a little balloon. From this his breath passes into the purplish solution.

You can lead a drunk to the apparatus but can you make him blow up a little balloon? Professor Harger and his pupils can. Everybody must breathe. Two feathers are placed on the free end of a tube and held under the rebel's nose. If the feathers move, breath is being expelled. A suction pump does the rest.

Hard to Believe How Time Flies

JANUARY 6

1908: Harry Rush is elected mayor and Ald. Harry Phelan heads the aldermanic poll.

Four members George A. Gillespie, Wm. Buller, Robert Neill and J. J. Turner are elected to the council.

A Bible Message For To-day . . . .

NOW THE first day of the feast of unleavened bread the disciples came to Jesus, saying unto him, Where wilt thou that we prepare for thee to eat the passover? And he said, Go into the city to such a man, and say unto him, The Master saith, My time is at hand; I will keep the passover at thy house with my disciples. And the disciples did as Jesus had appointed them; and they made ready the passover. Now when the even was come, he sat down with the twelve. . . . And as they were eating, Jesus took bread, and blessed it, and brake it, and gave it to the disciples, and said, Take, eat; this is my body. And he took the cup, and gave thanks, and gave it to them, saying, Drink ye all of it; for this is my blood of the new testament, which is shed for many for the remission of sins. But I say unto you, I will not drink henceforth of this fruit of the vine, until that day when I drink it new with you in my Father's kingdom.—Matt. xxvi, 17-20, 26-29.

FOR THE NEW YEAR

That I each day while on my daily round
Be in the path of duty always found,
And in the work of Christ my Lord abound
Be this my aim.

That I may help Him seek and save the lost.
And like my Saviour count not gain or loss
Be this my aim.

That I may do His will from day to day,
And walk with Him upon the narrow way,
Trusting His word completely come what may,
Be this my aim.

That when at last this life's short day is done,
And I go home to rest at set of sun,
To hear my blessed master say "well done"
Be this my aim.

GEO. LEADER.
Peterborough.

Do You Suffer From Headaches?

Headache is nearly always symptomatic of some diseased condition, rather than a disease itself, but in most cases comes from a disordered stomach, or poor circulation of the blood, and the cause must be removed before relief can be had.

Burdock Blood Bitters helps remove the cause of headache by acting on different organs of the body to regulate, strengthen and purify the system.

MRS. ARTHUR J. WILLIAMS, Lac Ste. Anne, Alta., writes:—"I suffered for years with dizzy headaches, and sometimes they were so bad I could not get any sleep.

My neighbour told me about Burdock Blood Bitters, and after taking several bottles my headaches had disappeared.

My husband was troubled with pimples on his face, causing him great discomfort when shaving, but after he had taken two bottles of B.B.B. he got rid of the pimples."

SILVER WEDDING SURPRISE PARTY JOYOUS EVENT

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, Jan. 6. — Mr. and Mrs. J. H. McKnight observed the twenty-fifth anniversary of their wedding day at their home, Fallis Line, on Monday evening, the very unfavorable weather on the actual date, December 31, making postponement of the event compulsory.

Seventy or more guests were present, the gathering being in the nature of a surprise party for the 'bride and groom' of a quarter of a century, many from a distance being unable to attend owing to the fact that roads have been blocked in all directions because of the strong winds and heavy snow storms in recent days.

Conversational intercourse and cards entertained the guests until all had arrived, when community singing was enjoyed, with Mrs. Percy Stinson accompanying, Rev. A. L. Sisco being chairman for the brief program. Among those contributing to the items on the pogram were Lindsay Belch who gave a recitation; Vera Fallis, whose vocal solos were appreciated; Mr. Charles Thorndyke, who sang an appropriate tenor solo; and the younger son of the home, Donald McKnight, who played a cornet solo.

The guests of honor were then asked to take central seats amidst the company, when Mr. H. A. Fallis read an appreciative address, and on behalf of a wide circle of friends, relatives, and acquaintances, Mrs. J. McKnight, of Millbrook, presented them with a case of fifty pieces of flatware in Deauville pattern, and in sets of eight, knives, forks, spoons, etc.

Mr. McKnight made suitable reply on behalf of his wife and himself, and following the singing of "For they are Jolly good fellows," short addresses were made by Messrs. Lorne Todd, of Osaca; H. A. Fallis, ex-Warden Percy Stinson; T. W. Belch, and W. F. Fallis, felicitating the bride and groom on having reached their twenty-fifth milestone in life's journey together, and mentioning particularly the fine citizenship which has characterized Mr. and Mrs. McKnight's long residence in the community.

Refreshments were then served, a notable item being the handsome three-story wedding-cake, with its twenty-five candles alight until the time came for the 'bride' to insert the silver cake knife preparatory to the cutting of the delicious confection and its service to the guests. The cake was the gift of the bride's sister, Mrs. Lorne Todd, of Osaca. Many other individual gifts were received by Mr. and Mrs. Knight, and much admiration was expressed for the lovely sheaf of hothouse flowers, given to their mother by the children of the home, Reg McKnight, of Peterborough, Edna and Donald at home.

Mr. and Mrs. McKnight were married at Pontypool on December 31, 1912, by the late Rev. M. E. Wilson; the bride being a daughter of Mr. James Connell, and the late Mrs. Connell, of Manvers. Mr. and Mrs. Todd, whose marriage took place in February of that year, were their attendants.

Forced to vacate premises, fixtures and stock of Clysdale's Cigar Store, Charlotte and Aylmer, are for immediate sale.

ANOTHER SHOTGUN WEDDING

PERLEY FUNERAL NATIONAL TRIBUTE

OTTAWA, Jan. 6 (C.P.). — Plans were completed to-day to honor in death Sir George Perley. The King and Queen joined other Empire leaders in paying tribute to the eminent Canadian statesman who died her on Tuesday.

Although the funeral will not be formally a State function, it will rank as a national tribute to the Conservative Parliamentarian, former Cabinet Minister and one-time Canadian High Commissioner to London.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King has offered special honors to Lady Perley and members of the family which includes an escort of scarlet-coated Royal Canadian Mounted Police and playing of the Carillon in the Peace Tower of the Parliament Buildings during the funeral service.

The service will be held on Friday from Sir George's Blackburn Avenue home here to All Saints' Anglican Church. Rev. C. G. Hepburn, the rector, will conduct the service, which will be attended by Most Rev. J. C. Roper, Archbishop of Ottawa, and other members of the Anglican clergy.

Lady Perley last night received a message of condolence from the King and Queen. It said: "The Queen and I are grieved to hear of the death of your husband, whose distinguished services to Canada and the Empire will long be remembered . We send you our deepest sympathy."

Conservative Leader Bennett, who considered Sir George the closest of all his party associates, was in Calgary when he received word of his death. The former Prime Minister cancelled all engagements and planned to leave at once to attend the funeral.

HONG KONG CABLE BREAKS

HONG KONG, Jan. 6 (A.P.). — Cable connections between Shanghai and Hong Kong were broken to-day, but a repair ship was at work and resumption of service by the week-end was expected. Hong Kong messages to Shanghai in the meantime must be routed via London.

BANCROFT

A large crowd attended the annual New Year's party which was held in the Bancroft Community Hall on Thursday evening, December 30, 1937 under the auspices of the Bancroft Red Cross.

The hall was beautifully decorated for the occasion, and colorful paper caps and noise makers added to the happiness of the evening. The early part of the evening was spent in playing bridge and euchre. The bridge prizes were won by Mrs. Reginald Blatherwick and Mr. Frank Morton. The euchre prizes were won by Mrs. George Davey and Mr. Gregory Fitzgerald.

The latter part of the evening was spent in dancing to the excellent music provided by the Troubador Orchestra. The chair prize was won by Miss Rae Davey, and the cup prize went to Mr. J. R. Peters.

SPRINGBROOK W.I. HAS GOOD MEETING

BONARLAW, Jan. 6—The regular meeting of the Springbrook Branch of the Women's Institute was held at the Orange Hall, Springbrook, on Wednesday afternoon of last week, with a fair attendance.

The meeting was opened in the usual manner by the president, Mrs. George Bailey. The minutes were read by the secrtary, Mrs. W. J. Barlow. The roll call, "A community need," was well responded to. Current events was given by several of the members.

Mrs. Grenville Meiklejohn, convenor of the relief committee, reported six Christmas baskets packed and delivered. Plans were made for quilting two quilts for relief. Community singing was enjoyed by all. A competition was staged in singing the song "Jingle Bells."

A pleasing piano solo was contributed by Mrs. W. G. Swayne. Mrs. Florence Bateman gave an interesting paper on "Christmas", and Mrs. Archie Haslett a three minute talk on "Activities of Women's Institutes," which was most instructive and interesting.

After the exchange of Christmas gifts, a musical contest was put on by Miss Phyllis Barlow.

The meeting was closed by the president, after which lunch was served and a social half hour spent.

Willing Workers Meet

On Thursday afternoon of last week the "Willing Workers" Sunday School class of St. Mark's Sunday School gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Barlow. The occasion was a cup and saucer shower for Mrs. Harold Bateman (nee Audrey Prince) a member of the class who recently became a bride. An address was read by Miss Phyllis Barlow, teacher of the class, expressing the esteem in which Audrey is held by all, and wishing her much joy and every success through life. Mrs. Bateman replied in a few well-chosen words, thanking them all for their kind thoughtfulness. All sang "For she's a jolly good fellow," games were played, a dainty lunch was serverd, and a real social hour was enjoyed by all.

BIG HYDRO BATTLE CAUSES INTEREST IN ORONO VILLAGE

ORONO, Jan. 6. — With father against son, and neighbor against neighbor, Orono, that Utopia with no very rich and no very poor and no one on relief, is split wide open as to whether the village should buy its electric system from the Hydro-Electric Commission.

Those against the purchase of the sytsem contend it is nothing but a collection of junk with rotten poles, corroded wires and worn out transformers which would all have to be replaced by the taxpayers. The village's present enviable reputation of low taxes because of the absence of any municipal debt, they say, would be lost.

On the other hand, the Orono Chamber of Commerce, leading the campaign for the purchase of the system, charges that the Hydro Commission is taking large lumps of profit out of Orono by charging the village the highest rates in Ontario.

"It's time we took some of those profits ourselves," declared O. W. Rolph, President of the Chamber of Commerce, last night. "We're paying 5½ cents a kilowatt, while they pay only 2½ cents in Port Perry, where they own their own systems."

One advocate of the proposed purchase said that while his wife was away last summer, he turned off the electric clock, disconnected the radio and went to bed in the dark for two weeks and when his bill came in it was fifty cents higher than for the same month of the previous year.

Inquest Nears In Slaying Of Michigan Stenographer Killed In Canadian Cabin

Former Ball Player Who Found Body Is Still Held As a Material Witness

By BERT STOLL
Central Press Canadian Correspondent.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., Jan. 6.—Crown Attorney John L. O'Flynn will hold an inquest on Friday in the mysterious wilderness slaying of attractive Helen Grier, Pontiac and Battle Creek, Mich., stenographer.

Clad in pyjamas, Miss Grier's body was found in a pool of blood on the kitchen floor of the wilderness hunting lodge on Long Lake, eight miles from the little lumber post of Glendale, Ont., on the Algoma Central Railway, by her hunting companion, Vernon Spencer, former major league baseball player. Spencer, still held in jail as a material witness, now is a well-to-do dairy farmer of Wixom, Mich., near Pontiac.

Killed October 28.

The mysterious slaying occurred late in the afternoon on Thursday, October 28. Ten days before that, Miss Grier and Spencer had made their way over the wilderness trail on foot to the hunting lodge on Long Lake, owned by Dr. August A. Holcomb, of Northville, Mich., a friend of Spencer. In company with Fred Olar, a guide and caretaker of the Holcomb cabin, Miss Grier and Spencer had come out on Tuesday, October 26, over the trail through the rocky wilderness three miles to the toll road of the Crane Lumber Co., which leads from Glendale Station, over private property to the lumber company, to Ranger Lake, 29 miles northeast. The trail to the isolated cabin of Dr. Holcomb leads off the toll road from a point about five miles northeast of Glendale.

The girl, Spencer and the guide drove in to Glendale and then on 30 miles farther to Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., for supplies. On their return, Olar remained in Glendale, his home.

That was the last time Miss Grier was seen alive by residents of Glendale, who knew her well, as she had made fall hunting trips to Long Lake for the past six years.

Shooting Targets.

Shortly before midnight on the following Thursday, Spencer reached the home of W. H. Spence, local manager of the Crane Lumber Co., at Glendale, disheveled and excited. He told Spence that he had found Miss Grier's body on the kitchen floor of their hunting cabin, with blood coming from a bullet hole in the right side of her head and a .22 rifle beside her. He said that he and the girl had been shooting at targets earlier in the afternoon and then he left the cabin alone to go down to the lower end of the lake to hunt for moose tracks, as the moose season was due to open the following Monday, November 1.

Spencer added that on his return an hour later, he found Miss Grier dead. This was about 5.30 p.m. He left a short time afterward to make his way to civilization to report her death. Upon reaching the toll road, after three miles of hiking over the rough wilderness trail through the low-lying mountainous country, heavily wooded, he found that he had left the keys to his car, parked near the cabin of Bill Roche, lumber company employee, at the Holcomb cabin. Roche had no car. So Spencer set out on foot again for the additional five-mile trek down the toll road to Glendale.

Spencer called the Sault and reported Miss Grier's death to the authorities. Coroner J. A. Keith and Constable Tom Crawford of the Ontario Provincial Police, left immediately for Glendale; joined Spencer and, with Fred Olar, the guide, and Bill Roche accompanying them, they made their way to the scene of the tragedy.

Crude Stretcher.

After the coroner and Constable Crawford had examined the premises thoroughly, a crude stretcher of spruce boughs and blanket was fashioned and, in the pitch darkness, the party made its way slowly out of the wilderness bearing the girls body. Along parts of the trail Olar had to carry Miss Grier's body over his shoulder.

Spencer has been held in the Canadian Sault jail since October 29 as a material witness.

With Giants in 1920.

Before joining the New York Giants as a centre fielder in 1920, Spencer played baseball with several minor league teams, including the Buffalo Bisons, Toronto Maple Leafs, and Toledo Mud Hens. It was during his baseball career that he met and married his wife, who was prominent in Los Angeles society.

Mrs. Spencer visited her husband in the Sault jail on Sunday, October 31, and, upon her return to her home, told newspapermen that she would stand by him. Spencers mother, who lives near Detroit, said she believed her son innocent of any wrong-doing.

Spencer was left his extensive dairy farm upon the death of his father several years ago.

ARTHUR HOLMAN DIES

NEWTON, Mass., Jan. 6—(AP).—Arthur Alfred Holman, 52, theatre producer and actor of more than 1,000 roles, died yesterday at his home after a short illness. He was a native of London, Ont.

A director of the theatre department of teland Powers School of Drama for the past three years, Holman produced about 900 plays during a 34-year association with the theatre.

CANADIAN FLEET STARTS ON CRUISE

OTTAWA, Jan. 6 (C.P.). — The Department of National Defence today released winter cruise programs of the four destroyers of the Royal Canadian Navy.

H.M.C.S. Skeena and Fraser of the West Coast sub-division will cruise on the Pacific and H.M.C.S. Saguenay and St. Laurent of the East Coast sub-division will cruise on the Atlantic. Later both will meet at Panama in the Canal Zone and cruise down the West Coast of South America.

The Saguenay and St. Laurent left Halifax on January 4 and are scheduled to arrive in Bermuda to-morrow where they will remain until January 18, when they leave for Montego Bay, Jamaica. After a six-day stop at Montego Bay they will proceed to Panama, being scheduled to arrive there on February 3.

San Pedro, Calif., will be the first place of call on the cruise of the Skeena and Fraser, which left Esquimalt, B.C., on January 4. On January 11 they will proceed to Mazatlan, Mexico, for a four-day stay, leaving there on January 18 for Corinto, Nicaragua. Arriving there on January 22 they will remain until the 26th, and then leave for Panama, arriving at the same time as the other two ships.

Down the Pacific.

The four destroyers will leave Panama on February 5 for the Galapagos Islands, Ecuador, remaining there until February 8 and then will proceed to Callao, Peru, for a five-day stay. Paita, Peru, is the last port of call and they will arrive there on February 18 and remain until February 22.

The Department also released the program for H.M.C.S. Venture, a sailing schooner, which left Halifax on January 1 and during its three months' tour will visit Bermuda, St. Kitts, Barbados, St. Lucia, and Granada on the cruise down the Atlantic. On the return voyage it will call at Barbados, Antigua, and Bermuda, thence to Halifax, arriving there on March 23.

Wilderness hunting lodge where Miss Grier's pajama-clad body was found, 30 miles north of the Canadian Sault on Oct. 28.

Vernon Spencer, as he looked when he played with the New York Giants, found the body of his hunting companion at the lodge.

MUSKRAT TRAPPER FINED AT TWEED

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, Jan. 6. — Apprehended by Game Wardens while trapping muskrats out of season, Felix Latone of the French Settlement, was convicted of violation of the Game and Fisheries Act, and accessed a total of $15.25, after appearing before Magistrate J. L. Lloyd in the County Police Court held at Tweed on Tuesday. The skins found in the possession of Latone were ordered confiscated by the Department.

Fanned by heavy winds which swept the northern townships during the first part of the week, fire broke out in the residence of Clayton Hennessy, Township of Dungannon, on Monday, completely destroyed the large frame home. Starting at the roof, the blaze worked downward through the structure with considerable speed, in spite of the efforts of volunteers in combatting it. Little furniture was saved.

PERJURY CHARGE LAID IN LINDSAY

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LINDSAY, Jan. 6.—Albert Bennett of Toronto, had a charge of perjury preferred against him in police court following the conviction of Hector Blair on the charge of theft of three coats. Bennett was a Crown witness, and it is alleged that he made false statements about his previous court record. He stated that he had only been in trouble once about five years ago in connection with the theft of cigarettes and chocolate bars. Crown Attorney Anderson happened to have his record before him, and the accused admitted other and more serious charges. He was remanded until Friday.

Frank Apps, driver of the Model Bakery, Cannington, has been admitted to the Ross Hospital. He was attempting to crank the motor truck when he fractured his arm in two places.

A car driven by Fred Brandon, and containing his mother, Mrs. Bedford and Miss Jean Brandon, was ditched the other night on the Lindsay-Fenelon Highway. The car plunged into a snow drift and overturned in the ditch. All escaped injury, but the car was damaged.

The death is announced at Fenelon Falls of James Martin, one of the pioneers of Victoria County. He was in his ninety-second year. In early days deceased was prominently identified with the lumbering business, and for a time was operator at the power house of the Light, Heat and Power Company. He is survived by one daughter and a brother.

HASTINGS COPS OVERTIME WIN - MADOC BEATS CAMPBELLFORD

JUNIORS SCORE 4 TO 1 VICTORY OVER NORWOOD

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Jan. 6. — Hastings Juniors opened their East Peterborough League schedule with a 4 to 1 overtime victory over Norwood Juniors played here last night (Wednesday). It was a fast hockey game from start to finish with Hastings having a faster team while Norwood were the better stickhandlers.

Just after the first period started Webb of Norwood tested Montgomery in the Hastings' nets with a hard shot from in close. McCarthy on a return rush got right in but was outguessed by McMaster, Norwood's goalie. Norwood began leading three man rushes only to be stopped at the defence. Puffer got right in for Norwood, but Montgomery was too good. Coughlan then went on a lone rush but McMaster pulled off a nice save. The period ended with both teams opening up and sensational goal-tending by both goalies. There were no penalties handed out in this period.

An Even Count

To open the second period Scriver took Edwards' pass to get right in on McMaster but his shot was blocked. Webb gave Montgomery a hard one to clear as both outfits were going at a fast pace. Coughlin gave the Hastings fans a chance to cheer when he scored only to have it called back with Radford in the crease.

At the ten minute mark Radford opened the scoring when he was left uncovered in front of the Norwood goal. Coughlan and Boyle teamed up for a nice rush into the Norwood end but Coughlan shot into McMaster's pads. Turner of Hastings received the first penalty of the game when he was given the gate for boarding. While he was off Puffer tied it up for Norwood when he scored on a lone rush at the fifteen minute mark. Norwood continued to lead rushes into the Hastings end till Turner returned. With just thirty seconds to go Webb of Norwood was penalized for tripping.

With Norwood a man short to open the third period, Turner put on one of his Shore-like rushes when he ploughed through to give McMaster a hard one to save. Webb took Godin's pass to give Montgomery some trouble but he outguessed him. An Edwards to Phillips to Coughlin passing play brought Hastings right in only to have Coughlin shoot wide. As lines changed McCarthy and Scriver got right in but Scriver missed the net. The period ended with no penalties and Hastings outplaying Norwood by a wide margin.

Continue Offensive

The teams changed ends and Hastings started the overtime stanza like they ended the third period by leading rush after rush into Norwood territory. Edwards finally broke the deadlock to give Hastings a 2 to 1 lead when he took Scriver's pass after two minutes and fifty seconds of overtime. Just forty-five seconds later McCarthy sank McCoy's pass to make it 3 to 1. Boyle then gave Coughlin a perfect pass to wind up the scoring and give Hastings a 4 to 1 lead after four minutes and fifteen seconds of play. Hastings continued to dominate the play till Phillips was given the gate. The game ended with Hastings storming in on a badly disorganized Norwood outfit. Montgomery, McCoy, McCarthy, Coughlin, Boyle and Radford was Hastings' stand-outs, while Webb, Puffer, Godin and Clarke were Norwood's best.

The Teams

Norwood—Goal, McMaster; defence, B. Bedore and Puffer; centre, J. Baskin; wings, Webb and Godin; subs, Thompson, Lumsden, Clarke, O. Bedore and T. Baskin.

Hastings—Goal, Montgomery; defence, McCoy and Preston; centre, Edwards; wings, McCarthy and Scriver; subs, Radford, Phillips, Puffer, Turner, Boyle and Coughlin.

Referee—R. Ennis, Nowood.

TANNER QUARTET LAKEFIELD WINNER CURLING TOURNEY

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, Jan. 6. — The curling season opened officially in Lakefield on New Year's Day, January 1, when the Lakefield Men's Curling Club ran off their annual open bonspiel in the Lakefield Rink. This 'spiel is open to all comers whether members of the club or not, and this year fifty-two men entered the competition.

The play started about 10 a.m. on New Year's Day and both sheets of ice available were kept busy until 11 p.m. Everyone took a keen interest in the play, and as the schedule progressed quite a crowd of spectators gathered to watch the proceedings.

The final game, which was played at 8 p.m. on Monday, January 3, was between F. L. Erskine's rink and that skipped by C. S. Tanner. The latter rink carried off the honors by a score of 12 to 7 in a close game.

Following are the results:

First Round.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

AND TONIGHT a bunch of bozoes in a boxing ring at the Armouries will be bouncing bunches of fives off other birds' beaks. In the name of the sour science of self-defence. 'Tis the Riverview A.C. mitt show of seven bouts. We know we mentioned it before but it's worth several mentions, as it shapes up as a lively evening for a flock of fistic followers. And a very lively few minutes for a gang of gloved gladiators. Most of the seven bouts are between Toronto scrappers and local guys. Two return matches that will be grudge scraps, or we'll take a tall one mixed with vinegar! Should be several kayoes on this card, and puh-lenty for the ring worms to yodel about during and after. We heartily advise anyone who likes to see a good fight—and who doesn't?—to ankle up to the Armouries ere 8.30 tonight and take a gander at the proceedings.

* * * * * * *

HERE'S THE complete card again: Buddy Redmond, 85, (pounds, not years!) vs. Bobby Quirt, 84, in the three-round curtain-raiser; Joe Hobbins, 147, vs. Jack O'Neill, 154, both locals; Bill Joiner, 132 vs. Phil Morris, 133, of Toronto; Pat Jordan, 133, vs. Tommy Foster of Toronto, 132 pounds; Norm Bowler, 147, vs. Art Darnbrough, 147-pound Ontario champ, a Toronto battler; Len Minicola, 135, vs. Joe Genovese, 135, of Toronto; and Nick Orlando, 135, vs. Bev. Carter, 135, of Toronto. The bouts in which Toronto gees box are five two-minute rounds. Carter and Foster are colored lads. Referee is Harry Hance and judges are Archie Menzies and Wilf Jones. And that, mes amis, is the dope. Hop to it, fight fans.

* * * * * * *

SENIOR CITY Hockey League, nee Blood and Thunder Loopers, open it up tonight with a twin offering at the ice amphitheatre on the Rue Brock. Or Brock St. rink if you insist. At eight bells, it's Westclox vs. Southenders, and at nine, it's Hiawatha 'gainst Bewdley. Not knowing the lineups yet of these squads, we wouldn't guess as to the winners. But it's a lead-pipe cinch (wrapped in cellophane to soften the blow) that puck fans who trek there this e'en will see oodles of action, a bunch of bumps and plenty over which to chuckle. The two local teams will dish up a dandy dish and you can look for blood on the moon when the old rivals of Rice Lake, the Indians and the Bewdley boys, mix it. On Friday p.m. in Lakefield, Millbrook and Lakefield open their senior circuit schedule.

* * * * * * *

TOMORROW IN the twilight at the Brock, starting at 8.30 o'clock, the O.H.A. senior "B" squads, Trenton Fliers and the Petes, take off. Before a full house, we imagine. These classy crews, bitter rivals of last winter, really turn it on against each other. The Petes' surprising 10-5 overtime win—aided by a costly Fliers' penalty—was a bitter dose to the Trentons last Tuesday in Belleville. They'll be fairly flying here tomorrow to get revenge as the Ontario intermediate "A" champs of last year don't like to lose. Nossuh, nohow. But they'll have to hustle to hold Pick Hines' high-stepping Petes this season. We've really got a hockey team and fans can bank on plenty of fight and action and goals every time they skate onto the ice. It's a puck natural and will pack in the customers.

* * * * * * *

TWO QUINTE columnists give the Petes a lot of credit for their fine finish 'gainst the R.C.A.F.-ers on Tuesday. Ken Colling writes that they earned the win in overtime but that the tying goal in the third should not have been allowed. Referee Armstrong told him that the rule says the timer's gong or whistle—not the referee's—ends play, but that the puck was in the net ere the timer's gon gsounded. And Ken disagrees. However, George Carver, quite a witty writer on the same sheet, says Armstrong was quite right. Adds he: "For 30 seconds of overtime the red light behind Gibson flashed so often it looked like a short circuit had entered the game. Three markers in 30 seconds with the hilarious Petes backslapping and Big Apple-ing it all over the pond." Ken comments: "From now on it'll be 'those pesky Petes', but they deserved their honors, some of which go to Coach Hines, too." Barnes, Calladine, Starr and Vitarelli were rated stars, and Clarke got credit for fine work in the little hempen wigwam.

* * * * * * *

THE THIRD local O.H.A. team to swing into action this winter goes to Port Hope tonight when our intermediate Bees buzz into the Hopers' hive and hope to harvest some honey. Ha, alliteration, huh? Herb Payne has a good gang lined up, most of 'em having starred in recent years in O.H.A. ranks for Peterborough as juniors or intermediates. Gees like Clarke, Ellis, Magee, Whitton, Coughlin, Creighton, Gardner, Heal, Hill and Burton. They go to Oshawa next Monday and meet Whitby here a week later. That Oshawa outfit will be ornery enough, too, we suspect. They have a lot of good pucksts such as McEwan, March, Patton, Authors, Armstrong, Clarridge, Goodchild, Rowden, Hooper, Bagnell and Everett. The referee in Port Hope tonight is "Army" Armstrong of Oshawa.

* * * * * * *

A FAIRISH sort of crowd saw the O.H.A. junior "B" season opened here last gloaming when our Colts copped a 5-2 nod over Belleville at the Brock St. bounce emporium. Not a bad game, either, though both teams need a lot of polishing up yet on passing plays and checking. Colts' combination wasn't too bad, however, and that's what gave them the edge. Belleville were big enough and pretty speedy skaters, also, but they hogged the puck and lackd loads of finish when in scoring position. Our first line looked good and the goalie appeared smart. The rest showed promise but had a bunch of rough edges to smooth out first. We'll have a good junior squad again this winter, big and fast, and full of fight. Just give 'em a few games. They go to Havelock on Monday and take on the Railroaders here the 14th.

* * * * * * *

McNABB HAS all the earmarks of a good goalie, the ex-Owen Sound kid being fast on his feet and cool. No, we don't mean cool on his feet! Al Clark is still the best of the defencemen, but Berwick and Walker should come along. The latter is a large lad, indeed. Dude Brady was used up front a lot and in the first and third periods played fine hockey and figured in on three goals. We'll still swear (as will others around us) that he scored the first goal of the game on Tompkins' rebound, but he and Tompkins tell us it was the reverse. The latter lined up with Gee Clark and Jack Jopling and it was a potent line. Lots of speed and ability there. This trio will go good this season, we'd bet a couple of doubloons. Clark worked his head off all through. The second line was just so-so yet, but ought to click later. White's whistling shot gave him two neat counters. Yeah, the kids will be oke ere long, and Manager Pat Hayden isn't worrying for the present.

GRAB-BAG: Monarchs of the Junior City Loop practise at seven Monday eve at All Saints' rink . . . . Mayor Bennett opens the game for Ontarios in Port Hope tonight . . . . And Mayor-Elect James Hamilton will officially open the senior "B" fixture Friday e'en at the Brock . . . . Our column is getting closer to the front page all the time; at this rate, we'll own the paper along about 1962! . . . . Scouts' puck executive meeting Friday at eight p.m. at S. Leggitt's house, 347 George St. . . . . Westclox gal cagers are billed for Cobourg tonight, while the Belleville lasses play C.G.E. tomorrow night in the Y.W. here—and it ought to draw a lot of basketball fans . . . . Our P.C.I. cage teams go to Cobourg tomorrow . . . . Junior City Puck Loop and Southend Intermediate League schedules are in tonight; they ought to be clipped . . . . Oshawa GM-men are after a Western Ontario shortstop for next summer . . . . Art Gates, ball officer of that town, is seriously ill after an operation . . . . We gather that Ray Harding will be carried as the Petes' goalie for the time being, with Gord Clarke holding down the fort for the Bees . . . . Fliers beat Garrisons, 8-5, last p.m. in the last scheduled VanHorne tilt at Kingston; playoffs start shortly . . . . Lindsay Midgets and our Colts help open Omemee's new rink next Wednesday with a puck scrap ala exhibish . . . . No, Desmond, R.C.A.F. doesn't mean the Airmen "Really Came Away Fuming"!

Spaghetti And Beer Celebrates Win Of Tony Galento Over Massera

Last night the gallant Galento leaped forward nimbly as a sperm whale, swished his mighty left onto the beckoning jaw of Charley Massera of Pittsburgh, and the crowd of 6,300 was halfway out of the armory before they brought Charley around.

Seldom was there a much bigger night in Orange, take it as a whole. The knockout of Massera in the third round was almost incidental. Everybody knew Tony was going to do that as soon as he shook down his afternoon load of spaghetti. The real excitement was afterward, when two-ton Tony held open house.

It took Tony and four fast assistants behind the bar to keep up with the beer trade, while Mrs. Tony and all the Galento relatives ladeled out the saghetti in the back room. It was on amazing night and a lucrative one for the Galentos.

"I wasn't myself to-night," volunteered Tony as he paused a moment to see for himself that the beer he was dispensing was up to the Galento standard. "Maybe I ain't been eating enough spaghetti, or maybe I even ought to cut down on the beer. But I couldn't get going against that Massera for a couple of rounds.

"I ain't myself against a second-rater, anyway. Now, against a pretty good boy like Joe Louis I box good."

SMELTERS GET FIRST VICTORY IN T.V. LEAGUE

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MADOC, Jan. 6.—Breaking into the win column for the first time in three starts, Madoc took the fast Campbellford team by a 6-3 score. Sticky ice slowed the game in the opening minutes.

The first break came for Madoc when Turner, falling to clear Alexander's shot, was swarmed on by Madoc's front line and failed to hold it out.

After many exciting rushes by both teams, Keating scored from a pile up in front of the Madoc net. Madoc went into the lead again, when Smith counted on Alexander's assist. Penalties of the period were marked down for Blake and Keating of Campbellford. Minutes were counted off while Blake of Campbellford was assisted from the ice, being injured by a high stick.

In the second period Kellar of Madoc scored from a combination play assisted by Alexander and Heyworth. Heyworth was chased for boarding. Hawthorne immediately followed for charging. Taking the offensive, Reddick and Phillips combined to tally for Campbellford while Madoc was shorthanded by one. Wilkes and Munro were chased for tripping, closely followed by Lambert for an illegal check. The period ended 3-2 in favor of the homesters.

Clinch Victory.

In the opening minutes of the third period, Reeves slammed home the rebound of Smith's shot. Smith scored on a beautiful combination play, Kellar and Heyworth getting the assist. Campbellford carried the play and literally bombarded the Madoc net but were unable to get past Hulin, who played a bang-up game for Madoc. Breaking away with only the defence to beat, Alexander scored on Kellar's pass. Campbellford made a last rally when Reddick scored from an assist by Phillips, making the score 6-3 for Madoc.

Vaughan Jack of Madoc handled the game.

The line-ups:

Campbellford—Goal, Turner; defence, Wilkes and Lambert; centre, Phillips; wings, Reddick and C. Couch; alternates: Blake, Kealing, Jarvis, Oddie, Couch, Free, Jarvis.

CURLING

Echoes From No. '8'
By HERB MARTIN

Saturday, January 8, will be a red-letter day for our boys, for on that day we are holding a regular week-end bonspiel, the draw to take place from the board at 1.45 p.m. . . . The fee is small, and in connection with these competitions we would ask all curlers to turn to Page 3 of the Schedule Book and read a couple of notes regarding same. We expect a full house, so please govern yourself accordingly.

Also on Saturday, Alex Kay, chairman of the junior boys' section, has called an open meeting for all boys in the city who would like to take up curling to be present at 2.30 p.m. at the rink. This meeting is for boys between the ages of 16 and 21. The main idea is to reorganize the boys' section and form a junior club.

Our ladies' rink, which was skipped by Mrs. O. DeGraw, came home from Toronto to-day (Thursday) after taking part in one of the bigger bonspiel events of that city, and report no luck. Mrs. DeGraw was assisted by Miss H. Fanning, Miss H Munroe and Mrs. R. Turner.

Junior City Loop Schedule Drawn

The Junior City Hockey League schedule opens next Monday night at the Brock St. rink with three games. Standing is determined as two points for a win and one for a tie. Each team should have a list of players giving ages, and handing it to secretary before the first game. First and fourth teams have a two-game playoff semi-final and the second and third teams have a home-and-home series, the winners then meeting in finals, goals to count in two games. Following is the schedule:

Jan. 10—Monarch's vs. P.C.I. at seven, Canadians vs. Bombers at eight, St. Peter's vs. All Saints at nine.
Jan. 17—Monarchs vs. St. Peter's at seven, Bombers vs. P.C.I. at eight, Canadiens vs. All Saints at nine.
Jan. 24—Canadians vs. P. C. I. at seven, Bombers vs. St. Peter's at eight, All Saints vs. Monarchs at nine.
Jan. 31—Monarchs vs. Canadiens at seven, St. Peter's vs. P.C.I. at eight, All Saints vs. Bombers at nine.
Feb. 7 —St. Peter's vs. Canadiens at seven, Monarchs vs. Bombers at eight, All Saints vs. P.C.I. at nine.

St. Luke's Scores 9 To 4 Victory

St. Luke's opened the Scouts' Hockey League Wednesday night in Lakefield with a 9-4 victory over St. James'. Scoring three goals in each period, while St. James got three in the second and one in the third, the East City gang had a slight edge most of the way. Some neat hockey, of the open variety, was shown by both sides. A. Northcott shone for the winners with five goals, while A. Mason got two and Gamble and B. Mason one apiece. For St. James', Anderson tallied twice and Close and J. Carpenter once each. The teams:

St. James'.—Goal, Leether; defence, Gr. Carpenter, Leggitt; centre, J. Carpenter; wings, Lawson, Anderson; alternates, Young, Close, Thorne.

St. Luke's.—Goal, R. Mason; defence, A. Mason, G. Northcott; centre, A. Northcott; wings, B. Mason, Gamble; alternate, Biggs.

Referee—Joe Blewett.

Conny Smythe Plans Transfer Syracuse Club To Buffalo

After the class tonight (Thursday) at Victoria Park, a run will be held at the Jackson Park clubhouse. Advanced skiers will meet at Jackson's about 7.30, and perhaps cover a proposed trail the technical committee has in mind. Later the girls are going to have some food and coffee at 10c a head to pay the expenses. Should be a large crowd, as the skiing is exceptional.

Sunday the club goes to Nassau, where some of the boys will try the jump. There is skiing on other parts of this hill suitable for everyone, so don't miss it. An earlier start is planned, and you will take your lunch along. Meet at the Empress at 11.30. If there are not cars enough, taxi fare one way is 25c, and it's usually easy to find a ride in.

By the way, both clubhouses are in shape, complete with dishes, stoves, etc.

Will Continue To Act As Farm For Toronto Leafs Next Season

WINDSOR, Ont., Jan. 6.—(CP).—There is a possibility the three members of the western division of the International Hockey League may be increased to four, according to John Chick, Windsor, president of the western group.

Reports of a planned transfer of Syracuse players to Buffalo, where they would continue to operate as a farm team for Toronto Maple Leafs, were confirmed by Chick. Toronto has operated the Syracuse team as a farm club since 1930.

Manager Sonnie Smythe of the Toronto team was said to have attempted the transfer of the Syracuse players to Buffalo last fall, but the deal was postponed because of the cost of installing an artificial ice plant at Buffalo. Charles Murray, controller of the Buffalo Auditorium, and Buffalo sports promoter, was to share with Smythe in the deal. Smythe was reported yesterday as saying that arrangements had been completed for the transfer of the Syracuse team to Buffalo next winter.

Improvements at Syracuse Coliseum, good crowds at Syracuse games this season, and the fact that Eddie Reilly and the Syracuse Associated are certain to dig up another National League Club for player connections will guarantee that hockey in Syracuse will not be discontinued, Chick said.

JUNIOR COLTS OPEN LOCAL O.H.A SEASON WITH 5-2 VICTORY

Colts Cop 5-2 Victory Over Belleville Squad In Junior Puck Tilt

The Colts romped home with a 5-2 O.H.A. junior "B" decision last night at the Brock Ot. Rink over Belleville to start the puck season here before nearly 600 fans. On a fast sheet of ice, both teams turned in a speedy open brand of hockey, with the victors earning the nod on smarter combination plays.

Both squads played a lot of ragged hockey most of the time, it being a typical opening-game display. Passes were missed, players were out of position and the checking was only so-so. However, the young Petes showed a lot of promise as they fought hard all the way and tried a good bit of combination on rushes, as well as checking fairly effectively. Belleville also had a big fast team but the forwards hogged the puck far too much on the attack. It was a clean contest throughout.

First Line Good

The first front line for the Hayden gang stood out all night. Gee Clark, flanked by Honey Tompkins and Jack Jopling, turned in a swell performance, for so early in the season. They had speed to burn, a boring-in brand of play, nice combination and good back-checking. They lacked a bit of polish around the Belleville cage, though. The second line also worked hard, with Jo-Jo White's rifle shot scoring two goals. Dude Brady—though lapsing in the middle heat—looked good most of the way, being used up front for his stickhandling and speed, and he was in on three goals. Of the defencemen, Al Clark was steadiest, though the others worked hard and showed promise. McNabb looked like a find in goal, moving fast to kick out some dangerous drives by Belleville. Storms (No. 17) was outstanding for the losers, but failed to pass the puck enough. Carson went fair in goal, and McCreary, Rowbotham and Ronsky looked good.

Colts Get One

Within the first minutes of play, the Colts got a counter, Tompkins getting credit for the goal on an assist by Brady, though the latter appeared to do the scoring, aided by Tompkins. It was fast and even for a time with both goalies kept busy. Berwick was chased for tripping but the Quinte kids failed to take advantage and did not threaten seriously. Later, Storms pulled a neat rush through defence but McNabb robbed him. A play by Gee Clark and Brady came close but the latter's shot hit the post. It was rugged and about even at the bell.

With the first line tearing in repeatedly, the Colts had an edge to start the middle canto. After the lines changed, White blazed in a hot shot after Brady's neat rush and pass. Storms and Rowbotham twice got in close but failed to tally. Walker went off for tripping and four of the visitors pressed for a time. Jopling nearly broke away once and again Gee Clark and Tompkins came close to breaking loose. At full strength again, Belleville bored in on several rushes, Rinsky finally flicking one by McNabb on Storms' pass through defence. Two minutes later, Gee Clark got it back on a nice lone effort, his fake pass to Tompkins fooling the defence. Play developed into a type of shinny and was slower near the finish.

Locals Go Better

The rival clubs opened it up in lively fashion for a time in the third heat, and the Colts appeared to do more of the serious rushing, though Belleville always looked threatening on fast drives down the ice. Rowbotham made it 3-2 when he scored in close on Ronsky's assist, and play was fast though disorganized. Tompkins nearly counted on Al Clark's nice rush and pass and then White whistled an angle drive by Carson on Brady's forward pass to the blue line. Belleville tore back hard and the game was exciting for a time with speed unabated and changes of lines frequent. Tompkins settled the issue when he pulled the puck around the Quinte cage and backhanded one in as the goalie was caught flat-footed. Play was slower and fairly equal at the last gong.

The teams:

Belleville: Goal, Carson, defence, McCreary and O'Neill; centre, Storms; wings Rowbotham and Ronsky; alternates, Amo, Dorn, Muir, Green and Cooke.

Colts: Goal, McNabb; defence, Brady and Walker; centre, G. Clark; wings, Tompkins and Jopling; alternates, Craig, O'Leary, White, A. Clark and Berwick.

Referee, Alex Weir of Belleville.

RANGERS GAIN SECOND VICTORY IN SENIOR RACE

TORONTO, Jan. 6 (CP)—Coach Art Pennell felt pretty proud today of his Brantford Rangers, who apparently are going places after a slow start in the Senior A Ontario Hockey Association race.

Rangers dropped three games in a row before whipping Oshawa G-men last week for their first victory. Last night they boosted it to two straight

NEW YORK, Jan. 6—(AP). — (By Greenshirts in the only scheduled game to consolidate their hold on fourth place in the standing.

Greenshirts in Last Place.

Greenshirts, with only a tie against Rangers to their credit this season, are sunk deep in last place and evidently face further woe tomorrow night when they play the unbeaten and league-leading Toronto Goodyears at Toronto. Rangers get a chance to go into third place, ahead of Oshawa, when they play tomorrow against Port Colborne Sailors in a home game.

Greig led the Brantford attack against Kitchener with four goals, all in the last period. Webster, Torti and Kreiger scored the other Brantford markers. Kitchener snipers were Lang, Herchenratter, Bauer, Fehrenbach and Warpy Tennant.

BOUCHER WASTES LITTLE SYMPATHY ON RULE BEEFERS

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.— (CP.) — Praise and a plea for better understanding of the complex problems facing National Hockey League referees, coupled with suggestions to make their difficult tasks easier, came to-day from Frank Boucher, coach of New York Rangers.

Gentleman Frank, who won permanent possession of the original Lady Byng trophy for outstanding ability plus fine sportsmanship on the ice during the 11 seasons he starred as leading centre of the Broadway Blues, indicated in an interview he had little sympathy with managers, coaches and players who are continually beefing over official rulings.

"I am all in sympathy with President Frank Calder and the referees," he said, just before the team entrained for Chicago and a tussle with the Black Hawks there.

"I think the referees are trying their best to officiate fairly and squarely although the strain they are placed under makes it an extremely difficult task.

"To begin with the partisan crowds tend to sway their judgment as do the managers, coaches and players with their continual barrage of abuse and fault finding.

Referee Vs. Captain.

"Probably this will draw ridicule on my head but I think no manager, coach or player, on or off the ice, should be allowed to argue with the referee or try to show him up in any way by word or act. The captain only, on each team, should have the right to speak to the referee and then only on the point of a rule interpretation. In such cases the official should grant a hearing and consult the rule book, if necessary, to prove or disprove the point in question."

Boucher suggested violators be given one warning and if they persist in arguing or heaping abuse on the official a fine of $25 be assessed in the case of coaches or managers and $10 should the guilty one be a player. A third offender would be ordered off the bench or out of the game.

Frankie said he though duties of officials should be altered so that one would be named to mete out penalties and the other to watch for offsides at the blue lines. With only one arbiter issuing penalties there would be a more even distribution of sentences than how when one official is frequently more lenient than his partner, he believed. In this system "we might strike a happy medium."

"Block Their Ears."

"My advice to referees is that they block their ears with cotton, for an official who cannot hear the abuse heaped upon him is certain to be calmer and therefore more efficient," said Boucher. The late Lou Marsh of Toronto adopted this method and found it satisfactory.

"When I played on the Pacific Coast years ago Mickey Ion was in his prime and the best referee I have ever seen. Mickey jokingly took the attitude that everybody in the rink—with the exception of Mickey—became insane after the first whistle. He may have been right at that."

Barons Advance On Section Leaders By Trouncing New Haven 2-0

PITTSBURG, Jan. 6 (CP).—The time couldn't be riper, evidently, for talk to spring up about Pittsburg entering once more into National Hockey League warfare.

Pittsburg once had a team in the N.H.L., but poor attendance forced owners to drop the franchise after the 1929-30 season. There's no sign of anything but happy days now, however, for Pittsburgh's International-American Hockey League Hornets who rate just as much adulation from the home fans as do the stars around the N.H.L. circuit.

To show that Pittsburg is a hockey-mad town right now and steadfastly behind their team, which has fought its way to the top of the league's Western section, 7,000 fans turned out last night to watch Hornets draw 2-2 with Providence Reds, leaders in the Eastern division. It was the largest crowd in 40 years of hockey history in Pittsburg.

Barons Advance.

In other scheduled games Cleveland Barons crept to a point away from Hornets by trouncing New Haven Eagles, 2-0, while Philadelphia Ramblers stopped Springfield Indians, 4-2, as Indians tried to extend a victory streak of two games after going winless in 12 starts.

Little Ken Doraty scored both Pittsburg goals, getting one in the first period and the other in the second. Drouillard scored one for Providence in the opening period and Starr got the tying goal in the third period.

Orville Roulston and Doggie Kuhn enlivened the proceedings to the accompaniment of the roars from the big crowd by dropping their sticks and going to it in the first period. Each drew major sentences for the battle.

Leads Ramblers To Win.

Charlie Mason led Ramblers to their victory, getting two goals, while Lude Wareing and Lloyd Roubell scored the other Philadelphia markers. Hub Wilson scored the first Springfield goal and Ted Saunders the second.

The Baron line of Phil Hergesheimer, Bud Cook and Earl Bartholome led Cleveland in victory. Hergesheimer scored the first goal in the opening period, while both his mates drew assists. In the last period Cook pumped the puck home while Hergesheimer and Bartholome were in on the score.

Beavers Win From Bomber Gang 4-2

Beavers beat Bombers, 4 to 2, in a Southend Puck Loop midget fracas at the Sacred Heart rink Tuesday evening to start the schedule. It was a fast fray most of the route with the Beavers having a slight edge offensively to cop the decision. Both sides checked well and showed a lot of promise. Ainslie tallied twice for the winners, while LaPlante got one and Ken Cox the other. For Bombers, Evans and Martin were the scorers. The teams:

Beavers: Goal, Hartwick; defence, Chimetti, Welburn; centre LaPlante, wings, K. Cox, Ainslie; alternates, Willis, Bucknell, J. Cox, Shortt, Keating, Maloney.

Bombers: Goal, Ainslie; defence, Roode, McMahon; centre, Evans; wings, Martin, Joiner; alternate, Briscoe.

Referee, J. Collins.

NATIONAL LOOP HEAD PREDICTS BIG BALL YEAR

NEW YORK, J 6—(AP). — (By Ford Frick, president of the National Baseball League)—There's a wider range of vision than usual today for a baseball man standing at the annual crossroads.

Looking forward, beyond 1938, is baseball's centennial year and when you turn around there's a century of baseball history stretching all the way back to the summer of 1839 and a village green in upstate New York.

In baseball, there's a new pennant every year. Normally that makes your baseball outlook that way too—a one-year look—and it's always the year just ahead of you.

But because 1939 is centennial year, the whole baseball world will grow more and more 1939 conscious as 1938 moves along. The appropriation of $100,000 by the major leagues started the ball rolling for a memorable centennial celebration.

Predicts Big Year.

But in looking beyond 1938 don't think I'm overlooking it. I'm expecting and predicting a great year for baseball as a whole, as well as the National league.

We are going to use a new official baseball, one that is changed only slightly, but, we think, very wisely. A squarely hit ball will travel just as far in 1938 as in 1937. The purpose of the slightly thickened cover and heavier seam is to give the pitchers a "break," restore some of the balance between offense and defence and eliminate the "cheap" extra base hit.

I can sum up what we're trying to do this way: In 1938 it will be just as possible as in 1937 for the winning hit of a National league game to be a home run with the bases filled; but we hope it also will be possible for the pitcher to depend on something more than a prayer—and for the infield to play hitters as the situation demands without danger of losing an arm or a leg.

SKATING HELPS REDUCE WEIGHT

DETROIT, Jan. 6 (CP).—Blond and dimpled Sonja Henie just turned on the full voltage of her justly-famed dimples today when asked to comment on Mirable Vinson's criticism of her skating as "too formalized." Miss Vinson, North American amateur figure skating champion, said Sonja lacked lift and swing.

"What is lift and swing?" asked Norway's gift to Hollywood. "Miss Vinson," she added innocently, "was one of my competitors at the last Olympics. She placed eighth."

Miss Henie, performing in her ice ballet here, lingered to add a bit of advice to those trying to reduce. Just skate away the excess weight, she says. That's the way she has kept her weight down since going into pictures.

At the end of the week Miss Henie is to fly to Washington to receive a knighthood of the Order of St. Olaf, recently conferred upon her by a grateful country. Sonja, according to her mother, Mrs. Selma Henie, is the youngest person to receive the decoration.

Southend Schedule For Intermediates

The Southend Intermediate Hockey League schedule has been drawn up, two games having already been played. Contests are staged at the Sacred Heart rink, and managers are advised to clip out this schedule. The top two teams at the end will meet in playoffs. Following is the schedule:

Skiing Hints

By Fritz Loosli
INSTRUCTOR, TORONTO SKI CLUB

LESSON TWO.

It is important that the first three or four lessons should be taken at close intervals or daily if possible. The beginning of skiing is the most important part of the instruction; if much skiing is done between lessons without proper supervision faulty position will easily creep in and will be a hindrance to further progress, although it is advisable to practice limbering exercises in standing position without skis flexing the knees in a forward lean position.

Standing with knees slightly bent forward, swing your body forward and backward in a rhythmic timed motion; if you find a way of holding your feet fast to the floor, the movement may be greatly emphasized. Walking on the edge of the soles will strengthen the ankles; use the stairways rather than the elevator, and take two or three steps at the time, not in jumping manner, but slowly.

I find it inadvisable to take up only one turn at a time and stay with it until executed perfectly by the sider. A number of movements and turns are taken in rotation. Never more than 10 or 15 minutes is spent on one turn at a time. It is well to remember that the mind needs relaxation as much as the body does, a change of slope and introduction of a little practical skiing, especially on a bumpy run, will give you plenty to work on as a diversion from the instruction.

The first 10 minutes of the second lesson should be spent by repeating briefly what has been learned in the first lesson; then the snowplow is thoroughly explained at standstill position, the body leaning over only slightly, but the knees well bent. Exaggerate the angle of the skis because the beginner has a tendency in the snowplow position to have the tail end of the skis not far enough apart. Make certain the snow is well packed and if these preliminary precautions are taken the beginner will find that he can slide down in the snowplow position quite easily.

After three or four trials running down in the snowplow position, follow with a straight run bobbing up and down to release the tension of the muscles of the thigh. After the students has gained more confidence in the snowplow position he should start the run in the ordinary downhill position and a third of the way down the hill, at a brief command, open to the snowplow position and repeat this until he is able to stop his run before reaching the flat. Follow by alternating the snowplow and parallel running position about a dozen times during one run, trying to time the changes perfectly in a smooth rhythmic way.

Between each trial it is advisable to run downhill by shifting left and right foot alternately forward. When confidence has been gained in running downhill in the snowplow position, weight shifting from one ski to the other is practiced at standstill, emphasizing the rotary motion of the hips and shoulders. In the modern running technique, strength has too often given place to rhythm. Turns are executed with ease by a proper weight shifting in co-ordination with muscle and ski control. To become a good skier you must get the feel of that smooth running and swing.

Fliers And Petes Here On Friday

O.H.A. senior "B" group standing:

Team	P.	W.	L.	Pts.
Petes	2	2	0	4
Queen's	0	0	0	0
Fliers	1	0	1	0
Belleville	1	0	1	0

Trenton Fliers open the local O.H.A. senior puck series here tomorrow (Friday) night at 8.30 in the Brock St. rink against the Petes. It should mean a sellout crowd as these bitter rivals of last winter clash for the first time during 1938 in Peterborough. Smarting from a 10-5 overtime loss in Belleville Tuesday evening, the R.C.A.F. gang will be out for vengeance and fairly flying over the ice. The Petes, with two wins in as many starts, hope to make it three straight tomorrow.

All kinds of speedy action should be dished up in this setto. Fliers have a flock of fast, tricky plays, a huge defence in Partridge and Lalonde-Carter return go, the McNeeley twins, and a good goalie in Gibson. The Petes, with several newcomers — including local exjuniors—and several of last year's stars back, have served notice already that they will be mighty tough to take this winter. It looks like a puck natural for fans.

Canucks Take 3-2 Hockey Victory

In a Southend Hockey League bantam games Tuesday night at the Sacred Heart rink, Canucks copped a 3-2 nod over King Edward. It was a fine opening battle all the way with nice hockey shown by the well-matched teams. Phillips paced Canucks to the win with two neat counters and Berardi got one. Lawson came through with both counters for the losers. The teams:

Canucks: Goal, Carravaggie; defence, Keating, Berardi; centre, Peters; wings, Heath, Phillips; alternates, Martell, Pacquette, Fontaine, LaPlante.

King Edward: Goal, Leether; defence, Blaby, Kennedy; centre, Foster; wings, Chambers, Baxter; alternates, Lawson, Welch, Williams, Downer.

Referee, W. Bennett.

MITT SHOW HERE HAS TWO JUDGES

Two judges and the referee will decide on points tonight at the big amateur fight show at 8.30 in the Armouries. Judges are Archie Mennzies, and Will Jones—both experienced around rings for years. The referee will be Harry Hance. This system—instead of three judges and no report from the referee—was adopted by the Riverview A. C. for this card this evening owing to several disputed decisions in the last mitt program here. Seven bouts will be held, two rematches of disputes between local and Toronto battlers, and both shape up as real grudge fights. In all, five good Toronto mittsers will perform on this program against good Peterborough pugilists, and a big crowd of fans is expected to see heaps of fistic action and several kayoes.

There are three bouts in particular that sound promising, the Orlande-Carter return go, the Minicola-Genovese return bout, and the Bowler-Darnbrough battle. Any one or all three may end up suddenly with one man knocked cold. The Toronto fighters are swearing to K. O. locals this time, claiming they were robbed before, and Peterborough fighters sneer and promise to win more handily than before. The Jordan-Foster setto shapes up as a real lively fight, and the Joiner-Morris one will also produce fireworks. Two locals, Hobbins and O'Neill, may steal the show with their fist fight. And Redmond and Quirt meet in a curtain-raiser. A fine fight card for fans.

Heart Attack Claims Judge Of Ontario Supreme Court

Mr. Justice A. C. Kingstone Dies In His Room In Vancouver Hotel

VANCOUVER, Jan. 6 (C.P.). — The Ontario Supreme Court lost a prominent figure on Wednesday, when Mr. Justice A. C. Kingstone, 62, died a few minutes after suffering a heart attack in his hotel room here.

In apparent good health, Mr. Justice Kingstone and his wife came here a few days ago for a holiday. They visited their son Stewart, a Vancouver resident.

The body was en route east to-day for burial at Mr. Justice Kingstone's native city of Toronto. Mrs. Kingstone and her son also made the trip.

Born in Toronto.

Mr. Justice Kingstone, described by colleagues on the Bench as a man with "graciousness of character," was born in Toronto on October 24, 1875, son of the late Frederick W. and Henrietta Kingstone. He studied at Upper Canada College, Toronto, Ridley College, St. Catharines, and obtained his Bachelor of Arts degree from the University of Toronto in 1896.

He completed his law studies at Osgoode Hall, and was summoned to the Ontario Bar in 1899, leaving then for St. Catharines to form the firm of Ingersoll, Kingstone & Seymour. The young lawyer eventually became St. Catharines city solicitor.

In 1932 he started his career as Judge of the Ontario High Court, and won the praise of such great jurists as Sir William Mulock, retired Chief Justice of the Ontario Supreme Court. Sir William to-day described his departed colleague as "a beautiful character—a fond father and a splendid citizen."

Before Privy Council.

On more than one occasion he appeared before the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council in London. He was vice-president and member of the Board of Governors of Ridley College. He was an Anglican and a Conservative. He belonged to the Toronto Golf Club, University Club, Kappa Alpha Society, University of Toronto.

Another tribute from Toronto was paid by Chief Justice F. R. Latchford of the Ontario Appeal Court, who declared Mr. Justice Kingstone had captured the respect of lawyer and Judge "for his deep learning, clarity of thought, and graciousness of character."

Besides his widow, Mr. Justice Kingstone is survived by three sons, Stewart, Vancouver, John in Switzerland, and Courtney in Toronto; one daughter, Mrs. S. W. Digby in England; and three brothers, Harry, Hamilton, George, Toronto, and Herbert, Montreal.

FAIRMOUNT

Mr. and Mrs. H. Earle of Grimsby spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Richard Earle.

Miss Rose Hall, of Peterborough, was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. F. R. McIndoo for a few days.

Mr. Lapp, of Brighton, commenced dutie: as teacher on Monday morning.

Mrs. C. H. Fee, of Omemee, Mrs. M. Hooton, and daughter, Mary, Mrs. H. McArthur and Shirley Ann, and Mrs. C. Wilson, motored to Toronto, Friday evening.

Mr. Roy Hooton spent New Year's at Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Hooton's.

Mr. Harold Hooton called on Mr. R. Brynes Sunday evening.

ROSENEATH

Clark Davey of Rochester, N. Y., and Wilfred Davey of Toronto, were called here on Monday, owing to the death of their father Marsena Davey.

Miss Ruby Jewell has returned to Toronto, following a visit here during the holidays with her sisters Mrs. Andrew Brown and Mrs. Frank George.

Mrs. Ella Brown, Miss Irene Brown were recent guests at Havelock with Mrs. Verona Brislun. and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Hugh and daughters Geraldine, Catherine and Mary, were week end guests of relatives in Port Hope.

G.M. HEAD CALLED TO EXPLAIN VIEWS ON WORK SCHEME

employment was accorded varying replies in communications to the Senate committee.

Owen D. Young of the General Electric Corporation wrote that "where manufacturers lay one man off, two might go into distribution. That, I think, is the history of labor saving devices. It is temporary dislocation, rather than ultimate unemployment which they bring."

Runing Full With 4,500 Less.

On the other hand, Mayor Fred Manning of Lynn, Mass., said the General Electric plant in his city was equalling its 1929 production while empolying 4,500 fewer workers than in peak years.

President William Green of the American Federation of Labor wrote: "The problem of technological unemployment has been increasingly pressing."

A. Johnston, chief engineer of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, commented that "installation of mechanical devices and increased size and hauling capacity of locomotives" contributed heavily to railroad unemployment.

Dies Suddenly

Mr. Justice A. C. Kingstone of the High Court Division of the Ontario Supreme Court who died very suddenly in hotel room in Vancouver on Wednesday.

OBITUARY

HENRY KELLY.

TWEED, Jan. 6. — Following a short illness from pneumonia, Henry Kelly passed away at the home of his father, Mr. John Kelly, in the township of Elzevir, on Monday. He was thirty years of age.

The funeral which was largely attended, was held at St. Henry's church, Queensboro, on Wednesday morning, and interment was made in St. Joseph's cemetery.

MRS. SARAH E. HOMAN.

TWEED, Jan. 6. — Mrs. Sarah Elizabeth Homan, widow of Harvey Homan, passed away at the family residence in the 5th concession of the township of Thurlow, on Tuesday afternoon, January 4th. She had been in failing health for some time.

The late Mrs. Homan, who was in her 79th year, was born in the township of Huntingdon, her parents being the late Mr. and Mrs. John V. Ketcheson. Practically all her life was passed in Thurlow township, and she enjoyed the high esteem of all the residents of the community. In religion she was a member of the Carmel United church.

Surviving are two sons, Mr. Selden Homan and Mr. John Homan, both of the township of Thurlow; two sisters, Mrs. George Anderson of Lanigan, Sask.; Mrs. W. J. Bates, Woodstock, Ont.; five brothers, Mr. Willet Ketcheson, Mr. John Ketcheson, and Mr. Billa Ketcheson, all of Thurlow township; Mr. Manchester Ketcheson, Sidney township, and Mr. Selden Ketcheson, of Belleville.

MRS. ALEX. SMALL

NORWOOD, Jan. 6.—The funeral of the late Mrs. Alex Small, whose death occurred on Sunday, January 2, was held on Tuesday afternoon, January 4 from the family residence on the Dummer road.

The large number of sympathetic relatives and friends and neighbors in attendance from a wide district bore silent tribute to the esteem in which she was held.

The funeral service was conducted by the Rev. A. S. Cleland of the Norwood United Church, who read two favorite hymns of the deceased, "Rock of Ages," and "What a Friend we have in Jesus," and taking part of the seventh Chapter of Revelations, from which he spoke comforting words to the bereaved friends.

The deceased was sixty years old, and had been in failing health for some time. Prior to her marriage to Mr. Small she was Agnes Lewis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Lewis, early residents of this district.

Left to mourn the loss of a loving wife and mother, are her husband, three sons, Norman of Tavistock, Wilson and Kenneth at home, also one daughter, (Ada), Mrs. Malcolm Sloan of Asphodel.

The pall bearers were M. Kirk, Alex Ross, W. Burgess, Richard Crowe, Bert Hendren, Frank Patterson. Honorary bearers, Messrs. J. Weir, J. P. Elliott, Geo. Kirk, Hugh Cuthbertson, G. A. Brethen and Bert Squires.

Interment was made in Norwood cemetery.

EDWARD ALEX. SANDERSON

A month's illness was followed by the death of Edward Alexander Sanderson, Smith township resident on the Chemong road in Nicholls Hospital Wednesday. He was in his 76th year.

Born in Smith township, he spent his entire life there engaged in farming. He was son of the late Francis Sanderson and Margaret Malcolm. He was a member of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church.

Surviving are his wife, Agnes Margaret Tully; one daughter, Olga of Peterborough, one son Roy at home and one brother, James of Davidson, Saskatchewan.

The funeral will be held Friday at 2.30 p.m. from the Nisbett Funeral Home to Little Lake Cemetery, Rev. Dr. A. T. Barr officiating.

BAILIEBORO

Mr. Gomer Robertson of Bensfort visited friends in the district on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. M. B. Perrin were guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. Simpson of Peterborough on Saturday.

SURVEYORS' COOK READY TO RETURN

couldn't find it and things didn't look so good.

"After quite a long search, Lieut.-Col. Guenet decided we wouldn't find it so our party backtracked a few miles on the line we had been marking and pitched camp on the edge of the Missikabi river.

Stewed Pet Magpie.

"There were woods just of to one side of the camp," continued Lapointe, "and we got out our guns and hunted. We were able to get a few rabbits, a few partridge and I did away even with my pet magpie, 'Marie Louise,' and made o stew of her, but there wasn't much to eat.

"We caught a few trout through the ice in a lake not far from the camp but there weren't many fish. At different times were were without food for three, four and five-day spells and then someone would get a rabbit or a partridge.

"But one of them divided into 15 doesn't go very far," the big cook smiled.

"When we could get nothing else, I made spruce tea for the party and boiled tender birch bark. The spruce tea was good for the men and seemed to revive them, but the birch soup was bad and gave two or three of them trouble.

"A wonderful thing about our adventure," remarked Lapointe, "was the way Guenet kept up the spirits of the party. Every night before we turned in—and that's another thing, we had warm bedding—the Colonel would have us say the Rosary two or three times and promised us help would arrive in time.

And, just the day before the searchers found us, four Indians passed our camp and left flour and lard, and told us they would get help, too. I made cakes with the flour and the men had a hard time waiting for them to cook before gobbling them down."

FALLS HEALTHY SPOT

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., Jan. 6—(CP).—Health of this city is good. For the first time in a quarter of a century the New Year started without a single case of contagious disease under quarantine.

LOCAL BARBERS PLAN TO ENTER PROTEST WITH LABOR BOARD

Restricted Zone Affects Peterborough Barbers Is Claim Of Local Men

North Monaghan Is Not Included In New Scale Of Rates

A delegation to wait upon the Industry and Labor Board in Toronto with a protest against restriction of the Peterborough barbering zone to the boundaries of Peterborough City was named by barbers at a general meeting in the City Council Chambers Wednesday afternoon.

Barbers at the meeting declared city barbers will be working under a serious handicap if, forced by law to adhere to the 40-cent haircut rate, they are faced with competition from 25-cent barbers just outside the boundaries of the city in North Monaghan. Such a situation now exists, it was claimed. Barbers in the southern suburb of Peterborough reduced their 40 cents prices to lower figures as soon as the Board restricted the zone last month.

When originally agreed upon at a meeting bteween Peterborough barbers and Louis Fine of the Industry and Labor Board, the zone was defined to include an area one mile outside the boundaries of the city.

The committee named to carry the protest to Toronto consisted of: Ray Bacon, Harold Freeman, Red Sedgwick, Harry Gainey and Don Moore. North Monaghan was unrepresented at yesterday's meeting.

RELIGIOUS REVIVAL NEED OF TODAY

Peterborough week-of-prayer congregations assembled at Knox and George Street United Churches Wednesday night to hear pleas for religious revivals voiced by Col. G. W. Peacock, second in command of the Salvation Army in Canada, and Rev. R. T. F. Brain of St. John's Anglican Church.

"Wilt thou not give us a little reviving?" was the text followed by Col. Peacock, who consented to take the Knox Church pulpit before departing from the city last night. A need for religious revival in the world of economics and business and in government exists, he declared. Revival would bring as a direct result widespread confidence in the present-day world, he said.

Col. Peacock urged that revival is seriously needed in the church itself and that, as the church is no greater than the individual, the revival must begin with the individual. Rev. V. R. Zufelt presided, Adjutant Neil Warrander and Brigadier Fred Riches, Salvation Army divisional commander, who was also a visitor to the city last night, assisting with Scripture readings and prayers. Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe, who was scheduled to deliver the sermon, retired in favor of Col. Peacock. He sang a vocal solo, "Lead Kindly Light."

Speaking of "The true light which is the same yesterday, today, forever," Rev. Brain declared at George Street Church: "Today, in world history, is a time of crises. It is a time of nervous breakdown. National apostasy has reached world proportions. Nations, once Christian, now exist without shame for purely secular ends. Religion has been expelled from education, from the arts, from the commerce and industry and from politics."

Asserting, "Our world has turned its back on God," Rev. Brain said an effective, constructive protest should be made. The first service to the apostate world Christians can make is to offer sacrifice, he suggested. He named the second service as the prophetic one of speaking for God the wisdom and righteousness of God. "Our third act of service to our apostate and sick world is to show just what our great High Priest does for human beings and their manifold institutions," he said.

At George Street Church, Rev. M. C. Parr presided. Rev. F. W. Craik assisted.

Mrs. M. Robinson Dies In London

LONDON, Ont., Jan. 6—(CP).—Mrs. Myrtle Robinson, 47, widow of Benjamin Robinson of Peterborough, who had been visiting with her mother, Mrs. Ida Wood, London, died in Victoria Hospital here yesterday.

Mrs. Robinson had lived in Peterborough for some time prior to coming here to visit six months ago.

Surviving are one son, Harold; her mother and five brothers, Herbert, Ernest, William, Gordon and Clarence, all of London. Mrs. Robinson was a member of Park Street Baptist church, Peterborough.

FIRE EXPLODES BIG OIL TANK LOSS $15,000

LINDSAY, Jan. 6 (CP)—Fire of unknown origin Wednesday caused loss estimated at $15,000 when it destroyed the chopping mill of Hoggs & Lytle Limited, grain merchants at Mariposa Station, ten miles west of Lindsay.

The steel flanking of the two large elevators beside the grain mill saved the rest of the plant. Showers of sparks and embers lit on the metal roofs. A large underground tank containing 40 gallons of fuel oil exploded early in the fire and made approach impossible for the volunteer firemen.

Heat was so great after the fuel oil tank exploded that the metal siding of the grain elevators began melting and the framework underneath caught fire. It was thought for a while nothing would save the rest of the plant, but hard work by volunteers, Lindsay Fire Brigade and Canadian National Railways workers did.

Hundreds threw snow on the burning mill before the Lindsay firemen arrived. When they did come there was no water supply, and a call was sent to the C.N.R. at Lindsay. A locomotive was sent, and from it water was pumped.

TEAM OF HORSES NEARLY DROWNED

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 6. — A team of horses belonging to Robert Rookesby nearly lost their lives when they ventured out on the ice about 700 feet above the bridge at Healey Falls on the Trent River Tuesday afternoon. Fred Keller, who was working around his summer resort, happened to notice the animals and was about to drive them back when they broke through the ice into deep water.

Summoning the aid of his brother, S. Keller and of a neighbor, Stanley Brunton, the three were finally able to extricate the team with the aid of ropes and planks after nearly an hour. Neither of the horses was said to have been any the worse for the experience.

With the holidays over and commercial travellers back on the routes again, local hotels are beginning to get back to the normal routine. Most of the available accomodation has been taken up this week.

WAS TO HAVE BEEN HERE

Mr. Justice Kingstone who died suddenly at Vancouver Wednesday was to have presided over the last Assizes here but a shift in the schedule had to be made owing to illness at that time.

NEW CHAIRMAN

When the city council tackles next week the task of selecting committee chairmen there will be a considerable change in the setup. New heads of committees will have to be chosen in a number of cases, particularly in the Finance and Property Committee. Mayo-elect Hamilton was chairman of the former last year and Malcolm McIntyre who resigned last month headed the latter.

MAYOR CONTINUES DUTIES

Mayor Macdonald still spends an hour or most of it at the city hall every day, but only two more days of his regime are left. Next Monday the council of 1938 will hold its inaugural meeting at 11 a.m. when the new members will be sworn in, and Mayor-elect Hamilton will assume his duties. In committee of the whole the standing committees for the year will be appointed, and the first of the twelve monthly meetings will follow Monday night at 7.30 o'clock.

MAGISTRATE'S COURT

Joseph Clapper, Centre Dummer found guilty of an attempt to break and enter the premises of Harry Jopling on Murray street, on the night of December 17, was on Wednesday afternoon sentenced by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., to 2-months imprisonment. The accused who was represented by W. B. Gordon was originally charged with breaking and entering. Also held for alleged complicity in the same offence, Everett Lee apeared on remand this morning. Represented by Ozias de Laplante, the accused pleaded guilty to attempted breaking and entering, and was remanded for sentence until Friday morning. His Worship intimating that he would place Lee on suspended sentence if his father was prepared to act as surety on the accused's bond. Found guilty of a reckless driving charge Joseph Hobbins, Western avenue was fined $10 and $15 costs. He took ten days imprisonment by way of option.

NO COAL SCARCITY.

One fuel dealer's delivery of half of a ton-order of coal was probably only a temporary shortage in that yard, several other dealers reported. Freight arrivals have been satisfactory, and most of the yards are well supplied.

FISH AND GAME MEETING.

A note from Elmer Sidey says the Durham and Northumberland Fish and Game Association is holding a meeting at Holdaway's Hotel, Bewdley, Tuesday, January 11. If the members have any proposals to go forward to the Fish and Game Committee of the Legislature they will be discussed at this meeting.

NO CONNECTION.

Fred Maybee, 522½ Sherbrooke Street, requested The Examiner to note the fact that an accused person reportedly charged in the name of Edward Maybee before Magistrate Langley on Wednesday, was not his brother Edward Maybee of Forester's Falls, Ontario. The prisoner in question, who was remanded on a vagrancy charge, gave the name Edward Maybee, a transient.

FEAST OF THE EPIPHANY.

The feast of the Epiphany was celebrated as a holy day in the Catholic churches of the city today. In the church calendar the Epiphany on January 6 is commemorated as the Christmas of the Gentiles, or literally the manifestation of the birth of Jesus to the three wise men who arrived at Bethlehem as representatives of the Gentile nations. Jesus was born of the Jewish race, but by them was rejected as the Messiah.

CONCLUDE INQUEST.

At the adjourned inquest Wednesday evening into circumstances connected with the death of Gertrude Huot, 24-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Huot, 248 Charlotte street, who died suddenly in November last, after a brief period of sickness, the jury returned a verdict of death from natural causes. The text of the verdict was as follows: "From the sworn evidence submitted by the family and the medical profession, we find that Gertrude Huot died on November 21, 1937, at her home in Peterborough, from acute diffuse nephritis." The foreman of the jury was Joseph Maher. Coroner Dr. Herbert N. Young presided.

TREES ARE FIRE HAZARD

Now that Christmas and New Year festivities are receding into the background, Fire Chief George Gimblett suggests that citizens get rid of trees and other festive decorations from around the house. Such things, he pointed out, constitute a dangerous fire hazard, particularly Christmas trees which become dry and brittle. He warned of the danger of storing Christmas trees in basements as some people are in the habit of doing, with the intention of using it as fuel, and urged that all trees and other decorations of a particularly inflammable nature be disposed of along with other household garbage.

PRICE OF ORANGES HITS LOW MARK

The price of oranges dropped to a new low level in Peterborough this morning as dealers passed on to the consumer the seasonal removal of 70 cents a case duty and the advantage of a heavy crop in California.

Oranges that sold around 60 and 65 cents a dozen prior to Christmas are down to 35 cents today, and one grade can be bought for ten cents a dozen.

"I have never known them to be so cheap," Herb Mason told The Examiner, explaining the causes which are also emphasized by George Duncan of National Groceries.

"Our trade agreement with the United States strikes off 70 cents duty on oranges imported from below the border," Mr. Duncan said, "and that arrangement went into effect on January 1, continuing until the end of April. Then, another factor is California's big citrus crop. Growers complain about the prices that have resulted, but it is just like our potato crop and the relation of supply to demand. Prices tumble when the harvest is heavy, and that is what has happened in California."

Oranges at ten cents a dozen brings them within range of every purse at a time when only hot house fruits and vegetables are available in Canada.

BASKETBALL GAMES.

Two girls' basketball games tomorrow (Friday) evening at the Y.W.C.A. gym open the 1938 season. An exhibition intermediate contest between Westclox and St. John's Teenites will be played at 7.45, and an L.O.B.A. scheduled fixture between Belleville and C.G.E. will be staged at 8.30 o'clock.

Twenty-Six Churches Head The List With Total Assessment Of $886,800

Assessment of properties in Peterborough that are taxable by statute for local improvements only amounts to $3,786,670, according to the annual statement prepared by W. J. Henry, city assessor.

Of that sum twenty-six churches are assessed for $886,800 of which $96,465 is for land and $790,335 for buildings. St. Peter's Cathedral and George Street United Church are each assessed at $100,000, the next highest is Trinity United Church at $77,500; the Church of the Immaculate Conception $66,000; St. Andrew's United and the Church of the Sacred Heart $66,500 each; St. Paul's Presbyterian Church $65,000 and so on down the list to Auburn United Sunday School at the northeast corner of the city $700.

Other Public Properties

Assessment of the schools of the city amounts to $965,050; hospitals and charitable institutions $615,270; Peterborough Utilities Commission $211,400; Dominion Government property $294,750; Hydro-Electric Commission's property $205,500; county property $159,450; cemeteries $27,950; miscellaneous city property $420,500.

Of the eleven properties listed under hospitals and charitable institutions Nicholls Hospital has the highest assessment at $154,900; St. Joseph's Hospital $153,170; Y.M.C.A. $131,000; and the lowest is the Precious Blood Convent $6,000.

547 Population Gain

The assessment roll becomes the basis of property values for taxation this year. It shows the total population of the city to be 23,619 at the time the assessment was made last year, and although it does not assume to be an exact census of the people according to their religious affiliation it lists 18,339 as Protestants and Roman Catholics 5,280. Some of the other denominations are: United Church 7,418, Anglican 5,581, Presbyterian 2,273, Baptist 1,292, Salvation Army 541, Pentecostal Mission 232, Bethany Tabernacle 185, Jewish 145.

The following odds and ends are quoted from Mr. Henry's voluminous report: number of dwellings occupied by owners 2,409; occupied by tenants 2,884; under construction 24; apartments occupied by owners, 63; occupied by tenants 599; stores and shops occupied 449, and vacant 24 of which 19 were in the centre ward; offices occupied 171; banks 7; hotels 8; theatres and concert halls 6; clubs and athletic halls 10; garages and livery buildings 54.

88 Factory Buildings

There are 88 factories and industrial buildings, 22 civic buildings, 14 government buildings, 48 storage warehouses, 7 greenhouses, 9 lodge rooms, 12 schools, 29 churches and missions, 2 high schools, 1 Normal School, 2 business colleges, 5 charitable institutions, 11 launderies.

Also in the list are 17 restaurants, 34 oil stations, 19 wholesale firms, 6 rooming houses, 9 parks, and 27 coal and wood yards. Locations and assessments of 137 lots owned by the city, 79 of them being in the east ward, are also included.

Fixed assessments on some properties most of them industrial, total $213,700. They are taxable for schools, relief and local improvements.

Total assessment of lands and buildings is $24,597,683 an increase of $90,293; and total taxable assessment is $18,047,313 as compared with $18,925,625, the assessment on which last year's taxes were based.

Bolton Councillor

Clement Leggett, whose family is well known in Peterborough and district, was elected to the village council of Bolton in the municipal elections on January 3. This was Mr. Leggett's first entry into municipal politics and he was but nine votes short of heading the poll. Clement Leggett was educated at Queen Alexandra Public School and Peterborough Collegiate Institute, and graduated from the Ontario College of Pharmacy, Toronto. He married Miss Muriel Bishop, whose family formerly lived on Homewood avenue. Mr. Leggett's father and mother reside at Keene.

BOYS GET YEAR FOR CAR THEFT

OSHAWA, Jan. 6.—"We had no intention of keeping the car, but just went for a joy ride," said Leonard Staley in Police Court on Wednesday.

Staley, with another youthful companion, Eddie Northcott, pleaded guilty to the theft of a motor car the night of December 27. The car was taken to Cobourg and abandoned. Sunday night, P.C. Frank Fawbert arrested the two, who had not been home since the 27th.

They were seen in the car four days before their arrest in Cobourg. "That is a pretty long joy ride," remarked Crown Attorney Allin Annis.

"I have warned you so many times in this court and in other courts in this district about these matters, and apparently you are still at it. You were up four times last year and now you are starting in 1938," said Magistrate F. S. Ebbs to Staley.

Staley was sentenced to one year definite and six months indeterminate, and Northcott to one year definite and three months indeterminate in the Ontario Reformatory.

FEW LICENSES BEING BOUGHT.

Despite the frequent warnings from the Department of Highways that the license deadline will not be extended past January 15 this year, purchases of new licenses are yet very slow, License Issuer J. J. Dorris states. A large portion of the total issue for this region still remains to go out so that likely means long lines of applicants around the 15th, he warns. He suggests that wise motorists will make their purchases now.

GYPSY KING, DEAD AT 96 ENDS FAMED ROYAL LINE

Carried Through Forest on Shoulders of Loyal Subjects

PALACE IS COTTAGE

Coleford, Gloucestershire—Along a narrow lane in the heart of the Forest of Dean, a mile or two from here, a strange and sombre procession slowly mounted the hill.

A coffin, borne on the shoulders of four stalwarts, was at its head. Trailing into the distance behind walked a great company of men and women, their figures dwarfed by high-reaching trees on each side.

William Johns, king of the forest gipsies and master of a Romany family which is known throughout the world, was being taken to rest in a little cemetery at Clearwell, alongside his long dead queen.

He was 96. Until his last illness he lived a free and prosperous life in the open spaces, known far and wide by his stately "topper," swallow-tailed coat, and flourishing moustaches.

From caravans in all corners of Gloucestershire, Monmouthshire, and Herefordshire, members of his family and his fellow-tribesmen—subjects who gave him full allegiance—came to see him for the last time as he lay in state.

They formed a circle in front of their "king's humble palace, sang "Rock of Ages," and then bore the coffin through two miles of sunlit forest byways to St. Peter's church.

There will never be another funeral like this, for there will never be another king of the forest gypsies. William Johns' eldest son, lying ill in his home near Coleford, has declined the throne, and other sons and the tribesmen have decided not to continue the kingship.

Despite the size of the procession, not one-tenth of William Johns' near descendants were represented.

"He has had 18 children, and some of them and their families live far across the ocean," David, one of his sons, said.

The sandstone church was full for the simple service, conducted by the rural dean, the Rev. W. A. Congdon, who paid his own tribute.

"William Johns was an honest man and a man of prayer; he was a good man."

BAN ON PEACE POPPY ROUSES INDIGNATION

Removal of White Wreaths From War Memorials Protested

London — Indignation has been aroused throughout the country by attempts to interfere with peace demonstrations.

In Manchester, 800 Lancashire Co-operative guildswomen passed a resolution of protest against dismissal of two young men by a firm of London underwriters because on Armistice day they wore white peace poppies.

"I hope that in regard to any help, material or otherwise, which may be necessary, our organization will not fail these young men who had the courage of their convictions," said Miss Rose Simpson, general secretary of the Women's Co-operative guild.

"Cries of "shame" greeted Miss Simpson's reference to the removal of white poppy wreaths from the war memorials at Bexley, Royston and Strood, and the refusal of the vicar of Bromborough to allow the guildswomen to lay their wreath.

Resolutions of protest have been passed by many Co-operative guild meetings.

A demand for the right to demonstrate for peace was voiced by Miss Rose Simpson, Laurence Housman, Canon Stuart Morris and J. H. Hodson at the Albert hall, Manchester.

BRITISH TARS HOAXED ON CIGARETTE CARDS

Woman Told Admiral and He Passed Word on to Fleet About "Pension"

Plymouth—One of the biggest hoaxes ever played on the British navy has been revealed. An admiral at a recent dinner party was told by a woman socialite that if 50,000 cigarette cards were collected a crippled boy she knew would receive a pension of 10s. ($2.50) a week in return for them. She acted in good faith.

The admiral thought it would be a good idea if the fleet helped to collect the cigarette cards. Several thousand were collected by ratings at Davenport and sent away.

But when the cigarette cards were sent to a firm of cigarette manufacturers it was found that the pension story was untrue. A duty officer at Davenport said that a notice had been sent round all ships and barracks asking that ratings should collect cigarette cards bearing the name of a well-known firm. Collecting boxes were installed.

BRITISH LIVE LONGER

London.—Britain is breeding a healthier race and the people are living longer. According to the registrar-general's review for 1936 the mortality from infectious and parasitic diseases was the lowest on record.

NAME STRUCK FROM MEDICAL REGISTER

Action Follows Conviction for Assault on Patient

London—Despite an earnest plea for clemency made on his behalf, the general medical council, sitting in London, decided to strike off the medical register the name of Dr. Patrick Joseph O'Shaughnessy of Ballitore house, Ballitore, County Kildare, who, at Liverpool, was sentenced to three months' imprisonment for assaulting a woman patient.

C. J. S. Harper, the council's solicitor, said that Dr. O'Shaughnessy was acting as locum tenens for a Liverpool doctor who had been treating the young woman.

Enrol 3,850 Pilots, Maximum Number, Since April 1, 1935

London—Since April 1, 1935, 16,800 applications for short service commissions in the Royal Air force have been considered, and 734 candidates have been examined for the cadet college. The highest possible number, 3,850 pilots, have been enrolled, and 160 entrants for cadetships accepted.

The number who have already completed flight training, or are in course of training, exceeds 3,500.

In the same period 25,200 airmen have entered, divided among the special trades such as fitters, mates, flight mechanics, armorers, photographers and wireless operators. At Halton 4,840 aircraft apprentices are under training, and there are about 1,000 at other training establishments.

The total strength of the R.A.F. has more than doubled in two years.

When the present financial year began it was intended to take 1,260 pilots during the year. Since April 1 1,030 have been obtained, leaving 230 to enroll by March 31 next.

The universities have provided 25 accepted candidates for permanent commissions.

FINDS $300 SECURED TO LEG OF BEGGAR

London—A police officer stated at South Western police court that he found £60 ($300) in a bag tied to the leg of a man who was begging at Streatham. There was another £10 ($50) in silver in the man's pocket.

Henry Booth, aged 65, described as an artist's model, of Chelsea, denied that he was begging.

The police stated that there were 25 convictions against him for begging. He was remanded.

SHORT WEDDING TRIP

Groom, 95, Served Before Mast on China Tea Clippers

Westcliff-on-Sea — George L. N. Samson, 95, a master mariner, was married recently at St. Andrew's church, Westcliff-on-Sea, to Miss Nellie Witham, 60, of Southend.

Mr. Samson, who met his bride only a year ago, had to walk just the width of the road from his house to the altar.

He served before the mast in China tea clippers and Australian grain boats.

THE HOUSE WITH THE DEAD-EYED GOBBLERS

Yes, you were right the first time. Turkeys are the chief product for sale in this establishment. It will take a lot of selling to get rid of this lot of fine, fat birds, it would be judged from the appearance of the gobbler-clad walls and turkey-clad eaves. A shopkeeper in High Wycombe, England, conceived this novel idea and it is understood it brought him considerable business from the surrounding area. It may be noticed that even the dormer window is overhung with deceased birds fit to grace the season's feast-tables.

YOUTH, 19, LIKENED TO ISAAC NEWTON

High Tribute Paid to Pupil by Head Master of King's School

Grantham—"I think it would be no more than the truth to say that this boy is the finest mathematician the school has turned out since the days of Sir Isaac Newton, 283 years ago."

This speech-day tribute was paid by Charles Bispham, head master of King's school, Grantham, to C. H. Elsey Warren, a 19-years-old pupil.

His widowed mother took up teaching to keep him, and he has won one of three major scholarships of Trinity college, Cambridge. The university authorities have exempted him from Part 1 of the mathematical tripos.

At the age of four Elsey Warren's gifts were so pronounced that he was offered an engagement at a London music hall at a big figure, but his parents declined.

Elsey Warren, who is one of the world's phenomena in regard to mathematics, has won more than £350 ($1,750) in scholarships.

SPLINTER COSTS $50

London.—A splinter that pierced the thigh of 12-year-old Alfred Coulson when playing on a council see-saw cost the borough of Brentford and Chiswick £10 ($50) in a case at Brentford county court.

EX-MILKMAID SENT TO JAIL ON BIGAMY, FRAUD COUNTS

Acquired Oxford Accent, Wore Expensive Coat, Posed as Kin of Nobility

WED THREE TIMES

Bristol — An expensive fur coat, extravagant living and an Oxford accent gave glamor to 27-year-old Mrs. Harper, ex-milkmaid. She posed in Winterbourne Stoke, village in the middle of Salisbury Plain, as "niece of Lady Carlisle," and an heiress.

At Bristol assizes, she was revealed as a bigamist whose reputation of wealth is as false as the Oxford accent she assumed.

Sentenced to 22 months' hard labor for bigamy and obtaining $1,295 by fraud, she stepped from the dock in the fur coat which she used to dazzle the villagers when she drove round in her car.

"She always liked fancy clothes," said Eric Charles Diamond, her legal husband—according to the prosecution—and the second of the three men with whom she associated during her rise from milkmaid to the "niece of Lady Carlisle."

For over a year Mrs. Harper—in court she was referred to as Marion Doreen Patricia Iris Jones, or Diamond or Harper—lived better than most people in the village. She is reputed to have spent $3,000 in 15 months.

Although he was employed on a farm she employed the wives of other laborers to clean her house, to do odd jobs for her.

News was spread that her father had left a legacy of $50,000 to be divided equally between herself and her brother.

Mr. Justice Tucker, passing sentence, said: "This case shows you to be a most ingenious and dangerous criminal. If it were not for your sex and comparative youth I should send you to penal servitude."

PARIS IS BRANDED DOG-RIDDEN CITY

Paris—Per capita, Paris has more dogs than any other capital in the world.

The latest census shows there are 63,446 of them of every color, breed, shape and build in which dogs can be found. There is a dog for nearly every 44 persons.

And even this is a drop under the census taken in 1932. At that time there were 6,032 more dogs but during the interim 6,75' wound up in the pound. Of this number 5,770 were able to get out alive because of some kind sympathizer or because of release for experimental purposes.

MAN, 80, IS APPOINTED 'DICTATOR' OF PARISH

Residents of Dewlish Refuse to Nominate Members to Conduct Affairs

Dorchester — Newbury Parsons, who, at the age of 80, has been appointed "dictator" of the Dorset parish of Dewlish, four miles square and with 268 inhabitants, was in gumboots and apron, with a tame robin perched on his shoulder, when he discussed the Dorset county council's decision to create him a complete parish council in himself.

Because Dewlish will not elect a council—there were no nominations, though two orders for elections were issued—the county council have given Mr. Parsons full parochial authority.

He will conduct his "meetings" at his desk in his wood-carver's workshop, and his only companion will be a robin that sits on his hand while he writes his official papers.

"After 53 years I should know the work and the needs of Dewlish by now," Mr. Parsons said. "But I don't believe in dictatorship. If the villagers want anything they will be able to send me suggestions."

UNION IN INDIA

Bombay.—Sir George Ogilvie, retiring after 37 years in the Indian service, declared that nothing short of federation of the independent principalities would unite the whole of India.

KILLED BULLYING FATHER BOY STARTS ON NEW LIFE

Acquitted of Murder, Lad, 14, Finds Happier Home

WAS ILL-TREATED

Stafford—Smiling and happy, a diminutive, fair-haired boy of 14½ was whirled in a motor car from the assize court here to a new life in a neighboring county, free from the cruel bullying of a father whom he had shot dead.

Casting quick, frightened glances at Mr. Justice Finlay, the boy was found not guilty of murdering his father, Thomas Stone, at Penkridge, Staffordshire.

Now, it is understood, he is the ward of a woman in Shropshire who came forward to offer him a home.

His young step-sister, Eileen, a domestic servant, sat all day in the public gallery watching the boy, whose head reached only to the dock rails. Only his neatly parted hair was visible.

Both, it was revealed, were motherless. The boy had not even a memory of his mother.

"A case as simple as it is distressing," was how Mr. Justice Finlay described the proceedings.

Prosecuting counsel, A. W. Cockburn, said, "It is a sad and terrible story." For 18 months before the shooting the boy and his father lived alone in Mitton cottage, Penkridge, he stated. The father was always grumbling, shouting, and threatening the boy. Sometimes he used physical violence.

On the evening of the tragedy, continued Mr. Cockburn, a man named Jackson, leaving the cottage after a visit to the father, heard a gunshot, and the father cried out, "Oh! He has shot me." Jackson returned to the cottage, and the boy ran to a neighboring farm and asked the farmer's wife to "Fetch a doctor, quick. I have shot my dad."

He was in great distress and said, "Oh!" I hope the doctor will come quick. Suppose my dad should die."

Mrs. Moore of Belfield cottage, Stetton, who used to work for father and son, said, "It was a miserable existence for the boy. The father used to shout and use terrible language to him." She had seen the father strike him.

The boy gave his own evidence so nervously that he had to be asked several times to speak up. He said he was frightened by his father's threats and got the gun. His father said: "Now I will deal with you."

The gun went off. He did not aim the gun at his father.

"If the jury give him justice it will be the first time in his life the boy has had it," said his counsel, Mr. Peter Thorneycroft.

CYCLISTS KEEP FREE OF FATAL ACCIDENTS

London—Only one cyclist in every 200,000 on the road is likely to be involved in an accident resulting in another person's death.

Including deaths among their own ranks, the proportional likelihood of members of all sections of the road-using public being involved in fatal accidents are: Motorcyclists, 1 in 333; motor drivers, 1 in 424; cyclists, 1 in 5,727.

These calculations are made by the Cyclists' Touring club in a report, "Making the Roads Safe."

HAVE GIPSY PURGE

Berlin.—With less than 1,000,000 wandering gipsies in Germany the Nazi government has opened a campaign for restriction and racial purity throughout their camps.

DEFENCE DOWN UNDER

Wellington, N.Z.—New Zealand government has ordered 17 aeroplanes, in addition to the 12 already on order, for use in training New Zealand defence fliers.

ASKS DEFINITE DATE OF GENERAL ELECTION

M.P. Thinks Laborites Should Answer Rumors

Bath—"While I have no absolute proof, I think it right, as chairman of the Labor party's campaign committee, to refer to somewhat circumstantial rumors," said Herbert Morrison, M.P., at a Bath Co-operative meeting.

"They are to the effect that certain members of the government and the tacticians of the Conservative central office are seriously contemplating an early general election. The time in mind is said to be some time within the next few months."

STUDY FISH IN LAKE 12,500 FT. ABOVE SEA

Rare Species Found in Lake Titicaca by British Zoologists

Cambridge—Eight zoologists and botanists, mostly members of Cambridge university, have returned from a nine months' expedition to Lake Titicaca, 12,500 feet up in the Andes, on the borders of Peru and Bolivia.

But because of the peculiarity of their surroundings and the intricacy of their investigations, the results of the expedition will not be known for 12 months.

No river connects Lake Titicaca with the sea yet in its waters is an abundance of fish, including many strange species.

Headed by H. C. Gilson of Trinity college, Cambridge, the expedition journeyed to the lake to try to solve the problem of the origin of the fish.

H. P. Moon of University college, Southampton, said that it was too early to say whether any of the species brought back was scientifically new, but much information about the lake's rare inhabitants would be forthcoming.

ENGAGEMENT DREARY SAYS JUDGE AT SUI

Went Together for Years, Sitting Silently in Picture Theatre

London—The adage that "absence makes the heart grow fonder" was quoted by Mr. Justice Hawke in the King's bench division in a breach of promise action.

A jury which included two women, awarded £40 ($200) damages to Miss Elsie May Turner, aged 27, works manageress, of Peckham, against Albert Edward Beresford, machine operator, of East Dulwich.

Mr. Justice Hawke described the parties as "two young people who were engaged for a long time, and were, perhaps, very wise not to rush too early into matrimony."

"The engagement was—shall I say—a little dreary," he continued. "They used to meet in the evenings, and the question, 'Which pictures shall we go to?' would be asked. Some agreement would be come to as to where they should go, and there was no further conversation. It was a dismal business, if it is entirely true."

On April 7, 1936, according to Miss Turner, Mr. Beresford used expressions which she thought meant that all was over. "That, I believe," Mr. Justice Hawke commented, "is the technical way of expressing that the engagement was broken."

NEWS AND VIEWS FROM ALL CORNERS OF THE WORLD

ONE KILLED, ONE LOSES ARM IN ENCOUNTER WITH SHARK

Comrade Risks Life in Effecting Rescue of Injured Youth

PURSUED TO SHORE

Brisbane, Australia—Norman Girvan, 18, was killed and Jack Brinkley, his friend, badly mauled by a shark while they were swimming in the Tasman Sea with other youths at Kirra beach, near here. Brinkley's arm was amputated in hospital.

The hero of the tragedy was Joe Doniger who gallantly swam to the aid of his fellow-bathers. Brinkley called out, "For God's sake, hurry up," and then collapsed. The shark was still circling near by, but Doniger brought Brinkley to shore with the murderous fish stabbing the victim's leg.

Doniger made an effort to assist Girvan. His hand, however, encircled a terrible wound made by the shark and he had to release the body which was afterwards washed to shore.

SEIZE SMUGGLED GOODS

Indian Officers Find Silk In Car Gasoline Tank

Pondicherry, India.—Vigilance of customs officers has resulted in many seizures of smuggled goods including a large quantity of silk concealed in a gasoline tank car following widening of officials' authority in the campaign to stamp out smuggling.

ROYAL 'G' AND 'E' DECK PARIS POLES

Paris Bargain in Decorations Exposed

Paris.—The Avenue de l'Opera here was decorated with large tricolor standards to celebrate the 60th anniversary of its inauguration by Marshal MacMahon.

Parisians were puzzled to observe that under the paint a large "G" and "E" were visible. Then it was revealed that the Paris municipality bought the standards cheap after the coronation.

SET NEW "NOBEL PRIZE"

Melbourne. — Described by the chancellor of Melbourne University as a "Miniature Nobel Prize," an annual award is to be made by the university.

Under a bequest from an inhabitant of the state of Victoria, the income from £3,000 ($11,790) is to be given each year as a prize for "the greatest benefit to humanity." The award will be made by a committee composed of the chancellor of the university, the lord mayor of Melbourne and the mayor of Ballarat.

PAYS TO ADVERTISE

London.—If government activities are to be successful they needed publicity, declared H. G. Clarke, president of the Newspaper Society, denouncing the lack of government advertising.

CHINA'S BOY SCOUTS ARE BANNED BY JAPS

Familiar Uniformed Youths No Longer Seen in Peking

Peking—Until the Japanese army seized Peking, the familiar khaki uniform of the boy scouts was common on the city's streets. Now it is seen no more! Upon Japanese insistence, local authorities ordered the disbandment of all native troops.

Left alone in Peking is the Pagoda troop of the Peking American boy scouts, which has many Chinese scouts among its American members. Being American, the Japanese could not strike at it.

The reason given by the authorities for its ban on this worthy, world-wide institution of youth, was that it savored of military training, and the Japanese did not want any Chinese, no matter how young to have either that training or to listen to patriotic inspiration.

Thousands of girl scouts were likewise forced to put aside their skirted uniforms in Peking. The Japanese were apparently afraid of them also.

FOUND ROMAN COINS

Nisch, Jugoslavia.—A hidden treasure of genuine Roman gold coins from the mints of Emperor Justinian was discovered by a canal worker in an antique earthenware pot while he was doing his daily digging. Although he was immediately ordered to carry the valuable find to the municipal museum of his city, the lucky workman disappeared and was never seen again.

GLADIATORS' ARENA EMERGING TO LIGHT

Excavators Locate Classic Foundations of Ludus Gallicus

Rome—Important Roman imperial remains which baffled the search of archaeologists in Rome for centuries have been brought to light by the chance work of laborers engaged in a city clearance scheme near the colosseum.

Employed to demolish a group of dilapidated houses, the workmen came on classic foundations, now identified as the Ludus Gallicus—the training camp of the captives who acted as gladiators in the colosseum.

REFUSE REBEL STAMPS

Incident Caused When Franco Mail Marked "Postage Due"

San Jose, Costa Rica. — Postage stamps caused an international incident here. Spanish rebels protested when letters bearing stamps of the Franco government were marked "postage due" and the postage collected before delivery.

The government of Costa Rica says the stamps are not recognized by the International Postal Union.

TOO MUCH REGULATION

London.—Charges that the Church of England was over-ridden with officialdom and regulations curtailing the work of the clergy were made by Rev. C. E. Douglas of Southwark, addressing the church assembly here.

VAST STATUE OF BRITANNIA SET AT GATE TO BOULOGNE

"A SACRED GESTURE"

Boulogne-Sur-Mer, France — A vast statue of Britannia will become the "Statue of Liberty" of the English channel when it is unveiled early next spring at the entrance of the inner harbor of Boulogne.

Nearly 100 feet high from its base to the tip of a trident held aloft, the statue will be visible for miles around and will greet travellers between Britain and France as the Statue of Liberty greets visitors to the United States.

The figure is intended as a symbol of the past and present friendship between France and England, and in it Felix Desruelles, the sculptor, has shown his conception of a Britannia completely armed and ready, but calm, serene and confident in her strength and right. The sculptor draped a scarf, emblem of her command of the seas, about her shoulders.

"My Britannia," declared M. Desruelles, "is intended to be an artistic embodiment of the robust and gallant British race, modest in heroism, unhesitating before the great sacrifice, and prepared to give lavishly her gold and her life."

Britannia's shield will be nearly 10 feet in diameter and will be of beaten brass, glided with gold leaf. The whole of the figure has been made out of six enormous blocks, that used for the head weighing 23 tons before carving. A stone from each of the British dominions has been included in the base

CAPE TOWN IS QUIET ON 'TOOT-LESS' DAY

"Almost Like a Dream," Declares Old-Timer

Cape Town, S.A.—This South African city has had a "tootless day" to demonstrate a lot of motorcar horn-sounding is needless.

Officials and ordinary citizens were overjoyed at the success of the experiment. It is expected the result will be an ordinance prohibiting sounding of horns during certain hours and declaration of silent zones around hospitals and rest homes.

"It was almost like a dream in Cape Town," said one old-timer. "In 41 years there has never been a quieter day."

AUSTRALIA'S CHIEF ENCOUNTERED THORN

Premier Lyons Injured Cutting Down Tree

Devonport, Australia—While gardening at his Tasmanian home here after the Commonwealth elections in which his government was returned to power, Prime Minister J. A. Lyons had his foot pierced by a thorn from a cherry plum tree he had cut down.

The trouble cleared rapidly, however, and Mr. Lyons flew to Melbourne to resume his duties at Canberra, the capital. He was limping badly from a swollen ankl on arriving at Melbourne.

THOUGHT DEAD LIVING

Relative Insists on Further Examination

Hull—A Hull woman, whose death occurred after she had been ill for four years, was thought by a relative to be breathing after her death had been certified and registered.

To satisfy relatives, two doctors made an examination and pronounced that death had taken place.

This strange incident occurred after the death of Mrs. Selena Robertson, 71.

LUBRICATING METAL DESIGNED FOR GUNS

Should Prove Aid to Air Engines, Says Woman

London—"A certain European country" is experimenting with an entirely new self-lubricating metal, Miss Dorothy Spicer, woman aeroengineer, said at the annual conference of the Womgn's Engineering society at Chelsea.

"I gather that this new metal is used for gun barrels," she said. "It is said that after the first bullet has been fired, there is little visible change in the metal, but after the firing of the second bullet one can actually see how the metal has lubricated itself. It is easy to see what great possibilities this may open up, especially if this metal can be adapted for use in aeroplane and car engines."

WANT CHEAPER TALKS

Cape Town, S.A. — Anywhere throughout South Africa for 2s. 6d. (62 cents) is the slogan of the public demand on the postmaster-general for cheaper night rates on the government telephone service.

NEW PALESTINE PROBE EXTENDS REIGN OF TERROR

LONDON, Jan. 6. (CP-Cable).—The new Palestine commission finds small favor with either Jew or Arab. First reactions from Jerusalem are that the inevitable delays mean continuation of the terrorism that for months has plagued the Holy Land.

"Vague, inconclusive, self-contradictory," is the comment of Elias Moghannan, Arab leader in Jerusalem. "It is a clumsy attempt to bluff the Arabs and Jews."

Moghannan adds: "Any commission is liable to a boycott by the Arabs. It would be wiser if Great Britain realized the opposition rather than carry on a policy of procrastination."

Authoritative Jewish circles in Palestine are deeply concerned over the apparent indefinite prolongation of the present suspense.

The Times of London (Independent) considers the statement of Colonial Secretary William Ormsby-Gore, incorporated in a white paper published this morning, gives the lie to rumors both that Britain intended to drop the partition scheme and rumors that the government was resolved to carry out the partition scheme to the letter irrespective of local criticism.

The Manchester Guardian (Liberal) thinks the government's instructions to the new technical commission, which were the main subject of the white paper, will "increase the uncertainty or rather confirm the impression that the government intends to spin things out indefinitely and holds itself free to run away from its accepted policy."

The Guardian, comparing the very different tone of the instructions with the "warm, spring-like affection" with which the government originally greeted the partition scheme, comments that now "wintry doubt has pinched the cheek of love."

QUEBEC WINS CONTEST

QUEBEC, Jan. 6 (AP). — The Province of Quebec finished first, and Ontario second, in the annual Fire Prevention Week competition for provinces of Canada in 1937, according to a report issued by the judges of the International Fire Prevention Clean-up Campaign Committee of the National Fire Protection Association.

Hull, Que., and Edmonton, Alta., lead the cities having highest position in the Dominion. Guelph, Ont., was third, Windsor fourth, Trail, B.C., fifth, and Kitchener sixth.

FIND GOLD HOARD

LONDON—(CP).—Excavators at Catford found a jar filled with gold coins worth, by weight, $1,000. The coins bore the head of Charles I or James I and a Latin inscription.

Famous Sailorman Seen In One Of His Gentler Moods

CHAPTER FOUR.

As a matter of fact, Popeye doesn't know his own strength to this day.

He has sought introductions on many occasions, but always has met with a chaste rebuff. In the old days, when Popeye made his nightly rounds winding the anchor watch of the "Josie Lee," always careful to stay in front of the mast so he could say afterwards, "Blow me down. I spent four years before the mast." In those days it was a brave mariner who would incur Popeye's wrath.

One of the famous salt's chief characteristics was his gallantry. He never hit a woman without some justification. Whenever the talk in the glory hole of the "Josie Lee" turned to the fair sex, Popeye would take off his hat and one sock, turn his eyes reverently to the sky and say with real emotion, "Blow me down." So all the sailors knew Popeye was a gentleman.

There was the time when an albatross alighted on the deck to refuel and "The Ape," bloodthirsty cook of the "Josie Lee," seized the poor bird and was about to make off with him. "Off" was a kind of gruel, a dish that was a favorite among the crew. "The Ape" could make "off" with almost anything. He ing to the sea he was so talented he could make "off" very nicely with a bag of old silverware.

Popeye, noticing from the tiny slippers which the albatross wore that the bird was a girl, or "albatress," unwound a quick right to "The Ape's" jaw and rescued the hapless creature.

"Blow me down," said Popeye, "lady, maybe you is somebody's sister, tha's a fack. Nobody but a criminal would do a hurt to anybody's sister."

Popeye is now appearing in The Examiner.

Christmas Concerts

S. S. No. 9, DUMMER

The annual Christmas concert of S.S. No. 9, Dummer, was held under the direction of the teacher, Leatha L. Kidd. In music, the children were very ably assisted by Mildred Puffer who accompanied them at the organ. The children decorated the school very nicely for the occasion. Mr. Wilkinson of Warsaw acted as chairman. Program:

Opening chorus; the meaning of Christmas was shown by a recitation, "A Christmas Dialogue," given by Olive Armstrong; Nona Whetung very capably welcomed the parents and visitors of the evening by expressing the meaning of each letter in the word "Welcome."

Five girls, Mary Crowe, Ona Ivey, Marjorie and Helen Miles and Nona Whetung, all dressed in white, very beautifully told the story of a "White Christmas in the Court of Kublah Kahn" and sang the song, "Peace on Earth."

Jean Armstrong gave a recitation entitled "The Christmas Tree." Four girls and four boys staged "The Dance of the Christmas Stockings." An action song "Little Old Lady" was well rendered by Ada Armstrong, Gerald Ivey, Ona Ivey, Ralph Puffer, Nona and Donald Whetung. Mary Crowe took the part of the "Little old lady."

Erma Hull recited "My Poor Sick Doll." Mrs. Russell Puffer and Earl Drain played an instrumental. This was followed by a humorous dialogue entitled "The Broken Picture." Bella Rodgers gave an interesting reading.

Some nursery rhymes were sung by the junior pupils of the school. A dialogue was acted by Ada Armstrong and Ralph Puffer. Jimmie Woodcock gave a recitation. A very picturesque "Merry Christmas" drill was displayed by fourteen girls and boys. Trevor Miles and Eleanor Rodgers gave a recitation as did Leo Hull.

The young people staged the short play, "Married in Haste." Members of the cast were Mildred Puffer, Lavinia Whetung, Leslie Crowe, Ernie and Percy Ivey. Violet Woodcock recited. A very humorous dialogue, "The Quiz," was acted by Marjorie Miles, Ona Ivey, Douglas Miles and Donald Whetung.

Recitation, "A Christmas Quiz" by Douglas Miles. Four two-part songs, which have been taught during the fall by the music teacher, Mr. Renaud, were sung. Eleanor Rodgers gave a recitation. This was followed by the dialogue "Merry Christmas, Jake," and a very pretty tableau. Kathleen Hull recited "A happy Child." Mrs. Puffer and Earl Drain again favored the audience with an instrumental. Madaleen Hull recited "Rejoice."

NO SUNDAY SHOWS

TORONTO, Jan. 6 (CP). — Disapproval of theatrical performances on Sunday, whether in theatre, hall, in a broadcast, or in a church was expressed in a resolution passed by Toronto Presbytery of the Presbyterian Church here yesterday.

KEENE

Those from Keene who attended the farewell banquet for Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Runions, Agricultural Representative, on Thursday evening, were Misses Edith and Evelyn Nelson and Ruth Shearer, and the Messrs. Jack Bolin, Stewart Nelson, Harry McIntyre, Allen Eason and James Hope.

Born—On December 24, to Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hall, a daughter, Mary Elizabeth.

The Tillicum Class held their Christmas party on Thursday evening at Miss Alberta Comrie's. There was a short devotional service, followed by a Christmas pantomime, "The Three Wisemen."

Mrs. Arthur Renwick was presented with a coffee maker in honor of her recent marriage. Christmas gifts were exchanged and dainty refreshments were served by the hostess.

Mr. and Mrs. Hilpon Hilliter, of Norwich, Ont., spent Christmas with Mrs. Hilliter's parents, Rev. and Mrs. Preston.

Mr. Jack Breckenride of Hamilton, visited friends in the vicinity recently.

Mr. Michael McCarthy of Lakehurst has been visiting friends in the vicinity for the past week.

Mr. M. J. Holsey of the Bank of Toronto spent the holidays with his parents in Trenton.

Mr. Emmett Bolin, of Montreal, is visiting his brother, Mr. Gus Bolin, and attended the funeral of his sister-in-law, Mrs. Mary Genevieve Bolin, wife of the late John Louis Bolin, who died in Erie Pennsylvania.

The C.G.I.T. girls held a Christmas tobogganing party on Shorts Hill, then they went to the United church and exchanged gifts. This was followed by a worship service and concluded with refreshments.

On Wednesday evening a large crowd attended the hockey dance and draw. Music was played by Red Moncrief's orchestra. The boys had sold a large number of tickets on a $5 merchandise draw. Jack Gall held the box of tickets and Dick Eason made the draw, getting ticket No. 45, held by Leo Foley. Dancing continued and refreshments were served by the hockey girls.

The Misses Isobel Nelson, Elinor Foley, Margilerite Bowie, Pearl McCann, have returned to Toronto to resume their teaching duties there.

Miss Lottie and Earl Leggott have returned to resume their duties in Nottingham and Toronto respectively.

Miss Marion Comrie has accepted a position teaching school in Lakefield and Miss Buchanan, of Havelock, will teach the Lower school.

GANANOQUE MAN 93 YEARS OLD STILL AT WORK

GANANOQUE, Jan. 6.—William A. Williamson, Gananoque's oldest resident, celebrated his ninety-third birthday quietly at his home on King street yesterday. Mr. Williamson, who has been in business for 70 years in Gananoque and still does a little work in his monument works, was around as usual on Wednesday. He was at the Postoffice bright and early for his mail.

When asked if there was anything unusual about the birthday, he remarked: "Oh, no! I was up bright and early as usual. This morning I attended to the fires, and had the house real warm when the women came down, and then I went for my mail, a distance of about a third of a mile."

He had numerous callers during the day. On Tuesday evening a birthday party was held at the home of his grandson, Arthur White, Arthur street, when all the members of the family were present. Seated by his side at the table was his wife, aged 88 years, who is still active. His two sons, who are associates with him in the business, his three daughters and his grandchildren were present.

Last evening a deputation from the St. Andrew's Society, of which he was one of the first members, called at the home and presented Mr. Williamson with an illuminated scroll.

SIGNS OF SPRING

HAMILTON, Ont., Jan. 6—(CP).—Signs of spring have appeared here. Although no birdies were heard to tweet, the Fire Department answered calls to two grass fires and marvelled that the vegetation could be ignited.

East Enders Take 7-4 Hockey Win

Starting the Scouts' Hockey League schedule in Lakefield Wednesday evening, the Immaculate Conception crew copped a 7-4 verdict over Lakefield. A strong finish for the Peterborough puckists gave them the advantage after a fast open brand of hockey most of the way. Lakefield scored two in the first and third periods, as the Immaculate outfit got three in the middle heat and four in the final frame. R. Garvey got four goals for them and F. Garvey three; this pair starring. Kendall shone for the losers, tallying all their goals. The teams:

Barnardo Boys Elect Officers.

The annual meeting and election of officers of the Barnardo Club was held on Wednesday evening at the home of Frank Deacon, Westcott street. The following officers were elected: President, Frank Deacon; Vice-president, Fred Bye; Secretary-treasurer, Jack Bean; Chaplain, Jack West. Frank Deacon, George Selmes and Isiah Harrison were appointed as a committee of investigation and to look after the sick. The president, in his few remarks, urged that the Marchment boys join up with the Barnardo club, as the two homes have been united for some years. Plans were made for the dance on January 19. Euchre and lunch brought a very enjoyable evening to a close.

St. George's Choir Is Given Banquet.

Thirty-three choristers and their guet of St. George's Church held guests sat down at the annual banon Wednesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Pilling, on McGill Street. The Rev. T. S. Gault, rector, presided, and also officiated at the annual election of officers.

Following the banquet and the business of electing officers, the gathering adjourned to the church nearby, and there resumed the program of entertainment. Carpet bowling was played as one of the attractions.

John Branson declined nomination for re-election as choirmaster, declaring he was forced to relinquish the position because of ill-health. Many expressions of regret were heard and Thomas Maudesley presented Mr. Branson with a token of esteem from the members of the choir and general congregation. Retiring president Art Siddall augmented the tribute that was paid to the work of Mr. Branson, as choirleader, as also did the Rev. Mr. Gault and A. J. Knott, rector's warden, and W. G. Ray, people's warden.

Officers were named as follows.

President, Thomas Maudesley; vice-president, Arthur Henwood; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Robert Pilling (re-elected); social convenor, Miss B. Curtis; robe mistress, Mrs. C. Cole; librarian, Wilf Davis (re-elected); Visiting Committee, Mrs. R. King and Mrs. J. McWilliams; choirmaster, Art Siddall; organist, Mrs. R. King.

A vote of thanks to Mrs. Robert Pilling and Miss Margery Sims, social convenor, who had charge of arrangements for the banquet, was extended on motion of Mr. Henwood, seconded by Miss Curtis. The banquet tables were tastefully decorated, with the seasonal Christmas note predominating.

Le Sage-Martin.

TWEED, Jan. 6—St. Charles Church, Read, was the scene of a pretty wedding on Tuesday morning, at 9.30 o'clock, when Mary Emily Larkin, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Larkin of Latta, became the bride of Joseph Lawrence LeSage, son of the late Mrs Ernest LeSage and Mrs. LeSage of Stoco. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Father S. LeSage of St. Mary's Cathedral, Kingston, cousin of the groom.

The charming young bride, who entered the church on the arm of her father to the strains of Lohengrin's Wedding March played by Miss Mary V. Walsh of Marysville, wore a lovely, floor-length gown of periwinkle blue satin with silver turban and a silver shoulder-length veil and silver shoes. She carried a white ivory prayer book, with white satin streamers caught with lilies of the valley buds.

Miss Madeline Larkin was her sister's bridesmaid and wore a pretty floor-length gown of fuchsia taffeta with a black velvet ribbon sash and matching black accessories. She carried a bouquet of pale yellow mums and maiden hair fern. Mr. Ernest LeSage, brother of the groom, was groomsman, while Mr. Franklin Larkin and Mr. Elcid LeSage acted as ushers.

On their return they will reside near Bogart, where the groom is a popular and prosperous farmer.

Home and School Association News

Queen Mary School.

The regular monthly meeting of the Queen Mary Home and School Association was held on Monday evening with a fair attendance, and the president, Mrs. Shirley, in the chair.

The speaker of the evening was L. J. Pettit of the Peterborough Collegiate Institute staff, who gave a very interesting informal talk on "Guidance," with special reference to vocational guidance. Mr. Pettit emphasized the fact that no teacher is either willing or able to force a pupil into taking something he is not adapted to—for after all there is no greater "hell" than working all day, every day, at work one does not like. Some people are very critical about certain jobs, but the real truth is any good work well done is honorable work.

After the business of the evening, Donald McTavish entertained the audience by giving two very lovely numbers on his violin.

Three rooms were tied for junior banner: Miss Batten, Miss Hooey and Miss Walton's.

Mr. Wagar's room won the senior banner.

After the singing of the National Anthem, tea and shortbread were served by Mrs. Barry Ottewell and her able assistants.

FORMALITY IS YOUNG—EVENING MODE IS GAY AND YOUTHFUL ONE

By LISBETH

Women in Paris and Canada, too, are dining in pencil slim frocks of silk, velvet, satin or wool. Usually they dance in dresses whose skirts are wide and swinging, especially the younger members of the fair sex.

V-necklines are probably the most often seen. But there are many other styles. And shoulders are covered or left bare also as a matter of taste. The full-length sleeve for any kind of formal wear is always a high style. Most women find the short, elbow length or sleeveless models more comfortable and becoming.

Simple, young and gay is the embroidered crepe dress with the detachable bolero, shown here. It uses the pencil-slim line and high waistline so popular this season. Flowers worn on the top of the head —another popular mode of the season—match the colors in the dress. It is from Kalmour.

The Peasant Type Again

The drindl or peasant styling which we have been prating about for months, is achieved in a little different guise in the other dress shown, from Stein and Blaine. It is made of soft, brocaded blue material. The hips are kept slim and smooth, and the skirt is gathered at the hips and shirred onto the bodice section. It emphasizes the slender waistline. The cowl neckline is girlish and becoming.

Smocking is smart this year, and it has lost its innocent, little girl look, and has become glamorous. Sometimes it is "dressed up" with little beads.

When you choose a dinner dress, whether it be floor-length for formal dining, or street length, be sure that the part of you that shows above the dinner table is distinctive. It may be so in a number of ways, so choose the one best suited to your type. But you must look charming above the waist.

Two-piece dresses are very good. Little dresses with sequin or lame tops or jackets are important. The glitter of the early season has become somewhat dimmer, and all-black sequins or pretty colored beads are preferred to the scintillation that we have been seeing. Trimmings are also being used more discreetly.

The fact that there is so much variety in the current silhouette certainly makes for interest in fashions. Looking toward the spring mode, as we have to do at this time of year, we have the formal dress that has a full skirt, with tucks ditched down over the hips, but released later to form a wide hem. This type of dress has a square decolletage.

Boleros, which I was mentioning a while back, are growing shorter. The briefest are the smartest. A pencil-slim silhoutette topped by a very short bolero, may have graduated dust ruffles at the hem, giving another variation on the silhouette theme.

Then there is the tiered skirt which extends the waistline well down on the hips. This long type also may be attached to a very full, wide skirt, gathered at a little below the waistline.

Still another styling is the one that poses fullness at the back, in various effects, some bustle-like, others pleated.

We Noticed

. . . that bronze shoes, reminiscent of Grandmother's Day, are very smart.

✧ ✧ ✧

. . . that many smart women in Paris are wearing low-heeled shoes for all occasions.

✧ ✧ ✧

. . . that Venetian clogs with cork soles three inches thick introduced in New York this last Fall for resort wear, are made also for evening with soles covered with gold kid.

Brazil is urging the growing of corn, and production is increasing.

THINGS OF INTEREST TO WOMEN

Courses for Girls Start in January In Rural Centres

Young women to receive training under Dominion-Provincial project-Courses also scheduled for February and March, Miss Bess McDermand announces.

Over 100 rural young women in six Ontario counties will receive four week's training next month under the Dominion-Provincial training project, Miss Bess McDermand, Superintendent of the Women's Institute Branch, Ont. Dept. of Agriculture, stated today. Courses are scheduled for seven counties in February and fourteen in March, Miss McDermand said. Women's organizations all over Ontario are most enthusiastic about the courses and are lending hearty support she declared. The courses are planned so that the girls will be able to earn their living in a rural environment.

Four courses are available. They are catering for tourists; marketing of home baked foods; simple dressmaking and remodelling and rug making. Dressmaking projects are now under way at Warkworth and Wyebridge and are proving most successful, officials state.

Courses in January are scheduled for Newton Robinson in South Simcoe; Owen Sound, Grey county; Kinburn, Carleton county; Winchester, Dundas county. At all these places students will be taught how to cater for tourists. At Lansdowne and Harriston, the girls will take up simple dressmaking and remodelling.

Peterborough in February

March courses will be held in Huron, Welland, Northumberland, Victoria, Renfrew, Lanark, York, Wentworth, Kenora, Rainy River, Middlesex, Hastings, Durham, Lennox and Addington.

The course on catering for tourists will include preparation of breakfast; refreshments and box lunches, table setting and serving; fundamentals of hospitality and etiquette; requirements and care of the guest bedroom; booth displays and simple advertising.

The course in marketing of home baked foods will include instruction and practice in making rolls, pies, cakes, cookies, etc; practice in judging baked produces; organization of a home market and problems in selling.

Girls taking up the dressmaking course will be taught how to make women's and children's dresses and given information on dress designs and textiles.

NEW CASUAL COATS ARE NOW MADE OF TWEED

Smart and Popular Fabrics Have an Interesting Story

(By Lisbeth)

What do you know about Harris tweeds?

If you wear tailored clothes— and everyone does nowadays—you know, or think you do, something about tweeds, and would say, if questioned, that they are of British origin.

Harris tweeds are also British imports, and they are the tops in quality and beauty for outdoor wear. Now that midseason style in tweed coats and early spring wear are coming into the stores, you may find it worth while, as well as most interesting, to know something about the nature of these tweeds.

Harris tweeds are not produced by any one company. The name stamped on the cloth that you buy in piece goods or that is used on a garment, means that the tweed is made of pure virgin wool produced in Scotland, spun, dyed, finished and hand-woven by the islanders of the outer Hebrides, off the northwest coast of Scotland, in their own homes. The Island of Harris is the one which has given its name to these hand-woven tweeds, but the fabrics also are made in the neighboring islands of Lewis, Uist and Barra. The name, "Harris tweed" is protected by the British Board of Trade, to prevent imitations of these hand-woven fabrics from capitalizing their world-wide recognition as quality fabrics.

Two Models Shown

Two smart and youthful coats in this famous tweed are pictured here. The young woman with her arms akimbo mbodels one in green, rust and beige checked patterning. The high-cut, single-breasted front closing is fastened with handsome leather buttons, and deep flap pockets are convenient and decorative.

The high, round collar and loose swagger lines of the other coat are smart and youthful. It is a sturdy country topcoat of the Harris tweed. A fine line check in deep brown is striking against the light tan background in wide, herringbone weave, and sporting leather buttons at the front closing repeat the deep brown accent.

Harris tweeds have distinctive colorings. Nearly all the dyes come from native herbs, roots, lichens, mosses, seaweeds, and other natural vegetable sources. Many of these dyes have distinctive aromas which cling faintly but inmistakably to the finished tweeds in a pleasant reminder of their outdoor origin.

The various formulae for these dyes are family heirloom secrets, jealously guarded.

JUST BETWEEN US WOMEN

"The royal feast was done; the King
Sought some new sport to banish care,
And to his jester cried: "Sir Fool,
Kneel now, and make for us a prayer."
He bowed his read, and bent his knee
Upon the monarch's silken stool;
His pleading voice arose: "O Lord,
Be merciful to me, a fool!
"Earth bears no balsam for mistakes;
Men crown the knave, and scourge the tool
That did his will; but Thou O Lord,
Be merciful to me, a fool!"
The room was hushed; in silence rose
The King, and sought his gardens cool,
And walked apart, and murmured low,
Be merciful to me, a fool!"
—Edward Rowland Sill.

Dear Friends:

And aren't we all fools many times in our lives? Do we not all choose the husks, and let the good things go by?What I'll never understand is, how some get all puffed up by their own supposed reighteousness, and get proud and overbearing.

There isn't one of us, no matter how well we live, but falls short of the glory of God, so what have we to be proud about? Supposing we don't commit the same sins as some other, we commit others which may seem worse in the sight of our Maker.

And sometimes, the ones whom the world condemns show more charity, more loving kindness, more understanding, than all the pious ones put together.

After all, had we been born in their environment, and had their nature to battle with, their chances, their temptations, do you think we would have done any better? I doubt it.

We see the mistakes, but we don't see the fight that was put up by them before they fell. Neither do we see the bitter remorse they suffer, nor the feeling of degradation.

And so, when you feel like condemning another, stop long enought to say, "Be merciful to me, a fool!" Think of the many times you HAVE been a fool, and you will shut your mouth.

Think again of some way you could help them to regain what they have lost, for remember, "Not everyone who sayeth unto me, "Lord, Lord," shall enter into the kingdom of heaven, but he that doeth the will of my Father, who is in heaven."

And don't let anyone tell you there is no heaven, FOR THERE IS. Some will tell you that the kingdom of heaven is within you. Okay. But never forget our Lord told us, "In My Father's house are many mansions."

Just as we have our own separate homes here, so will we have them there, IF we do the will of God to those around us. Just as our Lord rose up before His disciples and disappeared from their view towards the sky, so shall we rise up likewise, if we do our part.

My heart goes out in sympathy to what is termed fallen women, for I know that most of them fell at first for love of another. And if they were fools for love we also have been fools in many other ways, and with less cause.

Many's the one whom the world has crowned, will find the fools ahead of them at the last.

Your Friend,
ROBERTA.

Mothers! Treat Children's Colds This Proved Way

More mothers use VapoRub than any other medication of its kind—they have proved it by use in their own homes. It was further proved in the world's largest colds-clinic. No "dosing"—just massage VapoRub on throat, chest, and back at bedtime. Almost at once, its poultice-and-vapor action starts to loosen phlegm, relieve irritation and coughing, help break local congestion. Often, by morning the worst of the cold is over.

CHAPTER 32.

It was good to be home with my father, Aunt Mary and my grandmother, to feel their affection and their delight in my presence. I was hungry, too, after my long abstinence, for I had eaten nothing on the train, and I was glad of the hearty food. Remembering my tastes, Aunt Mary had provided creamed codfish and baked potatoes, and there was a rich dark cake with fruit in it, soda biscuits with hot maple syrup to eat on them, and a great dish of cottage cheese.

I thought of the feast at Olga's—only one night between. People of two world's! What would Mimi think of this? Would she shudder and draw back? "I hate attics," echoed in my ears. Would she see the homely charm of my father's house, the warmth, the light, the loveliness of that simple grace?

Aunt Mary's eager questions drew me out.

I told them something of the ball.

"And did you dance, Jerry?" my grandmother asked.

"Of course he danced, Mother," Aunt Mary said, "why shouldn't he?"

"Well, you never danced, Mary, nor Stephen."

Across the table I saw my father's glance meet Aunt Mary's. And their eyes danced as their feet might have done had they been brought up under less severe discipline.

I told them about the banquet—of ices frozen in pink-rose forms, of rose-wreathed hats of spun sugar filled with bonbons, of salads served in pink paper cases, of lobster cooked with sherry, of oysters in pastry shells.

"It is all like a fairy tale," sighed Aunt Mary. "I should think this house would seem cramped and commonplace."

"I am glad to be here," I said with sincerity, "all of that life is hollow, artificial, I hate it."

She gave me a shrewd glance. She guessed, I think, the truth, that I had not found the life in St. Louis hollow and hateful until something had gone wrong with it for me.

When it was time for bed, my father showed me to my old room. It seemed to have shrunk in the time I had been away, and I missed the comforts of the great hotel—my bath, the warmth, the electric lighting. Yet I was glad of the silence and old associations—the little house seemed wrapped in peace. Before we separated for the night my father read from his shabby Bible, and in his prayer gave thanks for the return of his son.

When at last I was ready for bed, I opened my window wide to the night. I felt, now and then, a snowflake blow in, but I was covered up to my ears by the great quilts which my mother had made, and by a blanket which her own mother had woven. I liked the crisp coolness of the air in my face, and hoped that it might make me sleep. But my eyes would not shut—all the deadness and dullness which had weighed me down as I had traveled in the train flared up now in burning agony.

Mimi, Mimi, Mimi—was the unceasing reiteration—I had lost her, lost her, lost her . . . the wind seemed to howl it as it swept around the corners. I fought against a rising storm of emotion. I shook with dry sobs. At last the tears came. I lay there gripped by the awful despair of youth, which sees no hope ahead.

I do not know how long this mood lasted, but I was roused by a faint whirring sound. As I raised myself to listen, there was the tingling touch of cold fur against my hand. One of the black pussy-cats had found my open window and had sought shelter.

I lifted the edge of the upper quilt and she curled down in the warmth. Then she sang—a comforting, soothing song—it swept me back to my childhood when the grandmother of this very kitten had kept me company.

The howl of the wind died down, the whirring song ceased . . . and when I waked, the sky was clear and the sun shining.

I learned that my father and Aunt Mary were making many plans for Christmas. There was to be a tree in our barn, and the children of the church would go from house to house singing carols. I had never had a tree as a child. My mother had preserved the Puritan tradition. But my father and Aunt Mary were two of a kind. They felt that one might be good and merry. Sadness was not necessarily a sing of saintliness.

They included me in their plans. I was to be the Shepherd who first saw the Star, coming in with a lamb in my arms to tell the glad tidings. I was, too, to lead the little carollers from house to house.

As time went on, I found myself living two lives, an outer one in which I shared in the affairs and interests of the people of the parsonage, and an inner one in which I talked continually to Mimi, explaining my point of view, accusing, excusing, coming in the end to no conclusions, held back by my pride from writing to her, yet having moments when it seemed as if pride were nothing, and that love were the only thing.

So the weeks passed. Three of them. I did some writing in my father's little study in the church which he had occupied since my grandmother and aunt had been a part of his household. I worked there mornings, while he made his calls, and he occupied the study in the afternoon. We shared the tasks about the farm, and I must confess that there was something comforting to me in the serene animal life, the plump and confiding cows, the friendly little mare, the eager old watchdog, the affectionate pussy-cats.

I fed the chickens and the pigeons, tossed great forkfuls of hay and straw into the stalls, cleaned the snow from the walks, wore my old clothes, and came in ravenous, three times a day, to Aunt Mary's good meals.

I would sit in the kitchen and watch her cook. There were pre-Christmas preparations, and I helped her seed the raisins and chop the nuts. At night we popped corn on the hearth and sometimes made taffy.

Aunt Mary had the type of domesticity which makes a home of any house. Mentally keen, well-read, alert, she did not scorn the physical tasks which contributed to the order and beauty of her abode. It was this quality in her which helped me to sway level. She kept me busy, and I liked the busyness. I must confess that I went often very reluctantly to my writing, dreading the loneliness.

My father's study was a plain little place, warmed by a tight drum stove, in which wood had to be poked at regular intervals. There was a table on which stood my rented typewriter, and there were cases for my father's books. The window framed a vista of snowladen trees, backed by the bright sapphire of the lake.

The books in the cases were not all theological ones. There were the poets in blue and crimson and gold bindings. I read Browning, I remember, with new eyes. One had to live and suffer, I decided, to understand his "Men and Women." And I had lived and suffered.

If Males Want to Continue to Predominate in Business, the Arts and Skill, Then They Must Strive to Be Better Men Than Are the Women

DEAR MISS DIX—I am a business woman and, of course, am thrown with many men in my work. One of their favorite topics of lamentation is the pitiful state of the world since women got the vote. According to them, men are being deprived of all their economic, political and social rights because women are appropriating jobs, offices, salaries and the mastery of the home. It seems to me, as a middle-aged woman who would be glad to surrender job and her independence for a home, a husband a family, that if the conditions of woman's independence are so menacing to the world men ought to do something about it instead of merely crabbing. If women have pushed themselves up to a plane of equality with men, why don't men push themselves still higher to a plane of superiority? If men object to married women holding jobs, why don't they come to an understanding before marriage that their wives are not to combine homemaking with wage-earning? I believe that most women, for all their talk of equality, would like to feel that men are their superiors in wisdom, in strength and in high-mindedness. So if men are sincere in their regret for their lost position as lords and masters of the universe, the remedy is at hand. They have only to be supermen.

A WAGE-EARNER.

Answer:

Right you are, sister. Maybe it is traditional, maybe it is because God made 'em that way, but it is true that women want to look up to men and it is a blighting disappointment to them when men won't let them do it. Every woman wants to put her own man on a pedestal and burn incense at his feet, and when her little tin god tumbles off his perch and she sees that he is nothing but a fake—something that she has built up in her own imagination—it breaks her heart and fills her with shame for him, and for herself that she has loved so poor a thing.

Of course, when men blame women for everything that is wrong in this upset old world, it is merely an alibi for their own failures. For men are still running the Government and industry and women have a very small finger in the pie. We have no woman President. No woman at the head of the steel trust, or any automobile industry. No woman financiers running big banks. You don't hear the go-getters complaining about the competition of women. Joe Louis isn't worrying over any woman challenging him for the championship. The men who have the brains and wife rules the roost it is because she has more sense and wife rules the roost it is because she has more sense and initiative than her husband.

When men complain so bitterly about women working outside of the home they ignore two very important things: One is that a woman has just as much right to life, liberty and the pursuit of a job as they have. And, secondly, that mighty few women work for the love of it. They work because they need the money. There is nothing so alluring, exciting and amusing about pounding a typewriter all day, or standing behind a counter that would cause any sane woman to leave a comfortable home just for the diversion she got out of it.

Nearly every women would rather have a husband, a home and a baby than a job. When a girl goes to work she doesn't look forward to spending her whole life keeping books or selling blouses or whatnot. It is just a makeshift to carry her through the lean days until she gets a man to bring home the bacon. When, after marriage she continues to work, it is because her husband cannot make enough to support them in comfort, or because she feels that she can help him to get along faster by adding her earning power to his.

It is all just part of a new economic era, and if men want to dominate it they have got to show that they are better men that the women are.

• • • • •

DEAR MISS DIX—I am very much in love with a young man whose wife died less than a year after their marriage. Upon her deathbed she made him promise that he would not marry again. He feels bounds to keep this promise, although he loves me very much. We have now come to the place where we must marry or break, and he intends to go away and try to forget me. What should I do?

DESPERATE.

Answer:

It does not seem possible that in this practical and sophisticated age that any young man would let a promise, wrung out of him by the stress of a deathbed scene, wreck the happiness of his whole future life. So I am inclined to think that your Boy Friend doesn't want to marry you and is using that as a camouflage behind which he is making his getaway.

If, however, he in sincere in his protestations of affection and is giving you up because he promised his wife that he would not marry again, he is showing more sentiment than sense. He must know that such a promise is far better broken than kept, and that the sacrifice of the happiness of two lives should not be made on the altar of a superstition that there is something peculiarly sacred and binding in a promise made to the dead.

In fact, of all promises, they are the ones that there is the least reason to keep because, as a general thing, the dying are not in full possession of their faculties and do not realize what they are asking. Their requests are just the last flare-up of earthly selfishness and vanity, and it is tragic to think that these may impose a martyrdom upon others.

Surely it can add nothing to the bliss of a soul in heaven to know that because of a promise he or she wrung out of a loved one that a woman is spending her life in poverty and hard work and loneliness because she is bound by a promise not to marry and so has to turn away from the love and comfort some good man offers her; or some man is going through dreary years, companionless, homeless, childless because a wife bound him never to put another in her place. Such promises should never be made or kept.

"The Authority on Authorities"

EXTENDING THE COUNT

YOUR READING of certain suits in an opponent's hand can be extended to give you a count of his other suits. If perchance he leads against no trump from what is clearly a four-carder, you can generally feel pretty sure he has no five-card suit. Should he then disclose a singleton in a second suit, the betting is two to one that in the remaining suits he has four cards each.

(Dealer: East. North-South vulnerable.)

The final contract reached on this deal by North and South was 7-No Trumps. South started with 1-Club, North bid 2-Hearts, South 3-Clubs, North 3-Hearts, South 4-No Trumps, North 5-No Trumps and South 7-No Trumps.

Against this contract West led the diamond 7, which was won in the dummy with the 10. Three more rounds of diamonds were cashed and the club suit then tried, West showed out on the second round, so that the declarer's success then depended on the heart suit.

Arthur Butler of Jersey City was the declarer. When he started on the heart suit he cashed the K and then finessed the 10. As the remaining tricks were his, he laid down his hand.

West accused him of making a lucky finesse, but Mr. Butler assured him there was no guess to the hand, as West had led from a four-card diamond suit and held only one club. Reading him therefore for four cards in each of the majors, he played East for only one heart. His deductions proved correct.

UNSETTLED AND disturbed conditions may be forecast from the day's ruling planetary aspects. While the element of romance and adventure, with the urge for new places, experience and personal contacts, may have a beneficial outcome, yet there are subtle dangers, delays, obstacles and probably a bereavement to be reckoned with.

Those whose birthday it is are at the threshold of a year in which the new, the untried and the experimental in intellectual, business and private lives attract.

A child born on this day may be restless, sensitive and high-strung, with urges for the unusual, the novel, radical and probably the occult in science, religion and mental and social faculties. It should be successful and probably will attain conspicuous place if its restive and subtle nature is directed.

BEDTIME STORY

By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY'S POPCORN BALLS

(By Howard R. Garis.)

"Oh, dear!" said Baby Bunty.

"Oh, dear!" said Jangle.

"Oh, dear!" said Jingle.

"Whatever is the matter?" asked Nurse Jan Fuzzy Wuzzy. For the three little rabbit girls in Uncle Wiggily's hollow stump bungalow were rubbing their ping noses quite flat against the window glass.

"Why are you so sad?" asked the muskrat lady housekeeper.

"Because it is raining," said Baby Bunty.

"And we can't go out and play," said Jingle.

"And so on Monday we have to go back to school," said Jangle. "The Christmas holidays are over."

Poor Dears.

"You ought to be glad to go back to school," said Nurse Jane.

"And study hard lessons?" asked Jingle. "No! No!"

"They aren't so hard," said Miss Fuzzy Wuzzy.

"Should we be glad that it's raining?" asked Baby Bunty making her pink nose squeak louder than ever on the window glass.

"Well, maybe not that," said the muskrat lady housekeeper. "Oh, you poor dear!" she laughed when she saw how sad they looked. "I will ask Uncle Wiggily to make some fun for you."

"Uncle Wiggily will probably not be going out because of the rain," said Nurse Jane, "so I'm sure he will make some fun."

"Of course, I will make some funnies for my little bunnies!" said Mr. Longears when Nurse Jane asked him. "Let me see now, what shall it be? How about some popcorn ball fun?" he asked.

"I can't play ball very well," said Baby Bunty, the orphan rabbit.

"You don't have to play with these balls, you eat them," said Uncle Wiggily. "Well, come out to the kitchen. May we pop some corn on your stove, Nurse Jane?"

"Why, certainly," answered Miss Fuzzy Wuzzy.

Uncle Wiggily had some ears of popcorn in his cellar with the apples, where Mr. Twistytail had sat on the Bob Cat. In a little while Mr. Longears, with the help of the rabbit children, had popped a large pan full of the snowy white kernals of popped corn.

"But I don't see any balls," said Baby Bunty.

Tells How.

"We shall make them," her uncle told her. He melted some sugar until it was very sticky. Then Uncle Wiggily poured the sticky, melted sugar over the pan of white popcorn.

"Put some butter on your paws so the sugar kernels won't stick to them, and then mold the popcorn into balls," said Uncle Wiggily, showing the little rabbits how to do it.

Soon the table was covered with sweet, white balls that looked exactly like snowballs. The balls were made of sugared popcorn.

"Oh, how good they taste! said Baby Buty, chewing one.

"Lovely!" said Jingle and Jangle, and they didn't make squeaky noises with their pink noses on the window glass now. They were happy

Into the kitchen hopped Buster, Custer and Duster, boy rabbits.

"Oh, let's have a snowball fight!" cried Buster, not knowing about the popcorn balls. He picked up one to throw but when he touched it he knew it was good to eat so he put it in his mouth. The other rabbit boys did the same thing. The rainy day was forgotten.

And if the bedspread doesn't go to sleep on the clothes line and fall off into the bird bath I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggilys funny skates.

FREE RADIO SHOWS IN MONTREAL KILL PICTURE BUSINESS

Records at CKAC, CHLP, and CFCF show approximately 250,000 admissions to studio shows during the past 12 months, with more than four times that number of people turned away through lack of seating facilities.

This indicates a potention draw of 1,000,000 a year which the studios are trying to accommodate through rapidly expanding hall and theatre facilities.

While local theatre men refuse to admit that radio shows are cutting in to any great extent there is little doubt but that local picture houses are feeling the draft at the b.o.

With about 99 per cent. of all studio productions in the French language and all free of charge, the entire eastern section of the city of Montreal, about 98 per cent. French-speaking, is turning more toward studio shows in French and away from pictures in English.

Sponsors have discontinued the practice of having customers call for tickets to studio shows. One local furniture house was mobbed by thousands of hysterical women clamoring for free tickets, with damage to store fixtures and goods resulting. Several women fainted and order restored only after police reserves were called out.

Applications for tickets are now received only through the mails. Other sponsors have requested stations not to announce free studio shows over the air.

Dan Beddoe, oratorio tenor, died at the home of his son in New York. His age was 74. Mr. Beddoe, who retired in 1935 after he had been injured in an automobile accident in Cincinnati, was before the public for more than 50 years, and was said to have sung with every major orchestra and choral society in Great Britain and the United States.

James Cagney Ends Feud With Warners

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 6—(AP).—James Cagney ended his feud with Warner Brothers Tuesday and will return to the studio where he gained fame as an extremely hard-fisted young man of the screen.

At the instance of attorneys for Cagney and the studio, the Supreme court in San Francisco Monday reversed the Los Angeles Superior Court decision which cancelled the actor's contract with Warners.

Miss Ruth Etting Retiring At Height Of Musical Career

Ruth Etting is one person who has followed through carefully, and to the letter, the carefully planned life. Many years ago she mapped her career out for herself, following and shaping every step according to a preconceived pattern. Last week Ruth Etting made the final step in that planned career when she quietly but deliberately destroyed every piece of music she owned, her entire set of press books and clippings, all her theatrical pictures, gave away her stage wardrobe and completely divested herself of everything connected with show business.

That this step was taken following her divorce from Col. Martin (Moe) Snyder is incidental. The show business career of Ruth Etting has come to an end, and at the sole wish and desire of Miss Etting herself. It is a step coming as Miss Etting wished it to; for she was far from washed up in show business. Her earning potentialities in show business today would run to $150,000-$200,000 annually. But Miss Etting has turned her back to all that. She is retiring. Retiring, because that is how she planned it many years ago.

She always said when she had reached a certain peak in show business, a peak which she thought was her pinnacle of success in the business, she would quit. Included in that goal was the assured income she sought. She has acquired that assured income, which is still another factor in her determination to remove herself quietly but completely from the theatrical world.

Personality Of Air

GERTRUDE NIESEN

Gertrude Niesen, termed the "exotic personality of the airlanes", was born on a Norwegian vessel on the high seas. Educated in New York schools, she eventually attracted the attention of Romo Romani, voice teacher of Rosa Ponselle. Following a year's interlude from her voice culture she discovered that her soprano voice had changed to contralto, ideally suited to modern jazz melodies. Gertrude Niesen made her radio debut with Rudy Vallee and has appeared in the leading singing roles in "Vagabond King", "Sonny" and "Good News".

Birth Of A Nation As Talkie Picture

HOLLYWOOD, Jan 6.—A picture that made stars of Lillian Gish, Mae Marsh and Henry B. Walthall back in the silent film days and broke all box office records even up to the present day is to be remade. Based on Thomas Dixon's 'The Clansman,' the great civil war drama 'The Birth of a Nation' will go into production in New York shortly.

David Wark Griffith, who produced this greatest of all silent pictures, is being financed by eastern capital. Wally Ford, whose success in "Old Mice and Men" on the New York stage has made his Hollywood friends very happy, will play the role of the Little Colonel which made Henry B. Walthall famous.

HOLLYWOOD

The Virginia Bruce-J. Walter Ruben honeymoon was confined to California. They went to Palm Springs for a few days, to San Francisco for a week and finally to Yosemite for the winter sports. Their steamer reservations are cancelled until next summer.

Biggest smile on the M. G. M. lot belongs to Lulu, the negro woman who delivers the mail to the stars' dressing rooms.

She got a Christmas card from Garbo.

It came from Sweden in a black envelope addressed in white ink. The card was white, carrying the picture of a silver Christmas tree for ornament, and the initials G. G. in one corner.

If Ditrich makes that picture for Parmount (rumor says she won't), they'll have to pay her $250,000... Dave Rubinoff and Dorothy Ates are a new twosome around town... Carole Lombard's secretary, Fieldsie, is scared much worse than Carole over the chickenpox threat. She has never had it. . . . Nice thought of Clara Bow's and Rex Bell's. They persuaded the Central Casting Bureau to send 150 children from the families of needy actors to have a New Year's dinner at the "It" cafe . . . Incidentally, Gordon Kibbee, nephew of Guy, is to bang the keys of this spot's new electric organ . . . And, if you don't want to have grief, never open a restaurant. The Hawaiian Paradise had to redecorate its Christmas tree four times. Customers swiped the ornaments as souvenirs.

Seems only yesterday that Mitzi Green was a ragtag youngster playing at R-K-O in "Little Orphan Annie." Now she's come back to the same studio wrapped in ermine. Pandro Berman says R-K-O will spend $15,000 on Mitzi's wardrobe for "Fiddlesticks." And this doesn't count expensive items like fur coats that will be rented.

The mischievous kid has grown up and is the toast of Broadway.

Nobody thinks of Pat O'Brien as a great lover, but his letters to his wife, Eloise, during their courtship, are so eloquent that a national weekly will weaves them into a short story. Item will hit the news stands in an early issue.

The film crowd howled at the preview of "Hollywood Hotel," when Dick Powell walked into a dazzling, ornate lobby. Many of the celebs had lived at the historic hostelry and all were familiar with its old-fashioned interior.

That laugh is to have results. Joseph McLellan, manager of the hotel, was in the audience, and has just announced that the entrance to the Hollywood will be remodelled to look like the one in the picture. No attempt will be made to duplicate the lobby because that would cost a fortune.

A honeymoon trailer seemed like a good idea at the time, but Gipsy Rose Lee has had nothing but grief with the vehicle since. They wouldn't let her bring it into New York, so she had to store it in New Jersey. After she returned to Hollywood, her husband hired a driver to bring the trailer to the coast. Gipsy has no room for it in the garage of her Beverly home, so she has been leaving it on the street. No wthe cops object to this and the actress will have to move to a house with a bigger garage unless Twentieth Century-Fox takes pity and lets her store her white-elephant-on-wheels at the studio.

Christmas cards to Hollywood stars set an all-time record this year. During the five days before Christmas, almost 57,000 cards passed through the mail room at one studio, MGM. Of all the players on the lot, Jeanette MacDonald received the most cards from foreign countries.

For, if memory serves, that has been his character name in "Naughty Marietta," "Rose Marie," "Maytime" and "Rosalie."

Most of the year, Hollywood's stock question, when two people meet, is "What's new?" In December it became, 'How's Santa Claus going to treat you?" or "What do you want for Christmas?"

We heard an extra asked the last question out at Twentieth Century-Fox. His reply, it seems to us, had more than a little pathos.

He said: "I want a stunt man's cheque and some dialogoue to speak in a picture."

Simone Simon's vocalizing in "Love and Hisses" has won a studio contract for her voice teacher, Mme. Elizabeth Alexander Major . . . After holding out all these years, George Raft is finally building a home. It's in Coldwater canyon and the star moves in next month . . . Shirley Ross' Christmas present to Fiance Eddie Anderson was a typewriter. . . . They still won't set the date of their marriage. . . . Constance Talmadge and Walter Giblin were a twosome at the Cafe Lamaze. . . . Ditto Peggy Hopkins, Joyce and Bill Davies . . . Gladys George and Leonard Penn won't get that New York trip after all. They'll compromise on a vacation in Reno—together. . . . And Clare Dodd, separated from her rich husband, is heading for Broadway, they say, to do a play.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Jan. 6.—Two of Hollywood's most interesting visitors are the Count and Countess of Castelbarco who arrived here Monday. He is the world famous artist and she is the daughter of Artruro Toscanini, world's foremost conductor.

A brilliant woman, she was the guest of the Max Reinhardts in Salzburg last summer. The countess has confided in friends that while here she will look into several movie offers for her distinguished father.

Interesting because Toscanini has steadfastly refused all overtures to appear in motion pictures. But with Stokowski's success and the continued proof that Hollywood is able to do justice to classical music, don't be surprised if he relents.

Efforts will also be made to get Toscanini to conduct at the Philharmonic. Grace Moore and Gladys Swarthout entertained at a New Year's Eve party in honor of the Castelbarcos and the George Schlees.

WELL, THAT'S THAT.

Two rumors in Germany have just been heftily denied in the local press. Report was that Marlene Dietrich had become an American citizen and had signed papers agreeing to help the Red Spanish cause with donations.

In addition to stamping out the tittle-tattle, the German press goes on to say that the star's films are to be imported just as usual.

'CRIME' PAYS MORRIS.

Chester Morris is to be co-featured with Anne Shirley in 'Crime' at RKO as his initial assignment under a new playing termer.

Eduardo Ciancelli plays the heavy, with Lew Landers directing and Robert Sisk producing.

PLACES, PLEASE.

RKO placed 'Joy of Loving' in work recently with Felix Young producing. Tay Garnetti directing and Irene Dunn topping the cast. Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., has the male lead.

Guy Kibbee and Alice Brady have featured roles.

MAD ABOUT MUSIC.

With completion of 'An Old Straw Hat' for 20th-Fox last week, Mack Gordon and Harry Revel brought their record to 156 songs in the last three years, an average of one a week which the cleffers suspect is some kind of a record.

THE GAY GARBO.

Chatter in Hollywood: A letter from Paul Muni reveals a story about Greta Garbo that will surprise Hollywood who knows her only as a recluse and a very "stand-offish" person. Seems that Paul and Mrs. Muni were attending the opera in Stockholm when they suddenly came face to face with Garbo and her brother.

The two stars naturally recognized one another immediately, though Paul writes he was afraid to show any sign of acknowledgment because of Garbo's reputed aloofness. But imagine his surprise when she came over to them, introduced her brother and went into raves over his performance in "Zola." What's more, she stood laughing and talking for several minutes and seemed in the best of spirits.

BROADWAY BILL.

William Anthony McGuire wasn't fooling about wanting to get out of his Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer contract and go back to show producing on Broadway. Though Bill is busier than the proverbial cranberry merchant getting "Girl of the Golden West" finished, he's still found time to write the first draft of a musical titled "Floradora Girl of 1938."

He will produce it on Broadway on a lavish scale, a la the old Ziegfeld shows. If the Jeanette MacDonald-Nelson Eddy picture is finished as expected right after the 1st, Bill will be on his way back to the Great White Way no later than January 15.

Honored By King

Among those listed in the New Year's honors list of King George VI, was Garcie Fields (ABOVE), famous British screen star, who was awarded the Order of the British Empire.

Plays Matron Role

BESS JOHNSON

Bess Johnson, radio actress, plays the role of matron in the radio drama, "Hilltop House". A talented actress, Miss Johnson has the combined abilities of a producer and director, and has a thorough technical knowledge of radio engineering. Born in Keyser, W.Va., of theatrical parents, her actual stage career began in Elkins, W.Va., where she played benefit performances as a child. Miss Johnson made her national radio debut in 1930 and since that time has appeared in over 400 broadcasts. She has a nine-year-old daughter, Jane Orr Perry.

Wells Fargo

Cast—Joel McCrea, Bob Burns, Frances Dee, Lloyd Nolan, Porter Hall, Ralph Morgan, Mary Nash, Robert Cummings, Henry O'Neil, John Mack Brown, Jane Dewey.

One year ago Paramount banged thorugh with a b.o. bonanza for the holdays in "The Plainsman." Reaching back into an American era, but shortly before, and once again lifting to life on the screen another slice of the history of the colonizing and absorption of the west. Paramount has a very fitting follow-up in "Wells Fargo."

Production is lavish, and nicely catches what would seem very authentic likenesses of early Frisco, mining camps, western plains and a fine tussle between a wagon train and Confed cavalry troops flavor up the footage.

McCrea gives a better, more seasoned performance than he has in a long time; if not his peak pic turn-in, it's cuff-to-sleeve close to it. Miss Dee (Mrs. McCrea in real life, as well as reel, in this instance) comes through more appearingly than she has since 'Little Women.'

Bob Burns hasn't too-terrif lines as a buckskin — grabed western-plains' wanderleg, but they knit into the yarn neatly. His every roll up before the lens is smartly timed to alleviate the heavy historian with his homey, hoky humor. It's not his film, and not a comedy; as a subordinate player he's fine and butters his role up fine.

Henry O'Neill is good; as a minor heavy who fades out soon, Lloyd Nolan and Porter Hall do their habitual types o.k. Ralph Morgan is himself as the sympathetic, gentle southern father of Miss Dee; Mary Nash is the very acme of acidity as the severe, drawn-faced mother who dislikes her son-in-law. John Mack Brown, Robert Cummings and Jane Dewey are well spotted in small parts.

Frank Lloyd's direction goes right in up to the hilt on welding the historical values and fictional phases of 'Wells Fargo' to a veneer smoothness. Though the pic won't be acclaimed as were his 'Mutiny on Bounty' and 'Cavalcade,' there won't be any tarnish dinged by the pic on the escutcheon he earned through those earlier efforts.—Variety.

Takes Screen Test

Elizabeth McDuffie, colored cook from the White House in Washington, has just taken a Hollywood screen test with the possibility that she may take part in an important forthcoming picture.

DON'T WEAR HATS THAT ARE DARING

NEW YORK, Jan. 6—(CP)—When Orry Kelly, Hollywood dress designer, gets a certain annuity paid up and feels independent about things, he is going to write a book naming the world's worst-dressed women.

The work will be called "Women I Have Undressed," Kelly confided during a recent visit here. He seemed more than a little exasperated at Hollywood vagaries but then, he explained, he'd just finished supplying an actress with 28 changes of dress for a single picture.

"Look at that girl there," said Kelly, pointing out a young woman in a swanky restaurant. "She is a well-known screen player. Yet she will never be well dressed. Look at that hat."

The hat he referred to resembled a large black biscuit, surmounted by a cone, spangled, and with a coarse veil pendant.

"She might just as well have worn an aviator's beacon light, for what she really wanted to do was attract attention," Kelly observed. "A hat should never be made, daring, exciting or amusing.

The best-dressed women are those of limited means, the designer said. Women who have too much money could buy so many clothes they sometimes wore garish things "just for a gag." Here is his advice to women who have limited funds, yet wish to dress modishly:

"Wear subdued colors. Buy fewer dresses, but get better fabrics. Pay more for accessories than for dresses. Purchase clothing to bring out your coloring. Be sure you buy good shoes. You do not need a great number of hats."

He explained that if a woman has only funds for one fur she should never buy a red fox cape. It would be too prominent and people would say: "Here comes Mamie in that red fox again."

NOT A DULL MOMENT

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 6.—Mishaps in production of 'The Old Barn Dance' at Republic on successive days have resulted in a dozen or so injuries, starting in a free-for-all fist-swinging and furniture-pitching melee from which Gene Autry, the star, emerged with a severely wrenched arm and Robert Hoag, musician-actor, suffered a broken leg. Several others were injured.

Next day a buckboard broke, tossing out Fred Burns, actor, whose foot was stepped on by a horse. Two horses collided and one of them smashed Bill Cowdrey's foot. Same day 40 range horses stampered and all the cowboys on the lot were needed to round them up after cops called in had failed.

ENGAGEMENT

Mr. and Mrs. George Davis, 387 Rogers street, announce the engagement of their daughter, Phyllis Margaret, to John Thomas, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Wolstenholme, 532 Bolivar street. The wedding to take place late in January.

MARRIED

STENNING—ROSBOROUGH. — At Ottawa, January 3, 1938, Marjorie Jane Rosborough, younger daughter of Mrs. B. Parliament of Little Britain, and the late Sherman Rosborough, to Thomas Joseph Stenning, oldest son of Mr. and Mrs. George Payton of Toronto.

DIED

SANDERSON, Edward Alexander. — At Nicholls Hospital, January 5, following an illness of one month, Edward Alexander Sanderson of Smith Township, on the Chemong Road, in his 76th year. Funeral Friday, January 7, 2.30 p.m., from the Nisbett Funeral Home to Little Lake Cemetery.

LUCAS, Mrs. Stanley.—On January 6, 1938, at Nicholls Hospital, Pearl McClure, the beloved wife of Stanley Lucas, 9 Dumble Avenue, in her 28th year. Funeral from D. Belleghem and Son's Funeral Home on Saturday at 2 p.m., with the Rev. M. C. Parr officiating. Interment at Lakefield Cemetery.

IN MEMORIAM

GRIEVES.—In loving memory of my dear Husband, James Robert Grieves, who passed away January 6, 1932.
Worthy of remembrance
In the land where the roses never fade;
Where no sin, neither sorrow can invade,
We shall meet our loved ones there
And eternal glory share
In the land where the roses never fade.
—Sadly missed by Wife and Family.

QUINLAN. — In loving memory of Patrick Quinlan, beloved husband of Bridget Quinlan, who passed away January 6 one year ago.
You're not forgotten, father, dear,
Nor ever shall you be;
As long as life and memory last
I shall remember thee.
—Ever remembered by Wife and Family.

FERGUSON.—In loving memory of May Eva Medd, beloved wife of the late Alexander G. Ferguson, who died two years ago to-day.
Two years have passed and gone
Since one we loved so well
Was taken from our home on earth
With Jesus Christ to dwell.
The flower we place upon her grave
May wither and decay,
But the love for her who sleeps beneath
Shall never fade away.
—Ever remembered by her Son, Daughter-in-law, and Grandson, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Ferguson, and Donald.

CARD OF THANKS

Miss Jean Wright, 316 Bethune street, wishes to thank her many friends, also the attending doctors and nurses at Nicholls Hospital, for their kindness during her recent illness.

New Church Head

Royal Family

ALBERTA URGED TO "LOOK WEST"

EDMONTON, Jan. 6 (CP).—E. L. Gray, Alberta Liberal party leader, said Alberta should "look west" if the province was "thinking of a union of provinces" as he urged development of a "western viewpoint."

Mr. Gray referred in an address last night at a joint meeting of the Edmonton Young Men's Liberal Association and the Twentieth Century Club, to recent statements by Premier Duplessis of Quebec and Premier Hepburn of Ontario regarding Dominion-provincial relations.

Declaring he did not doubt the sincerity of the two men, Mr. Gray said their statements probably had been "exaggerated to some extent in being repeated," but a definite lesson had been provided for Alberta.

"If Alberta is thinking of a union of provinces, it had better start to look west for those connections," the Liberal party leader said.

"We have been looking to Ontario and Quebec as our source of contact for goods. Yet right to the west of us is an area just as rich in power and natural resources as in the east producing only seven per cent of the total."

"It seems necessary to look to the Pacific coast and development there to build up a western viewpoint," he said.

REPRESENTING U.S. IN BERLIN HOPELESS TASK

Dodd Despairs of Peace Explaining Resignation

NEW YORK, Jan. 7 (A.P.). — Dr. William E. Dodd, back in the United States after quitting his post as Ambassador to Germany, said today he found it "a hopeless task" to represent this country in Berlin, and asserted he despaired of the prospects for world peace. He said a world war was the "logical outcome" of vast war preparations.

An unexpected statement by the former Chicago University historian, in a prepared declaration of his reasons for resigning, was the assertion that "many eminent Germans" approved of his refusal to attend Nazi conferences "where democracy was ridiculed and attacked."

When asked who these notable Germas were, he said:

"Do you want them put into jail? I can only say there were many of them."

"In a single country"—his son said the Ambassador meant Germany—"1,600 professors and teachers in High Schools have been dismissed, the Rockefeller Foundation having given more than $500,000 to help the helpless."

POWERS TO CONFER ON JAP DEMANDS IN SETTLEMENT

LONDON, Jan. 7 (C.P. Cable. — The British, French, and United States Governments are to confer over the drastic Japanese demands on the International Settlement in Shanghai.

These demands, received in London officially only to-day, mean the Japanese hold on the International Settlement will be tightened. They are understood to include greater Japanese representation on the Municipal Council, which administers the International Settlement, more Japanese in the municipal departments, an increased number of Japanese police in the Settlement, and a Japanese Secretary-General of the Settlement.

The International Settlement has six miles of river front, which includes the central business area and the most modern factories in Shanghai.

Quotes Proof.

Great Britain rejects suggestions there is no written evidence to support the validity of the land regulations from which the Municipal Council of the International Settlement derives its authority. The land regulations, it is pointed out, were issued under joint minute of the Powers dated September 24, 1869. Among the signatories were the United States, Great Britain, France, and Germany.

The authority for the land regulations has been recognized on a number of occasions by the Chinese Government, especially by a proclamation in 1899 and more specifically in 1930. In the British view there can be no doubt whatever that the authority of the Municipal Council of the International Settlement rests upon a legal basis.

The land regulations themselves first were drawn up over the period between 1840 and 1850. Since then there have been a number of amendments.

Lampson Protests To King Carol

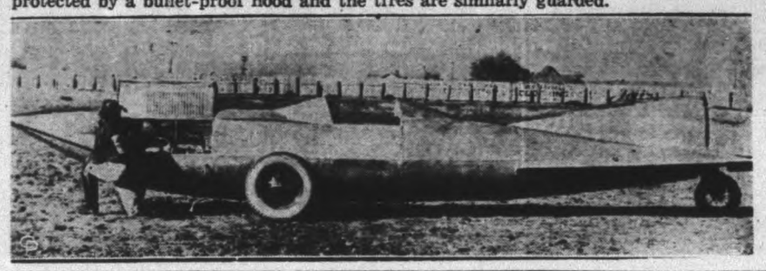
LONDON, Jan. 7 (AP) — Commander Oliver Locker - Lampson, who aided the Rumanian royal family when they were driven from Bucharest by the Germans during the Great War, cabled King Carol today protesting treatment of Jews under the new government of Octavian Goga.

Commander Locker - Lampson, Conservative member of parliament and former Lord Privy Seal, said Goga's action against minorities was "making it difficult for Englishmen to go on wearing Rumanian medals."

He called on King Carol to "restore those liberties in your land for which the armies of our two countries successfully combatted."

War Chariot

As slimly streamlined as the fuselage of an aeroplane is this "bullet car", the invention of Bill Clark, world war veteran and aero mechanic, of Enid, Okla. Designed for use in war, the car is constructed of metal throughout with two wheels in front, one at the back, which makes for fast maneuverability. Guns could be mounted in the pointed nose and, claims Inventor Clark, enemy bullets would glance off the streamlined sides. Pilot of the machine is protected by a bullet-proof hood and the tires are similarly guarded.



Jap Troops Beat Up 2 British Officers

Invade Britishers' Defence Zone Inside Shanghai As Victims Protest Rough Handling of Refugees

SHANGHAI, Jan. 7—(AP)—Major-General A. P. D. Telfer-Smollett, commanding British troops at Shanghai, protested today against an attack by Japanese soldiers on two British officers of the Shanghai Municipal Police.

General Telfer-Smollett accused Japanese armed forces of invading the British defence zone in the international settlement and was reported to have warned the Japanese military that repetition might "result in the gravest consequences."

A Japanese embassy spokesman, questioned concerning the attack, said "We have no information."

The officers had protested rough handling by Japanese soldiers of Chinese refugees, and the Nipponese had immediately attacked the pair, beating them severely.

50 TO GET COURSE IN MACHINE SHOP

TORONTO, Jan. 7 (CP)—Fifty unemployed Ontario youths will be given machine shop instruction at a school established by the Dominion-provincial youth training program at Galt starting Monday, it was announced today. Twenty boys have been accepted for the course while the others will enter the school when their qualifications have been passed.

The course will be under direction of A. Grant Malcolm, representative of the program at Galt. R. J. Pierce, vocational teacher, will conduct the courses, to end some time in March.

The boys attending the school will be paid a living allowance while learning the trade and will attend classes from 8 a.m. until 5 p.m. daily and from 8 a.m. until noon Saturdays.

The course will include general machine shop work, steel forge and lathe work, shaping, milling, drill pressing, acetylene welding and general bench work. Special instruction will be given in machine shop mathematics, blueprint reading and general academic work. To qualify the boys need not have earned their matriculation, officials said.

Argentina will restrict the importation of dogs and cats.

MAROONED MOTHER LOSES HER FIGHT

HALIFAX, Jan. 7 (CP). — Given medical aid after a mercy flight carried a doctor to her bedside in snow-cloaked Cape Breton, Mrs. Joseph McNeil, mother of a 12-day-old child, died after the plane took off on the return hop to Sydney.

In a telegram to Halifax newspapers, Rev. Paul MacNeil, Roman Catholic parish priest for St. Margaret's district, said the 28-year-old mother had died after she had been given a "fighting chance" by Dr. Philip Magonet, North Sydney physician, yesterday.

Father MacNeil said the community was "incensed over the situation" and he demanded a doctor be sent to the area "at once to forestall future incidents that might prove fatal."

Dr. P. S. Campbell, Nova Scotia medical officer, said the Health Department was negotiating with an unidentified doctor to go to the northern tip of the island.

Works Two Weeks Owes Employer

SUDBURY, Ont., Jan. 7.—(CP). —Jobs are available in bush camps of Northern Ontario "but try to make a living in any of them under the present system of piecework," James Bear, 21, Port Arthur, told Magistrate J. S. McKessock in police court to-day as he pleaded guilty to vagrancy. He was fined $1 without costs or three months in jail.

"I walked 32 miles in from White River to get a job in a lumber camp and after two weeks of back-breaking work in knee-deep snow they told me I owed them $1.32," Bear said. "That was after they deducted my board and other items from the money I had made."

REVENGE BLAST KILLS 3 CHILDREN INJURES MOTHER

ELIZABETHTOWN, Tenn., Jan. 7 (AP). — Three children were killed and their mother seriously injured today when dynamite wrecked their home near here.

Deputy Sheriff Roy Asher said officers were working on a theory the blast was the outgrowth of a slaying in 1936. A woman and three men were held for investigation.

The dead: Sonia Gouge, nine; Luena Gouge, seven, and Roma Jean Gouge, five. Mrs. Harmon Gouge, 34, was injured.

Harmon Gouge, 35, father and husband of the victims, was away at the time of the blast.

"There must have been a case of dynamite in the basement of the house," Asher said. "The explosion shattered the house and caved in the foundation."

Asher said Gouge is the self-confessed slayer of Arnold Tollett, killed in a filling station near here in October, 1936. Asher said Gouge is awaiting trial and is at liberty under $10,000 bond.

The deputy withheld the names of the suspects, but said two of those held are relatives of Tollett.

SETTLES HIS BET BY SOMERSAULTS

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 7.—Winter time may not be the time to turn outdoor somersaults, nor is Front Street the most comfortable place to practice this recreation, but nevertheless that is just what Marcus Rapport did at seven o'clock Thursday evening when he paid an election bet made with Vic Cubitt before the municipal election on Monday last. Marc did this stunt from the corner of Bridge and Front Streets to the Hollywood Theatre, and apart from being slightly upset he suffers no other ill effects from the ordeal.

Court Backs Lovers In Wedding Aims

VANCOUVER, Jan. 7 (CP)—Refused a marriage license, a young Saskatchewan couple carried their case into the Supreme Court of British Columbia—and won.

Mr. Justice A. I. Fisher yesterday granted Elfrieda Garnett of Fielding and Elmer Erickson of Paradise Hill sanction to obtain the license refused them at the license bureau here Wednesday because the girl was under age.

Sanction was given when it was explained the bride's parents had given their written consent but her father had failed to sign the document. Date of the marriage was not divulged.

GOES TO BELGIUM

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7—(AP)—President Roosevelt announced today Joseph E. Davies, United States ambassador to Russia, would be transferred and made ambassador to Belgium. The change will take place in the spring. Davies will succeed Hugh Gibson.

Five Jubilant Friends Fined $1 Each For Their Cheers

One of Justice's Greatest Victories, Says Ex-Broker As Jurors Return After 17 Hours of Pondering

TORONTO, Jan. 7—(CP)—Isaac W. C. Solloway, former head of Solloway, Mills and Company, brokerage firm was acquitted by a general sessions jury at 5:50 a.m. today of theft charges involving $2,144,740. The broker was discharged immediately, ending a 35-day trial that opened last November 15.

"You have been found not guilty," Judge Daniel O'Connell said in discharging the former broker. "There is nothing for me to do: You may go now."

Solloway termed the verdict "one of the greatest victories of British justice in Canadian history." He left the courtroom in which he had waited since 1 p.m. yesterday within a few minutes of the jury's return after shaking hands with the friends who had stood by him throughout the long night.

Cheers Draw Fines.

As the verdict was announced, a group of Solloway's friends who had remained in the courtroom almost constantly since yesterday morning clapped and cheered enthusiastically. Five of them, Bessie Martin, Margy Seaborn, Audrey Clarke, D. G. MacGregor, and George Dill, were singled out by the Judge and fined $1.00 each for disturbing the court.

The jury retired at 12.53 p.m. yesterday and counsel began a discussion concerning the Judge's charge. Later a message was sent to the jury ordering that deliberations be stopped. At 5 p.m. the jury was recalled and again charged by the Judge. The jurors were told not to consider charges of receiving "knowing the money to have been obtained by fraud." Only the theft charges then remained.

The jury retired again at 5.30.

Involving $2,144,740, the alleged thefts took place during the stock market collapse in 1929 and 1930. It was charged that Solloway accepted money from clients to buy stocks on margin and had not done so. Customers of Solloway, Mills & Company, which had offices

NORMAN ARMOUR TO LEAVE OTTAWA FOR POST IN CHILE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—(AP).—President Roosevelt named Joseph P. Kennedy, chairman of the Federal Maritime Commission, to-day to be United States' Ambassador to Great Britain. He will succeed the late Robert W. Bingham.

Nomination also was announced at Mr. Roosevelt's press conference of Norman H. Armour, present minister to Canada, to be Ambassador to Chile. He will replace Hoffman Philip, of this city, who recently retired. He also disclosed he had selected Joseph E. Davies, Ambassador to Russia, to be Ambassador to Belgium. Davies will succeed Hugh Gibson next spring.

The President also sent to the Senate to-day the appointment of Hugh R. Wilson, now Assistant Secretary of State, to be Ambassador to Germany. Wilson will take the place of William E. Dodd, who resigned last month.

Armour also has a long diplomatic record. Born in Brighton, England, in 1887, he took degrees at Princeton and Harvard and later practised law in New Jersey before entering the foreign service in the American Embassy at Vienna.

He has been Counsellor of Embassie at Tokyo and Paris and was Minister to Haiti five years ago. He was named Minister to Canada May 29,

Directing Troops

This photograph was taken behind the lines of the Loyalist troop emplacements near Teruel, Spain, and shows General Jose Miaja, Loyalist commander, directing artillery fire and infantry movements. The battle now taking place at Teruel is said to be the biggest thus far in the Spanish war and military experts believe it will play an important role in the outcome of the war.

Dynamite Rocks Hamilton In Railway Plot

Blast However Fails To Send 20-Ton Trolley Crashing On Homes Below

HAMILTON, Ont., Jan. 7.—(CP). —A man expert in the handling of expolsives was sought to-day as police investigated the dynamiting of a disused incline railway on Hamilton mountain.

Several families in homes nestling at the foot of the mountain in the western end of the city were endangered when an explosion rocked the district last night.

Police said they believed several sticks of dynamite had been placed against a 20-ton trolly car in an attempt to send it hurtling down 500 feet of inclined track upon the houses.

The heavy steel car was shifted six inches by the blast. Only three lines of cable remained intact after the explosion to prevent it plunging down the mountainside.

A building at the top of the track was damaged as the explosive blew up with a roar that was heard throughout the city. The steel trestle work buckled and the platform, built of heavy timbers, was splintered.

Preliminary investigation disclosed the charge had been firmly placed against the car and platform. Had the car broken loose it would have fallen directly upon the houses.

Fire Fails to Catch.

Police said only one experienced in handling explosive could have been responsible. A pile of charged papers and other inflammable material were found near the railway engine room and police said an effort apparently had been made to set fire to the structure.

The railway is known as the James street incline, a relic of the days when automobiles and other traffic were carried up the mountain side in trolley cars. The building of good roads forced it to cease operations, and yesterday it was listed for sale for $2,406 tax arrears.

Since the railway ceased operations, one trolley car has remained at the bottom of the steel track and another at the top. Thick wire cables hold the second car fast.

Prairie Marksmen Miss Magpies

Regina, Jan 7 (CP)

SASKATCHEWAN bird shooters missed the big prize game last summer, according to an announcement here that said only 81 of the 964 banded crows and magpies with a bounty on their heads were killed. As a result the Government prize list of $4,500 will pa; out only $300 for bands turned in.

DR. G. R. SCOTT IS RE-ELECTED HEAD OF SCHOOL BOARD

Dr. G. Raymore Scott was re-elected to chairmanship of the Board of Education at the inaugural meeting held Thursday evening.

Thanking his fellow members for the honor of being elected to the chair for another year, Dr. Scott remarked on the fine co-operation he had received in the past and asked for the same measure of assistance in the twelve months that lie ahead.

Secretary G. H. Thompson read a formal declaration from Returning Officer S. R. Armstrong before the meeting got down to the business of naming a chairman and striking standing committees, in which Mr. Armstrong officially announced that all members whose terms expired, had been re-elected by acclamation.

The Board decided to place appropriations of $975 in the estimates for books, maps and atlases for the Collegiate and Vocational School, and $750 for supplementary reading for the public schools.

The grant requested by Principal Dr. H. R. H. Kenner for the Collegiate was $175 in excess of a grant for similar purposes last year, while the amount asked by Inspector K. S. Wightman for the public schools was $500 more than last year.

Both Dr. Kenner and Inspector Wightman strongly urged the need of the monies for books, maps and atlases. Referring to the shortage of supplementary reading in the public schools, Inspector Wightman stated, "$750 is the minimum required to give each grade the books they need."

BOMBER SOUGHT BY 24 WARSHIPS AND 300 PLANES

Missing For Two Days On Secret Manoeuvres

SAN PEDRO, Calif., Jan. 7.—(AP). —Three hundred planes of the United States navy and 24 warships searched the seas between Santa Barbara and San Diego to-day for a giant service patrol bomber missing since Wednesday with seven men aboard.

Meantime, naval officials disclosed that Seth P. Hawkins, cadet attached to the Cruiser Chicago, fell from the rear cockpit seat of a light plane yesterday and disappeared into the Pacific 100 miles offshore.

The pilot, Aviation Cadet J. H. Mack, Jr., reported Hawkins' loss on his return to the fleet base here, but was unable to say whether a sudden downdraft had "bounced" him from the plane.

Confidence the missing patrol bomber would be found was expressed by Capt. Alva D. Bernhard, chief of staff to Rear Admiral Ernest J. King, commander of the aircraft scouting force.

"We believe the plane will be found," said Capt. Bernhard. "It is a flying boat, capable of landing in any kind of sea."

Aboard the 33,000 pound, twin engined seaplane, officers said, were emergency rations and a small still for converting ocean water into drinking water.

Secrecy shrouded activities of the missing plane, a member of the VP-7 squadron of patrol wing one, but it was reported engaged in bombing practice off Santa Barbara. Battleships had been in gunnery manoeuvres in that area.

JAMAICA STRIKE HURTS 34, JAILS 60

KINGSTON, Jamaica, Jan. 7 (C. P. Cable). — Machette-armed strikers on a big Jamaica sugar estate were under the eye of police reinforcements to-day after a day's rioting that sent 34 to hospital and almost twice that number to jail.

Ready for possible further trouble as the laborers stuck to demands for more pay, the 150 armed policemen were pitted against 1,400 negro employees of the huge plantation owned by Hon. R. Ehrenstein, whom the strikers ran off his own plantation yesterday to touch off the riots.

Discontent had been brewing for several days as the plantation workers' demands their tonnage rate on cut sugar cane be raised from 10 pence halfpenny (about 21 cents) to 2 shillings (48 cents). When Ehrenstein tried to pacify them, they forced him to leave the St. Thomas Parish district under an armed guard.

Armed with their razor-keen machettes and with clubs, the strikers refused to disperse when the first detachment of police arrived. In a clash between officers and about 200 demonstrators, most of the casualties and arrests resulted.

Gloucester Is Hit By $100,000 Fire

GLOUCESTER, Mass., Jan. 7 (A P)—Endangered by escaping illuminating gas, firemen waged a four hour battle early today before extinguishing a blaze in the Kerr block—a three storey business and storage structure—in the heart of the retail district. Fire Chief Homer R. Merchant estimated damage at $100,000.

The flames raced from the basement through the roof wrecking three floors of stored furniture and sweeping three women's wear shops and the offices of eight dentists and lawyers. The stock of a chain store, in an adjoining building, was damaged by water.

BENNETT TO VISIT KINGSTON

KINGSTON, Ont., Jan. 7—(CP) —It was announced today Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett, leader of the Dominion Conservative party, will be the guest of the Liberal-Conservative Association of Frontenac-Addington soon.

The date was not announced, but it will likely be shortly after the middle of the month. Arrangements are being made for a meeting in the riding at which the Conservative leader is to speak.

Army Of Organizers Follows Jap War Machine In China

Shape Shattered Shreds Of Society Into "New" Life Stamped "Made In Japan"

PEIPING, China, Jan. 7 (AP). — Behind the Japanese army in North China is mobilized a legion of organizers to gather the shattered remnants of Chinese society into a new life—with "made in Japan" stamped indelibly thereon.

These Japanese organizers, called "Warriors of Peace," form the "pacification and consolation corps." Their work constitutes one of the most concerted and best-organized efforts on record to reconstruct what an army has torn down, to re-establish business and develop conquered territory.

As soon as possible after an army captures a city, the organizers arrive, set up "pacification and consolation bureaux" and plaster the city with such posters as:

"Japan and China must co-operate to secure peace in East Asia."

"The Japanese army is fighting against corrupt war lords and Communism, not against the Chinese people."

"Northern Chinese are Northern Chinese."

The last is to tell conquered North China it will not become Japanese, Korean or part of Manchoukuo, but that it will not remain part of China ruled by the Nanking Government.

Barks Aid Thieves Make Escape

WINNIPEG, Jan. 7 (CP).—Well-intentioned Daisy, diminutive terrier, is really in the doghouse today as far as police are concerned, for Daisy aided safebreakers yesterday to escape from a suburban bank.

Alfred Care, Daisy's owner, heard queer noises from the bank adjoining his store. He telephoned police. Daisy also heard. With a vocal power unbelievably great, she barked.

The sound of her protests reached the crooks who fled, leaving a broken safe combination as the only sign of their labors. Suburban police of St. James arrived soon afterwards.

Toronto, Jan. 7 (CP)

THE best of all "howlers" he encountered during many years of school teaching was repeated in an address last night by Thornton Mustard of the Ontario Department of Education. The historical mixup follows:

"As Sir Walter Raleigh was passing one day along the streets of Coventry, he saw approaching a beautiful lady, unclothed, upon a white horse.

"Recognizing her at once as Queen Elizabeth, he removed his richly embroidered cloak and cast it about her shoulders, saying: 'Honi soit qui mal y pense,' meaning, 'Madam, thy need is greater than mine.'

"To which she replied graciously, 'Dieu et mon droit,' meaning, 'My God, you're right'."

Alberta Challenges Dominion Factum In Court Test

Province's Counsel Claims Parts Are Irrelevant To Issue At Stake

OTTAWA, Jan. 7 (CP)—Challenging the relevancy of parts of the Dominion government factum in the Canadian Supreme Court reference on Alberta legislation, the Alberta government will attempt to have large sections of the factum ruled out.

With 10 factums on file, the court record is complete and arguments will start Monday but the action of the Alberta government introduced a new aspect into the case.

Col. O. M. Biggar, chief counsel for Alberta, yesterday filed notice of intention to ask the court for direction on parts of the Dominion factum which he claims are irrelevant to the issue.

Alberta objects to sections in the Dominion factum dealing with the general Social Credit program of the provincial government and including quotations from writings of the founder of Social Credit, Major C. H. Douglas. By including them in the factum, the Dominion endeavored to show that the three bills referred to the court were part

Hopping Chickens 'Big Apple' Owner Free Of Fine For Cruelty

Chicago, Jan. 7 (AP)

CASEY Jones, 67, was hailed into court, along with his four educated chickens, on charges of disorderly conduct and cruelty to animals.

"Your honor, I raised these chickens myself, and I love them and am kind to them. I taught them all their tricks," Jones said.

Whereupon one hen danced the Big Apple and trucked and strutted before the court while others hopped over bars and through hoops to the rhythm of Jones' harmonica.

Judge Samuel Heller dismissed the charges.

Toronto Loan Firms To Give Accounting

Province Starts Clean-Up of Money-Lenders And "Shark" Charges By Issuing 7 Summonses

TORONTO, Jan. 7—(CP)—Seven Toronto loan companies must give an accounting next January 14 of their business activities, the first move in the Ontario attorney-general's department's announced intention of testing "the existing law concerning interest and money lenders."

Summonses returnable on that date against the seven concerns and their officers and employees were issued from the office of Cecil Snyder, K.C., yesterday. Mr. Snyder, chief counsel in the attorney-general's department, recently was appointed to investigate the "loan-shark" situation. In a 10-day investigation, he received more than 100 complaints against money-lending companies.

"Some courts have held that the extra charges levied by loan companies in excess of the maximum interest rate of 12 per cent. cannot be included as interest," Mr. Snyder said in announcing that the Department was instituting test prosecutions.

Claim Charges Excessive.

"In the cases to be heard arising out of this investigation, the Crown will contend that not only are the extra charges excessive but that they

Diver Lands On Seat Of Sunken Tractor

Saskatoon, Jan. 7 (CP)

LOWERED 55 feet into Lac la Ronge, about 200 miles north of Saskatoon, Henry Switzer, Saskatoon diver, landed right on the seat of a big caterpillar tractor he was seeking at the bottom of the lake. The tractor, owned by the R. D. Brooks Transportation Company, broke through the ice recently.

Switzer, employee of the R. J. Arrand Construction Company here, had his suit sent from Ontario. Twenty minutes after he had put on the suit, cables had been attached to the tractor to raise the five-ton machine to the surface.

ALBERTA PROTESTS DOMINION FACTUM

of a general illegal scheme to establish Social Credit in Alberta and that this was an encroachment on Dominion government jurisdiction.

The intention of the legislature has nothing to do with the bills before the court and the judges should not consider other Alberta legislation when passing judgment on the three bills before them, the Alberta counsel claims.

The three bills referred to the court to test their constitutionality concern taxation of banks, regulation of credit and newspapers. Federal government power to disallow provincial legislation and right of a lieutenant-governor to reserve assent are included in the reference.

10 Factums Filed

Four factums have been filed for the Alberta government, two for the Dominion government, one for the British Columbia government, one for the Alberta daily and weekly newspapers associations and one for the chartered banks.

The bank and the newspaper factums support the Dominion government's claim the three bills are unconstitutional. The credit regulation act seeks to establish provincial control over credit transactions which are necessarily incidental to banking, the banks factum said, and banking is under the exclusive jurisdiction of the federal government.

The banks contend the bank taxation measure is illegal because it imposes a tax which is indirect and provincial authority only includes direct taxation.

The Canadian daily and weekly newspapers' factum stated that the daily newspapers with their news-gathering association, The Canadian Press, constituted an 'interlocking and co-operative system extending across Canada and 'interference by a provincial legislature with newspapers in one province would injure the entire system.

The newspaper press is a national undertaking, the factum continued, and as such is within the jurisdiction of the federal government. The Canadian Press' leased wire system from coast to coast represents a means of communication between provinces comparable to telegraph, telephone and radio broadcasting which are under Dominion authority.

CHARGE RAILWAYS SEEKING TO TAX TRUCKS OFF ROAD

WINDSOR, Ont., Jan. 7 (C.P.).—Efforts being made by the Ontario Automotive Transportation Association to convince the Chevier Royal Commission on Tronsportation that outside interests are trying to tax truckers and transport operators "off the road" were explained in an address here last night by Morley J. Pape, Toronto, secretary of the association.

Speaking to approximately 75 transport operators and truck owners from the Counties of Essex, Lambton, and Kent, Mr. Pape, also secretary of the Dominion Association, said the meeting was one of six held last night throughout the Province in a fight against railways and other interests.

He charged railways with recommending to the Commission that a further tax be put on trucks. The taxes they propose, he said, would increase a tax of $348 on a truck to $954. Other types of trucks would be taxed proportionately.

In noting that the Commission had been asked to investigate subsidies granted trucking firms, Mr. Pape declared he had never heard of such a firm receiving any help from the Government. He accused the railways of receiving grants amounting to more than their value.

NAZIS JAIL, FINE JEWISH SHIP HEAD

HAMBURG, Germany, Jan. 7 (AP)—Arnold Bernstein, Jewish head of the Red Star and Arnold Bernstein Shipping Lines, who had been in jail 11 months, was sentenced today to 30 months in prison and a fine of 1,000,000 marks ($400,000) on charges of violating Germany's rigid foreign exchange laws.

Bernstein specifically was charged with having a New York secret account of $80,000 to $100,000 which was not declared to the Reichsbank June 1, 1933.

The shipowner declared the sum was for use in his shipping business, upon which United States creditors hold $5,000,000 in mortgages. He contended that in June, 1933, his New York agent had a lien of $96,000 against the lines.

The charges against Bernstein were treason and infringing upon the currency laws. The prosecution had demanded five years and a fine of $4,500,000 marks ($1,800,000).

One of Bernstein's associates, Berthold Gumpel, was sentenced to 30 months in jail and fined 615,000 marks ($264,000).

Albert Wolff was sentenced to 15 months and 50,000 marks fine ($20,000); Heinz Grunsfeld was sentenced to two months, but his sentence counted as already served. Robert Gottschalck and Rudolf Meyer were acquitted.

The Bernstein Lines now are operated by Marius Boeger, former director of the Hamburg American Line, under an agreement between the German authorities and foreign creditors."

ARAB 19, CONDEMNED

JERUSALEM, Jan. 7 (CP-Havas)—A court martial today condemned to death a 19-year-old Arab arrested while transporting a sackful of cartridges through the streets.

At Tel Aviv three young Jews were sentenced to serve three years in prison for attempting to steal £5,000 ($25,000) from a workers' bank for the purpose of increasing the funds of an extreme revisionist group.

The establishment of a new agricultural colony near Acre for the use of Jewish emigres from Germany was announced.

RARE GERMAN MEDAL

KITCHENER, Ont., Jan. 7 (C. P.). — M. Grant, formerly of the British Navy, prizes an unusual medal he took from a German naval officer. It was apparently struck to commemorate the sinking of the Lusitania. On one side is a sinking vessel and on the other the design shows people purchasing tickets from a figure representing death.

Peons Defy Mexico's Soldiers To Take Hotel

Peons are guarding the main entrance of the Agua Caliente hotel and are defying soldiers to oust them from the ultra fashionable gambling resort. Agua Caliente means "hot water" and there seems to be plenty of it here. The Mexican government claims the $10,000,000 pleasure resort for tired businessmen and playboys was abandoned by its American owners and proceeded to ex-propriate it for use in its socialization program. The peons regard seizure by the government as a blow to their hopes of the resort's re-opening, in which event there would be plenty of jobs.

Italy To Double Battleships And Add More Subs

Another Dozen Destroyers When Complete Will Bring Total To 56

ROME, Jan. 7 (AP)—Italy is to begin construction immediately of two 35,000-ton battleships, 12 destroyers and a number of submarines, it was announced officially today.

The new battleships will be named Roma and Impero and will be built in trieste and Genoa.

The specific number of submarines was not mentioned, the communique saying the total would be "important."

When construction is completed, Italy will have four capital ships of 35,000 tons and 56 destroyers. Italy's other pair of battleships, the Vittorio Vento and the iLttorio, were launched last summer.

Young English Girl Escapes Weidmann

VERSAILLES, France, Jan. 7 (CP-Havas).—A young Englishwoman's escape from the fate of Jean de Koven, American victim of Eugene Weidmann, the "killer of St. Cloud," was revealed today.

Examining Magistrate Georges Berry, investigating the German's correspondence, found a letter from Miss Helen Alam of Surrey, England, addressed to Weidmann in care of an agency.

Dated November 3, it was in reply to an invitation to join a muleback expedition across Iran.

CHORLEY PARK PROBLEM

TORONTO, Jan. 7 (CP)—The Ontario government will immediately tackle the problem of the disposition of Chorley Park and its contents, it was learned today.

Premier Hepburn accompanied by Hon. Colin Campbell, Minister of Public Works, and Hon. T. B. McQuesten, Minister of Highways, visited the vacant government house yesterday to inspect the premises. Already some of the furnishings have been removed to Queen's Park where they will be utilized in the new reception rooms.

LIQUOR FIRM FINED

TORONTO, Jan. 6 (C.P.).—Hiram Walker & Sons, Limited, Walkerville, Ont., were fined $1,000, and costs, by Magistrate A. L. Tinker to-day when in Police Court through counsel, Ward Wright, the distilling company pleaded guilty to a charge of advertising brands and prices of liquor, contrary to the Ontario Control Act.

The fine was paid as soon as the decision as to its amount was made by the court. The charge concerned a Christmas greeting folder.

LAST EXPRESS HORSES GO

MONTREAL, Jan. 7 (CP)—The last of a noble stable of prancing steeds has been sold to make way for the quicker, more effective truck.

Canadian Pacific Express Company officials said 18 horses, the last of a stable that once numbered 250, were sold this week and that 16 modern, stream-lined trucks had been purchased for delivery service in the city.

APPROVE NATIONAL PARK

GANANOQUE, Ont., Jan. 7 (CP)—Construction of a national park here in connection with the international bridge connecting Canada with the United States across the St. Lawrence River was unanimously aproved by a meeting of representatives from eastern Ontario here last night.

The bridge, stretching in two structures from Ivy Lea, 10 miles east of here, across the St. Lawrence to Collins Landing, N.Y., is expected to be completed in August, 1935. He is a resident of New Jersey.

Losses Plentiful Wall Street List

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—(AP).—Efforts to extend Thursday's rally met with opposition in to-day's stock market.

While early losses running to a point or so were reduced or converted into modest gains after noon, minus signs were plentiful near the final hour.

Inability of the list to continue its climb was attributed mainly to profit selling due to yesterday's sharp upturn. Volume was comparatively light. Transfers were about 1,100,000 shares.

Kennedy, 49-year-old native of Boston, has long been a close friend of the President. His was a colorful career in business as banker and corporation executive between his graduation from Harvard in 1912 until Mr. Roosevelt drafted him to organize the Securities Commission to regulate the stock market in 1934. He resigned in 1936 to return to private business, but was chosen early in 1937 to assume the difficult task of building up the merchant marine as Administrator of the new Subsidy Act.

One of the Roosevelt organizers in the 1932 pre-convention campaign and again in the 1936 campaign, Kennedy published a book entitled, "I Am For Roosevelt."

Davies was named to the Russian post more than a year ago when William C. Bullitt was transferred from Moscow to Paris. There had been rumors for some time that Davies, whose wife is the former Marjorie Post, was seeking a transfer.

Wilson is 52 and a diplomatic career man. After serving three years as chief of the Division of Current Information at the State Department, he was named Minister to Switzerland in 1927.

He was secretary of the conferences for Limitation of Armaments at Geneva from 1928 to 1930 and was a delegate to the General Disarmament Conference in London in 1932. He is a native of Evanston, Ill.

FULL DAY'S WORK

BRANTFORD, Ont., Jan. 7.—(C. P)—A full day's work for a full day's pay will be required of relief workers in Brantford township, according to a decision reached at the inaugural meeting of the township council. The council fathers authorized the foreman to discharge any workers who did not meet the requirement and further absolved the municipality from responsibility for the support of the families of workers so discharged."

PROBE SCHOOL FIRE

LONDON, Ont., Jan. 7 (CP) — Probe of the Delaware School fire is being continued with an inspector of the Ontario Fire Marshal's Department having joined Provincial Constable L. L. Shipley of Strathroy in the investigation. The fire, which broke out Christmas Day, destroyed the $35,000 structure.

JURIST RESIGNS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7—(AP)—Justice George Sutherland of the United States Supreme Court today notified President Roosevelt he would retire from active service on that bench on January 18.

Justice Sutherland refused to make any comment on his retirement. Friends said, however, that his action was based largely on his age.

The jurist was born in Buckingham, England, March 25, 1862 but was brought to this country when 15 months old.

PLANE TO FLY OUT PROSPECTING GANG HUNGRY IN BARRENS

COCHRANE, Ont., Jan. 7 (CP)—Eight prospectors staking claims in the barren lands about 500 miles north of here where James Bay meets Hudson Bay at Cape Jones were back in touch with civilization today, it was understood here.

News of the men who were flown into the district last summer came when Henry Norrington, Toronto, arrived at East Main, Hudson's Bay Company post and mission community.

Norrington had trekked through the snow about three weeks to cover the 200-mile stretch with two Eskimos. Tired after the long walk, but rugged from many years prospecting in the north, the only ill effect shown by the prospector was stomach trouble caused by scarcity of food and eating blubber and seal meat.

The party camped about 100 miles back of Cape Jones and staked claims. Last September as they were making their way out to civilization for the winter in a motor-powered boat about 50 feet long some rope tangled in the boat's propeller and the craft was wrecked.

Make Way To Post

The party was out of communication with the outside world but made their way to Great Whale where there was a Hudson's Bay Company post, it was understood. There was ample food but a restricted diet and the men had no fears for their safety.

Norrington finally decided to walk to East Main for help. When he arrived there A. E. Wicks, lumberman, offered his airplane to bring out the remaining seven men and Pilot Harold Smith, veteran northland flier, was to bring them to East Main yesterday.

The other members of the party besides Norrington were Murray Frank, Toronto, engineer in charge; Jack Wright, Toronto, Charles Doric, Don Merle, John Yelick and George Krankovich, Noranda, Que., and William Ewen, Mathewson, Ont.

EXPEDITION ASKS AID

GEORGETOWN, British Guiana, Jan. 7 (CP)—First direct word from the marooned expedition that entered the hinterland of British Guiana last month in a search for Paul Redfern, long-missing American aviator, was received today in the form of a delayed appeal to the party's Georgetown representative.

It came as a relief vessel left to rush provisions up the treacherous Cuyuni River to the four United States citizens, headed by J. T. Waldeck, stranded on Devil's Hole Island near the Venezuelan border.

WORTH LESS THAN $2.50

STRATFORD, Ont., Jan. 7 (CP)—A Stratford dog was worth less than $2.50—or so his owners thought. When the animal swallowed half of a $5 bill, police were called to destroy the dog and recover the currency. The piece of paper found in the dog's stomach contained the serial number of the bill so the owner will be able to redeem his five-spot.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

Wheat futures on Winnipeg Grain Exchange to-day sagged slightly following jarring upturns earlier this week. Profit-taking and adverse inter-market spreading sliced opening gains resulting in final quotations ⅛ higher to ¼ cent lower, May $1.28⅝, July $1.20⅜ to ½, and October 98⅝c.

Despite bullish appearance of Buenos Aires and Liverpool which prompted fair general buying at the opening to send futures a cent higher traders apparently could not resist opportunity of taking profit. Futures had climbed about 11 cents since December 31.

Exporters entered the pit for purchases of an estimated 200,000 bushels of Canadian wheat. Good sales of United States hard-winters to importers were reported. Nevertheless futures eased shortly after May touched $1.29¼.

Toronto Weakens In Late Trading

Toronto market price structur de-Toronto market price structures developed some weakness this afternoon and the close showed substantial losses in spots. Brazilian hit the skids for a two-point loss to around 11 and in the mines several junior golds slipped back under heavy offerings. Bidgood-Kirkland hit 26 and Stadacona backed up to 32, both off about 5 cents. Base Metals held narrowly to the upside while other groups closed lower.

Girl's Yearning For Education Results In Badly Frozen Foot

Hikes Ten Miles Into Cochrane To Attend School In Sarnia With Her Aunt

SARNIA, Ont., Jan. 7 (CP).—Dorothy Burr, a 13-year-old girl who puts her education before everything else—even if it did cost her a badly frozen foot—hobbled about today on crutches waiting for her foot to get better to enable her to enter school here.

Dorothy, who lived with her father and brother 10 miles from Cochrane, in Northern Ontario, decided she would go to school in Sarnia—and that's what led to the frozen foot. Although the temperature was 22-degrees-below zero she set out from her home to walk to Cochrane and there get a train for Sarnia.

While hustling along in the snow the toes of her right foot became frozen. They pained her only slightly and as she had no time to spare, she kept on going. After boarding the train at Cochrane, there followed a 24-hour journey to Sarnia, her former home. She intended to stay here with an aunt and continue her studies.

She did not obtain treatment for the frozen foot until she reached here and the it was found necessary to lance the toes to reduce the inflammation.

Dorothy left Sarnia with her parents five years ago, one of several families to take up land in the north. Her mother died a year later and Dorothy became housekeeper for her father and brother but still kept up her studies and passed entrance examination.

Now however, the father and brother have obtained steady employment with a construction company and will be away from home much of the time so the girl felt free to come back to Sarnia.

OTTAWA SILENT ON BORDER FORTS

OTTAWA, Jan. 6—(CP). — Government officials would not comment on an Ottawa report declaring that unless Canada takes adequate coastal defence measures the United States might build forts along the international boundary to guard against invasion by another nation through the Dominion.

If intimations to this effect have been received by the Government from Washington they are being kept secret. It was recalled, however, that already Defence Minister Mackenzie has announced elaborate addition and improvements to the coastal fortifications on the Pacific Coast.

In an address delivered recently in Toronto, Mr. Mackenzie announced the Government was paying particular attention to coastal protection and would place new fortifications at Esquimault, Vancouver, and York Island.

Emphasizing the importance of aircraft in defence operations, the Minister declared his Department would obtain as quickly as possible the necessary reconnaisance, torpedo-bomber, observation and fighter aircraft to strengthen this arm of the forces.

Mr. Mackenzie is on a cruise to the West Indies and will not be in his office until the end of the week.

MILLBROOK

The many friends of Mrs. H. W. Johnston will regret to learn that she was taken to the Nicholls' Hospital, Peterborough, on Wednesday evening for an emergency operation for appendicitis. Dr. H. A. Turner is the attending physician, and was assisted in the operation by Dr. Moir, of Peterborough and Dr. Hobbs, Millbrook who gave the anesthetic.

Forty-two students of the local Continuation School, with the three teachers of the staff, Misses Morgan and Bannister and Mr. Ireton, motored to Peterborough on Wednesday evening in order to give their support to Orval Wainman, local contestant in the amateur contest which has been going on at the Capitol theatre for the past six nights.

The local Y. P. U. decided, at its initial meeting for this year, to debate with Bailieboro in the Presbytery series, dates to be announced. The aims for 1938 in the young peoples' work, as outlined by the president, B. B. Dawson, included: A larger membership; a definite missionary project; promotion of Leadership Training; moe intimate fellowship with God; and our young people for Christ.

To obtain concrete information for the executive, in its plans for the new year, a questionnaire was passed to the thirty or more present, on which they were asked to record their replies to the queries listed regarding young peoples' work.

The Aims and Ideals pledge was signed by about twenty-five of those in attendance before dismissal.

F. C. Scott left for the South on Tuesday of this week, and will be away for the remainder of the winter. G. Howden, of Peteborough, is in charge of the undertaking, and Alex Harkness, of the furniture business, during the proprietor's absence.

Admiral Threatens Clash

With aid for China pouring into the war stricken country by way of Hong Kong, anti-British feeling is increasing in Japan. Admiral Nobumasa Suetsugu voiced the feeling when he declared that Japan will "throw off the yoke of the white races in the Orient at all costs" and that aid to China via Hong Kong must be halted even if an armed clash with Britain is the price. This picture shows the city of Victoria (foreground) on the island of Hong Kong and the city of Kowloon (background), part of strategic naval and commercial colony. The map reveals the three main routes of entry to China; with Japan blockading all Chinese coasts, the Hong Kong artery is all-important in China's continued resistance. Admiral Suetsugu, former commander of the Imperial war fleet is also pictured.

There was a good congregation at the United church for the first Sunday of the year and Sacrament of the Lord's Supper was observed. Rev. J. W. Wilkinson officiating.

Rev. Mr. Preston could not get up on Sunday evening so there was no service in the Presbyterian church.

HOME AT SALEM SWEPT BY FIRE

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LINDSAY, Jan. 7. — Fire, caused by overheated stove pipes, completely destroyed the residence of William Moore at Salem, Mariposa, on Wednesday morning. Mr. Moore was working in Omemee, and the only persons at home at the time were his son Ivan and daughter Miss Rettie. A strong wind fanned the flames, and although neighbors gathered promptly, it was impossible to do anything to stem the fire. None of the contents were saved. The loss is a heavy one, as no insurance was carried.

A resident of East Ops named W. McGinnis, has been placed under arrest by the local police, charged with the theft of a tire. The tire was the property of Edward Cooper of Norland, who gave the size, make, etc., to Chief of Police Lawlor. The latter, in company with Corporal T. J. Woods, R.C.M.P., were driving about town and noticed a car driven by a man whom the police suspected. The tires were inspected, and the missing one was found on one of the wheels. The car was put under police seizure, and when McGinnis found the car gone he reported the "loss" to the Chief.

The death took place at Buffalo, N.Y., on Tuesday, of William Mitchell, a former resident of Downeyville. The deceased, who was in his sixty-ninth year, was well known in Emily Township, and left Downeyville about thirty years ago. Interment took place at Downeyville on Friday morning, Requiem Mass being chanted at St. Mary's Church by Rev. Father McFadden.

Fatal Motor Case To Stay Closed

TORONTO, Jan. 7 (CP).—Attorney-General Gordon Conant ruled today that "because of the slender and inconclusive evidence," the case of Fred. Grubb, Detroit, involved in a fatal motor accident in Windsor, should not be reopened. He doubted there was enough evidence to extradite Grubb.

Grubb, 46, was dismissed Monday in Windsor police court when he appeared on charge of manslaughter, reckless driving, drunk driving and driving a car with defective brakes. The charges were laid after an accident that cost the life of a 16-year-old girl. Grubb has undertaken to pay $1,000 to the families of the accident victims.

LETTERS REVEAL UNHAPPY HOME IN WRIGHT CASE

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 7—(AP).—District Attorney Buron Fitts released today several letters written by Mrs. Evelyn Wright to her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. McBride of Detroit, that are to be used in the trial of her husband, Paul A. Wright, charged with murdering her and John B. Kimmel.

The letters detail incidents of the couple's unsettled domestic life that led to the slaying of Mrs. Wright and Kimmel in Wright's Glendale home Nov. 10. Wright's trial starts Jan. 12. He pleaded not guilty by reason of insanity.

One letter, to her mother, dated Oct. 27, 1936, read:

"Paul and I are on the verge of separating all the time. Last week he saw a lawyer to make arrangements for me to see him, and it is only because I didn't go down that we are still together.

"I love Paul but the knowledge he cares so little for me is getting me. We have been doing nothing but stay home and stare at each other in this big living room."

Another letter, dated Sept. 25, 1936, stated that a contributing factor to their marital unhappiness was Wright's refusal to see her daughter by a previous marriage, Joan, eight, who was being cared for by her parents.

TRENT RIVER

Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Rolf, of Campbellford, were New Year's Day visitors with Mr. and Mrs. George Brownsell and family.

Mr. Herod Robison, of Birdsall, is a visitor with his sister, Mrs. George Brownsell, Mr. Brownsell and family.

The Women's Institute meet Thursday afternoon, January 13th, at the home of Mrs. Thos. J. Brown, "Home Acres."

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Smith of Baltimore were Wednesday visitors with Mr. and Mrs. M. T. Lean and family.

The newly elected president, Mrs. Thos. J. Brown, was in charge of the Ladies' Aid meeting Wednesday afternoon at the church. Mrs. John Ruttan presided at the piano. The members decided to retain the group work as last year, also to have cards for holiday and special days made for donations to be placed in, for each member of the Aid. The Mizpah Benediction closed the meeting.

National Armament Race

PILING UP AERIAL TORPEDOES—AND TAXPAYERS BILLS

Dire predictions about the extent of the international armaments race for 1938 are lent credence by the recent League of Nations yearbook. More money was expended by the various powers on their armies, navies and air forces during 1937 than during any 'peace-time year' in history. Yet, despite these enormous expenditures, it is probable that 1938 will see a new record set, since Great Britain is only well started on her huge military expansion program and other powers are accelerating their plans for more imposing war machines.

$50,000,000

Canadian National Railway Company Bonds

Guaranteed unconditionally by the Government of the Dominion of Canada

as to both Principal and Interest

The Bank of Canada is authorized by the Minister of Finance to receive, on behalf of the Canadian National Railway Company, subscriptions for the following bonds:

Four-Year 2% Bonds, due January 15, 1942

Issue Price: 99.25% and accrued interest, yielding approximately 2.20% to maturity

AND

Thirteen-Year 3% Bonds, due December 15, 1950

(Callable on or after December 15, 1945)

Issue Price: 97.00% and accrued interest, yielding approximately 3.29% to maturity

The 2% Bonds will be dated January 15, 1938. The 3% Bonds will be dated December 15, 1937. Principal and interest will be payable in lawful money of Canada. Interest on the 2% Bonds will be payable without charge, semi-annually, at any branch in Canada of any chartered bank. Interest on the 3% Bonds will be payable without charge, semi-annually, at any branch of the Canadian Bank of Commerce in Canada (Yukon Territory excepted).

These Bonds will be a direct obligation of the Canadian National Railway Company, the capital stock of which is owned by the Dominion of Canada. Payment of principal and interest on these bonds will, under authority of the Parliament of Canada, be guaranteed unconditionally by the Government of the Dominion of Canada. A copy of the guarantee will be endorsed on each bond.

Proceeds of this issue will be used exclusively for the repayment of temporary loans obtained by the Company from the Government for the redemption of funded debt which has matured and for capital expenditures.

Payment is to be made in full with accrued interest against delivery of interim certificates on or about January 18, 1938.

FRIDAY, JANUARY 7, 1938

After 15 Years

Leslie H. Lavery went to the Royal Canadian Mounted Police headquarters in Winnipeg and stated he wanted to surrender so he could go and serve a two months' jail sentence. It took police two hours to locate the mans' record because it was 15 years ago that he had been sentenced, after which he escaped. So Lavery is now in jail.

During those fifteen years Leslie Lavery says he/has lived mostly in the States and at points in Western Canada, always managing to keep a couple of jumps ahead of the law. A short time ago he was questioned in Seattle and then deported to Vancouver. He was not arrested there, and he might have come to the conclusion that the police had forgotten about the incident. But Lavery had not.

Lavery felt and knew all the time there was a charge against him. It was like a debt which he had not paid. In all those fifteen years he was never faced by an officer who told him he was once more under arrest, but there was no satisfaction in that. Lavery expected always that the officer would appear, and he came to the conclusion that the only way to rid himself of that feeling was to go back and serve the time he should have put in fifteen years before.

If Leslie Lavery felt that way about it, we cannot but wonder what happens to such people as hit-and-run drivers. There have been a number of cases where people have been killed or seriously injured, but the guilty party has taken refuge in flight and has not since been found or identified. An act such as that cannot be whisked lightly from the human mind. It stays there; it must be there when one tries to sleep at night or wakes in the morning for a day's work. Leslie Lavery found after an experiment of fifteen years that it was harder to live with that feeling of fear of consequences than move boldly out into the open and have that fear removed. The man who tries to live with a closed and secret dark door in his conscience can never be happy.

We Respect Our Contracts

Judge Smoke gave his decision in the action taken to set aside bylaws which fixed the assessment of two local industries, Raybestos and De Laval. In doing so he found himself in agreement with the opinion previously expressed by the Court of Revision that it had no jurisdiction to question or deny the validity of bylaws enabling these fixed assessments.

These agreements actually possessed a deeper significance than documents which might have been drawn and agreed to between a municial council and a manufacturing establishment. In each case the matter was submitted to the ratepayers themselves, and there was no reason why ratepayers should have voted in favor of the agreements unless they desired to do so. But they did vote favorably on each of these bylaws and gave a substantial majority in each case.

We do not believe it would have been possible to have fuller or more complete sanction given to any undertaking. The City Council conducted the negotiations, arranged terms and satisfied itself the agreements were satisfactory, and then the ratepayers completed the transaction by voting to endorse what their Council had done.

Under the agreements the De Laval and Raybestos agreed to do certain things, and they have done them—and more. It is well also to remember that these companies agreed to plans which called for investment of money in a time when building and any form of expansion had all but come to a dead stop. They had confidence in this city and in the country at a time when others had little, and their confidence has since been justified.

Peterborough has not been benefited by the impression which has gone abroad that this city is not in favor of recognizing and keeping to the letter any contracts or undertakings to which it has been committed. This city is not in favor of granting bonuses to industry and it is not seeking new industries on that basis. But this city does welcome any new industries which may be attracted here by reason of the success which has attended industrial life in Peterborough. And this city will not break contracts to which it has affixed its name and seal.

We Knew About It

As a rule The Examiner, in common with other papers, does not pay attention to letters which do not bear the signature of the writer. We believe the writers of such letters would take the same attitude. If they received a letter they would like to know by whom it was written.

But there was one received at this office signed "Mother of Five," which can hardly be overlooked. It states that the Examiner some time ago promised to publish the names of all those who drove cars while drunk and who appeared in court as a result. The next statement is that such a case occurred on New Year's eve, but there was no mention made of it in this paper, and the suggestion is made that the driver might have amounted to "more than anyone else," and for that reason there was a "hush hush" policy followed by this paper.

The Examiner was and is in possession of all the facts in connection with the case to which this letter refers. This paper knew about it shortly after it had been reported to the police. Two cars collided at a street corner but there was no evidence to show that either driver had been drinking prior to the accident. After the accident one driver went to the police station to report the affair, and the other driver is reported to have called at a beverage room and secured a drink, but prior to the accident he had not been drinking, so there was no charge of drunken driving laid as the police had not evidence of such. The driver was held while the police investigated, but he was released shortly after. There was therefore no case in police court and no charge laid because there had been no drunken driving.

The Examiner has explained this because it felt that the letter, though unsigned, challenged directly the good faith of this paper, and if the writer of the letter had been in possession of the facts it is probable the letter would not have been written. Cases of drunk driving appearing in court are reported in the Examiner, but no newspaper would be justified in charging a man with driving while drunk when the police after investigation of all the facts said there was no evidence on which to base such a charge.

Stepping It Down

A fair amount of publicity has been given to a decision rendered by Magistrate McCrimmon of Tillsonburg in the case of an auto driver charged with reckless driving. The fine was $200 and court costs amounted to $65. The permit to drive was also suspended for six months.

In the accident out of which this case arose three persons were killed after a collision with the accused's car. Records show that the charge as at first laid was manslaughter; later it was reduced to criminal negligence, and before the case came for trial it had been stepped down once more to reckless driving.

There may have been sufficient reasons for all these changes, but it also leaves the impression that those in charge of the enforcement of law must have had a hard time making up their minds as to what they were going to do about it. In a case where three persons met death the bringing down of the resultant charge from manslaughter to one of reckless driving is admittedly quite a descent.

Wide Range In War Ages

Old George Hubbard is the name by which he goes in Winnipeg. Old George is a colored gentleman of six feet two inches who has just celebrated his 93rd birthday. He was a former slave and joined the Canadian army at the time of the world war as a cook. Old George got as far as England but a medical board checked back on his record and found he had been born in 1845, and was therefore 69 years old at the time of his enlistment. At that time he looked to be 45 and that is the age he gave. He got away with his deception.

His case caused some of the record keepers at Ottawa to look and see if Old George Hubbard had been the oldest man to sign up for war service. They found he was not. One enlisted at 73, another at 77 and a third at 80. Two of them were officers who got no farther than England.

Enlistment at the other end of the scale attracted three lads of 10 years, four of 12 years, 35 of 13 years and 137 of 14 years. All were buglers who failed to get nearer the war than England. So the age range in Canada's participation in the war ran all the way from 10 to 80 years. And that was not overlooking much at either end.

They Come And They Go

One by one the festive lights of the Yuletide flicker out. Gone are the home-town guests, and only the fading echoes of Christmas music remain with cheerful memories of bright and happy hours. Men resume the daily round of affairs immediately adjusting themselves to the new year, but still facing both ways like January, looking back a bit wistfully over familiar scenes fast receding, and looking forward hopefully, perhaps more resolutely, for the favor of negligent fortune.

Experience soon informs us as we grow older that the high moments cannot be sustained. The hearth fire flames merrily in the evening hours, but by morning its ashes are cold. The robin's song at a Maytime sunset sounds more sweet after its long silence. We greet the first grass of Spring with joy, but by June the whole countryside is green, and the first blossoms have already fallen. The movement of life is tidal, flowing far out into the deeps at times, and then turning back to the shallows along the shore.

There are moods of the year we often wish were not so fleeting, the fragrant dusk of an evening in May, hazy afternoons in late, September, and the warmer social sentiment of Christmas and the arriving New Year.

Wherein We Refuse

Upon opening an envelope from the day's mail we found printed on top of the paper "First National Bank," and in smaller letters "In Reno, Nevada." Just why any person should be addressing us from the divorce centre of United States was a little puzzling at first, more so since the letter was signed by the president of the bank.

We found Mr. W. W. Hopper (that is the president's name) was sending along a book telling about Nevada, which he says is a great place for the tax weary. We learn that Nevada is a solvent state with a surplus in its treasury and a balanced budget. It has no income tax, no inheritance tax, no gift tax, no sales tax and no tax on intangibles, whatever that may mean. It is suggested the Examiner might like to clip a lot of things out of the book and print them in the paper, and if we feel that way then Mr. Hopper says it will be all right as far as he is concerned.

But we suspect there must be a fly in the ointment. Perhaps two flies, because figures show that there are less than 100,000 people living in the entire state of Nevada, and if it were such a fine place as Mr. Hopper and his book claim then people ought to be flocking out there in planes, trains, cars, bicycles and in covered wagons. And some on foot. No—we are not suggesting or advocating that any of our folk start off for Nevada. When we raise up a generation of people and watch them get a little hump on the back from paying taxes we like to keep them right here. Because we have plenty of taxes to pay and we hate to lose those who have become accustomed to paying them without talking of a rebellion.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Uncle Sam is going to spend $13,450 a minute in the next fiscal year. We would not mind taking up a few minutes of his time at that rate.

Two different jail breakers have surrendered to the police asking to be sent back to prison. That would seem to testify that the world is not such a happy place after all.

When the pupils of a St. Catharines school decided to send a message to King George asking him to continue his Christmas broadcasts they were voicing the sentiment of the whole Empire.

Huntsville at its second nomination meeting named 74 municipal candidates. That left just about enough over to run the fire department and the police force.

Police court cases are steadily increasing in Peterborough but unless you consider traffic offenders as criminals, the increase does not mean the crime wave is attaining serious proportions.

There has been a great deal written on the subject of driving while drunk, but the Highways Traffic Act tells the whole story in few words. Just this: "No intoxicated person shall drive a motor vehicle."

The happy relations between United States and Canada are illustrated by the fact that Canadians regard it merely a matter of course that President Roosevelt should ask for a billion dollar appropriation for armament purposes.

Motor deaths in the United States last year are estimated at 39,243. That means that every week an average of 800 persons were killed on rural highways and city streets—a heavy price to pay for the convenience and swiftness of modern transportation.

Mayor Day of Toronto hopes to obtain a slice of the Hepburn government's $27,000,000 motor and gasoline revenue. Other chief magistrates have had the same idea, but so far no one has hit the magic formula that will make the government agree with the suggestion.

STRANGER

(By A. R. K.)

¶ John Thomas broke his nose one day, he couldn't get it fixed to stay, and treatment was no use; when he hauled off to blow the thing, it rattled like a rusty spring, as though 'twas coming loose.

¶ John Thomas left two months ago, just where he went, his folk don't know, he had a goodly plan; but there were expert surgeons there, they would attend to his affair, he'd be a handsome man.

¶ They showed John Thomas through a book, just how each make of nose would look, and he could take his choice; John Thomas studied quite a while, and scarce could choke a happy smile, he started to rejoice.

¶ The shapes and styles were there in rows, John Thomas picked a Roman nose, he'd be some one with that; the nose he'd had was small in size, for looks 'twould never take a prize, for it was rather flat.

¶ And now old friends just pass him by, no eager welcome in their eye, he hears no words of cheer; and people look him up and down, and say a stranger's come to town, we've never seen him here.

¶ John Thomas scarce knows what to do, and he feels lonely like and blue, he kicks at this and that; he tries explaining best he can, that he is just the same plain man—as when his nose was flat.

CHOP SUEY restaurants are to be found in big cities all over the world—except in China. It has been called the national dish of China but according to Carl Crow in "Four Hundred Million Customers" the truth of the matter is that chop suey, as we know it, is not only not the national dish of China but no Chinese ever eats it.

✧ ✧ ✧

The discovery of gold in California brought thousands of Chinese coolies to San Francisco and soon the Chinese colony in the city was large enough to support a couple of cantonese restaurants. One night a crowd of miners decided to see what these pig-tailed yellow men ate. When they got to the restaurant the regular customers had finished and the proprietor was ready to close.

✧ ✧ ✧

However the miners demanded food so he dumped together all the food his Chinese patrons had left, put a dash of Chinese sauce on top and served it to his unwelcome guests. They didn't know what he meant when he told them they were eating chop suey or "beggar Hash."

✧ ✧ ✧

At any rate they liked it so well they came back for more and in that chance way the great chop suey industry was established.

✧ ✧ ✧

Many more Chinese fortunes have been made from it than were ever made from gold mining and for generations thousands of Chinese have laughed because every dish of chop suey they have served is a culinary joke at the expense of the foreigner.

Stamp Propaganda

A REALLY interesting thing is the French absinthe stamp. A few years ago when the ordinary local rate French stamp was printed in red the prohibitionists over there got up a big stamp printed in that exact shade of red. This was put on the envelope and the domestic rate stamp was stuck in its hollow centre.

✧ ✧ ✧

The frame, looking like a part of the stamp, bore such slogans as "Absinthe drives you insane." The wets got frantic about it and when the idea was extended to political slogans the government clamped down and ended it. Any such items in existence today are regarded as rather rare curiosities, H. Bedord Jones tells us in Avocations.

Studies Aborigines

DR. DONALD THOMPSON, special patrol officer of the Australian government has returned to Melbourne after spending fifteen months among the aborigines of northern Australia. During that time he travelled 1,500 miles to study various tribes with his only weapon a rifle for shooting game. When game was scarce he was often forced to eat snakes and lizards or partake of native food. Dr. Thompson has a scholarship under the Rockefeller foundation and will study at Cambridge University.

It has been figured out by a diet expert that if the population of the United States were brought up to a proper standard as regards to diet America would have to produce 43 per cent. more eggs, 53 per cent. more milk, 79 per cent more fresh vegetables and 106 per cent more butter than at present turned out.

Mozart, we are told, had to struggle along, giving music lessons, gambling on personal concert appearances, writing pot-boilers for mechanical music boxes. His operas made money for everyone concerned in them but little for the composer himself.

One of Japan's favorite indoor sports seems destined to pass into the limbo of forgotten things. Even without the current war to take their minds away from pastimes the Japanese seem to have lost interest in the traditional entertainment of insect music. For years regarded as a soothing comfort, the songs of night-singing insects, captive in delicate bamboo-cages are no longer appreciated. Films, the radio, jazz, cafes and sports seem to have replaced insects in popular favor.

When Laurier Was At His Best

Roused His Followers to Something Like Frenzy; Death of Sir Douglas Hazen Recalls the Event

(Ottawa Journal)

It was in the midst of the great naval debate of 1913, and Sir Robert Borden, fighting desperately to get his naval bill through the House, had just introduced closure.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier, taking advantage of the recognized code of the House that the Opposition Leader follows the Prime Minister on all occasions when he desires to do so, arose with the obvious intention of moving the House into Committee. Had this occurred, then, undoubtedly endless amendments and debates would have followed, and the Closure Bill in all probability would have been blocked. At the same moment that Sir Wilfrid rose, however, Sir Douglas Hazen (then Mr. Hazen, Minister of Marine) also got to his feet. Mr. Speaker Sproule recognized Sir Wilfrid, as he was bound to do, but there came then the Government's surprise strategy when W. B. Northrup, a Conservative member, jumped to his feet and, under Rule 17 of the House, moved that "the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, being the member for the City and County of Saint John, be now heard." Instantly the Opposition saw that it had been outmanoeuvred—that a succeeding motion by Hazen that the "question be now put" would, under existing rules, prevent amendments and limit every speaker to one speech.

Came a storm seldom, if ever, equalled in the Canadian Parliament. Shouts of "shame" rang from the Opposition benches; and many Liberals, enraged that the "Old Chief" should be "gagged," shook clenched fists at the Government benches and shouted "cowards." When the tumult died down Mr. Northrup's motion carried on a division, and then Sir Douglas Hazen's motion was presented though he, himself, could not be heard.

The storm was renewed in the evening when Sir Wilfrid Laurier took the floor. Not often had the oldest members of the House seen the "Old Man" in such fighting form. For a quarter of an hour he spoke, lashing whole passages into paragraphs and whole paragraphs into sentences, challenging the admiration of his bitterest foes. In memory now one can see the majestic figure, the striking gestures, the noble, animated face, as leaning far over his desk and pointing an accusing finger at Sir Robert Borden, he exclaimed:

"The chalice that he offers us tonight will come to his own lips at some future day. We are in the minority; we can be gagged; we can be prevented from expressing our opinions; they can trample upon our rights. But, sir, the day of reckoning will come and it will come as soon as we have a dissolution of the present Parliament."

Morley wrote of Gladstone that only those who heard him could know the spell of his perorations, of his towering presence. It was that way with Laurier; and as he sank back into his seat that night his followers, driven into a near-frenzy by the sheer power of his speech, leaped upon their seats and threw papers and blue-books into the air in a madly-fervent tribute. Whatever the folly of it all, viewed in retrospect, it was an extraordinary example of the power of human eloquence to stir the emotions of men.

When Father Has To Use the Snow Shovel

New Ruling in London, Ont., Means Hard Work; Snowplows Will No More Clean Off the Sidewalks

(Letter in London Free Press)

EDITOR, FREE PRESS: May I say a word on snow and snow- shoveling. Now that the city engineer has stated the city's policy, not to clean off sidewalks, except on main thoroughfares, it seems the buck and the shovel, together with the odd snowplow, have been passed back into the soft hands of the householder.

That having been settled, to the satisfaction of the City Council, the problem that remains is whether the householder can take it—on the shovel. A secondary problem might be: Is there a snow shovel in every home, and if not, why not?

To begin with, one has to eliminate those who dwell in apartments, because they are a collective organization, who band together to benefit from the services of a hired man, commonly referred to in better educated circles as the janitor, and are ipso facto, removed from this treatise.

Now, in the matter of individual homes, those fine, indeed, grand, old homes, which have been from time immemorial, et al, the foundation of our civic pride, and all that sort of thing. That there is still a snow shovel in such abodes may be taken without question. The woodshed may have gone; the shovel remains. What of the user?

Ah, there's the rub, as Aladdin used to say. By the simple rule of elimination of the unlikely, we can get rid of ma, and the children, for what would they be doing leaning on the handle of a long, long snow shovel? Who then remains, but the head of the home, the very bedrock of the domestic scene, the patriarch of the flock, better known to your esteemed readers, doubtless, as pa.

Yes, indeed, it appears pa is on the spot as well as on the shovel. For that matter, he has always been there; that is his lot in life; as your columnist, Dorothy Dix says, "having given hostages to posterity he prepares to pay for them with his life's blood."

And does he? Boy-o-boy. And does ma see that he does so? Boy-o-boy.

All of which, Mr. Editor, would seem to indicate that between economic pressure and the royal edict of the city engineer, backed and supported by the city fathers, pa is destined to bend his weary back for the remainder of this winter, and probably for many winters to come, whenever there is a heavy snowfall.

As I write these simple lines, my daughter (sub-deb, I believe is the title), leans over my shoulder. There is an impish gleam in her blue eyes. Says she: "Why, daddy, and when did you get too old to shovel the sidewalk? You're as young as you ever were.' You don't look a day over 30—well, maybe, 33."

O daughter of Eve. Some day that curly-headed young orchestra leader you think so much of is going to go to the mat with this very same problem, and you will repeat that dear old piece of blarney all over again. I wonder whether it will strike such a receptive heart as the one, safely and cozily tucked in beneath the checked vest of your honored, but slightly esteemed father.

DIFFERENT PICTURE.

(Detroit Free Press)

ANOTHER story of the chivalry and and comradery of the sea.

An American liner piles up on a small island south of Formosa.

Japan orders two warships and a seaplane to lend what aid they can to the stranded vessel and its marooned passengers.

And three American destroyers dash from Manila to do what they can for human beings in danger and distress.

What a different picture of international co-operation from that which governments paint, when they fly into a rage, start shooting, and forget the obligations of humanity to the innocent and defenseless!

PATHETIC FIGURE

(Sydney Post-Record)

IT IS STARTLING to read the reported evidence of Hon. T. C. Davis, Attorney-General of Saskatchewan before the Rowell Commission that more than half the population of the Province will be receiving Government aid this winter. Saskatchewan's population is placed at 928,000 people, those on relief now are estimated at 400,000 and this total is expected to be increased by another 100,000 in the winter months. The cause of this abnormal situation is the drought-scourge, which reduced this year's wheat production of the Province to less than one-sixth of the average crop. This distressing story, coupled with the Bracken Government's argument that Manitoba is bankrupt, and with the Social Credit affliction of Alberta, gives a pathetic picture of the Prairie West.

BUYING GERMAN COAL

(Toronto Star Weekly)

GERMANY is threatening Great Britain's supremacy of the Canadian hard coal market, trade figures show.

Despite the preferential advantage enjoyed by British anthracite-Canadian imports of the coal from Britain are declining and imports from Germany are correspondingly increasing.

Between 1928 and 1933 imports of anthracite from Britain mounted from 526,000 to 1,600,000 tons, but the following year they declined by 150,000 tons, and last year fell off another 120,000 tons.

During the same period imports of German coal increased to 350,000 tons. Smaller quantities were also imported from Russia, Indo-China and other countries.

THE GREATEST.

FROM THE Christian Science Monitor we clip these interesting definitions and philosophy:

The Best Day—Today.
The Greatest sin—Fear.
The Greatest Play—Work.
The Best Work—What you like.
The Greatest Need—Common Sense.
The Greatest Mistake—Giving Up.
The Best Town—Where you succeed.
The Most ridiculous Asset—Pride.
The Most Expensive Indulgence—Hate.
The Easiest Thing To Do—Find Fault.
The Greatest Stumbling Block—Egotism.
The Greatest Invention of the Devil—War.
The Greatest Thing In All World—Love.
The Greatest Secret of Production—Saving Waste.
The Greatest Deceiver—One who deceives himself.
The Greatest Trouble Maker—One Who Talks Too Much.
The Best Teacher—One Who Makes You Want to Learn.
The Worst Bankrupt—One Who Has Lost His Enthusiasm.

THE ENGLISH WAY.

(St. Catharines Standard)

A SUBSCRIBER of the Standard has handed in an English paper and it is timely in view of what happened on the streets and highways before Christmas in this province. The first paragraph of the story reads:

"Stated to be a company director well known in Newcastle commercial circles, a Ponteland man was fined a total of £200 (1,000) and had his driving license suspended for seven years at Newcastle Police Court today on charges connected with driving a car under the influence of drink, following an accident on Grandstand Road, Newcastle, last night, in which a Gisforth woman was injured."

No driving for seven years and one thousand dollars fine! What an example for this country! And does this country need that example of stern British justice? The average citizen hopes that some day we will come to it.

BOY BAND OF 120.

(Christian Science Monitor)

ADELAIDE, S. Aust. — One of the largest drum and fife bands of boys in the world is the distinction claimed by the Adelaide band, organized by James H. Becker, who has enlisted 120 boys in the project. The instruments and equipment, recently sent out from London are stated by the manufacturers to have constituted the largest order ever received from abroad.

Arrangements are being made for the band to make tours of South Australia and other parts of the commonwealth.

The boys have been drawn from the 200 members who recently toured the eastern States of Australia and made a great impression. The average age of the performers is 14 and the dress is a red tunic and cap, with black trimmings and navy blue trousers. It will be a military band selected from boys attending metropolitan schools.

The manager of a chemist's shop was at lunch and during that time his assistant had been very busy with customers, etc. Shortly after the manager arrived back.

"There has been a customer while you were away, sir," said the assistant.

"Oh? What did he want?"

"He was a bit groggy so I mixed him a tonic."

"You did Goodness me! What did you give him?"

"Oh, a bit o' this and a bit o' that."

"B-but you don't know what harm it might do him?"

"You needn't worry everything is O. K.?" said the assistant.

"O.K.," raged the manager.

"Yes—I got him to sign the poison book."

Syrian Denies Buying Rifle In Toronto Few Weeks Before Pickering Man Slain

Inquest Is Definitely Adjourned At Conclusion Of Hearing In Whitby

WHITBY, Jan. 7.—Examination of Samuel Michael, Syrian father of six children, featured the inquest here Thursday on Mike Demitro Szewluk, caretaker of a summer camp at Pickering, who was murdered and left horribly mutilated a few weeks ago.

The enquiry, under Chief Coroner Dr. Smirle Lawson, was indefinitely adjourned at the conclusion of the afternoon session.

Michael, an old friend of the murdered man, was questioned as to whether he had purchased a rifle from a Toronto gunsmith a few weeks before the murder. The witness denied any knowledge of the weapon, from which, ballistic experts claimed, the shot that penetrated Szewluk's heart was fired.

Bullet Identified

Inspector Hammond of the Criminal Investigation Department, said fragments of the bullet had been taken to Dr. E. R. Frankish, Provincial ballistics expert, and from a study of these fragments it had been determined that the bullet was of the type used in deer hunting.

"The bullet itself was steel-cased, although the shell was not recovered. It was fired from a .32 special high-powered rifle," said Inspector Hammond.

"Do you know of any such rifle being in the neighborhood of Pickering?" asked Crown Attorney Allin Annis.

"I have recently been informed that such a rifle was sold to a resident of the district by Mr. Stephen Francis, a gunsmith in Toronto."

"Whatever information Mr. Hammond may have should be produced at Belinski's trial," stated Crown Attorney Annis to Chief Coroner Dr. Lawson.

Called to the stand, Michael stated Szewluk boarded with him last year and left near the end of June to live in a small cottage at Camp Yungvelt, of which he was the caretaker. Michael stated he was to receive $6 a week from Szewluk for his board. His payments were a little irregular; when he left he owed $30, which he subsequently paid. "He didn't owe me anything for some six to seven weeks before he died," said Michael, who also stated he never kept any books.

Were Good Friends

Michael stated that they were good friends when Szewluk left, that he, Michael, never quarrelled with his wife, and that his wife never left home.

"What did you do with the rifle you purchased from Mr. Francis?" demanded Chief Coroner Lawson, breaking into Michael's testimony. "I got shotgun only," faltered Michael.

"What did you do with rifle you got from Francis on Nov. 10?"

"I never got a rifle," declared Michael. "What would I do with a rifle? I was at Pickering ten, eleven years, and I only shot two, three rabbits all that time."

"Mr. Francis said you got it," declared Chief Coroner Lawson.

"Where did you get the rifle?" asked Crown Attorney Annis.

Michael said he had only bought one weapon, a shotgun, a year after he first came to Pickering.

Never Had A Rifle

"I didn't buy one—I didn't borrow one—I didn't get one from Mr. Francis in November, 1937," asserted Michael in reply to rapid questioning by the Crown.

"Do you know Mr. Francis?" "Yes, he was up to my place in the summer, but I wasn't there. He was sick and I went to visit him."

"How long before Szewluk died?" Michael apeared at a loss for an exact answer, "It was before the freeze-up."

"You know what time you were in Francis's store, tell the truth," admonished Chief Coroner Lawson. "I am telling the truth."

"One time you say in the freeze-up, another time you say the summer," remarked Crown Attorney Annis, "how long before Szewluk was shot were you in Francis's store?" "Maybe two, three weeks."

"Did you buy anything?" "No".

Only Short Visit.

"Did you take anything away?" "No, I was in the shop and stayed only a little time."

Michael added that he was alone at the time and had gone up to Toronto with a neighbor whom he left before going to see Francis. After leaving Francis's store he went to see his brother. It was about 4 o'clock and he only stayed 10 minutes at the store.

"Are you sure it wasn't after supper?" "No."

"Did you ever quarrel with your wife about Szewluk?" "No, I have been married 15 years and have never quarrelled."

"Do you beat your wife?" "No. I have never beaten my wife."

"Did your wife ever leave you because of a beating?" "No."

Asked by the Crown if his wife had ever gone to Oshawa and stayed overnight, Michael said no, except once in the summer when his children had to have their tonsils removed. Asked for a date, Michael searched through his pockets and produced a paper, which he claimed was a doctor's bill and was dated August 9.

Butcher Knife Used.

Professor W. L. Robertson, Pathologist of the University of Toronto, said the murdered man's body had been butchered by a sharp knife about six or seven inches long. The mutilation, he said, had taken place after the victim had been shot through the heart at close range.

Examination of the clothes and wounds had revealed that the rifle had been pressed against the murdered man's coat. The bullet had pierced the left side of the heart and completely severed the spinal cord. Other injuries included the complete severance of the neck from ear to ear, the smashing of the jaw and the breaking of some teeth with such force that they were driven into the bone.

First witness was Ole Christenson, with whom the murdered man had boarded for three weeks prior to his death. He stated Szewluk was a quiet man about the house and rarely talked about his business. He did not seem to have had any enemies.

"He told me and my wife that he had heard an argument between Sam Michael and his wife and that Michael had slapped her," testified Christenson.

Is Rewarded

A long-held hope was realized by Senator Carter Glass, of Virginia, as he celebrated his 80th birthday in Washington, D.C. The senator has made no secret of his ambition to live to be 80, and one of his rewards is this hearty kiss bestowed on his cheek by his niece Nancy Carter Boatwright.

LARGE BALE SENT BY W.M. SOCIETY OF CAMPBELLFORD

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 7.—The bale sent to the West by the Women's Missionary Society of St. John's United Church weighed nearly half a ton it was reported at the January meeting held in the ladies' parlours of the church on Tuesday when thirty-five members were present. Mrs. E. C. Roberts, the president, presided over the meeting and was also in charge of the program, for which the topic was Prayer.

Reports from the treasurer and secretary were given as well as the report on the envelopes in groups and the group attendance for the year. A letter of appreciation for the flowers sent on the occasion of their fiftieth wedding anniversary was read from Mr. and Mrs. R. Bateman and a not of appreciation from Mrs. Embury for the bale sent to the West was also read by the secretary.

The visitors appointed for the month of January were Mrs. J. D. Mills and Mrs. A. L. Malcolm.

It was decided that a committee could best attend the interest of the bale for the coming year and the following were appointed: Mrs. Allan Hutcheon, Mrs. M. Rannie, Mrs. Oliver, Mrs. Forde, Mrs. E. Bonney, Mrs. Sykes, Mrs. Beavis, Mrs. Slush, Mrs. Hoare and Mrs. Young. Mrs. H. T. Free was appointed chairman of the committee and it was further revealed that group collections will be used to help with the expenses of the serving group.

Mrs. A. E. Southworth was appointed delegate to attend the meeting of the Cobourg Presbyterial of the W.M.S. when it convenes in Frankford on January 24 and 25. The report of the auditors, Mrs. G. W. Hammond and Mrs. S. L. O'Hara was given by Mrs. Hammond who stated the books were in excellent condition and moved a vote of thanks to Mrs. G. A. Kingston which was seconded by Mrs. A. L. Malcolm.

Groups Are Formed

Groups for the year 1938 were formed as follows with the first named being leader and the second her assistant:

1.—Mrs. H. B. Neal, Mrs. G. A. Hammond, Mrs. H. B. Longmore, Mrs. Chappell, Miss Jordan, Mrs. C. K. Stephen, Mrs. W. Henson, Mrs. G. Bailey, Mrs. Durran, Mrs. D. Clark, Mrs. E. H. Greig.

2.—Mrs. W. H. Ashton, Mrs. W. Rannie, Mrs. A. Hutcheon, Mrs. C. W. Palliser, Mrs. Bushner, Miss Stella Keir, Mrs. R. Moore, Mrs. H. Bakes, Mrs. M. Ferguson, Mrs. H. Jones, Mrs. R. McKelvie.

3.—Mrs. A. D. Bennett, Mrs. A. J. Armour, Mrs. C. W. Turner, Mrs. Oliver, Mrs. Mitchell, Mrs A. Hazell, Mrs. A. Wragg, Mrs. T. Slush, Mrs. Hoare, Mrs. Bland, Mrs. J. A. Irwin, Mrs. N. Brown, Mrs. Stanburry.

5.—Mrs. G. A. Kingston, Miss Grace Payne, Mrs. H. Free, Mrs. S. Free, Mrs. Steele, Mrs. C. H. Davidson, Mrs. John Gay, Mrs. Saunders, Mrs. G. A. Ironside, Mrs. John Stillman, Mrs. Fraser.

6—Mrs. E. C. Roberts, Mrs. Southworth, Mrs. A. Watson, Mrs. Grills, Mrs. S. L. O'Hara, Mrs. D. Stillman, Mrs. A. Hutcheon, Mrs. A. Bonney, Mrs. Bateson, Miss Wood.

An interesting feature of the program was conducted by Miss Lottie Brook who for twenty-five years was a missionary in China. Miss Brook answered questions asked by the members and the feature proved very instructive. Enlarging on the quotation of Dr. Stanley Jones "Prayer was the thing most talked about and least used" Mrs. Roberts gave an interesting talk. Mrs. Allan Watson rendered a vocal solo "The Beautiful Garden of Prayer" and this was followed by short prayers by each of four ladies.

With the collection of fees and singing of the Doxology the meeting was brought to a close.

Hastings County Farmer Found Guilty Of Wounding At Frontenac Charivari

KINGSTON, Jan. 7. — Jonathan Elliott, 62, a Hastings County farmer, living near Belleville, was placed on suspended sentence and bound over to keep the peace, by Judge H. A. Lavelle in County Court Judges' Criminal Court on Thursday.

Elliott pleaded not guilty through his counsel, W. H. Herrington, to a charge of wounding Joseph Dawson near Mountain Grove with an antiquated shotgun last November 27 during a Frontenac County "charivari."

Sixteen shots entered Dawson's leg, it was disclosed, when Elliott became annoyed at the charivari being given to himself and Mrs. Clara Beverley by the Mountain Grove residents. Dawson declared he had no knowledge of the celebration and had stopped in front of the Beverley house to let a car pass.

Provincial Constable Stuart Patterson testified that Elliott had admitted firing he gun, but had not meant to injure anyone. The gun he said, had a bad habit of firing too easily.

HAVELOCK EASILY BLANKS WARKWORTH 9-0 IN E.P.L. FRAY

ALBIONS LEAD FROM THE START IN EASY VICTORY

(Examiner Correspondence.)

NORWOOD, Jan. 7. — Havelock handed out a 9 to 0 decision over Warkworth last night in the fourth game of the East Peterborough Junior 'C' Hockey League. Warkworth proved no match for the fast skating and fancy stick-handling of Havelock. Many rushes were made by Warkworth players, only to be ineffective due to poor combination. They also became poorly organized in the face of attack.

Havelock's bad man of hockey, Aboud, held true to form when he was given a penalty for tripping in the third.

From the face-off, Bowen for Warkworth got right in on the goal but was outguessed by Harnden. Kitchen for Havelock, in a scramble in front of Warkworth net, passed a loose puck out in front but no one was there to push it in. Warkworth then led in attacks, getting several distant shots at the goal, but they did not click. At the fifteen-minute mark, Pollock for Havelock on a pass from Voyer, opened the scoring. One-half minute later Kitchen, on a rebound from Fowler's stick, sunk their second counter.

Albions Take Offensive.

Havelock then led in offensive in many successive rushes until Aboud scored their third goal at 18½ minutes. The end of the period then roughened up a bit, with one penalty to McCutcheon for boarding. The score was 3 to 0 for Havelock.

The second period opened with Havelock leading attack and closing in on the goal several times but failed to click. Both teams led counter attacks, with the fancy stick-handling of Havelock being very much in evidence. In a scramble in front of Warkworth nets, Harnden came out of the goal to fall on the puck and make a nice save, but McMullen scored their fourth goal two seconds after the face-off. Warkworth goal was closed in on four times in wild scrambles, Havelock having every man up. McMullen scored the fifth goal at 18 minutes, and a half minute later McMullen scored again on a pass from Moore. Warkworth managed to get in a few shots in the last two minutes of the period, but they were from a distance. The period ended 6 to 0 for for Havelock.

The third period started off rather slowly. McMullen and Kitchen both missed an uncovered net. Five shots in succession were fired at Harnden from a scramble, but each time he managed to save. Aboud was given a penalty for tripping. Kitchen broke away from a scramble at centre to sink their seventh goal at the 10-minute mark. A free-for-all took place in front of Warkworth nets. Hockey gloves, sticks and fists flew merrily for a minute until Referee Duncan stepped in and parted the offenders. No penalties were handed out. Kitchen scored the eighth goal from a face-off to one side of the net at 11 minutes. A second free-for-all broke out and again fists flew near Warkworth blue line. No penalties were handed out to offenders. Haggerty scored their final goal at 18 minutes. Warkworth showed much more activity in the last few minutes than they had all evening. The game ended 9 to 0 for Havelock.

The line-ups:

Warkworth: Goal, Fowler; defence, Beatty, E. McKee; centre, Helson; wings, Bowen, R. Edgar; alternates: H. McKee, Buchanan, Greenly, H. Edgar.

Havelock: Goal, Harnden; defence, Whitney, Voyer; centre, Moore; wings, McMullen, Kitchen; alternates: Pollock, Haggerty, McCutcheon, Aboud.

Referee: Elton Duncan, Warkworth.

Experience Counts In Bewdley's Win

Bewdley beat Hiawatha, 6 to 1 Thursday night at the Brock St. rink before a small crowd to start their Senior Hockey League schedule. It was a wide open game of shinny with not a great deal of good hockey shown by either team. Lack of practise and conditioning was apparent before the squads had been at it long. Bewdley showed more combination and experience to earn the verdict, as the Indians faded after the first frame. They got their goal in the middle heat while the Bewdley boys scored one in the first and three each in the second and third.

Gall got the losers' marker on Woods' pass. Watson scored first for Bewdley, aided by Pemberton. Walker, Sidey and Wakelin counted in the second, Walker assisting on one. In the third, Wakelin got two goals and Jewitson one, with Wakelin and Watson having an assist each. Pat Calladine lined up wit hthe Indians, but he and Walker drew most of the penalties in the chopping contest. Pat, Wakelin and Watson were the best of the players. The teams:

ORFUN GIRLS WIN AT COBOURG 22-15

The Orfuns, local girls' basketball team—which is open to any sponsor here—copped a 22-15 decision over Cobourg on the latter's floor last evening. It was the start of the L.O.B.A. Lakeshore League basketball schedule, and the Peterborough crew finished up strong to get the verdict in a lively game. Play was fast and rough, 24 fouls being called. Coach Whitty Thirnbeck's crew outlasted the Cobourgites and came from behind a 12-11 Cobourg edge at the half-way mark. L. Dufton led the losers with four points, while B. Blade topped Peterborough with eight points as F. Bestard and G. Mortimer got four each. The teams:

Orfuns.—F. Bestard, D. Ackford, S. Levine, L. Magee, J. Dawson, B. Blade, G. Mortimer, M. Snowden, O. Livingston and M. Ferguson.

Cobourg.—R. Thompson, J. Owens, I. Young, L. Dufton, K. Riley, R. Shirley, M. Davidson and K. McDonnell.

Referee, G. Dufton; scorer, H. Ravendale.

ALBERT COLLEGE REFUSED ENTRY

Belleville fans will see no interscholastic C.O.S.S.A. hockey until the playdowns roll around. Wednesday evening the Bay of Quinte and Trent Valley groups of the C.O.S.S.A. convened at the Belleville Collegiate and drafted their basketball and hockey schedules. Pete Beach's efforts to affiliate his Albert College senior interscholastic pucksters in the Trent Valley circle fell upon deaf ears; Madoc, Marmora, Tweed and Stirling high school representatives feeling they had a nice compact loop, which they fully intended to protect. The outcome means the Albert College pucksters will have to be satisfied with a bye into C.O.S.S.A. playdowns as Belleville Collegiate, Picton, Napanee nor Trenton are icing interscholastic hockey squads this season.

It was a severe blow to Coach Beach and his Albert College charges, who will have to be satisfied with exhibition games, Albert College landed berths in the Bay of Quinte basketball sections, however. The Belleville Collegiate, continuing Instructor George Laughlin's early season ultimatum, did not file affiliation in either basketball or hockey. "We are devoting our sports periods to inter-form competition and we find it more satisfactory to the student body," declared Mr. Laughlin.

In the meantime the rest of the collegians will march on, that is all except the Albert College pucksters, who will have to mark time for the next six weeks, 'tis feared.

St. Peter's Beat Red Aces 3 To 2

St. Peter's nudged out a 3-2 nod over Red Aces on Thursday night in a bantam South-end Hockey League fray at the Sacred Heart Rink. It was a keen contest throughout, with the Saints having to hustle hard to gain the narrow margin. Neat hockey for the bantam series was served up by both outfits. Dafoe got both goals for the losers, with Garvey getting two and Murphy one for the winners. The teams:

Red Aces — Goal, Cooper; defence, Downer and Redman; centre, Dafoe; wings, Shaughnessy and Rutherford; alternates, White, Wilford, Curtin, Williams and Moscrop.

St. Peter's — Goal, Corkery; defence, Fontaine and Basciano; centre, Garvey; wings, Murphy and Kent; alternate, Mouchan.

Referee—Joe Collins.

PIRATE LEADERS ON TRADE BLOCK

PITTSBURG, Jan. 7 (AP)—Bill Benswanger, President of Pittsburg Pirates, put his baseball prima donnas on the trading block Thursday with the calm remark he was ready to deal "star for star" with any club in the National League.

"We want new faces," the Pirate boss declared. "Mind you, we don't want to give away one of our stars like the Waners or Vaughan or Suhr for two or three secondary players. But we are ready and eager to make a deal with any club that will give us men of calibre equal to those we lose.

"As a matter of fact we don't care whether we strengthen our club or not, in such a trade, just so we don't weaken it. We feel the advantage of new faces would be sufficient inducement for trades."

King Edward Ties Canuck Outfit 2-2

Canucks and King Edward Midgets of the Southend Puck Loop went to a 2-2 tie last night at the Sacred Heart rink. Hallihan got both counters for the Canucks while Campbell and Gillespie each scored fort he K. E. boys. It was a tidy tilt all through with some good hockey shown most of the route between these well-matched young teams. The line-ups:

Canucks— Goal, Mattucci; defence, Brioux and Agnew; centre, Hallihan; wings, Cournyea and Heath; alternates, Jones and Moore.

King Edward: Goal, Shea; defence, Roberts and Patterson; centre, Dundas; wings, Gillespie and Campbell; alternates, Jamieson, Hotson, Weaver and Foster.

Referee, Kenny Kane.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

ALL PATHS converge on the Brock St. arena tonight as the O.H.A. senior "B" schedule opens here between Trenton Fliers and the Petes at 8.30 o'clock. It will be the first home tilt for the Petes, but they've already got away-from-home victories over the Belleville Redmen and the Airmen, both overtime wins. If they can cop the duke tonight, they'll be mighty hard to dislodge from first place the rest of the schedule. But the Fliers will be zooming around dangerously and vengefully in this joust and are very liable to drop several bombs into the local citadel. The 1937 intermediate "A" champs are burned up like the bride's biscuits over the upset the Hines' crew pulled on 'em on Quinte ice last Tuesday, going on a scoring spree in the extra inning. It'll be a battle, folks, between bitter rivals and mighty good puck squads. Should pack the rink.

* * * * * * *

THIS LOOKS like the local lineup tonight: Goal, Harding; defence, Barnes and Williamson; centre, Calladine; wings, Starr and Vitarelli; alternates, McDougall, Gratton, Kingdon and Weir. And here is the probable Fliers' list, with numbers: Goal, Gibson; defence, Partridge (11) and Lalonde (2); centre, Legrise (3); wings, Ernie McNeeley (10) and Cowley (5); alternates, Lecompte (9), Eric McNeeley (6), Halward (7), Baldwin (8) and Elliott (14). The Fliers are about as strong and colorful—and classy—as last year, but the '38 edition of the Petes is above that of a year ago. So fans can look for a swelegant battle. They'll be curious to see these new guys, Barnes and Gratton. The ex-juniors Starr, Kingdon and Harding in action. And such veteran aces as Calladine, McDougall, Weir, Vitarelli and Williamson. Ought to be a bumping bee, too, between these oldtime enemies.

* * * * * * *

JUST A word or two about Harvey (Barney) Barnes. This lantern-jawed husky who hails from the senior hockey centre of North Battleford, out where men are men, looks like the best puck import here since Bailey. Or maybe we're screwy. But he looks smart to us. He hits 'em hard on defence, blocks well, is full of fight, and can sure carry the mail on the attack. A fast skater who can stickhandle and shoot. Barney has been in two games for the Petes so far and has figured in on seven goals! Not bad for a defenceman, what? We like his scrappy spirit and the way he steps into all and sundry who try to buck the local defence. But the fans here can give him the once-over themselves tonight. He is about 23 years old.

* * * * * * *

CAGE SEASON for this district really commences tonight. Westclox gals had an L.O.B.A. tilt in Cobourg last eve and the dope should be in elsewhere. This evening a double-header in girls' basketball will be at the Y.W. for a silver collection. At 7.45, Westclox intermediates meet St. John's Teenites in an exhibition fray. And at 8.30, Belleville and C.G.E. senior lasses of the L.O.B.A. Lakeshore group have a scheduled fixture. It will be worth seeing for cage followers. Three of our P.C.I. teams are due to play tonight in Cobourg. And several good hoop contests will be run off tomorrow e'en between boys' teams in the Y.M.C.A. gym.

* * * * * * *

THREE O.H.A. wins in three nights must be some sort of a hockey record for Peterborough teams. Keeping pace with our Colts and Petes, the local Bees last p.m. winged into Port Hope to open the O.H.A. intermediate "B" schedule and put the sting on the Ontarios, 4 to 1. There was a big crowd on deck, a band, the Mayor officially opening it up, and a' that. But the visitors copped the nod. However, they had a real battle on their mitts all through, the speedy, fighting Hopers surprising 'em with a lot of class. Of course the small ice bothered the Payne players, such speed merchants as Gardner, Ellis, Heal, Hill and a few more just getting up steam when they had to apply the breaks. It was a bruising encounter with the defences smearing forwards all over the place. Mick Magee never had as much fun before in his life—and did he strew 'em around the scenery! Herb has a good squad there and they'll go okay with a bit more practise.

* * * * * * *

JUST A word about the individuals on the lineup. Clarke had a fine p.m. in the cage, kicking aside a raft of rubber discs. Magee and Ellis proved strong on defence, Jimmy shining both defensively and on the attack. Weir and Townley aided, Archie being a big help and Townley showing quite a bit of promise on the rearguard. The first front line may have shaded the second but not by much. Coughlin looked okay, Burton played a fine game and got two goals, and Gardner had much of his old smoke along the right boards. Heal did some dandy checking in the centre zone. Hill in spots was hot but needs a bit more practise to hit his real stride and Creighton will have a good winter, we imagine. The team will improve rapidly, too. Ye Bees are in Oshawa Monday and not at home till the 17th.

* * * * * * *

BEING IN Port Hope, we didn't see the boxing show here. Fans say it was a good card before a big crowd—not all cash customers, though, there being several hundred who ankled through an unguarded door! Toronto pugs sort of vindicated themselves, copping 'em all but the one against Pat Jordan. No decision in the curtain-raiser, O'Neill had Hobbins beaten in three rounds and definitely put him in the filing cabinet in overtime. Joiner was up against a light-hitting but far too experienced a ringman. Jordan won his bout. Art Darnbrough packed too much dynamite for Bowler and won handily. Minicola and Genovese staged a real grudge fight, and it was downright dirty. The Toronto toreador was given the nod in overtime but it was closerthanthis, we are told. Carter outpointed Orlando in a good windup fight, but Nick was far from disgraced. A nice card, the last for a few months.

* * * * * * *

HITHER AND yawn: Fans are asked to refrain from smoking tonight at the Fliers-Petes' game; it hampers the players and spoils the customers' vision . . . . Reserved seat tickets must be picked up at the Brock by 8.15 tonight, or they'll be sold . . . . Local gal cagers—named Orfuns for the time being—opened their L.O.B.A. schedule with a 22-15 win last eve in Cobourg . . . . Three Junior City Puck Loop games on Monday night at the Brock . . . . Westclox beat Southenders 5-4, and Bewdley defeated Hiawatha 6-1 in typical Blood and Thunder Loop contests last p.m. at the Brock St. rink before two dozen fans . . . . . Lot of minor loop hockey games listed elsewhere tonight . . . . West End Intermediate League entries close at an open meeting Monday at eight p.m. at All Saints'; everyone invited . . . . C.G.E. Shop Puck Circuit tussles tomorrow aft at the Brock: Wire vs. Fractionals at 1.30, Machine Shop vs. Switchgear at 2.30, Office vs. Refrigerators at 3.30, and Induction Motors vs. Toolroom at 4.30 . . . . Monarchs of the Junior City League practise tonight at All Saints at seven—not Monday e'en . . . . . St. John's Bantams meet St. Andrew's at 6.30 and St. Paul's Juveniles play St. John's at 7.15 in church cage contests tomorrow night in the "Y" . . . . Our Colts play Havelock in Norwood on Monday . . . . That's all for now—thank goodness!

WESTCLOX GAINS 5-4 HOCKEY WIN

Westclox opened the Senior City Hockey League schedule Thursday evening at the Brock St. rink before a slim crowd with a 5-4 victory over the Southenders. It was a rough game, resembling shinny most of the way and with one fight between Parsons and Vitarelli. The victors showed an edge and good goal-tending by Cournyea, 16 years old, in the Southenders net kept down the score.

It was 1-0 for the Westclox in the first frame, each team got one in the second and both sides tallied three times in the third. Coursey scored first from Blewett. In the second, Pammett tallied and Lennox got credit for one Wright kicked in. In the third, Wright scored two nice ones and R. Cournyea counted for Southenders. Deeth got one aided by Gardner and O'Leary. The latter got one on R. Deeth's pass and Blewett also tallied. Blewett and Deeth went well for Westclox, while A. Cournyea, Wright and P. Pammett stood out for the other side. The teams:

Westclox: Goal, Currie; defence, Parsons and Gardner; centre, Lennox; wings, Blewett and O'Leary; alternates, Coursey, Field, Gilbert, Gaudette and Deeth.

Feb. 16—Madoc at Stirling, Tweed at Marmora.

BOOKED UP UNTIL 1942

When Norway recently ordered anti-aircraft guns in Sweden, it was told that the order could not be filled until 1942.

Canucks Cop 3-1 Juvenile Victory

Canucks copped a 3-1 juvenile decision over King Edward in a lively South-end Hockey League contest last night at the Sacred Heart Rink. Wade tallied twice for the winners and B. Jones once, as Mackness notched the lone marker for the King Edward crew. It was a hot tilt all the way with both sides checking hard and battling to the finish. The Saints had more combination to gain the verdict. The teams:

King Edward— Goal, Leether; defence, Self and Mackness; centre, Jobe; wings, Lawson and Campbell; alternates, Anderson, Grose, and Nokes.

Canucks — Goal, Fleming; defence, Campbell and Willis; centre, Wade; wings, B. Jones and W. Jones; alternates, McCormack, Henwood, Post and Peters.

Referee—Kenny Kane.

TWEED OUTSCORES TRENTON 4 TO 3

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, Jan. 7.— A small crowd saw the Tweed blue team outscore the smart Trenton squad by the narrowest of margins and add a second victory to their Trent Valley League record by a score of 4 to 3 on Wednesday night. Two quick goals at the half-way mark in the second period and a like number seconds apart in the final frame gave Tweed their tallies. The visitors scored once in each period.

Trenton — Goal, Steenburg; defence, McElrath and W. Lamoire; centre, K. Davis; wings, Johnson and Miller; subs., A. Lamoire, Anderson, Drake, and Kerr.

Tweed — Goal, Thompson; defence, Tip Tummon and E. Wood; cock; centre, H. Long; wings, J. Tummon and J. Courneyea; subs., W. Leal, H. Elsbury, L. Meraw, J. Marsh, and Frenchy Leal.

All Saints' Bantams Blank George St. 5-0

All Saints' Bantams whitewashed George St. 5-0, last night in a speedy Church Hockey League game at All Saints' rink. It was their second straight win and they showed too much speed and size for the Uniteds. All Saints pressed hard the first two frames though the losers forced play in the third, having no luck. Lacey and Ackford shone with two goals each. Maudsley got the other. Routley and Wellwood were best for the losers. The teams:

Referee, D. Charlton.

TRINITY BLANKS KNOX

Trinity Bantams of the Church Hockey League blanked Knox, 6-0, last night at All Saints' rink. Trinity turned out a good team from the goalie out in their puck comeback. They got two in each frame, Horton and Henry getting two each and Fowler and Taylor one apiece. Good goal work by Saunders kept down the count. The teams:

Trinity: Goal, McBain; defence, Horton, Fowler; centre, Taylor; wings, Dorsett, Henry; alternates, Beatty, Webster, Meredith, Harrison, Farlen.

Knox: Goal, Saunders; defence, Hamblin, Bestard; centre, Gardiner; wings, Darling, Gertley; alternates, Gourley, Elliott, Alcock, Richmond.

$50,000 SALARY FOR DIMAGGIO?

NEW YORK, Jan. 7 (AP)—That Joe Dimaggio will sign for about $25,000 this season and eventually, say, in three more years, reach a peak salary of $50,000 from the Yankees is the consensus of some of the smartest baseball minds around town.

Joe, they agree, will never approach the $80,000 that was banked by Babe Ruth in 1930 and 1931. It's a different day, times are tougher, and so is Col. Jacob Ruppert, the 70-year-old owner of the Yankees.

All the speculation was born of a report in a local paper that the famous San Francisco spaghetti bender already had signed a contract for 1938 at a stipend of $25,000 or $10,000 above the figure he received for smiting 46 home runs last year.

Dimaggio denied it promptly, and so did Ed Barrow, secretary of the club. What sounded fishiest about the reported signing to those who know Dimaggio best was the idea that he had made so momentous a decision on his own hook. It's well known that the San Francisco Dimaggios, including the aunts, uncles and cousins, get their heads together on a thing of that sort.

But there seems to be no doubt in anybody's mind that Dimaggio is destined eventually to become the second highest paid player in the history of the game though the Yanks will keep a tighter rein on him than they did not the Babe.

LADY LUCK HAS CHANCE TONIGHT

TORONTO, Jan. 7 (CP)—Lady Luck who has played some queer quirks in her time, couldn't pick a better spot to come through with another than in the game tonight between Toronto Goodyears and Kitchener Greenshirts.

Goodyears are heading the Senior A Ontario Hockey Association race now with an unbeaten record of five games, while the Greenshirts, stuck in last place, have yet to mark up their first victory of the season. The best they have done is a tie against Brantford Rangers.

The Toronto-Kitchener clash at Toronto heads a two-game bill for the night. Port Colborne Sailors, in second place only two points away from Goodyears, travel to Brantford to play Rangers there and nothing would please the Sailors more than a Kitchener victory.

Goodyears have met Kitchener only once this season, while Sailors won their only game against Rangers. However, a victory for Rangers would put them into third place in the league standing ahead of the idle Oshawa G-men.

INTERMEDIATE BEES CONTINUE PETERBOROUGH'S VICTORY MARCH

Bees Buzz Over Ports To Cop 4-1 Decision In Intermediate Tilt

Herb Payne's Gang Start Off With Win In Fast Game With Ontarios

The local Bees buzzed through Port Hope last night for a 4-1 verdict over the Ontarios on the latter's ice to open the O.H.A. intermediate "B" schedule for Peterborough. It was the third win in as many nights for local O.H.A. squads. Over 400 fans saw a rousing and fast struggle between two good outfits.

Drawing players from Bowmanville and around the district, the Hopers turned out a surprisingly fast, fighting band of players who gave the Petes a battle from bell to bell. The visitors found it hard to get up real speed or make good passes on the small ice surface, but they did pull some neat combination in every period and skated faster tha nthe homsters. They had an edge most of the way, but had to fight it out for every point.

With both defences bouncing incoming forwards hard, and close-checking up front, tempers became frayed and the contest was plenty rough in spots. Several near-fights were quelled, and there was much elbowing and slashing. The Bees drew six of the 10 penalties handed out. The score was 1-1 in the first period and 3-1 going into the third.

Clarke Goes Good

Clarke shone in goal with a fine performance, booting out a bunch of drives by the scrappy white-sweatered squad. He had a strong defence in front of him in Magee and Ellis, with Weir and Townley alternating. Townley showed promise on the rearguard, while Weir played his usual steady senior style. Ellis (like Weir) was in on two goals and flashed some sparkling work both ways. Magee's thumping body-checks slowed the Hopers up repeatedly, Mick having a grand evening dumping his opponents. There was little to choose between the front lines, the Coughlin-Burton-Gardner line looking good most of the way and the Heal-Hill-Creighton crew about as effective. Burton scored two goals. Brereton went well in the losers' net and his defence hit hard but missed checks, too. The first front line was most effective.

The Littlock gang got an early lead when Burton blazed an angle shot from defence and it fooled the goalie. Cameron and Gardner roughed it up and drew penalties, with Magee later going off for charging. Five Port Hope players pressed for a time, and finally Jackman took Cameron's pass to sew up the count. When Crawford drew the gate for tripping, the Bees swarmed in but ineffectually. The visitors had an edge in this bruising and speedy stanza but it was slight as the home crew kept fighting back hard.

Bees Get Lead

The middle heat was four minutes old when Creighton scored in close with a hard drive on assists from Weir and Ellis. This was a rough stanza with both sides showing hard feelings and laying on the gad or knocking rivals flat with body-checks. Rowden and Townley got the finger for roughing it, with Magee going later for boarding. He was just back when Burton climbed the boards for tripping. Burton got back in time to score a late goal on a passout from Coughlin. Again the Payne players had a slight edge on play in a fast, bruising period, during which Magee's bodying on defence was a big factor in keeping the Hopers shooting from well out.

Weir scored the final goal of the game on a nice pass from Ellis on a rink-length rush by the pair in the first three minutes of play. Jack Gardner got the gate for interference and the locals had to hustle to hold out the ganging Ontarios till Rowden was chased for slashing. While he was off the Petes pressed hard but failed to count again. The Bees missed half a dozen fine scoring chances as they held an edge on play toward the end. Play was not so rough but just as fast during the third canto, with the Hopers ganging up several times in a desperate attempt to get back in the hunt, but it was unavailing.

Hockey's Big 7

(By the Canadian Press.)

Despite Toronto's 6-3 defeat by Maroons, Gordon Drillon increased his lead over other National Hockey League scorers last night by bagging a goal and an assist to raise his point total to 27. Syl Apps figured in both goals with Drillon and stepped into a tie for second place in the Big Seven with Cecil Drillon of Rangers, who scored once as his team downed Chicago 4-1. Marty Barry of Detroit kept going by adding an assist in the 1-1 tie with Americans, while Nels Stewart and Sweeney Schriner of Amerks and Harvey Jackson of Toronto did not figure in the scoring, but held their places among the top seven.

TORONTO BOXERS TIE LOCAL SCORE IN AMATEUR SHOW

Bev. Carter and Joe Genovese, headlining a capable troupe of Toronto boxers from the Arena Athletic Club stables of Manager Green, evened their respective scores with Nick Orlando and Len Minnicola of the local Riverview Athletic Club in a classy fight card in the Armouries last night when over a thousand excited fans braved the frigid weather and saw Carter and Genovese win decisions over the two boys who had been given the nod in the previous battles here.

A couple of the bouts were badly matched but that was the only flaw in what proved to be a very entertaining program. There was one knockout and another technical one, plenty of action all the way and the card was run off in good style by the officials, Harry Hance the third man in the ring, Judges Archie Menzies and Wilf. Jones and Announcer Fred Scates.

Carter a loose, fast-moving colored boy, with a rapier-like left, proved last night that he also had a good right in his repertoire and his speed and cleverness were enough to earn him a cleancut win over Orlando although the former Montreal lightweight gave him a good argument over most of the journey. Orlando tried to carry the fight to the colored boy from the first bell but Carter was a very elusive target and was hard to hit effectively while at the same time he flicked that fast left of his in often enough to pile up a big point total and once in a while tossed in a right that stung. The decision was well earned.

A Tough Battle

Minnicola and Genovese renewed their all-Italian duel in a hammer-and-tongs argument that required an extra round before the officials decided that the Toronto boy had earned the verdict. The affair was called a draw at the end of the scheduled five two-minute rounds and in the extra 120 seconds, Genovese's aggressiveness carried him through to victory. He had the edge over most of the distance but Minnicola, tough as always, absorbed all that was handed out without much sign of distress. It was a real battle, with the two roughing each other in the clinches and shoving each other round the ring and sometimes almost through the ropes.

Art Darnborough of Toronto scored a technical knockout over Norman Bowler of the Riverview Club in the other semi-final bout. Darnborough, a hard-hitting welter, who won a knockout on his last appearance here, carried far too heavy guns for Bowler, and although the latter tried gamely he was in distress early in the battle and the Toronto boy, obviously reluctant to cu loose with a lethal punch, looked as if he could have wound the affair up sooner. Bowler was about out on his feet when the bout was stopped. Darnborough packs a punch that is like a kick from a mule and is a rugged, clever boxer who should go places.

A Peterborough Winner

Paddy Jordan of Peterborough was the only local entry to score a victory over a Toronto competitor. He was stacked up against Tommy Foster, a fast colored boy, and he won principally on the strength of knocking the Arena lad over a couple of times. Up to the time Jordan caught the colored flash going away and dropped him with a punch to the jaw in the third round Foster, doing practically all the leading, was out in front. He took a nine-count on that smash and although he apparently was unhurt, the tide had turned against him especially as he went down again a little later.

Bill Joiner of Peterborough had four pounds weight advantage and height and reach on Phil Morris of Toronto but the experience of the well-seasoned Toronto boy made the bout very one-sided. Joiner was game and gave every ounce he had but the visitor knew too much for him and took all five rounds by a good margin.

Two local boys, Jack O'Neill and Joe Hobbins staged a lively battle with O'Neill finally winning by a knockout in an extra round ordered by the judges. From the side it looked as if that K.O. might have been averted for O'Neill could easily have been given the decision at the end of the scheduled three rounds. He landed oftener and harder than his opponent, although the latter did not back up any. O'Neill made a quick job of it when an extra round was ordered, dropping his opponent for the count.

The curtain-raiser was provided by two 85-pound kids, Buddy Redmond and Harry Quirt, who gave a lively exhibition for two rounds in a no-decision affair. The crowd gave the youngsters a hand for their smart performance.

It was a good card and will add to the prestige of the Riverview Club which has given local fight fans two fine entertainments and put itself in good position to stage other fight programs later on in the season.

N.H.L. All-Stars

(By the Canadian Press.)

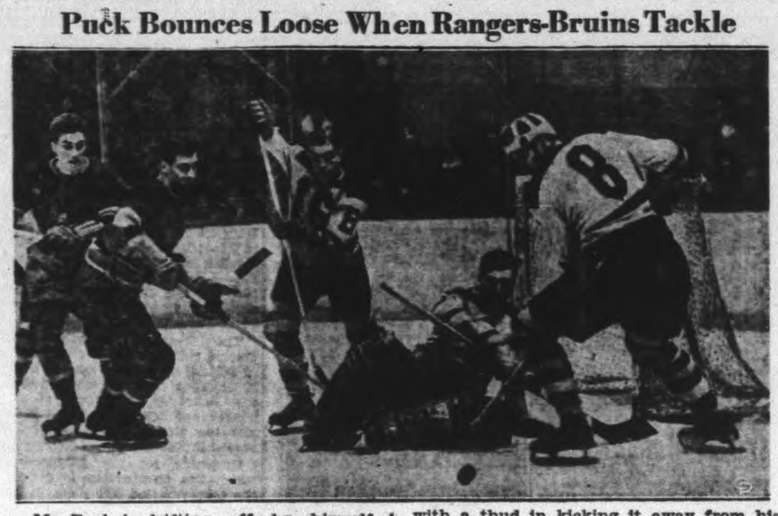
Phil Watson, Rangers, laid down passes that brought first two goals, as Blueshirts broke long jinx over Chicago 4-1.

Larry Aurie, Detroit, scored tying goal in late minutes as Red Wings held Americans to 1-1 draw in New York.

Hooley Smith, Americans, scored goal against Detroit which brought Amerks to within one point of first-place Toronto Maple Leafs.

Baldy Northcott, Maroons, scored one goal and assisted in two others in 6-3 drubbing of Toronto.

Puck Bounces Loose When Rangers-Bruins Tackle



Mr. Puck is drifting off by himself (foreground) as blue-shirted Rangers and the burly Bruins from Boston struggle to get possession, but that's quite all right with Boston's Mr. Thompson who sat down with a thud in kicking it away from his net. Jack Portland is the Bean-eater assisting Thompson and Art Jackson is the fellow-Bruin shoving through the centre. The point-hunting Rangers are Dillon in the front and Mac Colville.

TORONTO BEATEN IN STORMY TILT ON MONTREAL ICE

MONTREAL, Jan. 7 — (CP) — Grudge fights are still part of big-time hockey despite the uplighting influenceof white shirt fronts, upholstered seats and $7,000 salaries. Refinement, carefully taught by the magnates in recent years, is forgotten quickly whn the boys really get a good hate on.

It was that way at Montreal last night when Maroons and Toronto Maple Leafs clashed in a National league game that has everything for the red-blooded fan who likes at least one fight a period.

Arising from Frank Clancy's departure from the post of Maroon manager and coach, ill-feeling gripped both teams and brought several fist fights and 13 penalties, including two majors and two match sentences.

Leaf friends of Clancy, former Toronto defenceman, had promised to "rub it in" when they met Maroons. Which teams came off with the fewer bruises is a dressing-room secret but Maroons left no doubt who won the game. They plastered a 6-3 beating on the sections-leading Leafs and delighted in doing it.

They got all the more pleasure out of it because New York Americans were playing a 1-1 tie with Detroit Red Wings and so moved up to within one point of Conny Smythe's Leafs. Tommy Gorman's team also improved their own position by winning from Leafs, moving to within seven points of the third-place Montreal Canadiens.

But it is doubtful if anyone got more pleasure out of the evening of hockey than Manager Jack Adams of Detroit. He saw his team go undefeated for the second straight game and creep to within three points of Chicago Black Hawks, beaten 4-1 by New York Rangers in Chicago last night.

Exultant over the Maroon win, Manager Gorman laughed merrily after his first victory this season as Maroon coach. "We'll meet them at their own blue line every time," he said of Leafs. Then he added that Smythe had been trying to run Maroons by remote control long enough. "Now we're going to run it ourselves." The remark was not explained.

The opening period of the game brought the first and most furious flurry of fists between Leafs and Maroons. Red Horner and Jimmy Ward started swinging at each other and almost every player on both teams got into the battle.

The Leaf defenceman and Ward were separated but they started fighting again on the penalty bench and each drew a major and a match penalty. There were plenty of bruises on both teams and even Johnny Mitchell caught a few of the swinging fists and came up with a badly swollen face. Other fistic bouts brought minor penalties later in the contest.

Goal Scorers.

Gordon Drillon had scored for Toronto before the big fight, but shortly after the ice was cleared Bob Gracie tied the score with Buzz Boll of Leafs off and Herb Cain, Cy Wentworth and Russ Blinco made it 4-1 before the period ended.

The scoring ended in the second with each team taking two. Stew Evans and Baldy Northcott raised Maroons' total to six and Nick Metz and Syl Apps scored for Toronto.

Hooley Smith scored his third goal in two games to bring Americans their counter in the tie at New York. The Hooligan beat Norm Smith late in the first period and the teams battled through a strenuous middle session and most of the third before Larry Aurie gave Red Wings the split in points.

Alex Shibicky and Butch Keeling sent Rangers away to a first period lead at Chicago with Doc Romnes scoring the only Hawk counter in that period. Cecil Dillon scored for the New Yorkers in the second frame and Bryan Hextall added another in the final period.

Senior "B" Teams Play Here Tonight

A bitter battle is expected to open the O.H.A. senior "B" schedule here tonight (Friday) at 8.30 in the Brock St. rink when Trenton Fliers clash with the Petes. These old-time rivals (Fliers won the title after eliminating the Petes in 1937) show no love for each other, and the Airmen are particularly peeved over losing out, 10-5, in overtime to the locals last Tuesday in Belleville. They claim they were robbed when the tying goal in the third went in as the gong sounded to end the period. Both teams are full of fight and do not hesitate to bump each other around. Aside from Lowry, the Fliers are intact from last year, and they are in fine condition, having played eight games so far. They are fast, tricky and have a powerful defence.

Pick Hines' Petes this year look classy, too. Building around several stars of last year, the team has added three fine former junior aces, and two newcomers to town. They are in fair condition and feel confident after their victory of Tuesday night. They also beat Belleville, and a win tonight will cinch them top place in the group for some time to come. This tussle will be a torrid one from the first bell, both sides flashing speed, smart hockey and lots f fight. It shuld fill the rink with redhot hockey fans.

FIRED FROM CLUB SAYS KING CLANCY

TORONTO, Jan. 7. (CP).—King Clancy, whose reign as coach of Montreal Maroons ended December 30, clarified the atmosphere surrounding his departure from the club Wednesday.

The King said: "I didn't resign. I guess I was fired."

Here to visit his mother before leaving on a holiday trip to Florida. The veteran hockey star refused to discuss further his relations with the Maroons or any other National League club.

"As far as I'm concerned the whole thing is closed," he said. "In two weeks I'm going south for a holiday. "I don't know where I stand in hockey and Im just taking things easy. I have no plans.

"The Montreal incident is closed."

President Tommy Gorman announced December 30 that Clancy had resigned as coach. Gorman himself reassumed charge of the team on the ice, at least temporarily.

Maroons were in last place in the Canadian section, having won only six of 18 games played under Clancy. They are still at the bottom, having dropped two games over the week-end to New York Americans.

SEVENTY-NINE NOMINATIONS FOR NATIONAL

LONDON, Jan. 7 (CP).—A Toronto owned jumper was nominated on Thursday with seventy-eight other horses for the 1938 renewal of the world's most famous steeplechase, the Grand National.

H. R. Bain of Toronto nominated his Rock Lad to face the starter at Aintree March 25 with the cream of Britain's stables and seven American-owned jumpers.

Probably not more than half of those nominated will actually face the gruelling test. Last year sixty were originally named, but only thirty-three raced.

The first four finishers of the 1937 race, Royal Mail, Cooleen, Puckabelle and Ego all were entered for another try, as was Pecrsik, sixth among the seven that completed the course. Davy Jones, near-winner in 1936, also was nominated.

Such former favorites as Reynoldstown, winner in 1935 and 1936, and Golden Miller, the 1934 winner, were among the missing.

Sir Francis Towle, owner of Airgead Sios, which has been 16 to 1 in winter betting, said his ace jumper would not start unless given "fair weight."

HOG PRICES EASE CALVES, LAMBS UP IN WEEK'S SALES

TORONTO, January 7 — (CP). — Cattle held steady on the Toronto Live Stock Market this week with the exception of medium quality weighty steers which were fully 25 cents lower, the Dominion Live Stock Branch reported. Calves advanced 50 cents to $1.00 in the initial session, but dropped 50 cents on Wednesday. Hogs were down 25 cents from last week's top. Lambs gained 25 cents and sheep were 25 to 50 cents higher.

Lowering of the United States tariff on Canadian cattle had no effect on the market as only a few bulls were shipped across the border. Overseas buyers took 330 steers and bulls for Great Britain, paying $5.50 to $6.50 for medium to good steers averaging around 1,160 pounds.

A fe wsmall lots of choice 1,350-pound steers sold at $7 to $7.60. Good butcher steers and heifers were generally $5.50 to $5.75, with a top load of heifers bringing $6.00. Common butchers ranged down to $3.50 and $4. Butcher cows brought $4 to $4.50 for tops, with plain downward to $3. Canners and cutters were mosly $2.25 to $2.75.

Good butcher bulls traded at $4 to $4.50, and bolognas at $3.50 to $3.75. Medium to good fed calves brought $6 to $8, with a few choice reaching $9. The few stockers offered moved between $4 and $4.50.

Milkers Go Slowly.

Milkers and springers moved slowly at $40 to $70 each.

Top veal calves brought $11 on Monday. Trade weakened later in the week as export orders were filled. The close was at $10 to $10.50 for choice, with lights downward to $6. A few heavy Westerners sold at $7 cwt.

Off-truck bacon hogs closed at $8.50, with further declines in prospect. Sows were quoted at $5.50 to $6.00 cwt.

The lamb run included 400 from the West. Good ewes and wethers sold at $6 to $6.25, with all the Westerns at the higher price. One small lot of Ontario lambs reached $8.35. Other grades ranged from $6 to $7.50. Good light ewes were priced at $4 to $5 cwt. on the sheep section with one deck from the West going at $5.

JUBILANT FRIENDS FINED $1 EACH

throughout Canada, were named as the losers.

Throughout the night Solloway and about a dozen friends remained in the courtroom on the second floor of Toronto's City Hall. Judge O'Connell spent most of the time in his private chambers, but J. W. McFadden, K.C., Crown counsel, and R. I. Ferguson, K.C., defence counsel, remained in the courtroom.

Solloway Jokes Time Away.

Apparently not at all nervous, Solloway walked about the oak-panelled room chatting with friends and making joking sallies. Twice coffee was brought in to him during the long hours of waiting during which the jurymen three times sent out for refreshments. Occasionally Solloway would take a short walk in the corridors.

Mrs. Ferguson, wife of the defence counsel, also spent the night waiting for the result. She quietly knitted a pair of socks in a corner of the room.

At 3.54 a.m. the jury returned to the courtroom and told Judge O'Connell it could not come to an agreement as to what it should do if Solloway, given money by clients to purchase stocks on margin, honestly believed the money was entrusted to him to do with as he wished. Fresh instructions were requested.

Judge O'Connell said the jury must consider what a businessman's attitude would be if he were given money with which to purchase goods. For the jury to convict, it must consider there had been "consciousness of wrongdoing." Defence counsel's objections to certain points in Judge O'Connell's ruling were overruled.

One of the longest ever held in Toronto, the trial entered its 35th day at midnight. During four days on the stand in his own defence, the former broker flatly denied all charges.

The Crown's Charges

In his charge to the jury, Judge O'Connell said the Crown charged that money was paid to Solloway by clients with instructions to buy stock, that Solloway failed to buy it and converted the funds to his own use "and therefore stole it." It also was charged, he said, that Solloway had reported to customers that the stock had been bought when it had not been.

"Assuming that the broker takes an order to buy and decided not to buy, he is gambling against his client," the judge said. "And if he goes short against his own client and puts his client's money in his own pocket, he is guilty of theft."

The trial was the latest in a series of legal proceedings dating back to the months following the 1929 market collapse. At Calgary in June, 1930, Solloway was fined $225,000 and sentenced to four months' imprisonment on charges of "bucketing" and "attempting to affect the market value of stocks."

On Oct. 29, 1930, he was fined $200,000 in Toronto after pleading guilty to a charge of "gaming in stocks." He was acquitted by a jury in Toronto in April, 1931, on charges of theft.

Old Pals Stand By

TORONTO, Jan. 7.—(CP)—Two old-time northern Ontario gold prospectors, "pals" of Isaac W. C. Solloway in the days when the former Toronto broker roamed the north in search of the yellow metal, stood by him today as Solloway awaited the verdict of a general sessions jury that deliberated his guilt or innocence on charges of theft.

Throughout the night in a dingy courtroom in Toronto's city hall, Sam Sainsbury and Peter Roche remained with Solloway, telling to all who would listen tales of the days when the three of them staked claims in the north. Both are wrinkled with years of life in the open. Sam is nearly bald now, and his short partner is putting on weight.

They came to town "to see how Solly turns out." To them, there never was any doubt as to the verdict. Their old pale just wasn't guilty of anything. Not old Solly.

Sam cooked the wedding breakfast—corn fritters — for Solloway and his bride when they were married in the north years ago. Mr. and Mrs. Solloway honeymooned at an isolated camp and took Sam with them as Cook.

A fine of $1,000 was imposed in Toronto Police Court on Hiram Walker and Sons Limited, of Windsor, on a charge of illegally advertising liquor in a Christmas folder.

The administration at Washington yesterday defeated an attempt by Southern Senators to set aside consideration of the anti-lynching bill.

Edward Lapointe, working on a farm near Kingston, suffered severe hip and chest injuries when he was buried by silage while working in a silo.

PLANNING "AT HOME"

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Jan. 7. — Arrangements were completed for an "At Home" to be held by the Catholic Women's League on January 14 in Lynch's Hall. Final plans were laid out by the president, Mrs. J. A. MacDonald, at their regular monthly meeting held in the Parish Hall last night.

Reports of activities of the various committees for the year were given. Mrs. T. A. Walsh and Mrs. Dunlay gave reports on the relief given to the needy during the Christmas season.

Jean Batten Honored

Jean Batten, famous New Zealand woman flier, is pictured (BELOW) in London as she was presented with the trophy by W. J. Jordan, High Commissioner for New Zealand, in commemoration of her flight from England to New Zealand last year. The aeroplane on the trophy is a replica of Miss Batten's ship.

OBITUARY

EDWARD J. PERRAULT.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Jan. 6. — The funeral of the late Edward J. Perrault, familiar figure in this village as poll clerk for over thirty years, was held on Wednesday morning from Tedford & McEachnie Funeral Parlors to the Church of Our Lady of Mount Carmel. The Requiem High Mass was sung by Father Costello. In the sermon Father Costello said the late Mr. Perrault was a very honest man and his word was as good as his bond. He fulfilled his church duties well and was prepared for death. Mr. Perrault was a familiar figure to the entire congregation for many years as collector.

The deceased was a lifetime resident of this neighborhood, born in Percy Township 63 years ago. He worked for Fred Fowlds in the grist mill, and later clerked in Phillip Kennedy's store for a number of years. He also clerked in T. A. Coughlan's store and of late years had assisted other merchants.

The pall-bearers were: T. J. Lynch (village), Leo Cleary, John Doherty, John Sullivan, William West, and T. A. Coughlan.

He leaves to mourn his passing one sister, Mrs. James Murphy, Peterborough, one nephew, James Perrault, Hastings, and two nieces, Margaret and Marie Perrault of Welland. Interment was made in Warkworth R.C. Cemetery.

MRS. SAMUEL ROBBINS

(Examiner Correspondence.)

BANCROFT, Jan. 6.—Following a lingering illness the death occurred near Baptiste of Mrs. Samuel Robbins, aged 71 years, one of Hershal Township's oldest pioneers. She had been suffering from cancer for a number of years, but her death came as a shock to her relatives and friends.

She leaves to mourn her loss, her husband Mr. Samuel Robbins, six sons, Frederick, William, George, Walter, Harvey and Ervin and two daughters, Mrs. Alex Southerland and Mrs. William Young.

The funeral was held from her late residence near Baptiste to Zion Church, Hybla, Ont., where the services were conducted by Rev. W. J. Davis of Bancroft. Interment took place in Zion Church Cemetery.

ALEXANDER HENRY ADAM

(Examiner Correspondence.)

FOWLERS CORNERS, Jan. 7. — The community was shocked to learn of the death on January 4 in Nicholls Hospital, of Alex Adam, dearly beloved and only child of Mr. and Mrs. George Adam, and grandson of deputy-reeve, Harry Fowler and Mrs. Fowler.

On January 27 of last year, the little lad who was in his 12th year, fractured his leg while sleigh-riding and since then has been confined to bed for long periods. Alex was a pupil at Lily Lake (S. S. No. 1) school and his cheerful disposition made him a favorite with his playmates.

Suffering untold agony at times, he always welcomed his visitors at the hospital with a smile.

The funeral was held on Thursday, January 6, from Belleghem's Funeral Home, at 2 o'clock p.m. being conducted by the Rev. Dr. A. T. Barr, who spoke from the text "Suffer Little children to come unto me and forbid them not, for of such is the Kingdom of Heaven."

The many lovely floral tributes and the great many friends and neighbors who attended the funeral testified to the high esteem in which the late Alex Adam was held.

Burial was made in Little Lake cemetery.

MRS. SARAH GANNON

(Examiner Correspondence.)

BANCROFT, Jan. 7.—Following a lingering illness, the death occurred on Monday morning, January 3 of Sarah McNally, widow of the late Michael Gannon, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. John Daedy of Maynooth. She was in her eighty-fifth year, and all her life she had been a member of the Roman Catholic Church.

She leaves to mourn her loss four daughters, Mrs. John Daedy of Maynooth; Mrs. Ryan of Picton; Mrs. James McAlpine of Cherry Valley, Ont., and Mrs. Peter Whalen of Deseronto.

The funeral was held at nine o'clock Wednesday morning from her late residence to St. Ignatius R. C. Church, Maynooth, where Requiem Mass was celebrated by Rev. Father T. J. Brady, P.P. The funeral sermon was preached by Rev. Father L. J. Kennedy of Bancroft. Interment took place in the R.C. cemetery, Maynooth.

DONATION IS MADE TO HASTINGS RINK

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Jan. 7.—The first meeting of the Hastings Women's Institute for the New Year was held on Tuesday, January 4th, in the council chambers. Due to the illness of the president, Mrs. C. M. Baker, the meeting was presided over by the vice-president, Mrs. G. Kerr.

Mrs. J. A. Brown gave an account of the Christmas cheer. Through the generosity of the council, who donated $10 towards this worthy cause, and with the help of J. A. Brown and O. Phillips who assisted in the distribution and with the $10 donated by the Institute, the members were able to help in a great many ways. Fourteen baskets containing fruits, nuts, canned goods, clothing, candy, some with meat loaves and other necessities, and one beautiful wool quilt, were given to the needy. And fruit and Christmas cards sent to the shut-ins. As far as possible each store received a share of the trade. Several members of the Institute worked faithfully for days and Mrs. G. Kerr made the ten meat loaves in her own home.

Correspondence included: Two "thank you" notes, one received after the meeting from those who received Christmas cheer. A hand book received from the department to be passed among the members.

Business resulted as follows: Decided to recompense Mr. Phillips for assisting in the distribution of the Christmas cheer. A note of sympathy will be sent to Mrs. E. Birdsall, president of the Westwood Institute, in her bereavement in the loss of her mother-in-law, Mrs. E. Birdsall.

Five dollars will be donated towards the maintenance of the Hastings rink and to be given to the manager, H. Scriver, whose kindness in admitting the children free every afternoon of the week could not pass unnoticed.

The February meeting was discussed and will be held in the evening in the Town Hall, the date arranged later. The meeting will be in the form of a Valentine Party. And anyone who desires to become a member may attend by paying her fees as there will be no admission. All members are requested to attend with their husbands and one other couple. The program will include progressive euchre and a picture contest of "Early pictures of now famous men." (Husbands).

Mrs. J. A. MacDonald gave an exceptionally interesting and helpful paper on "The responsibilities of the Institute in public health."

A vote of thanks was extended to all those who worked so well at Christmas time to bring cheer to so many homes and then an enjoyable time was spent as refreshments were served.

LOAN FIRMS MUST GIVE ACCOUNTING

also should be construed as part of the interest rate."

In the summonses, it was charged that in some cases interest rates as high as 304 per cent. were being charged borrowers. Several cases were listed where it was alleged the rate charged was 288 per cent. The lowest rate mentioned in the summonses was 54 per cent.

Summonses were issued against the following companies: Economy Finance Corporation, Limited; Imperial Finance Company; the Capital Discount Company; the Acme Finance Corporation; Contract Discounts, Limited; the Honor Loan System and the Empire Stamp Company.

BARBER CASE UPHELD

TORONTO, Jan. 7—(CP). — Mr. Justice Greene in a judgment delivered to-day at Osgoode Hall upholds an acquittal by Magistrate J. E. Jones of three Toronto barbers who were charged with breaking the Ontario Industrial Standards Act by charging less than 40 cents for a haircut.

ANNUAL REPORT MILLBROOK L. A.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, Jan. 7. — The Ladies' Aid of Grace Presbyterian church held its annual meeting at the church on Wednesday, with Mrs. J. R. Thompson in the chair. Mrs. M. Kinsman read the lesson and the leader offered prayer.

The annual report of the secretary showed eleven meetings held in 1937, and the activities included an Irish tea in March; a garden party in June; lunches served at the July Twelfth celebration held here; the dinner on the fair grounds in October; the hot supper in November; and the bazaar and hot supper served in December.

The treasurer reported total amount raised in the twelve months as $773.47; balance on hand, $223.66. A generous donation was voted to the Board of Managers of the church, and it was noted that $49.30 was the amount taken in at the bazaar in December.

Reporting for the groups into which the membership is divided, the money raised left them in the following standing: Mrs. R. J. McKnight's group, first; Mrs. James Kennedy; Mrs. N. Belch, Mrs. Harry Ball; Mrs. Z. Seaton; and Miss Mina Gibson.

Rev. H. R. Williams took the chair for the election of officers, the slate for 1938 being:

Honorary president, Mrs. James H. Paul; president, Mrs. J. R. Thompson; vice-presidents, Mrs. H. A. Kerr, Mrs. T. C. Ingram, Mrs. R. J. McKnight, Mrs. James Kennedy; secretary, Mrs. Mervan Kinsman; treasurer, Miss Jean Syer.

Following the election, it was decided that the society will serve tea at the annual congregational meeting which will be held during the week of January 16, the exact date to be announced later. Also, on motion, a new feature will be introduced into regular meetings in this year, when the roll will be called at each meeting — a practice not hitherto followed in the Ladies' Aid gatherings.

The pastor dismissed the meeting with prayer.

Revenue Figures Up $61,159,455

OTTAWA, Jan. 7—(CP).—National revenue figures released today by Hon. J. L. Ilsley, Minister of National Revenue, show that net collections from customs, excise and income tax for the nine months period, April 1 to Dec. 31, 1937, were $359,319,270. This compares with $298,159,815 collected during the corresponding period of 1936, a net gain of $61,159,455.

Customs-excise revenue which totalled $251,928,436, an increase of $45,268,762, was made up as follows: Customs duties $73,230,740, increase $11,720,375; excise taxes $136,343,681, increase $27,712,242; excise duties $41,749,167, increase $5,864,468; sundry collections $604,848, increase $71,677.

Income tax revenue climbed to $107,390,833 for the first nine month of this fiscal year, a net gain of $15,790,692 over the same period of 1936.

30 DAYS IN JAIL

STRATFORD, Ont., Jan. 7 (C.P.). —Thomas Syrett, Stratford, was sentenced to 30 days in jail when he pleaded guilty to-day to a charge of reckless driving. He also had his driver's license suspended for six months. Traffic Officer Calendar of Mitchell said Syrett had been drinking when his car left the highway near Mitchell last night.

HAVELOCK JUNIOR W.I. PLANS SHOWER

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, Jan. 7.—The regular January meeting of the Havelock Branch Junior Women's Institute was held on Wednesday evening, with a good attendance. The meeting opened with the Institute Ode, followed by the roll call, which was responded to with "An Economical Hint."

At the next regular meeting a teaspoon shower will be held for the organization. The annual Institute "At Home" will be held on Monday, February 14, in the Havelock Town Hall. The members donated the sum of $5.00 to the Senior Institute to assist in providing milk for the school

The "Milky Way" project will commence on Wednesday, January 12, under the direction of Mrs. John Armstrong. This series of meetings will be held in the Council Chambers.

An interesting programb included a talk on "Home Economics" by Mrs. Armstrong, and a solo entitled "Still as the Night," by Miss Barbara Fennell.

Lunch was served by Miss Lillian Plunkett, refreshment convenor for that evening.

79 HORSES NOMINATED

LONDON, Jan. 7—(AP).—Seventy-nine horses fere nominated for the Grand National steeplechase at Aintree, March 26. This represented an increase of 19 compared with the nominations for the 1937 race, won by Hugh Lloyd Thomas' Royal Mail.

COMMITTEE NAMED TO STUDY SCHOOL TEACHERS' SALARIES

Will Compare Salaries Paid With Those Of Other Cities Same Size As Peterborough

Revision Of Schedules Is Discussed By Several Members Of Board

Chosen for their business experience, Trustees Charles Shaw, W. A. Richardson, D. G. H. Melton, and John R Marshall, together with Dr. G. Raymore Scott, chairman of the Board were named as a special committee following the inaugural meeting of the 1938 Board of Education last night.

Named at a meeting of the Committee on Appointments (which is composed of the whole Board under chairmanship of Mr. Marshall), the special committee was instructed to secure facts and comparative figures relative to teacher's salaries in Peterborough and other Ontario centres of smiliar size. They are to report back to the committee at a meeting to be called in the near future by Secretary G. H. Thompson. Mr. Marshall advised the need of quick action, because the matter has to be decided before estimates for the current year can be struck.

Action of the committee resulted from discussion of the recent request of Collegiate and public school teachers of the city for restoration of pay cuts. During the depression period teacher's salaries were subject to a reduction of 15 per cent. Five per cent of this cut was formerly restored by the Board, but the teachers are seeking to get back the outstanding 10 per cent. They contend they are justified in making the request, pointing out that business conditions have improved to such an extent that several local firms have seen fit to restore depression salary cuts and in some cases to pay bonuses to their employees. They argue also that the cost of living has increased.

Restoration of teachers' salaries to the pre-depression level, it was stated would involve the Board in an expenditure of almost $26,000. The increase on the public school account would approximate $15,000 and $10,700 on the Collegiate account, the secretary of the Board said.

Summoning his committee after the business of the Board was concluded, Mr. Marshall declared that while they could not hope to reach a decision relative to the request of the teachers that night, he would like some expressions of opinion. "It is largely a question of how much money the Board will have after the estimates are struck," he opined.

Urging the question was one for very serious consideration, Dr. A. Moir expressed the opinion the Board should go into the matter carefully and make comparisons with other cities of similar size.

Urges Schedule Revision

In subsequent discussion he said that when the reductions were put into effect no promise was made to the teachers as to when the cuts would be restored. "The salary schedules were revised in 1930," Dr. Moir recalled, "and when the depression hit us we had to do something about it and were forced to make a 15 per cent cut in salaries." He felt the time had perhaps come when salary schedules should again undergo complete revision to comply with present conditions.

"I want to be fair to the teachers; but we cannot vote public monies without being sure why we are voting it," he contended.

Mr. Marshall did not believe the Board was in the position to ask the city for more money, and agreed with Dr. Moir there might be something in the suggestion that schedules be revised. He suggested appointment of a special committee to deal with the question.

Feeling that the teachers of Peterborough had been the victims of a low salary schedule for some years prior to revision of the schedule in 1930, Mrs. W. R. Morris believed, "Either the schedule of 1930 is out of date or salary cuts should now be restored."

She added, "To me the only question seems to be can we afford to restore the 10 per cent or should we just restore 5 per cent at this time. I feel there should be some restoration."

Favors Restoration

Dr. C. M. Scott remarked, "Most of us have a fair idea how we are going to vote. We have discussed the matter with teachers and amongst ourselves. I agree with Mrs. Morris we should restore the cuts as soon as we find we can do so." He believed the Board was in the position to discuss the matter and decide the teachers were entitled to some increase. "If not 10 per cent then at least 5 per cent. I feel decidedly we should restore the pay of teachers to the regular schedule," he said.

Charles Shaw did not see how the Board could take any action without being in possession of the facts. "Such an amount as this issue involves demands our most careful consideration," he stated.

When Mr. Shaw declared he would like to see a special committee formed to investigate the facts and consider them, Mrs. Morris demanded, "May I ask what Mr. Shaw means by facts."

"The full local situation," Mr. Shaw replied.

"Well, It is this. The Board has saved heavily at the expense of the teachers. Could we not make economies in other directions," Mrs. Morris countered.

"I am in favor of a restoration of pay cuts. But it is no use voicing sentiments without facts to cover them," Mr. Shaw declared. He pointed to a rise in the cost of living as one of the arguments in support of the request made by the teachers.

On motion of Dr. Moir seconded by Mrs. Morris the special committee was named, as previously stated. The proposer of the motion said he named the men he had because of their "very extensive business experience."

"It will be necessary to act quickly because of striking the estimates," Mr. Marshall warned the other members of the special committee on which he is included.

Urging the importance of getting at the total earnings of all teachers, under jurisdiction of the local Board so far as was possible, W. A. Richardson pointed out that some of them by virtue of their positions were receiving remuneration from other sources than the Board of Education. He had particular reference to earnings some teachers make in connection with government examinations, and so forth. He did not suggest any irregularities in this connection.

OUT-OF-TOWN FANS.

The boxing bouts in the armouries Thursday night attracted a number of people from all around the district. The visitors seemed to be delighted with the program and future shows will probably see more folk from out-of-town in the crowd.

BAD ICE CONDITIONS.

Roy Whetung, in town to-day from Crowe's Landing, reports conditions as bad for the annual ice harvest. The ice on the lake is not nearly thick enough yet and it is covered by many inches of snow as a result of last week's blizzard.

THE FINANCE PORTFOLIO.

In municipal circles the name of Ald. G. N. Gordon, K.C., is being mooted as a likely chairman of the Finance committee. This is one of the most important portfolios in the council list and there is a feeling that Ald. Gordon, in view of his standing in the recent election and his experience as a member of the council should be alloted the post.

MAGISTRATE'S COURT.

ATTEND ROOF FIRE.

An early morning roof fire at the old Red Arrow Tire factory premises, gave the Fire Department a run at around 6.30 o'clock. Believed caused by a defective chimney the outbreak was confined to a beam in the roof at the north end of the building. Damage would not exceed fifty dollars, the Fire Chief estimated.

IS UNDER TRANSFER

Robert J. Dotey, ticket clerk in the uptown office of Canadian National Railways here since March last, is under transfer to North Bay. He is to report for duty there on Monday morning of next week. His successor as ticket clerk here has not yet been named. Prior to coming to Peterborough Mr. Dotey was in the company's service at Sudbury.

VISITED POULTRY SHOW.

Sixty-five pupils of the King Edward school enjoyed a visit to the Poultry Show Thursday. Interest of the youngsters seemed to be concentrated in the more unusual varieties of fowl and in the special exhibit of ducks, pheasants and geese. They were under charge of a member of the school staff. Normal students paid their annual visit on Wednesday.

PLAN BANQUET

Peterborough Business Men's Association are planning a dinner meeting at Empress Hotel on the evening of February 8, it was announced today. Invitations are being sent out to over forty representatives from the various municipalities who co-operated with the Chamber of Commerce and the Central Ontario Highways Association in getting the government to take into the provincial highway system, a section of road between Peterborough, Bethany and Port Perry. James Geraghty, president of the Business Men's Association is to act as toastmaster at the dinner.

SMITH TOWNSHIP SCHOOL SECTION VOTES TO SPLIT

Ratepayers of the Millburn school section in the township of Smith accepted the plan presented by the board of trustees and unanimously decided to split the section into two parts. For some years the school on the Chemong Road has been overcrowded and the section has been paying the city to have the pupils attend the Queen Alexandra school.

With so much building going on in the north end of the city the facilities of Queen Alexandra school are becoming over taxed and the Board of Education has been forced to notify the rural board tha it could not accommodate the children from the Millburn section.

At the meeting on Thursday night which was attended by 35 ratepayers, Vivian Millburn presided and Alex Edmison, the chairman of the Board of Trustees, presented the plan to divide the section on a sixty to notify the rural board that it could ment. All farms 20 acres or over will be in the rural section, which will form 60 per cent of the assessment of the present section.

A committee composed of the three trustees, Allan T. Brown and John Servius was appointed to present the request to the township council next Monday and ask the necessary by-law be passed.

Following the passing of the by-law a limited time will be allowed for protests and then the clerk of the township will call the ratepayers of the new section together and they will elect a trustee board and make plans for building a school.

TWO-THIRDS CARS STILL ARE DRIVEN WITH OLD MARKERS

With the deadline for renewal of automobile licenses little more than a week distant, James J. Dorris official issuer for Peterborough district, has distributed less than one-third of the passenger licenses, notwithstanding they have been available since last September.

In a memorandum from J. P. Bickell, registrar of motor vehicles for the province, Mr. Dorris was advised the term for motor vehicle licenses definitely expires on January 15.

"There will be no further period of grace given," Mr. Bickell warned, "and I therefore request that you advise your local police department and newspapers to this effect so that motorists will have ample warning that 1937 permits and licenses will not be valid on the 16 instant and that those using same will be subject to prosecution."

With only 2,000 passenger license plates issued, Mr. Dorris still has over 4,000 on hand to say nothing of commercial motor vehicle licenses, which were however not specifically mentioned by Mr. Bickell.

Anticipating there would be a number of motorists content to leave their license renewals to the last minute, Mr. Dorris voiced an appeal for co-operation some weeks ago. He renewed it today, by requesting that all motorists who intend to drive their cars and who have not yet secured 1938 markers, to do so without delay to avoid the inevitable congestion in the office which promises to result.

BOGUS U.S. BILLS

WINDSOR, Ont., Jan. 7 (CP) — Counterfeit United States bills of the $10 denomination are being passed by an olive-complexioned young woman in Windsor, it has been reported to city and Royal Canadian Mounted Police at a dress shop. A girl clerk, however, suspected the bill, because of its texture, and the "passer," frightened, ran from the shop, and escaped in an automobile bearing Michigan license plates.

DIES OF EXCITEMENT

REGINA, Jan. 7—(CP).—Excitement of a hockey game in which the team he was managing lost by a single goal in the last moments, was believed to have caused the death last night of 29-year-old Russel P. Hertzog, Regina. Hertzog collapsed and died at the rink after the game. The R.C.M.P. team defeated the Soo Freighters, coached by Hertzog, 7-6 in a Commercial League game.

Relic Of Past

The trumpet held by Fire Chief George Gimblett, once belonged to the late Thomas Rutherford, chief of the old volunteer brigade. It's history appears to be lost in the past, but it is thought it was given the volunteer firemen before Chief Rutherford's day, to be used as the chief's symbol of office. It is silver plated and in good preservation. —(Examiner Staff Photo)

Seven Year Cycle Operates Whether Wanted Or Not

So Declares Rev. E. Springett Of The British Israel Federation

"The vital need of the present is recognition of the fact that there is a divine plan and purpose operating in the world and is about to come to full fruition," Rev. E. J. Springett, Dominion Commissioner of the British Isreal World Federation, told a large audience in the Legion Hall last evening.

"It must be recognized that we are the agents for administration of that plan," he stated. "There will have to be national recognition of that fact followed by national repentance and a determination to carry out the administration of all our affairs in accordance with the economic plan of the Bible."

Only Solution

The well-known British-Israel head saw this as the only solution to grave world conditions. The world was starting out 1938 in perplexity, wondering what is to happen next. He quoted Sir George Paish, prominent British economist, in saying that all signs indicate that unless the nations take action immediately, 1938 will be the worst year in the history of the world.

The United States, the entire industrial and business world in a state of instability with a new depression closing down, citizens disappointed to find the hope they expected in the President's message of the past week lacking. World councils, conferences and commissions had been held on many occasions over the past five years without the discovery of a solution to difficulties.

Debt Burden

Asserting that the only solution is the return to administration of the divine economic system as found in the Bible, Rev. Springett said: "Within that system it is not possible to accumulate the burden of debt under which the world is staggering today. The system does not allow one generation to foist payment for expenditures on another generation."

The seven year cycle of the Bible system operates whether or not the world wishes it, he continued, so the world should see that it operates beneficially. Expenditures of seven-year periods would be in accordance with income and all debts would be released at the end of the seven-year period.

Leading Evil

The speaker saw the principal evil in the modern interest system. This system permits such curious situations as the frequent discovery of taxpayers that they eventually pay twice and three times the actual original cost of a public works project which has been financed through the complex avenues of modern finance, he declared.

Rev. Springett revealed the British Israel Federation has obtained permission to present a brief to the Royal Commission when it sits in Toronto.

Allan Macnab presided over the meeting.

Tweaks A Nose

RELIC OF DAYS WHEN FIREMEN WERE VOLUNTEERS

An interesting relic of the old volunteer brigade—that was replaced by the permanent brigade almost 30 years ago—was recently disbovered in a London-street attic where it had lain forgotten for several years.

A sliver-plated speaking trumpet, once carried by the late Thomas Rutherford (and probably his predecessor), as the symbol of his office as chief of the volunteer department, it has been presented to Fire Chief George Gimblett.

Joseph Metheral, one of the survivors of the volunteer brigade, who held the rank of captain at one time remembered having seen the trumpet on several occasions during his service under Chief Rutherford, but never remembered it ever having been used as a means of amplifying the chief's commands at fires.

He agreed with a reporter, that the trumpet was probably carried by the chief of those days, more as a symbol of his authority than anything else. It must have been presented to the fire brigade before the late Chief Rutherford's day, he believed. But by whom it was presented he did not know.

Mr. Metheral served on the volunteer brigade for twenty years until it ceased to exist in 1908. Other survivors include his brother W. G. Metheral, former Assistant Chief John D. Craig, brother-in-law of the late Chief Rutherford; James Haggart, John Gibbs, Archie Moore, Art Ringer, W. R. Turner, Harry Evans, W. Evans, and H. J. Tremaine, Millbrook.

He recalled it was on July 1 almost thirty years ago that the permanent brigade relieved the volunteers of their duty. After being relieved at midnight the volunteers marched from the hall with the Fire Department Band at their head, to the tune "Boys of the Old Brigade."

When Mr. Metheral first joined he brigade, he related, the volunteers were exempt from paying their Statute Labor tax, while in addition they each received an annual gratuity of fifteen dollars. The gratuity finally rose to a maximum of one hundred dollars a year.

Two of the worst fires in his twenty years as a volunteer firefighter, he declared with emphasis, were the old China Hall and Roy's Studio fires. Both were fought at night time in 32 degrees below zero weather.

THEORY BLIGHTED MORAL PROGRESS

Large congregations again joined in the Week-of-Prayer services held in the city at All Saints' Anglican and Mark Street United churches Thursday evening. Rev. E. W. Young of St. Andrew's, preached at All Saints' and Rev. V. R. Zufelt occupied the Mark Street pulpit.

"The theory that business is business has blighted the moral progress of mankind," Rev. Young declared. "Many men have refused to let the spiritual vision into the store and factory." He condemned the attitude that religious worship may be divorced from life and man may be a devout worshipper on Sunday and a hard-boiled business man on Monday. There is a dynamic in pardon, he said, but the conversion that is only a shaking up of the emotions does not accomplish much. There must be an ethical element in all true religious themes, he asserted.

Rev. Zufelt spoke from the text, "The Kingdom is like to a grain of mustard seed," Matthew 13:31. The Kingdom of God is a growing thing which does not come by social revolution or by loud acclaim, he said. It has "quiet powers of growth."

The speaker said there is a disinterest in missions because the success of missions is not widely heralded. Yet success is assured where the seeds of truth are sown, he declared.

At All Saints' Rev. J. D. Paterson presided, Rev. E. W. Rowland presiding at Mark Street. Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe assisted at the East City service.

Forming Of Public Opinion In Homes, Urged By Tooms

Personal Responsibility Highly Important To Success Of C.C.F. Movement

In an address to the C. C. F. club last night, Thomas Tooms, former M. L. A., said its development as a political force depended upon the personal initiative and responsibility of its members. Effective agencies of propaganda by which the purposes of an organization could be made known were the press, radio, schools, all of which were more or less influenced by the older political parties, but public opinion could be largely formed in the homes. The religion and politics of a father usually were adopted by his children.

Mr. Tooms said that according to radio address by President Roosevelt there were at present 10,000,000 unemployed in the United States. "We are likely to feel the effects of that condition because many of our great industries are affiliated with theirs. What we are trying to do is to call attention of the people to the collapse of our present economic system, and to bring about a peaceful and happy solution by means of co-operation."

The difference between British democracy and the democracy of continetal Europe essentially involved the relations between the home and the state, Mr. Tooms continued.

British people placed the home first with a right of protection by the state, but on the continent the state had became totalitarian and the home was subordinated to it. "We are advocating the basic principle of British democracy in the face of a broad tendency today toward fascism. Signs of it have appeared in the United States, and recently we have read of it even here in Canada."

So far, said Mr. Tooms, the people generally have not listened to the C.C.F. warnings and appeals, and it was in that respect a great deal had to be done to gain the ear of public opinion.

In the recent municipal elections he said William Johnston was a labor candidate. At poll No. 1 in the south ward Mr. Johnston and Mr. Glover together received 93 votes, whereas at a poll in the west ward Mr. Glover got 202 votes and Mr. Johnston only four. The people residing in the west ward showed more initiative in going out to vote for Mr. Glover than did the laboring class in supporting Mr. Johnston. For that reason, among others, Mr. Tooms stated that personal responsibility was highly important to the success of a movement such as the C. C. F.. Indifference and apathy were obstacles that had to be overcome, "and we can change things if we have a mind to do so."

Mr. Johnston was chairman of the meeting which was well attended.

ROBBED TAXIMAN YELLS, SAVES CAB

HAMILTON, Ont., Jan. 7 (CP).—Slugged over the head by two passengers who robbed him of $10, Harold Foster, driver for a taxi company, foiled an attempt to steal his taxi late last night when he clung to the keys.

The driver was sent to meet two men on Mary Street. Two young men hailed him and instructed the driver to go to a Victoria Avenue North address.

As the taxi crossed the main line of the Canadian National Railways on Victoria Avenue, the driver was struck on the head three or four times and ordered to hand over his money and leave the machine.

Foster said he handed over his receipts for the day, amounting to approximately $10, but put the ignition keys in his pocket. As he climbed out, they attacked him again, attempting to steal the keys and his wrist watch. He shouted for help and his assailants fled east on Shaw Street.

"Help me, I've been robbed," Foster gasped to Constable Alex. Arnold a few minutes later at a street intersection. He was on the point of collapse. His head was badly cut, and he was attended at a nearby hospital.

Madoc, Tweed And Marmora Trustees Organize

Plan No Additional Accommodation For New Courses Before Fall Of 1939

MARMORA, Jan. 7. — A joint meeting of the High School trustees of Madoc, Tweed and Marmora was held in Madoc High school on Tuesday evening of this week. The meeting was called to consider the question of providing additional accommodation to take up the new courses of study recommended, and in some cases demanded by the Department of Education. The courses are Manual Training and Domestic Economy. Rooms specially equipped are required to teach these courses.

Stirling trustees were invited to attend but were unable to be present. It was felt that it would be more satisfactory if the four schools in Centre Hastings decided on a joint course of action. All three Boards represented were unanimously in favour of not undertaking any new curses requiring additional accommodation before the fall of 1939.

R. A. Elliott was appointed chairman for the meeting and the ensuing year and W. E. Connor, Madoc, was appointed secretary. It was decided to meet once a year to discuss school problems of interest.

The Marmora Board were represented by R. A. Elliott, H. R. Haacke, J. O'Neill, A. Burridge, R. E. Bonter and H. W. Sabine and E. I. Gale, M.A., principal of Marmora High school, also attended.

St. Paul's Ladies' Guild.

The monthly meeting of St. Pauls Ladies Guild was held in the Parish Hall on Thursday evening with Mrs. E. Hewitt presiding. The annual financial report presented by the secretary-treasurer, Mrs. S. C. Boyd, showed receipts to be $1,091.33, the largest years aggregate in the history of the organization. Of this amount, the Guild as a whole raised $393.63 and the various groups contributed as follows: Deloro $300; Holy Trinity, $43.39; Group I, $143.25; Group II, $143.36; Group III, $70.70.

Of the large amount raised the sum of $978.05 was paid to the parish.

For the ensuing year Holy Trinity Group and Group III have been disbanded. The group system will now embrace Deloro Group and Groups I and II. Convenors are:

Deloro Group, Mrs. S. B. Wright; Group I, Mrs. E. Hewitt; Group II, Mrs. H. B. Smith.

The new officers are: Honorary president, Mrs. (Rev.) A. B. Caldwell; President, Mrs. E. Hewitt; Vice-Presidents, Mesdames S. B. Wright and E. Brady; Secretary-Treasurer, Mrs. S. C. Boyd; Auditor, Miss M. Savage.

PHEASANTS STARVE

GRIMSBY, Ont., Jan. 7—(CP).—Several dead pheasants have been found in this district this week. It is believed the birds starved to death because the hard crust on the snow left them unable to reach the food.

NO INQUEST FOR GIRL

WINDSOR, Ont., Jan. 7 (C.P.).—No inquest will be held into the death of Eunice Meloche, 16, Windsor, killed yesterday when she fell under the rear wheels of a truck, Coroner Dr. James Young announced to-day. The girl is believed to have slipped on ice and fallen under the wheels of the heavy truck as it rounded an intersection. The truck, owned by Darling & Company of Chatham, was driven by Lloyd Orton, 28, of Windsor.

Forced to vacate premises, fixtures and stock of Clysdale's Cigar Store, Charlotte and Aylmer, are for immediate sale.

Cough Colds Often Dangerous

People are beginning to recognize the fact that a cough cold is a serious ailment, and when you contract a cold or cough the first question you ask yourself should be, "How am I going to get rid of it with the least possible delay and expense?" The answer is, "Use Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup."

This cough medicine is composed of the well known properties of the Norway pine tree, wild cherry bark, and other soothing, absorbent, healing and expectorant properties of other excellent herbs, barks and balsams. A few doses should convince you it is just the remedy you have been looking for.

Mrs. H. Halligan, Camborne, Ont., writes:—"My father had a terrible cough, and we thought he was never going to get rid of it, as he had tried so many remedies without getting any relief.

A neighbour told us about Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, and it was the only medicine that helped to give him relief."

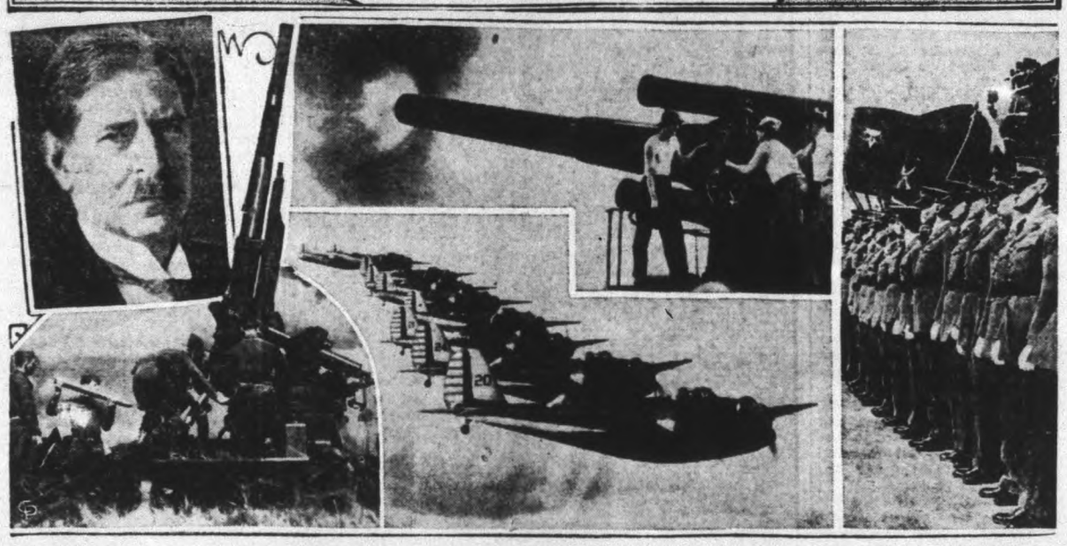
U.S. May Fortify Western Secti on Of International Boundary



Anti-aircraft guns probe the sky in search of marauders. A big coastal defence gun booms its defiance (TOP); the wings of the navy soar out on patrol duty. The men who ride Uncle Sam's west coast pursuit aeroplanes.

Again casting nervous glances at the undefended boundary between Canada and United States, especially in the far west, which some military tacticians maintain leaves the republic open to attack from an enemy based in Canada, army strategists in Washington may seek to utilize part of the huge sum budgeted for armaments by the current session of congress, for military defences along the border, particularly at Seattle. The map shows the long line of fort-less boundary between the two countries over which an enemy attacking United States from the north could pour virtually unchallenged, and the notaby weak points of U.S. defence. Some of the defensive arms which Uncle Sam may seek to strengthen in an effort to remove the presumed menace are pictured below. U. S. Secretary of the Navy, Claude A. Swanson (LEFT inset) has repeatedly urged his government to extend its west coast system of naval defences against any possible aggression across the Pacific.

CHINESE BATTLE TO HOLD LUNGHAI

SHANGHAI, Jan. 7 (A.P.).—Chinese and Japanese troops prepared to-day to fight for control of the eastern section of the Lunghai Railway, China's main east-west trunkline.

Chinese asserted they had about 100,000 men along the line in Northern and Eastern Honan Provinces between Suchow, 175 miles northwest of Nanking, and Kweiteh, 90 miles to the west.

Japanese forces numbering 60,000 were thrusting at the line from both the north and the south. The column fighting north from Nanking still had 80 miles to go and invaders driving south in Shantung Province were 100 miles from Suchow.

Control of the Lunghai Railway would give Japanese a base for a push westward to the Peiping-Hankow Railway, and thence southward 300 miles to Hankow, one of China's temporary capitals. Chinese asserted their forces would make a "supreme effort" to keep Japanese from the Lunghai, the nation's "jugular vein."

From Wuhu, above Nanking, came reports Japanese warships and transports were preparing to steam up the Yangtse, with Nanking, 150 miles south-west of Nanking, as the first objective.

Will Leave Ashes Of Canton For Japs

GENERAL YU HAN-MOU GENERAL PAI CHUNG-HSI

"We will leave nothing that might be useful to the Japanese or their puppets", was the statement issued by General Yu Han-Mou (LEFT), confirming reports Canton would be put to the torch if Chinese are forced to evacuate the southern metropolis before the advancing Japanese. A former radical foe of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek, General Pai Chung-Hai (RIGHT), has been appointed commander of all the Chinese armies following the current shake-up of the former Nanking government. General Pai co-operated with General Tsai Ting-Kai in the great defence of Shanghai during the 1932 crisis with Japan.

JAP SOLDIERS BEAT BRITISH OFFICERS

SHANGHAI, Jan. 7 (AP)—Japanese soldiers today beat two British officers of the Shanghai municipal police, aggravating tension between Japanese and foreigners.

Inspector F. G. West, one of the officers, reported the incident to police headquarters. His version was:

Sergeant A. R. Turner, watching Japanese police search Chinese peddlers near the British-Japanese line, remarked that the peddlers were receiving unnecessarily rough treatment.

A Japanese policeman resented the remark, struck Turner in the nose, and declared: "It's none of your damned business."

Several Japanese soldiers then rushed across the line and attacked Turner with their fists. The inspector rushed to his aid. The soldiers struck him too.

British Inspector George Bennett suffered similar treatment at the hands of Japanese last week when he went to Japanese naval headquarters to request an explanation for a traffic mishap.

LOYALISTS GAINING IN 17-DAY BATTLE

HENDAYE, Franco - Spanish Frontier, Jan. 7—(AP). — Spanish Government forces appeared to-day to have gained a winning margin in the most intensive fighting of the 17-day Teruel campaign.

Fighting centered about Concud, to the north of Teruel, and Government communiques proclaimed defeat of insurgent troops.

Insurgents were seeking by counter-offensive to break through Government lines into Teruel since December 21, a strategic insurgent base in operations toward government Valencia on the east.

Within the Provincial city, 160 miles to the east of Madrid, remnants of an insurgent garrison are fighting a snipers' warface with government troops. The garrison was cut from escape in the surprise offensive by which Madrid troops fought into the city.

Insurgent General Franco's offensive of infantry, artillery and aviation was repulsed between Concud and Teruel, a Barcelona communique said. Insurgents, however, held they had established highly fortified positions at heavy expense to the Madrid enemy.

WRITER, RYNER DIES

PARIS, Jan. 7 (A.P.). — Han Ryner, 77, short story writer and Philosopher, died on Thursday. He was known in 1912 as "Prince of Story Tellers."

AUSTRALIAN FLOWERS

TORONTO, Jan. 7 (C.P.). — A carload of acacias, an Australian flower, exhibited by Thomas Roland of Nahant, Mass., will be on view when the National Flower and Garden Show opens here on March 24. Hundreds of rare blooms will be on show.

CONACHER TO OPEN HOUSE FIREWORKS IN MOVING ADDRESS

TORONTO, Jan. 7 (CP) — Big Lionel Conacher, who forsook the ice lanes for politics, will get into another kind of battle here next month when he moves the address in reply to the speech from the throne in the Ontario Legislature.

Opening of the legislature's first regular session Feb. 23 was announced last night by Premier Hepburn who said the former defence player for Montreal Maroons of the National Hockey Leagues—now Liberal member for Toronto Bracondale—would move the address.

A privilege generally reserved for new members, opening of the debate will be carried out by another legislative newcomer, Romeio Begin of Russell who will second the address. Their speeches will set the stage for a month-long session in which the power question probably will be uppermost.

The legislature is meeting a month earlier than the premier had planned. This, it was explained, is so the session can be wound up before the Rowell Commission opens its Ontario hearings in Toronto April 19.

For legislators returned in last October's provincial election which the Liberals won overwhelmingly, it won't be their original baptism of political fire. A special session assembled Dec. 1 and was prorogued Dec. 3 by the province's new lieutenant-governor, Hon. Albert Matthews, after passing legislation to strengthen the succession duties act.

Hold 64 Of 90 Seats

Premier Hepburn's forces captured 64 of the 90 seats in the Oct. 6 voting. In addition there are two Liberal-Progressives and one member of the United Farmers of Ontario.

The 23 Conservatives in the House are led by Leopold MacAulay member for York South who was chosen House leader after the defeat of Conservative leader Earl Rowe by Education Minister Simpson in Simcoe Centre.

Since the election the Hydro-Electric Power Commission entered into new contracts with three Quebec power companies—Beauharnois Light and Power, Maclaren—Quebec and Gatineau. These must come before the legislature for approval with the result a power debate is likely. Contracts with these three companies and the Ottawa Valley Company had been cancelled after legislation passed the 1935 session following a three-day Conservative filibuster.

SLEEPLESSNESS due to INDIGESTION

If the gnawing, nagging discomforts of indigestion keep you awake night after night, consider the experience of Mrs. A. B., of Wallasey. That was her trouble, too. Tossing and turning in sleepless discomfort! Suffering the pains of a churning, acid-bitten stomach! Then she took Maclean Brand Stomach Powder. Almost at once she found she had conquered her trouble. The pains ceased. She could sleep soundly, peacefully. Maclean Brand Stomach Powder quickly counteracted the acid condition that was gnawing away at the stomach lining. It soothed the inflamed tissues, and helped the stomach to do its proper work of digestion.

This Maclean Brand Stomach Powder is used in many leading British hospitals. Try it. But be sure you get the genuine Maclean Brand Stomach Powder. Look for the signature, "Alex. C. Maclean," on both bottle and carton. 75c, either powder or tablets, at druggists. 115

Peter Robinson Chapter Meets.

The regular monthly meeting of the Peter Robinson Chapter I.O.D.E. was held at the home of Mrs. F. Hooper, 166 Dublin Street, on Wednesday evening, with the regent, Mrs. A. Sollitt, presiding.

At Christmas a very pretty box of gifts was sent as Christmas cheer to the pupils of one of the northern schools in which the Chapter is interested.

The convenor of the relief committee reported that Christmas baskets had been sent to several needy families.

On Friday evening, February 4, the Peter Robinson Chapter is again sponsoring a cooking school, under the auspices of Mrs. Aitken of the Canada Starch Co. Mrs. Aitken has just returned from a trip abroad, where she has been adding new ideas to her already abundant store of knowledge in the art of cooking. Attractive door prizes will be given this year, together with the usual prizes which are given by Mrs. Aitken during the evening. Tickets will be for sale by the members of the Chapter at an early date.

The meeting was brought to a close with refreshments, served by Miss A. Milburn and her group.

Lade-Bawden.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, Jan. 7.— A quiet wedding, of much interest locally, took place in Toronto on Friday, December 31, when Hazel Marie Bawden, daughter of Mr. S. A. Bawden, of Toronto, and the late Mrs. Bawden, of Toronto, became the bride of Mr. Noel Charles Lade, of Havelock, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Lade, of Brooklin.

The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Ruth Bawden, of Toronto, and the groom by his brother, Mr. Douglas Lade, of Brooklin.

Mr. and Mrs. Lade will reside in Havelock, Mr. Lade being manager of the local branch of the Citizens' Dairy, of Belleville.

Mid-Season Formal Frocks Suggest Romance And "Glamour"

Silken Gowns Have Ample Skirts and Fitted Bodices

(By Lisbeth)

Calling all romance—that is what the latest evening gowns seem to be doing!

Tired as we are of the word "glamorous," it rises to our lips voluntarily when we see a new collection of the frocks the leading designers are showing.

Two lovely dresses for the post-holiday season are shown here—both in silk. Below, a full-skirted gown in gold silk taffeta with close fitting, corselet bodice, the decollet-age edged with a wide band of fur, narrow shoulder straps holding it in place.

The dress has a low waistline, with the skirt gathered on very full, and otherwise perfectly plain.

"Night Blue" Chiffon

The dress worn by the charming young person sitting on the steps is a dinner gown in "night blue" silk chiffon, with the new sweater bodice, embroidered in an allover lace-like pattern of beads.

Short, puffed sleeves in the simple bodice, width in the skirt attained by a graduated flare, with hips slim, and a corsage at the waist, are the highlights of this lovely dress.

Midseason collections show a tendency toward simplicity in line, shoulders and sleeves are simpler, drapes are less complicated, and period influences not so prominent.

Corselets are still being featured by some of the well-known Paris houses, such as Chanel and Lanvin, and evening dress silhouettes include many types, running all the way from a Molyneux model of silk jersey with a slender, tubular skirt, to the voluminous skirted pink silk net dress of Ardanse trimmed with lovers' knots of ribbon—and such as the dresses shown here.

Embroidery Used

Gold and silver embroidery, pearl beads, paillettes, sequins, soutache and multi-colored silk embroidery continue to be important on both formal silk afternoon and evening gowns.

Encrustations also are stressed, particularly in gold or silver kid or mat on shiny fabrics, or vice versa. Silk is chosen, usually, for this type of dress, as its natural elasticity prevents sagging in spite of the heavy trim.

Actress Still Stampedes Staid Tea-Party

Mrs. Pat Campbell Delights in Ripe Age

NEW YORK, Dec. 29—(CP)—Mrs. Patrick Campbell, who marched to fame before the raised eyebrows of the 80s as "The Second Mrs. Tanqueray," says she doesn't at all mind being a legend.

"I'm so accustomed to having old ladies hobble up and say, 'My grandmother saw you in Aunt Jeanne,' or 'Grand Uncle So-and-so still has a picture of you as Mrs. Tanqueray'," she explains.

Forty-nine seasons have passed over the footlights since the Pinero play about a bride and groom with "pasts" shocked London but Mrs. Campbell still is a beautiful woman with the same dark, tragic eyes and deep voice which painlokld Victorian drawing-rooms with its indiscretions.

"I do it to tease a man I know," she said. "He used to be in my company and he's exactly my age, but he's told everyone he's 20 years younger."

Fate has dealt harshly with Mrs. Campbell but her high spirits never have failed her. Her first husband, handsome Captain Pat Campbell, was killed in the Boer War. Her only son, Alan, died at La Vacquerie in the Great War as a Lieutenant-Commander in the Royal Navy.

The world lost track of her after her second marriage, to George Cornwallis West. He died a few years ago but the couple had been separated for many years. Much of the time she lived quietly in London near her married daughter.

Her vivid personality and versatile talents brought her friendship with most of the great men and women of letters and the stage. Sir James Barrie and George Bernard Shaw were intimates. In a letter to her the latter once said:

"I hope you have lost your good looks, for whilst they last any fool can adore you, and the adoration of fools is bad for the soul. No, give me a ruined complexion and a lost figure and 16 chins and .. farmyard of crow's feet and an obvious wig. Then you shall see me come out strong."

Millbrook Society Plans Hot Supper

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, Jan. 7.—Mrs. J. McKnight extended the hospitality of her home, Tupper street, for the initial meeting of the Women's Association of St. Andrew's church in the New Year, the president, Mrs. P. I. Bentley, being in the chair.

Mrs. H. J. Armstrong read the lesson, and Mrs. Percy Stinson led in prayers for the opening worship period, communications read by the secretary, Mrs. Weston Fallis, consisting of letters of appreciation for Christmas boxes and cards from Miss Nellie Finnimore; Mrs. W. E. Russell, Mrs. J. H. George, Mrs. C. E. Thornton, Mrs. Morden, Sr., and the Skitch family.

A special meeting of the executive held at the president's home the preceding day was reported, showing appointment of the following committees: Parsonage, Mrs. P. Stinson, Mrs. J. McKnight, Mrs. H. A. Fallis, Mrs. P. I. Bentley, and Mrs. W. C. Fallis.

Flower Committee: Mrs. F. A. Kidd and Miss Luella Kennedy.

Kitchen Committee: Mrs. A. J. Henderson, Miss Ethel Hatherly, and Mrs. G. Freelove.

Visiting, Tupper street and King east: Mrs. McKnight and Mrs. W. Fallis; Centre and King west, Mrs. Stinson and Mrs. H. J. Armstrong; from corner of King and Tupper to the church, and Anne, Mrs Ross Edmunds and Mrs. F. L. Edworthy; Fallis Line, Mrs. Herb Ball and Mrs. J. H. McKnight; Seventh Line, Mrs. T. Douglas and Mrs. Edgar Fallis; East Line, Mrs. J. H. Might and Mrs. W. A. O'Brian; Fourth Line, Mrs. H. A. Earle and Mrs. W. W. Kennedy; Zion Line, Mrs. Wesley Brown and Mrs. A. Coulter.

Devotional committee, Miss Burnham.

The treasurer reported a total of $660.56 raised in 1937, and two donations of one dollar each received at the meeting; an account from W. A. Reid for $15.51 for work done at the Parsonage was ordered paid.

Under the head of new business, it was decided to hold the annual hot supper on Saturday, January 29, table convenors being Mrs. A. L. Sisco and Mrs. G. O. Fallis; Mrs. McKnight and Mrs. M. Hetherington; Mrs. Edworthy and Mrs. H. J. Armstrong.

Canvassers were appointed, and the menu decided upon, after which discussion centred round holding a series of pot luck suppers in the near future, the whole membership being divided into four groups under alphabetical headings; A-E; D-K; L-P; and R-W. A key woman in each group will arrange the date, the place, and other details.

Following the benediction, the hostess, assisted by Mrs. F. J. Smith and Mrs. J. H. McKnight, served afternoon tea, the vote of thanks, at the conclusion of the social hour, being voiced by Mrs. Harry Fallis and seconded by Miss May Duncan.

St. Andrew's Y.P.U. Meets in Marmora

MARMORA, Ont., January 7.—The Young ePople's Union of St. Andrew's United Church met in the church hall on Monday evening, with a good attendance. During a short business session, Ewart Haacke, Harry Haacke and Jas. Loveless were appointed as program committee for the next meeting. Donald Prentice and Francis Hollingsworth then took charge of the meeting.

Commencing the program was a guitar solo by Dorothy Henry. This was followed by a paper on 'Current Events,' which was read by Teressa Henry. Next came a skit by Grace Prentice and Francis Hollingsworth. Two readings were given by Harry Haacke and guitar and harmonica selections were given by Dorothy Henry. An impromptu debate, "Resolved that High Schools in general should not sponsor dances," was held. The affirmative was taken by Hubert Hollingsworth, Winnifred Schofield and Winnifred Sabine. The negative was handled by Ewart Haacke, Charles Hollingsworth and Teressa Henry. The affirmative received the majority of votes.

An amateur contest was won by Herbert Bonter. Group games concluded an enjoyable evening's program.

Euchre Tourney Is Held at Marmora

MARMORA, Ont., January 7.—The first of the eight games of the euchre tournament being held in the White Hall under auspices of St. Paul's Men's Club took place on Wednesday evening, with thirteen tables in play. The winners for the evening were Bert Kouri and Mrs. G. Kerr. The Ladies' Guild served refreshments at the close. The second game of the series will be held on Tuesday evening.

Clean Kitchen Shelves Safely

This method of cleaning kitchen shelves eliminates unnecessary motion and steps:

Remove contents of first shelf to drain board. Remove old shelf paper and use it as pattern for complete set of clean papers for—all shelves above. Mount stepladder, transfer contents of second shelf to empty first shelf and those of third shelf to second.

Now clean interior of third shelf, place clean paper on it and replace articles from second shelf. Repeat downward.—Mrs. Glen F. Hawkey.

JUST BETWEEN US WOMEN

"It is dangerous to live a pent-up, shut-in life; And, without neglecting the home circle, they who are not forced by circumstances to confine their social life altogether to their home, should see much of other people. It is a mistake which tends to narrowness to allow oneself to become too busy with his own affairs and his own home, to get any of that growth which the sunshine of social life alone promotes."

—Author Unknown.

Dear Friends:

Do you know, that is what is the matter with a lot of people today, they live too shut in a life, either because they want to, or because they have to, and there is nothing in the world will give you a narrow point of view like doing that.

We NEED the stimulation of each other. Some think if they keep themselves aloof from the world, they will escape a lot of the troubles of living, but don't forget what I told you before, that a rut is only a shallow grave, and you don't want to be in a grave before your time, or do you?

I like to barge up against life as others live it. I like to see how the other ninety-nine per cent. live, to find out if they have found a better way than I have. I like to console them in their sorrows and maybe have them console me.

I like to go into a store and have someone say," where have you been? I havn't seen you for a long time. Have you been sick?" It shows I left some kind of impression, else they would not be interested.

I like to listen to their troubles, and give what counsel I can. And I am not above them listening to mine and giving me counsel too. I like to see their reactions to certain things, how they handle a fractious customer, and generally sending them away happy in their purchases.

I like to go to someone else's house, (altho' I have very little time for that now,) and see how they make this or that I like to sympathise with them in their troubles, and have them do the same for me.

And I like a new pointer or two on how to make a new dish, so that the meals become more interesting. Or a pointer on running the house, so that it will not take up too much time.

I like to feel that they want me to come, and hate to see me go. And how can you get all these likes gratified if you shut yourself away from everyone? It can't be done.

Some have nice homes, nice cars, but it is too much bother to have someone in for a cup of tea or coffee. (If you come to see me I shall serve you coffee, for tea does not agree with me.)

Don't forget that if you give, you will also receive, whether it be interest in another's woes, or a ride in your car to those who haven't got one, or being pleasant to clerks in a store.

All you give out will come back to you, never doubt it. So, when you shut yourself off from all humanity, when your boundary is the four walls of your house or your car, you are losing more than you gain.

What altho' you HAVE been disappointed? Haven't we all? What altho' some friends have let you down? Don't we all get that once in a while? Of course we do.

But don't shut yourself off because of these things. Go out and mingle with others, and your life will be fuller, and you will have a better understanding of what it is all about. I have been expecting a letter from YOU. So don't disappoint.

Your Friend,
ROBERTA.

Facts and Fancies

Dumb Waiters

Dumb waiters were an English invention of the 18th century which consisted of tiers of trays affixed to a central support on a tripod base. They were usually placed diagonally at the corners of the dining table so that diners might help themselves after the servants had departed. One of Chippendale's early bills mentions "two mahogany Dumb Waiters on Castors" which were supplied to Kenton palace.

These tiered tables are reproduced today for use not only in the dining room, but in the living room as well. They may serve as lamp tables, or to hold flower bowls, bits of interesting glass and bric-a-brac, or for various other purposes.

Painting Small Bedroom

In furnishing the small bedroom, painted or natural wood furniture will make for a feeling of space, while dark woods will have the opposite effect.

If the walls are painted or papered a light, pastel color, such as peach, powder blue, faint coral or pinky-gray, the room will appear larger than if a vivid color or a definitely patterned paper is used. The smaller the wall paper pattern the larger the wall space will look.

Woodwork in the small bedroom should be painted to match the background color of the wallpaper.

CHAPTER 33.

There was a door leading from my father's study into the church. Now and then, torn by dark thoughts, I would go into the church, and pace the aisles in the icy air. Sometimes I threw myself on my knees, trying to believe that God was in this holy place and that He would help me.

Because, perhaps, genius is born of travail, I wrote a story which seemed to me strong. I read it to my father.

"It has depth," he told me.

"I have lived and loved," I said, gloomily aware of my dramatic kinship to all the tragic artists of the ages.

It was a part of my father's charm that he could look below the surface of my boyish affectations and see my real agony of mind.

"Perhaps, dear boy, this is your high moment. People who live at their ease very rarely achieve."

"But I want happiness, Father."

"You will find it when you least expect it."

I wanted happiness then and there. I had a feeling that youth might fly from me if I waited, and I should be left old and lacking capacity of enjoy. If I could not have Mimi, I would have no one. So the years stretched ahead of me—empty.

There were moments, however, when I felt very young indeed. I found, in the Christmas rehearsals, a rollicking, picturesque quality which was almost Elizabethan. Observing my small carollers, I wondered whether, after all, the modern world might not be returning to the red-blooded Christianity of older times. And whether it might not be actually more spiritual in its results than the attenuated philosophies of the present day.

However that might be, the little folks in their bright sweaters, with bits of holly stuck in the stocking caps, were like something out of the illustrations in my old nursery-rhyme books. They played pranks on each other, piped their merry tunes, and gave me a sort of worshipful admiration which warmed my sore heart.

"You are a perfect Pied Piper, Jerry," my Aunt Mary told me, "you have the children hypnotized."

I had heard, while in St. Louis, some old French carols—"Un flambeau, Jeanette, Isabella," "Quand Dieu naquit a Noel," "A minuit fut fait un revell," and others. I found English translations, and taught them to the children. On Christmas Eve I led them from house to house.

"Bring a torch, Jeanette, Isabelle,
Bring a torch to the cradle run!
It is Jesus, good folk of the village,
Christ is born and Mary calling,
Ah, beautiful is the Mother,
Ah, beautiful is her Son!..

We sang this in front of one hospitable mansion, where we were asked to stop and have refreshments. As I came with my little band into the dining room, I knew I was much observed. I had on a green sweater, and my green cap was in my hand. I saw in a mirror as I passed that my cheeks were very red, and that my ruffled hair gave out deep gold lights. I was handsome and I knew it. I wished that Mimi might see me in this new aspect. I wished that she might be with us, drinking hot chocolate and eating frosted cakes. I had a feeling that she would like it, and that her radiance would shine out here as it had never shone, even on that last night in the rosy ballroom.

Out under the stars again . . . "When at Christmas Christ was born, In Far Palestine, all observed that solemn day. With a joy divine . . . There was neither churl nor king, Who did not a present bring."

I let the others go on ahead of me, singing. Above me the sky was illumined by an effable brightness . . . Midnight was not far away. Centuries ago on such a night a great miracle had been wrought.

But the day of miracles was over. Men prayed, and there was no response. In my three weeks of agony I had asked that some word might come to me from Mimi.

One of my small carollers came back to me. "Why aren't you singing, Jerry?"

I lifted her in my arms—she was such a tiny thing—and put her on my shoulder. "You sing for me. You are so high up, they will think I am singing."

Her little arm was around my neck . . .

"There was one who gave a lamb,
With his heart and soul,
And another brought some milk,
In a little bowl.
One beneath his smock, 'tis said,
Brought a humble gift of bread."

But I could not. I felt that my voice would break . . . as my heart was broken. I wanted Mimi.

The midnight celebration in our barn was a great success. We had the Wise Men, the Shepherds—the Manger . . . I came in with the lamb under my arm, and said that I had seen the angels, and had heard their voices . . .

People of two worlds! I wondered how Mimi was spending her Christmas Eve. And Andy and the rest of them. I wondered what they would have thought of me with the lamb under my arm, and whether anyone among them spoke of Mary or the Wise Men. And would I, if I had been among them, have spoken of these sacred things? And was it, after all, with me, merely a matter of environment?

After it was over, Aunt Mary and I walked to the house together. My father was driving home a sleighful of children.

As we came into the sitting room, Aunt Mary said, "There's some mail for you on the kitchen table, Jerry. One of the neighbors went to the postoffice."

She sat by the fire while I looked over the envelopes. I found a letter from Lionel! The rest seemed to be Christmas cards — many of them with the St. Louis postmark. My heart seemed suddenly to stop beating as I saw Mimi's angular individual script.

She had sent me a card — and across one corner she had scrawled, "I am sorry, Jerry. Let's be friends."

And out there in the night I had said there were no miracles!

I laughed aloud and Aunt Mary turned and looked at me. "Something pleasant?"

With the card in my hand I flung myself on the floor beside her. "Aunt Mary," I asked, "were you ever in love?"

"A long time ago, Jerry."

"Then you know what this means to me—" I thrust the card into her hands. "I thought the thing was all ended. And now you see what she says."

She read the scrawled words and smiled down at me. "And it has made you happy?"

"I could shout it from the housetops," I hugged my knees. "If you only knew how adorable she is."

"I can guess," she replied.

Sitting there by the fire, I told her of Mimi—her beauty, her pride, the peacock colors that she wore. "She is different from anyone else. And if I had half a chance I could win her. She has been used to luxury, but Father says if she really cared that wouldn't count."

"Your father is a dreamer, Jerry."

I said, sharply, "You mean that luxury does count?"

"With such a woman? Yes. She is what her life has made her. It would be an experiment to transplant her. Only a great passion would make it possible . . . ."

"Some day I'll make her care enough to do it."

"How can you make her?"

"Aunt Mary, when I am with her, I dominate her. And Uncle Jerry says it is masterfulness that wins."

"Perhaps it wins. But does it hold?"

"If I can win her, I can keep her," I said doggedly.

"Don't be too sure. Women are strange creatures."

I stared in the fire. "Father says if you hold the soul of a woman in your hand. . ."

She breathed a soft sigh. "That sounds like him. And it is true. But men don't know it. The men who look for the spiritual quality in their wives are the successful husbands."

"I am not sure," I said, "that I want to be a successful husband—I want to be a mad lover——"

"Romance, Jerry? Well, I hope you'll have it. I missed it because I tried to be sensible. Perhaps it would have been sensible to grasp it while it was in my hand. But my mother advised me, and I thought she was wise. Perhaps she was, who knows?"

She sat looking into the fire, a little smile on her lips, but I was sure she was not smiling in her heart.

BEDTIME STORY

By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY'S FUNNY SKATES.

"Wiggy, you aren't going out in all this rain, are you?" asked Mrs. Longears of her rabbit husband the day after he had amused the children by making popcorn balls. "Are you?"

"Yes, my dear, I am," said Uncle Wiggily.

"But why?"

"I must have an adventure. I stayed in all of yesterday when it rained but since it is still raining today I must go out."

"Oh, but I'm afraid you'll catch cold."

"No danger, my dear. If I see a cold I'll hide. I won't chase it so I will not catch up to it. I'll let the cold go."

"Oh, but you should stay in and help me amuse the children," said the lady rabbit. "They have to stay in because of the rain and they are always so fussy and sad about school starting next week-end and——"

Does An Errand.

"I'll give the children a lot of corn to pop. That will keep them so busy they will have no time to trouble you," said Mr. Longears. "So I think I'll go out and have an adventure."

"Very well," said Mrs. Longears resigned like and sad. Then Nurse Jane asked:

"Will you be going past Aunt Lettie's house, Mr. Longears?"

"I can," Uncle Wiggily answered "Do you want me to?"

"I wish you would," said the muskrat lady housekeeper. "I have baked a chocolate cake and a cocoanut cake for Aunt Lettie, who has been ill. I wish you would take them to her."

"I will," promised Uncle Wiggily.

In his rain coat of fur and with his rubbers and umbrella, Uncle Wiggily hopped away from his hollow stump bungalow out in the storm. He carried the chocolate cake and the cocoanuts cake each in a pan by itself.

"You might bring the pans back after Aunt Lettie takes the cakes off," called Nurse Jane. "I'll need them to bake some more."

"It shall be done," said Uncle Wiggily.

"Oh, how lovely," bleated Aunt Lettie when she saw the cakes. "Now just a moment and I'll give you back the pans."

Ker-plunk!

With the cake pans in his raincoat pockets, Uncle Wiggily started from the lady goat's house to look for an adventure. By that time the rain had stopped and it was so cold the rain on the ground suddenly turned to ice. So when Uncle Wiggily tried to hop or walk he slid and fell down ker-punko, nearly losing the pink twinkle on his nose.

"Oh, my goodness," exclaimed the rabbit. "How slippery it is." He tried to get up but down he fell again and out of his pockets clattered the two cake tins, "Go bang, Bango!"

"Ha! I have an idea!" laughed the rabbit. "It is too slippery for me to hop or walk. But it isn't too slippery to skate. And the cake tins on my paws will make dandy skates."

Quickly he tied a cake tin on each hind paw with some strings from a dried honeysuckle vine. And then Uncle Wiggily slid home by gliding along on his funny cake tin skates.

He didn't fall down once, for he was a good skater. The flat tins on his paws skiddered along like snow shoes.

"Oh, Wiggy!" How funny you look with cake tin skates!" laughed Mrs. Longears. But the rabbit gentleman didn't care. He had an adventure and he was happy.

And if the automobile doesn't skid on one wheel and pinch the little dog's tail to make him squeal, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily ringing the bell.

Dorothy Dix's Letter Box

Homemade Scraps Are as Necessary as Billing and Cooing in Many Homes, So There Seems That Little Should Be Done in Trying to Stop Them.

A MAN who has just been celebrating his golden wedding anniversary, and who used the occasion to expound his theories about how to handle the various situations that arise in marriage, asserted that the best way to stop a domestic quarrel is for the husband to put on his hat and leave the house.

The proof of the pudding is in chewing the string, as the old proverb says, and a man who is the battle-scarred veteran of 50 years of connubial warfare should be an authority on the subject. Nevertheless, one doubts the efficacy of his theory. No doubt his plan is good as far as it goes, for it is obviously impossible for a woman to keep on talking back to a husband who isn't there, but it is the philosophy of defeatism and one suspects it would only appeal to the henpecked husbands who are afraid of their wives' tongues, anyway.

Of course, it is true "that he who fights and runs away will live to fight another day," but why postpone to the future the joy of having it out right now and there over why the husband always has to hire a platinum blonde stenographer, or the price of the wife's new hat, when both have put on their fighting clothes and are all worked up for a good scrap?

Nor is there any need for a husband and wife to break off a quarrel right in the middle by one quitting cold for fear they will exhaust the subject under dispute. There are 10 million things left for them to disagree about. And if by chance these should give out, they can always dig up an old bone of contention. There are husbands and wives who fight from the altar to the grave over religion, politics, smoking in the house, or whether the breakfast egg should be fried on one side or both.

Moreover, any advice about how to stop a quarrel between husbands and wives is superfluous because they don't want it stopped. They quarrel because they get a kick out of it; because it puts pep into the somewhat flavorless dish of matrimony; because it stirs their blood and makes them feel alive and tingling and good. If you don't believe this, note the fact that after husbands and wives have had a perfect peach of a fight in which they have reviled and insulted each other and said every mean and cruel thing to each other that they could think of, they generally end it up with kisses instead of Reno, and no harm done to the domestic structure. Not a brick loosened.

If further proof were needed that spatting with each other is the favorite indoor amusement of husbands and wives, you would find it in the incontestable fact that there probably never was a family row that could not have been avoided by the use of the slightest degree of tact or commonsense or self-control. Every husband and wife knows what is the fighting word to each other, but that doesn't keep them from using it. It just gives them a tip on how to start something.

They know what topics are as good for a set-to as a nickel is for a ginger cake, but does that make them walk high, wide and handsome around these forbidden subjects? No indeed. It makes them drag them in by the head or the heels and pass a pleasant evening exchanging criminations and recriminations about each other's families and personal habits and peculiarities.

Whether or not the home-made quarrel, like home cooking, has a finer flavor than anything one gets abroad, has never been scientifically determined. One would say on a venture, though, that there is something more satisfying about it, something that appeals more to the general taste, for it is observable that people who will go to all manner of trouble to avoid controversies with their bosses, their friends, their acquaintances and even strangers provoke disagreements with members of their families.

The woman, for instance, who yes-yesses her employer and tells him what an oracle he is, no-noes her husband and does not disguise from him that she thinks he is a nitwit. The man who palavers over every other woman and tells her how beautiful she is; who listens to his dinner partner's views on literature, art and politics as if he were hanging on the words of a seeress, tells his wife that she is getting old and fat, and that she doesn't know what she is talking about. And the fight is on.

So, taking all of these vagaries of the domestic quarrel into consideration, we reach the inescapable conclusion that husbands and wives fight because they enjoy fighting, and there is no way to stop 'em.

MINISTER READS EPIPHANY MESSAGE

(Examiner Correspondence.)

BETHANY, Jan. 7.—The first meeting of the year of St. Mary's A.Y.P.A., Manvers Parish, was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Will Hannah on Wednesday evening, January 5th.

The rector, Rev. A. R. Holden, gave a review of the book "The Man Nobody Knows," by Bruce Barton. Rev. Mr. Holden also gave a message on the Epiphany.

A contest was conducted by Harold Page, the winners were, Isobel and Robert Sisson. Spelling contests, table tennis and other games, proved very interesting, also a guessing competition on radio speakers and artists. Harold Page and Gladys Wright were the winners in this instance.

A delicious lunch was served by the hostess, assisted by her daughter, Muriel Hannah. A hearty vote of thanks was passed to the host and hostess and their family for their kind hospitality, Mr. Hannah replying in his most genial manner.

Fascinating Garden Thrives Under Glass

You can grow anything in a glass garden!

Star with amusing cacti in a discarded fish bowl. Later you can grow your own corsage of gardenias, or orchids, at little expense in one of these fascinating miniature greenhouses.

Dwarf cacti will grow from seed right in your glass container or, for speedier results, you can buy small plants.

Place plenty of cinders or pebbles in the bottom of the bowl for drainage. For soil use clean sharp sand mixed with a bit of garden loam.

For another easy, colorful terrarium ask your florist for a package of mixed fern seed—or tiny slips of pink-flowering begonia to combine with yellowish green and purple foliage plants.

Our 32-page booklet gives full directions for the planting and care of glass and dish gardens. Bottle gardens. Toy landscapes. Gardenias, orchids, African violets. A window kitchen-garden of savory herbs for flavoring—nasturtium, parsley, rosemary, thyme.

Send 15c in coins for your copy of GLASS GARDENS AND NOVELTY INDOOR GARDENS to Peterborough Examiner, Home Service, Address. Be sure to write plainly your NAME. ADDRESS, and the NAME of booklet.

BANCROFT COURT HAS BUSY SESSION

(Examiner Correspondence.)

BANCROFT, Jan. 7.—Police Court was held in the Council Chamber of the Bancroft Community Hall on Tuesday, January 4th, with Magistrate J. L. Lloyd presiding.

Wallace Holland of Coe Hill pleaded guilty on a charge of reckless driving and was fined ten dollars and costs.

Edward Moran of Maynooth was found guilty on a charge of intoxication and was fined ten dollars and costs.

Bernard Crawford of Detlor pleaded guilty to a charge of intoxication and was assessed ten dollars and costs or ten days.

W. Whitefoot of Bancroft pleaded guilty to a charge of common assault and was fined two dollars and costs.

Henry Rutton of Fort Stewart pleaded guilty to a charge of obtaining money by false pretences from G. W. Jones in 1936 and was remanded two weeks for sentence.

Charles Tinney of Faraday Township was charged by Mrs. Sadie Hall with common assault. After hearing considerable evidence from both sides, Magistrate Lloyd dismissed the case.

Lee Gordon and Clark Rollins were charged with keeping a common gaming house by allowing slot machines to operate. Pleading not guilty, the cases were adjourned for two weeks.

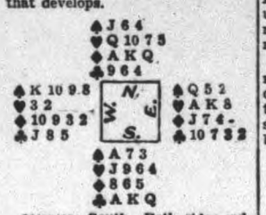
FAULTY CARD READING

SOME otherwise fair players find fault with their partner's leads, declaring they cannot be read. In many such cases, the reason they are not read is a lack of card reading ability. So the one who finds fault during the post mortem may be himself the one who is to blame for the trouble that develops.



(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

After South's opening bid of 1-No Trump, North jumped to 3-No Trumps and West's opening lead was the spade 8. On this dummy played the 4, East the Q and South the A.

With three tricks in diamonds, and three in clubs, as well as two sure spade tricks, South attempted to set up a heart trick. East won the first lead of that suit and returned a spade to West's K. A third round of the suit was won with dummy's J, and the contract made with ease.

East criticized West for not leading the spade 10, contending that the lead of the 8 was difficult for him to read. West's retort was that if the 8 was a fourth best lead, South held only one higher than it and, East should not have played the Q. If the 8 had been the top of a worthless short suit, South would then have held the A-K-10-9, in which case he would undoubtedly have bid that suit rather than no trump on the first round of bidding.

If East allows the spade 8 to ride, the contract is set, as the opponents get three spades and two hearts instead of the two spades to which they were limited by the play of the Q.

What is the correct bidding on this deal?

Looking Back On This Date

January 7 is a day of legislative anniversaries. No fewer than five speakers of Canadian assemblies were elected on this date; Archibald McLean of Upper Canada Assembly in 1831; R. M. Wells of the Ontario Assembly, in 1874; Charles Clarke also of Ontario, 1880; F. G. Marchand of the Quebec Assembly (re-elected) 1890, and James Johnson of the Manitoba Legislature in 1903. Mr. McLean was afterwards chief justice of Upper Canada, while Mr. Marchand was premier of Quebec.

Two clerks of the House of Commons were chosen on Jan. 7: W. B. Northrup, former M.P. for Hastings, succeeding Dr. T. R. Flint, in 1918, and Arthur Beauchesne, the present holder of the office, in 1925.

It was on Jan. 7, 1832, that William Lyon Mackenzie was, for a second time, expelled from the Upper Canada assembly. He had been re-elected by his constituents of York by 119 to 1, and therefore his sentence was purged. But two days later Mackenzie in the Advocate printed another attack upon the governor and the Family Compact and no sooner had he taken his seat for a second time than his re-expulsion was moved for the second article. The debate lasted until the 7th, when the motion for expulsion was carried 27-19. Mackenzie made a long speech in defence, and created a dramatic incident by donning the massive gold chain with which he had been presented by his constituents, declaring that he would continue to do so to manifest to the assembly the visual fact, apart from his own person that he had the confidence of the electors of York. Attorney-General Hagerman went a little too far into this expulsion; he had a clause inserted declaring Mackenzie incapable to holding a seat in that parliament. The answer of the electors of York on Jan. 30 was to send Mackenzie back for a fourth time. It was largely this that forced the British government to order the suspension of both Hagerman and Solicitor-General Boulton, thus giving the first indication of concession to the Upper Canada reformers. Had the situation been handled there by anyone less excitable than Mackenzie the reforms might have come without friction, but Mackenzie was there and had to be reckoned with, and the resort was finally to arms.

"Popeye" Full Of Years But Going Strong Grants First Interview To Reporters

CHAPTER FIVE

No life story of Popeye could be complete without a few words from the sagacious salt himself. The interview was brief and snappy. Twice Popeye gave every appearance of winding up his deadly right to terminate the soiree more abruptly than the questioner liked. One of these occasions was when Popeye was asked:

"Are you and Miss Oyl betrothed?"

Popeye scratched his chin and readjusted his pipe. Then color, like a miniature prairie fire, began to march across the noted mariner's chin. Stubble wilted before the crimson flood and Popeye's valid blinker began to flash warningly.

"Blow me down. Does a swab have to be frothed up over his fricancy?"

The interviewer moved rapidly away, making soothing noises in his throat, but it was several minutes before Popeye could be placated and the questioning continued.

"What do you think about the world economic crisis, Mr. Popeye?"

"They's too many different countries, and tha's a fack I never thinks about the creases in other ports on account of it's hard enough to straighten out things in home waters. Blow me down Peopie looks for trouble in fur places without hoisting anchor."

"Do you believe in vivisection?"

"Tha's another thing—every swab these days does a lot of talking about sex. They's men in the world and they's women and tha's why. Blow me down."

"Where do you prefer to hit an opponent, Mr. Popeye?"

"I just let fly an any place from socks to dandruff is O. K. with me. Then I give him my exter special punch, which lays him among the swee' peas."

"Would you rather be a detective or a pugilist, Mr. Popeye?"

"I gotta be both. A detective is no good unless he can swing his mits on account of knowing how to be a pugilist."

"Does Olive Oyl approve of your disposition to fisticuffs?"

The crimson tide began to flow once more, Popeye began to bring his right trip-hammer into action and the interviewer knew that his time was up.

And that's that.

NEW NON-FLAM PICTURE FILM FROM GERMANY

BERLIN, Jan. 7.—General use of non-inflammable film stock for both commercial and amateur purposes is predicted for the near future by Dr. Ludwig Matz. Statement was made at a meeting at the Deutsche Kinotechnische Gesellschaft (Film Technology Assin.). Contributing factor of the development of the film is that no cotton is needed for its manufacture, there being a shortage of raw materials in Germany.

Nonflam film has been in existence since about 1907. Its immunity to fire made the taking of motion pictures possible for amateurs. Law was passed in France 10 years ago that only safety films should be used, but it was never enforced because of two difficulties involved. For one thing, the film itself is not strong enough for commercial use. And for another, its lack of flexibility makes it hard to handle in laboratories.

They have done a little experimenting here in Germany. One hundred and forty-seven copies, parts or the whole of which were safety films, were sent to the various theatres without mentioning the difference in material. Each pic was tagged to list observations, thus enabling a check-up afterwards. Results were that photographic effects and sound reproduction do not vary from the nitro.

Points in favor of the noflam film are that it assures a greater amount of safety in studios, laboratories, factories and projection rooms, also in case of air raids; police restrictions would be considerably eased up. Faults are that the nonflam is expensive, weak on the sticking end and still too brittle. Year's experiments also show that the durability of the nitros.

Although the Henry Miller box office in New York had tickets on sale for "French Without Tears" through January 15, it was suddenly decided to end the run Saturday night. It then had given 111 performances. No tour.

Mr. 'First Nighter'

MacDONALD CAREY

MacDonald Carey is the "Mr. First Nighter" of radio "Little Theatre Off Times Square." Carey was born in Sioux City, Ia., March 15, 1913. He attended the Universities of Wisconsin and Iowa and played leading roles in college productions at both schools. Contrary to the success stories of many film and radio stars, Carey was signed to a long term radio contract after his first audition.

$200 Gamble Wins Dancer Job In Film

HOLLYWOOD, Jan.7.—Ann Miller, RKO Radio's versatile and aggressive young dramatic actress and dancer, gambled $200 to obtain her leading role and greatest opportunity to date in "Radio City Revels."

Producer Edward Kaufman said he not only wanted an actress and dancer for the role opposite Bob Burns, Jack Oakie and Milton Berle but a feminine voice capable of being presented in a duet with radio singing star, Kenny Baker.

Already established for her dramatic ability in "Stage Door" "and for her dancing in "New Faces of 1937," Miss Miller wanted to prove she was a singer, too. She went to one of Los Angeles' radio recording studios, hired a five-piece band, and recorded two popular tunes, one in ballad style and one in the popular swing version.

She promptly presented herself in Kaufman's office, put on the record and told him to listen. She won the role.

GOSSIP PURGE GETS BACKING ACTORS' GUILD

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 7.— Screen Actors Guild has enlisted itself in the campaign to clean up the ether lanes by clamping the silencer on gossip-mongers and slime-slingers new scavening the picture lots.

'Screen Actors Guild,' says a statement issued by Kenneth Thomson, SAG executive sec, 'believes that the action of various organizations, including the Motion Picture Producers Association, in attempting to call a halt on the peddling of scurrillous gossip over the air is a constructive step.

'We are amazed that Harry M. Warner has seen fit to announce that the association does not speak for him. We hope that Mr. Warner's attitude is not influenced by the fact that he has one of those so-called commentators under contract.

'The attitude voiced by the association may not be that of Mr. Warner. However, we are certain that this campaign has the support not only of all actors but also of the great body of fair-minded and decent people in these United States.'

Fewer Warner Films Set For Teddington

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 7.—Warners has decided on a policy of slashing production at the Teddington plant to 10 to 12 pictures this year as compared with 16 last year, with upped budgets for all, following confabs held at the studio participated in by Irving Asher, head of British production.

Total production expenditures at the British plant in the current season ran around $2,000,000. Asher said he is not yet certain just how the new British quota legislation will affect the situation with provisions of the new act still uncertain.

Myrna Loy still possesses the blonde wig she wore in her first motion picture role, "What Price Beauty," and it reposes in a safety deposit box.

HOLLYWOOD

HOLLYWOOD—Just as the Hollywood crowd predicted, Arline Judge is returning to pictures after the birth of her baby, due in February. Arline is still under contract to Twentieth Century-Fox—she took a leave of absence to marry Dan Topping—and her next film will be made at this studio. Possibly in May. Last screen appearance of the star was in "Pigskin Parade."

Couldn't locate Gable to find out what Lombard gave him for Christmas, but two of his presents to her were an English sheep dog and a two-seated motor scooter. When she was riding it Christmas night, the thing got out of control and tossed Carole for a loop. Wrecked here evening gown but did no damage to her persons. After all those crazy comedies, falling off a scooter is child's play to the star.

Norma Shearer played a scene recently for the first time since Irvin Thalberg's death. It was a long test with Robert Morley, the English actor who'll play Louis XVI in "Marie Antoinette." Morley faces the camera for the first time in this picture. Studio likes him so well they are no longer mourning over the failure to get Charles Laughton for the role.

Shivery item from a friend of Alexander D'Arcy. The French actor's father, M. Fabre, is a cotton grower near Cairo. He also is a student in early Egyptian methods of embalming. In the belief that he has discovered some of the secrets of the art, he has written his actor-son, urging that the first one of them to pass on allow his body to be mummified.

London fog was worse than the original in a scene for the Mervyn Le Roy picture, "Food for Scandal." Movie fog is supplied by spraying mineral oil from pipes packed in ice. Some prankster added a sack of soot to the mixture and the astonished actors soon began to look like mammy singers. It will be tough on the culprit, if discovered, for the company had to lay off until makeups could be renewed.

The sprained ankle suffered by Harold Lloyd in a squash game is a serious production problem for the "Professor Beware" company. Fortunately, the script has a courtroom scene where Lloyd can cheat by putting his weight on one leg, as Wallie Beery did after he shot himself in "Bad Man of Brimstone."

Between scenes Lloyd has to bake his ankle in an electric oven. The comedian's cousin, Keith Lloyd, has been called in to help treat the injury. He is a track coach at the Fairfax high school here.

Ran into George Sherwood. He and Pauline Starke have just returned from England where she made two pictures, while George was directing another pair. Both want to stay in Hollywood, however, and Pauline, a favorite of a few years ago, already is up for a role in a new picture.

Anita Louise's mother and Verne Whitehead, her new groom, are honeymooning at the family home in Beverly Hills. . . . X-rays will determine how long Al Wertheimer will have to remain in the hospital. He may be out in a month, but will have to wear a brace for many more. . . . Margaret Sullavan dressed the part of Scarlett O'Hara at Santa Anita Christmas Day. . . . At least we are so assured by a lady who is up on the period influence in modern dress. . . . Dorothy Ates who has tried so long to graduate from night club entertaining, gets a chance in the Little Theatre production, "Dog Eat Dog" . . . Grace Bradley is raising a mink coat. Husband Bill Boyd has given her four live minks which will be kept at the couple's ranch in Lone Pine. . . . Florence Rice and Joseph Mankiewicz were a new twosome at the Victor Hugo. Ditto, Charlie Butterworth and Lona Andre at the Swing club. . . .. And the high school dancing class in Springfield, Mass., is fired with anticipation. Eleanor Powell will give them a few hints during her week's visit to her birthplace.

Tovarich

Warner Bros, release of Robert Lord production. Stars Claudette Colbert and Charles Boyer; features Basil Rathbone, Anita Louise, Melville Cooper. Directed by Anatole Litvak.

With a distinguished record as a box office puller in legit theatres, both here and abroad, 'Tovarich' emerges from its Warner Bros, filming as a piece of popular entertainment, plus the very considerable drawing value of Claudette Colbert and Charles Boyer in the starring roles. It is destined for important first run money. Also, it has the advantages of following two road companies which have played in key cities this autumn, and the advertised fact that it stayed a full season on Broadway.

The theme of royalty reduced to poverty has been done a dozen times, but 'Tovarich' contains some new angles. There is the incongruous situation where the refugees, penniless have to their credit in the Bank of France a fortune of 2,000,000,000 francs, which was entrusted to their care by the czar. Only their sense of loyalty to a lost cause restrains them from using a portion of the funds for necessities. On the other hand. French officials and bankers are eager to have the funds invested in consols.

Experiences of the couple when they enter service as housemaid and butler in a French home comprise the entertainment. Their identity is unknown to their employer, but revealed by guests, one of whom is a representative of the Soviet. In a scene with the latter, their one-time cruel persecutor, the couple assign the funds back to the Russian government to be used for the common good. This passage is excellently played by the stars and Basil Rathbone, as the commissar.

Of the supporting cast Melville Cooper, as the banker, and Rathbone contribute splendid characterizations. Daughter and son of the banker are played by Anita Louise and Maurice Murphy, and Isabel Jeans is their mother. There are numerous bit parts; Montagu Love, Christian Rub and Alphonse Martel are standouts.

Film is excellently produced as to settings, costumes, photography and sound, reflecting utmost care in its making variety.

Where you goin', sonny? It's little Lance, two-year-old son of Count Haugwitz-Reventlow and his wife, the former Barbara Hutton, Woolworth heiress, who is heading trailwards at the famous Swiss skiing resort, St. Moritz, but just how far he's going is problematical. Its a man sized pair of skis he's toting, anyway.

KEEPS MIND OFF WORK

For fifteen years Ben Blue, Paramount comedian, did a difficult dance routine called the "skate dance," in which he glides about on a stage without skates, and never suffered an injurious fall—until the last day of shooting of "Thrill of a Lifetime," in which Blue introducted the dance to the screen. On that day a friend asked Blue how he managed to do the dance, Blue attempted to illustrate an explanation, became conscious of what he was doing, and fell, wrenching his back.

HUDDLE ON LAWRENCE

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 7.—Alexander Korda and Russell Holman huddled over the week end on production plans for 'Lawrence of Arabia,' which Korda will produce in London for Paramount release.

William K. Howard likely will direct with Leslie Howard in the title part.

'BORDERTOWN' REISSUE

Date coincides with the first anniversary of the death of Wallace Smith, who originated and screenplayed the film.

Edmund Gwenn, back in London after four years in films and on Broadway, draws a memorable portrait in "Thank You, Mr. Pepys," at the Shaftesbury Theatre, of the man who made the Navy—that sturdy, honest man, whose genius for organization was even brought to bear on the Tower, in which he was temporarily a prisoner.

Ratoff Socks Allen Actor Laughs Back

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 7.—Fred Allen, noted radio comic, and Gregory Ratoff, famed screen Comic, have had a fight. And Allen thanked Gregory for slapping him.

On the set of "Sally, Irene and Mary" at Twentieth Century-Fox, Ratoff, playing the role of a baron, slapped Allen across the face with his gloves, challenging him to a duel.

"That's not hard enough," Director William Seiter said, after Ratoff had swished the leather across the radio comic's chin.

"Go on, Gregory, smack me as hard as you want," suggested Allen. "It'll help me get my mind off my salary."

The greatest money-making movie of all time was "The Birth of a Nation," filmed at a cost of $110,000 and bringing in $4,250,000 at the box office.

1938 Winner Of Marsh Trophy

SAILORS CLEARED IN YACHT MURDER

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 7—(AP).—A Federal Grand Jury yesterday freed Robert Horne, 27, and George Spernak, 19, of guilt in their confessed parts in ending the piratical career of "Mad Jack" Morgan, after five days of terror aboard the yacht Aafje.

Morgan, who had chartered the yacht last December 20 for an announced two-day pleasure trip to Catalina Island, was declared by the survivors to have killed the owner, Dwight Faulding, Santa Barbara hotel man, the first night out.

Armed, he forced Horne and Spernak to toss Faulding's body overboard, and continued on toward the unknown destination, which Federal agents learned might have been a South Seas island.

After five days of terror in which the seven remaining passengers said they were in constant fear of their lives, Horne said he felled Morgan with a marlin spike and with Spernak's aid, tossed him overboard in West Mexican waters.

U.S. Ship Beaches In Weser River

BREMEN, Germany, Jan. 7 (A.P.). — The United States steamship Saccarappa was beached near the mouth of the Weser river to-day after a collision in thick fog with the Panamanian tanker A. A. Mowinckel.

Two compartments of the 4,965-ton Saccarappa were taking water. The tanker, 12,223 tons, was bound for Bremen out of Le Havre. The Saccarappa was en route from Bremen to Charleston, S.C.

Captain H. J. Olsen of the Saccarappa and his crew of 36 were uninjured. Five tugs were assisting in plugging the leakage so the steamship could be taken to Bremen.

N.B. TRIAL DELAYED OVER NEWSPAPER USING CONFESSION

SAINT JOHN, N.B., Jan. 7—(CP).—William Robicheau, 24, stood committed for trial to-day on a charge of murdering Aaron N. Cohen, Saint John Merchant, but a legal battle loomed before time and place of the hearing could be set.

Robicheau was committed at conclusion of a preliminary hearing yesterday before Magistrate S. W. Palmer, who heard testimony of Frances Ward, 23-year-old Kent county girl.

W. A. Ross, representing the Crown, announced he would oppose request of Defence Counsel G. E. Logan for chance of venue.

Logan said he would ask that the case be tried elsewhere, because a purported confession of Robicheau had been printed in Saint John papers. The "confession" was admitted as evidence yesterday, but was not read in the courtroom. It was read at the inquest into Cohen's death.

Found Revolver in Room

Speaking almost inaudibly at times, Miss Ward testified Robicheau came to her room the night Cohen was shot. The next morning, she found a revolver which Robicheau took from her, but later gave back to her to hide, she said.

She told of being given a pair of boots she had sent to her brother in Buctouche, N.B.,—boots which police claim Robicheau took from Cohen's store before the proprietor surprised him there.

"He said Mr. Cohen had jumped at him in the store and that he had fired a shot," she said. "He realized the shot would be heard and he ran out. Mr. Cohen ran out and jumped on his back. He said he fired a shot over his shoulder to scare Mr. Cohen."

The gun that fell from under her pillow the morning after, had two shots fired from it, she testified.

BOY 15, ARRESTED FOR SLUGGING GIRL

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., Jan. 7 (CP).—A 15-year-old boy was arrested here today after Ann Sackany, 20, Stamford Township, stumbled into a local hotel with a bad scalp wound and told how she had been clubbed while on her way to work.

Police held the Falls View juvenile on a charge of assault and doing grievous bodily harm. Police said he confessed the crime but did not tell his motive. He was brought before a magistrate and remanded until tomorrow.

Miss Sackany was on her way to work when the assault took place. On Murray Hill she passed a boy going in the opposite direction. After he passed she heard running steps, she said, and turned just in time to see a club raised over her head. She fell to the ground as the club struck her and started to scream. The boy ran.

Doctors said a felt hat saved Miss Sackany from worse injury. She identified the boy arrested by Detective-Sergeant George Hughes and Detective Cecil Hay as her assailant.

THEBAUD DAMAGED

GLOUCESTER, Mass., Jan. 7—(AP)—The famed Gloucester fishing schooner Gertrude L. Thebaud was damaged early today when she sprung a leak after grounding off her dock. Pumps emptied her of water but she will have to be repair before taking to sea again.

Captain Ben Pine, her skipper, said he would haul the vessel out later today for repairs. The Thebaud is famed for its races with the Canadian fishing schooner Bluenose for the championship of the North Atlantic fishing fleet.

Business Follows Women's Skirts According To Pittsburgh Jester

Pittsburgh, Jan. 7 (AP). COLORFUL William N. McNair, jester of Pittsburgh politics, advanced a "new" theory today about economics—that the ups and downs of business follow the length of women's skirts.

The man who as Mayor fiddled on amateur programs and rode a steer in the downtown "golden triangle", says he's through with politics.

"I'm not going to run again. It costs $25 now to run for a public office in Pennsylvania. The state's obtaining money under false pretenses—it's not worth $25 to hold any office in the state."

"I've got a new theory about business cycles. I was reading a book from my grandfather's library the other night, printed in 1838, that said the depression of 1837 was caused by women's skirts.

"During periods of inflation, women's skirts keep going up, but when women go back to long skirts, we have another depression," he said.

WEEK OF PRAYER SERVICES HELD

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 6. — In common with the various Protestant churches throughout the world citizens gathered on Tuesday evening for the first service of the Week of Prayer under the auspices of the Ministerial Association of Campbellford. The services which begin at 8 o'clock each evening from Tuesday to Friday are featured by appropriate music and a brief address by one of the visiting ministers.

On Tuesday evening a fair congregation gathered at Christ Church (Anglican) when the service was conducted by the rector, Rev. T. H. Floyd and Rev. Harold B. Neal was the speaker. On Wednesday evening services were held at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church where the service was conducted by Rev. B. Simpson Black and Rev. T. H. Floyd addressed the congregation. On Thursday the service will continue at St. John's United Church when the service will be in charge of the Rev. Harold B. Neal and Rev. B. Simpson Black will deliver a special message on this occasion. The final services are to be held in the Salvation Army Citadel on Friday.

Service Of Prayer Held By Women

At a special meeting for women held in connection with The Week of Prayer in the Salvation Army Sunday School Hall, guests included Mrs. Brigadier Riches and Mrs. Colonel Peacock.

Mrs. W. R. Morris, member of Peterborough Board of Education and an outstanding local figure in womens organizations, voiced a welcome to Brigadier Riches and Colonel Peacock on behalf of the large gathering.

As guest speaker Mrs. Peacock spoke of the importance of prayer in the home. It proved to be an interesting topic. Mrs. Neil Warrander, head of the local Salvation Army Corps, in the chair, extended a motion of thanks to the guest speaker and others who contributed to the program.

During the service women of the Songster Brigade provided a program of sacred music. Mrs. M. Shadgett was the soloist. Mrs. R. C. Braund led the gathering in prayer, the Scripture lesson being read by Mrs. E. Hedge.

TO RELIEVE CATARRHAL DEAFNESS AND HEAD NOISES

If you have Catarrhal Deafness or are hard of hearing or have head noises go to your druggist and get 1 ounce of Parmint (double strength), and add to it ¼ pint of hot water and a little granulated sugar. Take one tablespoonful four times a day.

This will often brink quick relief from the distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy, and the mucus stop dropping into the throat. It is easy to prepare, costs little, and is pleasant to take. Anyone who has Catarrhal Deafness or head noises should give this prescription a trial.

Plan Fueling Test For Sea Flights

LONDON, Jan. 7—(CP-Havas). — Fueling Transatlantic commercial airplanes in the air will be one of the important problems tackled by Imperial Airways in connection with trans-ocean survey flights scheduled for 1938.

The company is devoting close attention to practical difficulties involved in fueling aircraft while in flight, since this is one of the methods of overcoming heavy load problems during long-distance hops.

One of the big Imperial Airways ships will carry out a series of test flights with a tanker plane during which special refueling apparatus will be given a try-out.

Further survey flights between Ireland and Newfoundland also are on the Imperial Airways program for 1938.

Famous Old Abbey Is Destroyed By Fire

Plymouth, Devonshire, Jan. 7. BUCKLAND Abbey, once the resident of Sir Francis Drake, was destroyed by fire today. Only a few of its valuable art treasures and Elizabethan relics were saved. The building, which was a monastery in the 12th century, had been owned by Drake's descendants for many years.

U.S. STRENGTHENING HAWAIIAN AIR ARM WITH 42 PLANES

SAN DIEGO, Calif., Jan. 7 (AP).—The U.S. Navy will fly 42 patrol and bombing planes from San Diego to Hawaii this year to make the air force at the crossroads of the Pacific the strongest in history.

Fleet patrol wing officials here said transfer of the new fighting planes will be started January 19 with the navy's greatest long distance mass flight.

Eighteen of the aircraft, manned by more than 100 officers and men under Lieut. Com. S. B. Warner, will leave on that date for Pearl Harbor, Honolulu, more than 2,500 miles away.

Twelve more planes will hop off from San Diego for Honolulu in late July or early August and the last 12 will leave in November.

Only last month the navy completed its greatest long distance mass flight to date, a transfer of 14 patrol and bombing planes, flown non-stop 3,080 miles from San Diego to Coco Solo, Canal Zone.

Japan plans to establish official commercial agencies in 12 important commercial centres.

MOSCOW OFFICERS JAILED FOR PLOT ON STALIN'S LIFE

LONDON, Jan. 7 (CP-Havas). — The Daily Mail to-day printed a despatch from Riga saying large numbers of Soviet officers had been arrested for plots to kill Joseph Stalin and his chief assistant, Nicolai Yezhoff, who, as Commissar for Internal Affairs, heads the Political Police.

Among higher officers of the Moscow garrison now being held in Libianka Prison, the Di, are Colonels Ossipoff, Smolin, Panikoff, and Smagulin.

The group was alleged to have planned to shoot Stalin during the festivities arranged to mark the anniversary of the organization of the Red Army by Leon Trotzky, now living in exile and charged by Soviet rulers with inspiring most of the men executed in recent months on charges of counter-revolutionary activities.

The plot to kill Yezhoff was said to have been hatched by a group of 25 officers led by Colonel Hevsieff and including Majors Boiloff and Berdaipjeff, who were arrested on December 24 at Kolimin, an important garrison near Moscow.

To further their plans to kill Yezhoff during his inspection tour of the garrisons of Moscow Province, members of the second group allegedly stole stocks of arms and ammunition from an arsenal, the despatch said.

PHEASANTS IN TOWN

GUELPH, Ont., Jan. 7—(CP). — A citizen saw six pheasants together on a snow-covered lawn here. The birds had evidently come into the city in search of food. The deep snow in the rural areas has been a hardship for them.

Duce Speeds Warship Program To Beat Britain, U.S., France

Aims to Have New Craft in Water Year Before Others And Expects Subs Will Total Second Only to Russia

ROME, Jan. 8.—(AP)—Italy intends to push her warship building program so as to have the new vessels in the water a full year before completion of the recently approved British, United States and French programs.

Naval experts asserted in newspaper articles today that "fascist organization" and "alacrity of fascist workers" would guarantee the project's completion by 1940-41.

(Great Britain at present has under construction five battleships of 35,000 tons each, four aircraft carriers, 17 cruisers, and 120 warships of other types. Of the battleships, two, provided under the 1936 program, will be completed in 1940, the others probably the following year.)

Newspapers published dispatches from London and Paris describing "surprise and anxiety" in those capitals on receiving news of the Italian program.

Il Duce announced today that construction would begin immediately on two 35,000-ton battleships, 12 destroyers and an unspecified number of submarines.

This surprise building program was regarded as fascist Italy's answer to what has been described as the "naval race of democratic countries."

Addition of the approximately 100,000 tons of warships contemplated will give Italy her largest navy—more than 600,000 tons—and place her second only to Russia in number of submarines, authorities said.

HOPES WANE FAST FOR LOST BOMBER

SAN PEDRO, Calif., Jan. 8. —(AP).— Search for a big, United States Navy bombing plane lost at sea with seven men aboard entered its third day to-day with hope waning.

Thirty-five fighting ships which pierced the darkness last night with searchlights were joined to-day by 284 navy planes, scanning an area of 60,000 square miles between San Luis Obispo and Ensenada, Lower California.

Given up for dead was Cadet Scott P. Hawkins, 29, of Jefferson City, Mo., who fell from his plane Thursday while engaged in the search.

On the hopeful side was the fact that the missing 25-ton, twin-engined bomber was capable of landing in and riding heavy seas for days, and that there were emergency rations aboard.

Against this was the fact the bomber had an auxiliary radio and nothing has been heard since it reported all well late Wednesday, when about 200 miles northwest of San Diego.

Japs Hunt Actress Who Vanished

TOYKO, Jan. 8—(AP)—The Foreign Office today instructed the Japanese Consul at Alexandrovsk, Northern (Soviet) Sakhalin, to learn what had become of a famous actress and her stage-manager lover, reported to have disappeared dramatically into Russian territory.

Dispatches to Tokyo newspapers told of how Yoshiko Xokada, 38 years old, long a favorite actress of the Japanese stage, and Yoshimasa Yoshida, 32, were sleighing near the line dividing the Japanese and Russian sections of the far northern island of Sakhalin.

Suddenly Yoshida flourished a pistol and compelled the sleigh driver to take them across the border, "fleeing Japan forever," one dispatch said. Tokyo papers said the couple were suspected of being pro-Communist.

Last Minute News Flashes

SAN PEDRO, Calif.—The coast-guard reported today a floating patch of oil and a broken life preserver were found by the crew of one of its cutters near San Clemente Island, giving rise to increasing fear the United States Navy's missing bomber with seven aboard crashed into the Pacific.

U.S. ANTI-AIRCRAFT GUNS ARE CLAIMED AS WORLD'S BEST

NEW YORK, Jan. 8 (AP) — The United States, whose air force is described as the most efficient in existence by Janes' "All the World's Aircraft," has a second deadly answer to attacks from the air.

It is the army's anti-aircraft artillery, which, while lacking in numerical strength, has displayed such technical progress that experts believe it capable of making important military areas invulnerable to raids by hostile aircraft.

Military observers watching the modern units shatter aerial targets at extreme ranges with an uncanny skill rate the United States among the world's leaders in the development of ground defences against bombing planes.

Outstanding among the units of this invaluable branch of national defence is the 62nd coast artillery whose mission is guarding metropolitan New York from bombing raids.

Capable of hurling more than three tons of flying steel per minute from its mechanically controlled guns, the regiment's practice operations drew from observers the report that "in material, training, and tactics, it is equal to or superior to similar units of foreign countries.

Have Mechanical Brains

The secret of the anti-aircraft artillery's startling efficiency is in its closely guarded fire control equipment, $30,000 "mechanical brains" which compute from basic observations the position of enemy targets, and automatically aim the fast-firing cannon.

Through their use, skilled gun crews, relieved of the necessity of aiming their three-inch guns manually, are able to fire them at the rate of 30 or more shots a minute, hurling 15-pound high explosive shells which literally blanket an area under fire with their deadly pellets of steel.

At night sound detectors and searchlights coupled to the "mechanical brains" give the regiments equally deadly striking power.

Fully mechanized, the modern anti-aircraft regiments move swiftly at speeds of 25 or more miles an hour, traveling in special trucks which carry the guns, men, and equipment.

Such forces, equipped with the new type guns and fire control instruments could, observers declare, under normal conditions protect any assigned area by destroying attacking aircraft, or forcing them to such great altitudes that effective bombing would be impossible.

Auto Wrecks House

Six persons asleep in this room miraculously escaped injury or death when the car, driven by Francis Hause, of Pottsville, Pa., got out of control and after crossing a ditch and roaring over 200 yards before the impact, crashed into the house with a force like an explosion. The house was wrecked as can be seen, but all occupants, plus the driver of the car, escaped. Hause (at RIGHT), suffered a slight gash over one eye.

2,000 Ragged Rebels Give Up In Teruel

1,500 Soldiers, 500 Women, Children Foodless Week Plead for Water as They Desert Wrecked Hideouts

MADRID, Jan. 8.—(AP)—Thirst, cold and hunger in embattled Teruel today forced the surrender of more than 2,000 ragged insurgent soldiers and their weakened women and children.

For 17 days they stood against government guns, fire and dynamite in guerilla warfare, from building to building through the narrow and twisting streets of the old provincial capital, 160 miles east of Madrid.

Reinforced insurgent troops outside the city fought in vain to come to their rescue, and they bowed at last to the hardship of siege against their hideouts in Asuncion Hospital and the dynamite-wrecked Santa Clara Church.

The unsuccessful rescuing force was encountering trouble—230 insurgents were captured during the battle about Muela de Teruel, outside Teruel, the government said.

The capitulation was in contrast to a previous dramatic siege—when about 1,700 insurgent troops and their kin were rescued by comrades after nearly 10 weeks of government siege against their fortress, the Toledo Alcazar, in 1936.

1,000 ITEMS LISTED IN ANGLO-U.S. PACT

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—(AP).—The United States and Great Britain moved to-day toward the final stages of a significant commercial accord.

Secretary Hull made public a long list of imports upon which the United States will consider granting concessions. Accompanying it was a notice that public hearings will be opened here March 14 for interested parties.

The Hull statement listed more than 1,000 items to enable "interested persons to learn whether or not products in which they are interested may be considered for the granting of concessions to the government of the United Kingdom."

Items on the free list for consideration included six which are among the leading commodity imports of the United States. These are uncut or rough diamonds and diamond dust, hides and skins, crude and scrap rubber, paper base stock, art work, and tin, tin alloys and tin scrap.

Imports of these commodities totalled, for each item, between $30,000,000 and $156,000,000 in 1936.

In pointing out the items were listed merely for purposes of negotiating, the statement said:

"Some of the products listed may not be the subject of any concession under the terms of the agreement, and the import duties on those items which are included in the agreement as finally negotiated may or may not be changed.

Cutting Up Basswood Proves "Sweet" Job

(Examiner Correspondence.)

Janetville, Jan. 8.

MESSRS Russell and Harry Armstrong, who reside west of the village, while cutting wood in their swamp on Monday were fortunate in finding a cache of honey. They had cut down an extra large basswood tree which they proceeded to cut in four feet lengths and one of these sections was found hollow and filled from end to end with honey. They salvaged around 75 pounds, some of which was of the clear variety.

Their neighbours remarked, that "That was one sweet job"

Over Eight Tons Of Catalogues In Nine Languages Now On Way To 65 Countries

LONDON, Jan. 8 (AP).—A shop counter of British goods, 26 miles long, will be displayed at the London and Birmingham sections of the forthcoming British Industries Fair, February 21 to March 4.

The total area occupied by the exhibits will be 845,000 square feet, exceeding the 1937 record, the London total already being 10,000 square feet greater.

Eight and three-quarter tons of catalogues of the Fair in nine languages are now on their way to 65 countries.

A new idea in London this year will be cards on many stands announcing the various languages spoken by exhibitors. The department of overseas trade has already been asked for cards in 17 foreign languages, including Russian, Czech, Bulgarian, Turkish and Greek. One exhibitor has been given a card in Esperanto. Two firms have assistants who among them speak eight languages.

Canada will be well represented at the Fair by exhibitors and buyers. In fact the Dominion holds first place among Empire buyers' representations. A Canadian official and commercial exhibit will be organized by the Canadian Government Exhibition Commission in the Empire section of the Fair located on the ground floor of the Earl's Court building.

Seated Skeleton In Abandoned Mine Mystifies Gypsum Officials

Clarence Center, N.Y., Jan. 8

DISCOVERY of a man's skeleton seated in an abandoned gypsum mine passage provided a mystery for Erie County authorities today.

A medical examiner's report that the man had died with a fractured skull caused Undersheriff Bryon D. Inderbitzen to express the belief the man might have died from "foul play."

The searchlamps of a crew of mine workers disclosed the bones yesterday in a low-ceiling tunnel in a remote section of the National Gypsum Company's mine.

Tense Moment Rises Over Invasion Of Foreign Area

Angry Troops Face Each Other at Boundary Line After Nipponese Beat Third Officer in Two Days

SHANGHAI, Jan. 8—(AP)—Japanese soldiers trained rifles and machine-gun on French troops in the French concession for an hour today and roughly handled a member of the French police in the second critical incident in the international areas of Shanghai in two days. Two British soldiers were beaten yesterday.

British Commander Major General A. P. D. Telfer-Smollet protested the British incident, and French officials were considering a formal protest to Japanese today.

The belligerent show of force began after a Chinese woman crossed into the French zone from the native district, Nantao, to obtain water.

Japanese prohibit departure from Nantao, and a Japanese sentry ran after the woman. He seized and struck her, said the French.

A policeman in the concession, of Russian nationality, intervened. He was struck in the face. Other Japanese soldiers started to drag the policeman across the boundary into Nantao.

Tense Situation

The policeman slipped loose, whereupon nearly 100 of the Japanese troops gathered at the concession boundary and pointed rifles and a machine-gun at the armed and indignant French troops. Two armored cars rushed reinforcements.

While the potential fighters faced each other tensely, French consul Pierre Auge took up the matter with the Japanese consul.

They reached an agreement which for the moment ended the incident with withdrawal of the troops.

The British policemen were slugged by Japanese soldiers in an asserted invasion of the British defence zone of the international settlement.

Major - General Telfer - Smollett was reported to have warned Japanese military officials that a re-

30,000 ITALIANS GOING TO GERMANY AS FARM WORKERS

ROME, Jan. 8.— (AP) —Thirty thousand Italians will go to Germany to march to work as farm hands under an agreement between the Italian and German governments.

The arrangement announced today will absorb some of Italy's surplus farm labor and give Germany needed agricultural workers in the Reiches' campaign to increase its food production.

German farm work normally attracts season laborers from Italy and eastern Europe but, under the new plan, Italians, instead of filtering into the country individually, will go as an organized work army and in larger numbers.

The Fascist Federation of Farm Workers, in announcing the agreement, said it would eliminate "hardships and humiliation" often encountered by Italian workers abroad and further cement Italo-German friendship and economic ties.

Men will be divided into groups of from 10 to 25 each, with a captain and interpreter. These leaders will themselves be farm workers. The interpreters will be recruited from frontier regions where many peasants speak German.

The workers will receive food, lodging and the equivalent to about 40 cents a day in wages.

They will sign up for the duration of the German agricultural season—which normally lasts about eight months.

Sub Arctic Freight Loads Hit New High In '37

Steam And Diesel Boats Move In 23,000 Tons And Planes Another 600

OTTAWA, Jan. 8 (CP).—Transportation activity in the Northwest Territories reached a new high in 1937 when the four principal transportation companies, using steam and Diesel-powered boats carried 23,000 tons of freight from and to Waterways, Alta., at the end of steel, the Federal Department of Mines and Resources reported today.

In addition, two main airway companies handled 600 tons of freight and supplies and due to increased mining activity the transportation companies are looking forward to an even heavier movement in 1938.

The report said an important addition to transportation facilities of the Northwest during the past year was launching of the Diesel-powered steel boats, Radium Queen and Radium King, on the Mackenzie River route. The tugs were built at Sorel, Que., and moved to the north in sections by rail. At Waterways and Fort Smith they were re-assembled.

Farthest North Pipe Line.

Another noteworthy development, the report said, was construction of an eight-and-a-half mile pipeline with storage tanks to overcome navigation difficulties at St. Charles Rapids on Great Bear River. This is believed to be the world's farthest north pipeline.

A fleet of tanker barges was constructed at Fort Smith to aid movement of oil between wells 50 miles below Fort Norman and the consuming points. Oil during summer months now moves on a regular schedule in the Northwest.

The airlane continued to play an important role in northern development, the report said, with number of planes in service in the Northwest last year varying from 16 to 20 operating from Edmonton, Prince Albert and Fort McMurray.

Good Hunting Dog Needs No Gun

Dixon, Ill., Jan. 8 (UP)

FRANK Adams needs no gun to hunt. He took his axe and his dog to the woods, intending to fell a tree. At the first axe blow, a muskrat leaped from the base of the tree. The dog killed the muskrat. The second time his axe bit into the tree, an opossum jumped out. The dog killed the opossum. The third blow chased out a squirrel—but it got away as the dog captured a red fox in a thicket.

Three U.S. Auto-Makers Start Back-To-Work Movement

55,000 At Chrysler, 6,000 Hudson, 25,000 Ford All To Be Employed Shortly

DETROIT, Jan. 8 (AP)—A back-to-work trend in the automobile industry here was under way today after holiday layoffs.

The Chrysler Corp. announced last night that the 55,000 persons who were working in its plants at the time of the curtailment Dec. 23 will return Tuesday.

It did not state whether the resumption of operations would be on the normal 40-hour week or the 32-hour schedule placed in effect for those who remained on duty after Dec. 23.

The Hudson Motor Car Co. said this week that it would "put money and men back to work" in announcing the expenditure of $11,000,000 for materials and equipment to begin immediate production of a new car in the low-price field.

It said it would increase its workers from 6,000 to 12,000 within the next few weeks, adding $1,250,000 a month to its factory payroll.

The Ford Motor Co. said that less than 25,000 of the 87,000 workers at its mammoth Rouge plant in Dear-

Solloway Freed

I. W. C. Solloway, former Toronto stock broker, was acquitted of a charge of theft and of obtaining sums totalling almost $2,000,000 by false pretences. The court withdrew the false pretences charge and the jury deliberated all night over the theft charge, after a trial which lasted seven weeks.

WRECKED HOOVER SHIP CREW DENIES DRINK, RIOT TALES

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 8 (AP).— Passengers of the wrecked liner President Hoover expected "Waldorf service" and complained of the food while they were castaways on Rocky Holshoto Island, the ship's crew said today in replying to complaints of misconduct.

Sam Cohen, steward's delegate, denied published reports the seamen became intoxicated, molested women and rioted.

"We took off all the passengers in less than nine hours without a casualty," Cohen said. "Does that sound as if the men were drinking?

"They said we broke into the bar. Liquor supplies were taken ashore and placed in the hands of the ship's surgeon. Some of the bottles disappeared, but nobody in the crew got them."

The Dollar liner President McKinley brought 165 of the seamen here from Manila yesterday as a Department of Commerce marine investigating board opened a hearing into the wreck.

Massie Prosecutor Kelley Dies

HONOLULU, Jan. 8—(AP)—Public Prosecutor John C. Kelley, 56, who obtained manslaughter convictions against three United States navy men and a society matron in the sensational Massie attack case of 1932, died here yesterday of heart disease.

The veteran prosecutor battled against Clarence Darrow, famous Chicago criminal attorney, in the Massie case.

The defendants, Lieut. Thomas H. Massie, his mother-in-law, Mrs. Granville Fortescue, and two naval enlisted men, Albert O. Jones and E. J. Ford, were charged with murdering Joseph Kahahawai, one of five men of mixed blood accused of criminally attacking Mrs. Massie.

The defendants' 10-year sentences were commuted to one hour in custody of the territorial high sheriff. All left the islands shortly afterwards.

The five-day week is being inaugurated in Capetown, South Africa.

HUNTING CABIN DEATH BAFFLES JURY AT SAULT

Girl Like Lot of Drunks. Stubborn, Says Guide

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., Jan. 8 (CP) — Whether Helen Grier was murdered or committed suicide while on a hunting trip in northern Ontario woods last fall remained undecided today as an inquest into the tragedy in a northern hunting camp failed to come to an end.

In the opinion of medical authorities who testified at last night's lengthy session there was no doubt as to the cause of her death. The 28-year-old Pontiac, Mich., stenographer, Dr. J. R. McRae and Dr. E. R. Frankish told the jury, died last Oct. 28 as "the result of a bullet wound in the head."

The body of the Brunette stenographer was found in a lonely backwoods cottage she had visited each autumn since 1932 in the company of Vernon Spencer of Wixom, Mich. Spencer, a former professional baseball player who once played with Toronto Maple Leafs of the International League, has been held in custody since Oct. 29 as a material witness.

The inquest is being conducted under Coroner Dr. J. P. Keith. Crown Attorney J. L. O'Flynn, K.C., questioned the medical witnesses closely concerning an abrasion and a fracture at the back of Miss Grier's head. Both said that in their opinion the injuries were not caused by a fall.

Suicide Difficult Job

Of the suicide aspect of the case Dr. Frankish, medico-legal expert of the Ontario Attorney-General's Department, said: "If this girl did shoot herself, she must have rested the butt of the gun on some shelf or something because she was not strong enough to hold the gun herself in the position she would have to hold it to shoot herself, especially

DEADLOCK GRIPS STRIKE AT PERTH

PERTH, Ont., Jan. 8 (C.P.). — Negotiations between the Perth Shoe Company and the Canadian Shoe Workers' Union and Allied Crafts, which called a strike of union employees last Wednesday, were at a standstill to-day as the walkout, second within a year, continued.

The strike was called after the company gave notice it would not renew an agreement, which ended the previous walkout, after it expired on December 15 Company officials in a statement last night said they advised the union's shop committee "we would carry on under the same conditions."

Notice of termination of the agreement was given last November 16 and factory officials said that on January 5 "our company was presented with a new agreement, different from the original one we had been working on, along with further wage demands which we found impossible to accept."

According to Joseph Carrier, union organizer, the union asked for an increase of 10 cents on the hourly rate and a 15 per cent. increase on all piecework, but this was refused.

The company's statement said general conditions were discussed at a conference between the Union Committee, company officials, and O. C. Jennette of the Ontario Department of Labor. Following the meeting, the statement added, "We were advised by the committee they would have to lay the matter before their general membership and we would subsequently hear from them."

Hitting A Chicken Classed As Accident, Skunk Sole Exception For Going On

Cornwall, Ont., Jan. 8 (CP)

MAGISTRATE P. C. Bergeron ruled in court yesterday that an accident will be considered such even if a chicken or a cat or dog is involved and that a motorist who fails to stop after striking an animal is laying himself open to a charge of failing to remain at the scene of an accident—except if the animal happens to be a skunk when "it would be wise not to stop."

The magistrate's ruling was prompted by a legal argument that arose some time ago when a Charlottenburg township farmer was charged with failing to remain at the scene of an accident after his automobile struck a dog. The charge was dismissed on grounds the farmer did not know his car struck the animal.

Mr. Bergeron maintained striking of the dog constituted an accident and said yesterday his ruling would stand unless quashed by appeal.

as her arm was only long enough to barely reach the trigger."

When Spencer, 40, made his way through the bush to notify police of the tragedy, he told authorities he had found the body upon the cottage floor when he returned from a lone trip in search of game tracks. A .22-calibre rifle lay near the body, which was clad in pyjamas. Spencer said he and Miss Grier had spent the afternoon of Oct. 28 shooting at targets.

Dr. McRae, Sault Ste. Marie surgeon who performed the post mortem examination, testified that death was caused by laceration of the frontal lobe of the brain by a bullet and by the resultant hemorrhage, concussion and skull fractures. He said his examination showed there was life some time after the wounds were inflicted.

Case Continues Monday.

The inquest was adjourned until Monday night after seven witnesses had testified. Among them was Fred Olar, the guide who accompanied the couple to the hunting lodge and remained in the camp for two days. "She was a nice girl if she wasn't drunk," Olar said of Miss Grier. She was "like a lot of other drunks —she was stubborn."

Olar, who told the Crown Attorney he was 44 and was the father of 15 children, said he never had witnessed any quarreling between the couple when they were "in the teetotal moments," but the man and woman sometimes quarrelled, Olar said, when Miss Grier "wouldn't go to bed and acted bossy."

Pictures of the interior and exterior of the cottage taken by M. A. Coulson were identified from the stand by the Sault Ste. Marie photographer. They were taken during police investigation of the tragedy. Empty whisky bottles hanging on the cabin walls and a picture of an obscene sign in the kitchen were drawn to the attention of the jury.

Other witnesses told of Spencer arriving at Glendale, seven miles from the lodge, to bring news of the shooting. The cottage is owned by Dr. A. A. Holcombe, Northville, Mich., who had loaned it to Spencer. Mrs. Spencer came from Wixom to attend the inquest and sat beside her husband's counsel throughout the session. No pictures of the court room were allowed to be taken.

British Press Sarcastic

(Rough handling of the policemen provoked sharp press criticism of Japan in London. The Daily Express went so far as to predict that diplomatic relations might be severed by Great Britain. The foreign office awaited an official report.

(The Express said the "usual apology" merely would cross any British protests. The Telegram and Morning Post stressed that lack of control over the Japanese military was a contributing factor.

Reuters News Agency, reported in a Shanghai dispatch that Japanese marines had occupied the British-owned new Asia Hotel in the international settlement, and that two Union Jacks were hauled down.

(The London Daily Mail, commenting on slugging of the policeman, observed that "these deliberate outrages will have a further irritant effect upon relations between Japan and the powers already affected by Japanese actions in Shanghai.")

Meanwhile, fighting centred 400 miles to the northwest of Shanghai along the East-West Lunghai Railway, China's "last line of defence."

Japanese reported capture of Tsowhsien in their southward drive through Shantung province, designed to win control of the railway.

2,084 ENGLISH PAPERS

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 8—(AP).—There were 2,084 daily English language newspapers listed in the United States in 1937, a decrease of 23 compared with the preceding year, the N. W. Ayer & Son Directory for 1938 shows.

Weekly papers numbered 10,629, a decrease of 176, and semi-weekly 359, a drop of 18.

GIVEN THREE YEARS

BELLEVILLE, Jan. 8. — Blaglen McAllister, 36, Toronto, arrested in Toronto and brought to Belleville on a charge of theft of 126 fountain pens and pencils from a local drug store on December 30, was today sentenced to three years in Kingston penitentiary when he appeared before Magistrate E. STORM AT LINDSAY COSTS TOWN $500

LINDSAY, Jan. 8.—Clyde Workman, a local man, was sentenced Monday to thirty days in jail by Magistrate Gee, charged with carrying a revolver without a permit. The accused was arrested on New Year's Eve by Chief of Police Lawler.

Albert Bennet, of Toronto, was sentenced to four months in the Ontario Reformatory on the charge of perjury. The case arose out of a charge of theft preferred against a local man, in which Bennett gave evidence. He claimed he had only been in trouble once, but the court disclosed the fact that he had a number of convictions registered against him.

Raids on alleged bootlegging operators in Fenelon Falls and Coboconk were made on Thursday by Provincial Constable Adair and Traffic Officer Kennedy. Complaints have reached the authorities from these two centres that a great deal of liquor is being sold. Six raids were made on suspects, but the officers were unable to get sufficient evidence. Notice was served on the alleged bootleggers that their movements will be watched closely in future.

A well-known merchant of Fenelon Falls, in the person of Arthur L. Townley, passed away in that village on Thursday. He was prominent in the business life of the community for forty-five years as a merchant tailor. Deceased is survived by his wife, one daughter, one son, his mother, two brothers and two sisters.

The New Year's snowstorm cost the town of Lindsay $500.00. This was the amount of wages paid the man and trucks engaged in clearing away the snow.

HASTINGS MAN HAS OLD BOOK

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Jan. 8.—A rare book, believed to be over 150 years old and thought to be worth considerable money, is in the possession of John Fairman of Hastings. It was brought from England about 53 years ago as part of a collection belonging to General Middleton, who took part in the Louis Riel rebellion in North Battleford, Saskatchewan.

General Middleton was sent to Canada about 1881 to aid in putting down the rebellion and about 1885 left for England, leaving his collection of books with a sister, who resided in Campbellford at that time. Mr. Fairman at a sale in Campbellford in 1918, purchased a horse and a portion of her library, including the book.

Has 839 Pages

The book is entitled "The Fables of Fontaine" and is in a good state of preservation. It is quite large in size, has 839 pages, is bound in leather with gilt-edged pages and weighs 9½ pounds. At first glance, one would think it was a family Bible from its large proportions.

BASE METALS TOP STOCK ADVANCES IN 10-POINT GAIN

TORONTO, Jan. 8 (C.P.).—Canadian stocks opened the New Year with a definite manifestation of optimism after churning about in the closing weeks of 1937. The net advance registered by the Base Metal shares—more than 10 points in the Toronto Exchange index—was one of the widest, for one week, in recent market history.

The recovery coincided with suggestions of a new spending campaign in the United States as a means of checking the current business slump, and also the announcement of plans for a sharp expansion of the United States rearmament program.

Late in December traders appeared to be impressed by the outlook for the gold shares and these issues figured increasingly in the market action. The official announcement that the gold holdings of the British Exchange equalization fund had been increased 50 per cent. in the six months ended September 30 last or from about $933,590,000 to $1,394,000, gave a more confident tone to the gold share market.

While buying in the group expanded it was apparent that the supply of stock overhanging the market was considerable, discouraging any wide up-swing of prices. In the last week the Toronto market index for the gold shares registered only a two-point gain. Senior golds actually lost ground.

Secondary Golds Active

Buffalo-Ankerite was a market feature in the week, rising about $2 to a new all-time peak around $15. Trade was heavy in a group of the secondary golds, including Pamour, Moneta, Hard Rock, Macleod-Cockshutt, Preston, O'Brien and East Malarctic, but these retained only a part of their gains as realizing increased towards the week-end.

A few of the juniors turned heavy as they were offered down in volume. Bidgood-Kirkland, Stadacona, Jellicoe and Oro Plata declined, and Argosy, after sinking to 10 cents, was removed from the board at the request of the company.

Net gains of $4 each were recorded by International Nickel, Consolidated Mining and Smelting and Noranda and Hudson Bay advanced $3.25. Ventures and Falconbridge gained $1 each.

A three-point advance in the Industrial share index reflected group strength in the steels, refinery oils, distillery, paper and bank issues. Substantial gains were posted by the Steel of Canada issues and National Steel Car while the distillery leaders, Walkers Common and Distillers Corporation-Seagrams advanced $1.50 to $2 and the big oils, Imperial, International Petroleum and British American, gained 50 to 75 cents each.

2,000 RAGGED REBELS GIVE UP

A government communique announced surrender of the Teruel garrison trapped in the city by a sudden offensive of the Madrid army on December 21. Teruel had been an important insurgent base for most of the nearly 18 months of civil war.

Nothing to Eat for Week.

Lieut.-Colonel Rey D'Harcourt, commander, led 1,500 of his troops and 500 women, children, age and wounded from the hospital. They had not eaten for a week.

Emerging in groups of six, under a promise of safety as prisoners, all asked first for water. A number who had been underground during the siege fainted. Their condition was pitiable, the government commander reported, and many were wounded.

With the capitulation of the main insurgent body within Teruel, the government appeared definitely in control of the strategic front, a menace to government Valencia and the eastern costal territory.

The insurgents outside Teruel appeared stymied, after the most intensive fighting of the war. Government forces said they beat back two attacks on the heights of Celadas to the north and an open country tank charge. Forty government planes machine-gunned insurgent positions near Celadas.

"There now remain within Teruel only small insurgent redoubts which doubtless will surrender soon," a government's communique said.

BULLS TAKE HOLD SEND WHEAT UP

WINNIPEG, Jan. 8 (CP).—After a dull 1937 wind-up, bulls took charge of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange pit this week and lifted wheat futures 10 cents. December's listlessness was quickly erased when traders plunged into the pit on the buying side.

Though wheat advances brought out increased supplies from Western Canada farmers, heavier hedging sales and profit-taking, futures closed yesterday 9½-10⅛ cents higher than last Friday's close, May at $1.28⅜ and July $1.20⅜-½. These quotes were only one cent below the peaks.

Importers, scrambling for light supplies of Canadian spring wheat, apparently were ready to take advantage of any fair price recession. Friday's erratic session indicated watchfulness of exporters for the slightest drop in futures.

Export sales for the week were at about 2,000,000 bushels. Thus Canada's estimated exportable surplus until the next crop-year, August 1, decreased to 30,000,000 bushels, including durum wheat, after providing for domestic needs and normal carryover of 35,000,000 bushels.

Buenos Aires wheat futures made good headway with uncertain prospects of new Plate corn crop a factor. United States markets whirled higher with Winnipeg. Stronger tone in stocks and security markets was said by traders to have been outgrowth of confidence gained by business leaders following President Roosevelt's recent message to Congress.

Letter Arrives In Peterborough 8 Days After Mailed In New Zealand

When letters take wings they set their own time schedules with a speed to which the highly accelerated modern pace is rather slow in orientation.

W. A. Brown of G. Whitaker and Company showed the Examiner this morning a letter bearing the Wellington, N.Z., post office date of December 31. And that was something to rub one's eyes at in astonishment. The letter was addressed to Mr. Brown and was carried on the inaugural trip of the new air mail service between New Zealand and the United States. Apparently it would have to be taken perhaps in the regular way from Wellington to Auckland. At that point it must have arrived just in time to catch the Pan-American Airways Clipper. The Trans-Pacific route includes Honolulu as a main port of call, and arriving at San Fransisco is transferred to a transcontinental airplane and brought to Buffalo, coming the rest of the way by train. The air mail rate out of Auckland is 5s 3d per ½ ounce, but at the local post office the charge from the United States to New Zealand is listed at 70 cents.

The distance from Honolulu to San Francisco is 2,100 miles, from Honolulu to San Francisco 3,810 miles and across the continent to Peterborough 3,135 miles, a total of approximately 9,000 miles. And according to the evidence of the postal machines in Wellington this trip was made from Saturday to the next, at a rate of considerably more than 1,000 miles a day.

Incidentally, Postmaster Lacheur informed the Examiner that for six cents a letter posted here at 6 a.m. will be delivered in Vancouver the next morning at 10 o'clock.

SICK MAN AT 62 HALE AND HEARTY AT THE AGE OF 97

CANANOQUE, Jan. 8—Away back in 1902, Charle F. Rath of Lansdowne was a pretty sick young chap of 62 or thereabouts. His stomach was acting up, and a doctor advised a sea voyage. Not being in the leisure class, the patient didn't go, but he took a long train trip out West, and after the train or the roabed got through with him his stomach ailment disappeared.

That was 34 years ago. To-day Mr. Rath is in the best of health as he goes into his 98th year. At the 60-mark he was ailing; at 97 he looks 20 years younger. He walks a great deal, and believes that this has much to do with his excellent health.

Mr. Rath uses tobacco and doesn't think it harmful. He is not a "dry," but he has had a bottle of liquor in the house for 14 years and it still has half its contents. He hasn't any politics, believing that both major political parties have good men. The eight-hour day might be all right in the cities, but not on the farm.

"Cows won't stand for an eight-hour day," said this veteran resident of Lansdowne. "They have to be milked regularly. A day's work on the farm connot be compelled in eight hours."

Mr. Rath remembers an incident about eighty years ago when his father gave him tax money and told him to pay it to the Collector in Gananoque 13 miles away. The roads were rough and there were no pavements in those days. And young Rath walked all the way. Young people don't walk enough, he maintains.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, Jan. 8 (C.P.).—After a mid-session weak spell, wheat futures on Winnipeg Grain Exchange again headed upward on strength of continued moderate export business. Final prices were ⅛ cent higher to ¼ cent lower.

After futures advanced a cent putting May wheat 10⅝ cents above the final 1937 quotation, profit-takers and selling by Western Canadian wheat holders hammered values down. Adverse inter-market spreading produced bottom levels a cent under the previous day's close.

Bulwarks against sales were bullish Buenos Aires and Liverpool price trends, a 750,000-bushel wheat export trade in the United States, low weekly Australian wheat clearances and expectations importers would dip further into North American markets for supplies on any drastic price recessions.

Only a small trade came out in cash wheat, though No. 2 Northern eased ¼ cent and closed at 14½ cents premium over May future. No. 1 was unchanged at 24 cents premium. Durums dropped 2 cents.

Coarse grains rallied from low points in sympathy with strength in wheat.

MILLBROOK

Mrs. Trevor Braithwaite and two children of Cavanville are visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George McCorry.

Mr. W. R. Howard, M.A., secretary-treasurer of the School Board, is presenting to the school a handsome oak shield, to be known as "The W.R. Howard Trophy," and to be presented annually to the student, boy or girl, in Upper School, who graduates with the highest honors. Academic proficiency is the objective in view in deciding the winner.

It is believed that the proprietors of the local paper have in view the presenting of a somewhat similar trophy for competition among Lower School pupils, and the hope has been expressed that some equally public-spirited citizen will offer to provide a shield for a reward for scholars in Middle School.

The Universal Week of Prayer was observed locally by union services in the three churches of the community, in turn, on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday evenings of this week, at 7.45 each night. The first meeting was held in the Parish Hall of St. Thomas' church, with Rev. C. L. Brown, of Springville, giving an inspirational address on "Peace." The minister was in charge of the service each night in his own church, and on Wednesday evening the address on "The Nations" was taken by Rev. A. L. Sisco in Grace Presbyterian church. The concluding service was in St. Andrew's United Church, with Venerable Archdeacon William Simpson speaking on "The Church." A representative congregation gathered each evening, and the period of the service devoted especially to prayer was a peculiarly helpful feature of the meetings.

The Oak shield, which is to be for annual competition each year at the Continuation School Field Day, usually in October, and which was won in 1937 by the Orono Continuation School when the sports' events between representatives of the two schools took place at the Agricultural Park, Millbrook, has been received by Miss Morgan, B.A., Principal, and will be forwarded immediately to the winners.

The trophy is a handsome one, generous in size, and has two figures, a boy and girl, in gym suits, holding aloft the central silver plate on which the engraving has been placed. A regrettable delay has occurred in the making and receiving of the trophy, which however will not feature the presentation of the award when the contest takes place again next fall.

Biblical Thoughts For The Shut-Ins

By Rev. E. R. James Toronto

A GOOD RESOLUTION

I WILL GO in the Strength of the Lord God; I will make mention of Thy righteousness, even of thine only. Psalm 71; 16.

"A happy and prosperous New Year" is your greeting to friends and relations. How can you be happy and truly prosperous is the all absorbing question? A jew, three thousand years ago, gives the reason for his happiness and success. "I will go in the strength of the Lord God," is his resolution.

New Year resolutions are many and generally broken by the fifteenth of the month, fulfilling what Luther so aptly says:—"Hell is paved with good intentions." This Jew has a good intention but he recognizes his weakness, his limitations, his need for help outside himself so he exclaims:— "I will go in the strength of the Lord God." This is the secret of his success. He is a man with a definite aim. His ambition is to walk in the Way of the Lord so that in the day of stress and strain he will be able to stand steadfast knowing that "underneath are the everlasting Arms."

How helpful it is to remember that the earliest name given to the Christians by friend and foe is that they were "men of the Way"; that they lived according to rule and discipline.

What rule, what discipline will you make for yourself this coming year? To begin the day aright should be your ideal. Set an appointed time to rise and do so. An ancient prophet says:— "The Lord God wakeneth morning by morning; He wakeneth mine ear to hear as they that are taught." What an inspiration to remember that God Himself is waking you to keep a tryst with Him. "The Lord God hath opened mine ear and I was not disobedient." Can you lie abed after such a thought?

Then read a short portion of Holy Scripture, a few verses, preferably from the Gospels. Strive to carry a short sentence in your mind for help during the day. "Thy word have I hid within mine heart that I might not sin against Thee." In the hour of stress or temptation the Holy Spirit will bring that Scripture to your remembrance. In this way you will discover the value of the inspiration of the Word of God. It will become "as honey in your mouth for sweetness." There will be dark days in this coming year. The Lord Jesus does not promise us freedom from trouble. "In the world ye shall have tribulation, but be of good cheer, I have overcome the world."

The psalmist goes further. "I will make mention of Thy righteousness, even of Thine only." He will bear witness. Witness bearing is absolutely necessary for true development of Christian character. "Ye aremy witnessess" saith the Lord Christ. This does not mean that you are to be always talking about your experiences. There is a very grave psychological and spiritual danger in such action. There will arise opportunities for a quiet, calm confession of God's goodness to you.

The first to bear witness by dying for the Faith in the Lord Jesus is St. Stephen. Acts seven, verses 55-60, would be an excellent portion to begin reading and meditating upon. If the shadows of your life are lengthening his prayer:— "Lord Jesus, receive my spirit," should be indelibly written upon your mind. Above all remember the Holy Spirit in times of difficulty will say to you: "This is the way, walk ye in it," and as you obey you will be able to say with the Apostle:— "I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me."

"I BESEECH YOU THAT YE WALK WORTHY OF THE VOCATION WHEREWITH YE ARE CALLED."

A National Message

We wish to speak a word of caution and expostulation to those of our brethren of the Christian Ministry who are boldly challenging the truth of British-Israel.

First, we may present our credentials to justify what we are about to say hereafter. The following has been written without particular consultation with our associates, but there need be no question that they carry the weight of the judgment of the clergymen and ministers, educationists and other professional men, and of the laity, who stand with us in the many countries where our movement prevails.

It is generally stated, in order to give weight by comparison to the opposition, that there are no scholars in the British-Israel Movement. No doubt those who make such statements think that they are strictly adhering to the truth, and that this Movement is one carried forward by those not qualified to judge.

The statement, however, is not only untrue—which is the negative form of the statement—it is positively untrue. A much shorter form of expression might be used. Facts will be desired to support this statement. Anyone who cares to search the literature of the British-Israel Movement will be struck with the fact that among the small number who, for many years, stood together in defence of this truth, a very large proportion of them carried the various degrees which our Universities bestow. Such degrees were earned from Oxford, Cambridge, London, Birmingham, Durham, Trinity College, Dublin, Aberdeen, Yale, McGill, Toronto, British Columbia, and many other Universities. We warn our opponents, if they have any respect for truth, to avoid circulating such misleading statements as these.

Turning to standing and experience in the various churches: within our ranks have been Archbishops, Bishops, well-placed clergy, ministers of high standing in the various churches, heads of educational departments and institutions, distinguished members of the Bar, and so on. Such positions as have been occupied by many of those referred to have been achieved through merit in long and vigorous years of service in the various branches of the Christian Church.

We respectfully ask of the rank-and-file of those who oppose us—what is it that you oppose? We recommend each opponent to face this question, lest in opposing us he may be found to oppose the very standard upon which the whole doctrinal structure of his own Communion is based. We will state (in this column during the next few weeks) the things for which we stand.

The Golden Text

Mark 1:3—"Make ye ready the way of the Lord."

Preparing for a Life of Service

"BRASS TACKS" ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By DR. ALVIN E. BELL

The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for January 9 is Mark 1:1-13, the Golden Text being Mark 1:3, "Make ye ready the way of the Lord."

A BEARER of good news wastes no time getting to the story he has to tell. So John Mark begins his account of the "good news," or gospel, with a statements so brief as to be regarded by many Bible students as Mark's own title or superscription of his story of Christ's life: "The beginning of the gospel of Jesus Christ, the Son of God."

The Roots of the Gospel.

While we find the fruits of the gospel in the New Testament, we must look for the roots of the gospel in the Old Testament. So Mark goes back to the Old Testament prophets Isaiah and Malachi to show how that all that preceded Christ was but prophetic and preparatory to his coming and ministry: "Even as it is written in Isaiah the prophet, Behold, I send my messenger before thy face, who shall prepare thy way; the voice of one crying in the wilderness, Make ye ready the way of the Lord, make his paths straight." This bold and rugged preacher's credentials were written on no diploma of the schools of his day, but rather in the writings of the ancient prophets of his nation. His was a ministry of utter self-denial as he ministered, "clothed with camel's hair, and a leathern girdle around his loins, and did eat locusts and wild honey." Certainly, no one could accuse him of preaching for what he got out of it!

"Behold the Lamb of God."

John the Baptist directed attention from himself to Christ, of whom he said, "He must increase, but I must decrease." He claimed to be nothing but "a voice of one crying in the wilderness." He felt himself unworthy to render to Christ the most menial service to the King whose coming he heralded: "There cometh after me he that is mightier than I, the latchet of whose shoes I am not worthy to stoop down and unloose." It was John's high privilege to be the last of the prophets and the first of the evangelists, to usher the Christ into his ministry and announce him as "the Lamb of God that taketh away the sin of the world." He dissuaded his own disciples from following him, and pointed them to Christ as their Master. "I baptize you in water; but he shall baptize you in the Holy Spirit," he said. John's ministry was preliminary, partial and preparatory, while Christ's ministry was to be permanent, perfect and propitiatory.

Jesus' Baptism and Testing.

It was John's high privilege to minister at the ordination of the Messiah of prophecy when he baptized our Lord Jesus Christ, not for forgiveness of sin, but for identification with our sin: "It came to pass in those days, that Jesus came from Nazareth of Galilee, and was baptized of John in the Jordan. And straightway coming up out of the water, he saw the heavens rent asunder, and the Spirit as a dove descending upon him: and a voice came out of the heavens, Thou art my beloved Son, in thee I am well pleased." Thus God attested the perfection of Christ and his fitness to be the world's Redeemer. But Christ's perfection must first be proved by being "tempted in all points like we are," and so, for forty days Satan tempted him, but with no success, for Christ was "holy, harmless, undefiled and separate from sinners," and thus the perfect "Lamb of God." This is the gospel or "good news" of God for sinful souls of all ages.

Picture Sermon On Life Of Christ

Rev. E. W. Young will give a picture sermon on Sunday night in St. Andrew's Church on "Incidents in the Life of Jesus." These pictures, whilst not colored, will reproduce some of the chief episodes in our Master's life.

Principal Forsyth says "The principle of art is the incarnation of God's eternal beauty; the principle of religion is the incarnation of God's eternal heart. Neither can do the other's work, yet their work is complementary, and I wish the divorce between them were more nearly healed. I wish the artists felt more of the need which art can never fill. I wish the religions felt more of the need that art alone can fill.

Pictures are really time-savers, they convey a story to the mind in a moment, that it would take hours to read about. The impressions which come to the mind through eye gate are more permanent than those which reach it through ear gate. A beginning has been made in England in the matter of religious films. Tolstoy's story, "Where Love is, God is," has had a cordial reception, and won the approval of several bishops of the Church of England, and leaders of the Free Churches.

The child will visualize the stories which he hears, but very often his picture is wrong. His imagination is active, but he has not the background of knowledge.

The following will be amongst the pictures shown by lantern slides: The Tribute Money (Titian), The Lord Looked Upon Peter (West), The Rich Man and Lazarus (Copping), The Demoniace Boy and the Transfiguration (Raphael), The Last Supper (De Vinci).

At the morning service the address will deal with "Isaiah, Idealist and Realist."

ARGUMENT OF MEN VERSUS MACHINES COMES UP AGAIN AS NEW HOISERY MAKER PATENTED

Copyright, 1938
Central Press Canadian

Somebody arguing religion with John Knox, said, "There is only a sheet of paper between your church and mine." "Yes," said Knox, "but the whole Bible is written on it."

Similarly, just a column-rule may cleave deep seas of irreconcilable belief. The other day, there was a story from Washington about a machine just patented, which, when you press a button, kicks out full-fashioned stockings — b-r-r-up — just like that. All you do is press the button. "One operator in a booth will run an entire knitting mill," says the story. And the make-up man, grim Caliban in his cave juggling matters of high destiny, slams right up against it an address by Dr. Robert A. Millikan, famous scientist - economist, maintaining that machines make employment rather than destroy it, and insisting that the way out of our troubles lies in more power production.

There you have a neat hook-up of classic doctrine and the incidentally opposed, "modern instance." Was the make-up man trying to sabotage one story or the other? Probably not.

You can find an antithesis like this in the paper almost every day—the $50,000 deb party and the suicide a few blocks away because of impending starvation. Such items are quite apt to get into adjoining columns, and the whole history of the human race is written on the dividing column-rule. As to machines and unemployment, Dr. Millikan—like Henry Ford and many others—cites some plausible figures in proof of his assertion that the only road for the machine is straight ahead.

"Let us look at this matter of unemployment," he says. "United States statistics show that the percentage of the population gainfully employed has steadily increased during the last fifty years, when science has been most rapidly applied. These statistics show further, that the well-being, as measured by real wages, of the forgotten man, the unskilled workman in the United States, is from two to three times that of the average of the European worker, while the forgotten woman in the United States, the domestic servant, though completely ununionized, is still better off in relation to her European sister.

"The chief reason for this is found in the greater use of power machines in this country than abroad. Definite statistics show that the increase in real wages of unionized men has not been greater than that of ununionized men. This means that there will be more individual opportunity in the United States in the future than in the past."

Lacking an opportunity to interview Dr. Millikan, it is impossible only to consider the stocking machine, in the light of his frequent amplifications of his theory that machines make jobs. He and other scientists of his school insist that machines so steadily raise the standard of living and so steadily create new demands, that any temporary and isolated displacement of workers is quickly followed by new and better opportunities of labor.

The automobile is their standard exhibit A, displacing hay-shovellers wheelrights and the like, and creating hundreds of thousands of new and better jobs. Hence, their logic of the new stocking machine would foresee a wide and healthful stimulus to the textile industry, reflected in profits and dividends, creating increased demands for all textiles, speeding up the mills in other lines and re-absorbing the ousted stocking weavers. They roll up impressive statistics and scholarship behind their idea.

This department isn't going to take them on for an argument. But on our home grounds, the human side of the news, we hear of jittery workers, from the deep south clear up to Rhode Island, worried about the new knitting machine and talking about sending a committee to Washington to see if something can't be done about it. Similarly the machine cotton-picker sent a chill of fear through the south, until its inventors promised they would ease it out gradually and not take their livings away from the pickers.

That's an old quarrel, this contention between men and machines. In early 18th century England, the workers smashed the weaving machines as fast as they were built. Late in the century Adam Smith didn't leave the workers a leg to stand on, in his brilliant rationalization of the new industrial epoch, but the workers weren't listening.

And the argument is the same today as it was 150 years ago. The machines keep on whirling with quickening tempo. There seems to be no turning back. I have a poignant memory of a fine old telegraph operator, on relief because of the news ticker. Dr. Millikan probably fails to impress him.

But who can challenge Dr Millikan in his assertion that science has enriched and raised living standards throughout the world. And who can say that we should scrap them and go back to handcraft? Multitudes of people, some informed, some merely bewildered, are pondering all this. Possibly they will find an answer. Economics wouldn't be such a "dismal science" if the class would take off from the newspapers each day. What a text in those adjoining reports!

AIRPORT LIGHTED

VANCOUVER—(CP). — Completion of lighting at the Vancouver Airport has turned the air-minded to night flying. The Aero Club of British Columbia now plans to have one of its machines fitted with the standard lights and then obtain a license for night operation.

CATHEDRAL MUSINGS

There are many statements in the sacred writings which theology has found convenient to igore. One of these is that in which Jesus says "Abraham rejoiced to see my day." The past tense is significant. It is not that Abraham "rejoices," but that he "rejoiced." Another statement that theology leaves untouched for the very good reason that it knows very little about it, is that in which Jesus is described as "a priest after the order of Melchizidek." Again who were the three Wise Men of the East? What exactly was the "star" that led them to Bethlehem? What was the mysterious "wisdom of the Egyptians" that the Bible speaks of so frequently and respectfully? Yet again, when Jesus speaks of the condemnation that awaits he who calls his brother a fool, what is the mysterious "council" that will judge the one who terms his brother a "worthless fellow?" To answer these questions in extenso is outside our province. Also the answers would convey but little, for the actual knowledge cannot be given, it can only be obtained by those who have fitted themselves to receive it, by prayer and meditation among other things. For this "order," this "council" is not and cannot be found in time or space, and hence can never be more than very vague to those who are still fettered in space and time. But whether we speak of it as the "Commission of Saints," or the "Fellowship of the Holy Spirit," and "Great White Brotherhood," the "Grand Lodge Above," or as Jesus mostly did, the "Kingdom of Heaven," makes no difference whatever. When we reach a certain degree of spiritual growth, we know of ourselves. Such unfoldment is not, and never was, a matter of punctilious observance of outer belief. It is a real growth of the inner self, of actually "becoming," for as Jesus said truly: "Except your righteousness exceeds the righteous of the scribes and Pharisees, ye shall in no case enter the Kingdom of Heaven." These are hard words, altogether incomprehensible to the outer religionists who have never been able to understand why the social sinner of Jesus' times were preferred by Him to those who prided themselves on their own godliness. They fail to see that the qualities of sympathy, understanding, and charity are akin to the universality of God's love, and are more often found in the outcasts than in the cold self-righteousness so characteristic of the orthodox. It is well to remember that the chief purpose of our lives is to build up character, and personality, and the more that character and personality approximates to that of Jesus the more we have made a success of our earthly sojourn, the more we approach the "perfection of the Father."

Scripture—Mark 1:1-13

John the Baptist preached in the wilderness of Judea to great throngs of people to prepare them for the ministry of Jesus. "Make ready the way of the Lord," was the heart of his message.

John pointed his own disciples to Jesus and directed them to follow him, saying, "Behold the Lamb of God that taketh away the sin of the world."

John urged his hearers to be baptized as a sign of repentance. He also baptized Jesus, not for forgiveness, but to identify him with sinners and inaugurate his ministry as the Saviour of sinners.

Following Jesus' baptism the Spirit led him into the wilderness to be tempted of the devil. Jesus triumphed over Satan in every temptation. (GOLDEN TEXT—Mark 1:3).

"No Fixed Address"

Several days ago a transient was killed on the highway between Stratford and New Hamburg. There was a snow storm at the time and the man is said to have been walking in the middle of the road, so the driver, who came upon him suddenly, had no chance to avoid a collision.

For some days the dead man remained an unknown. There was nothing on his clothing or in his pockets to aid the work of identification. Transients do not carry drivers' licenses or bank books or any such thing which might bear their name.

Officers from Woodstock finally made identification possible. So now it is established that the dead man was Charles Johnson, 51 years of age, and with no fixed address.

"No fixed address" seems to tell nothing at all, and yet it may tell a great deal; it may relate the story of the man's life, and it may be a sincere reflection of the times in which we are and have been living.

The man was killed shortly after the Christmas and New Year's season, but he hadn't been home. The season which meant so much to the rest of us meant nothing at all to Charles Johnston, because he had no fixed address. One cannot buy a railway ticket or drive a car or walk by foot to that place called "no fixed address." When he was hit by a car and fatally injured it was not possible to send word to relatives or friends because such folk cannot be located or notified at that place known as "no fixed address."

It has come to be a much-used phrase in recent years. We see it when transients appear in court and now and then when they are killed. "No Fixed Address"—indefinite of course but it actually tells a great chapter in human history.

Not A Canadian Way

What was known as the West-end incline in the city of Hamilton has been out of use for some years, but at the top remains one of the cars, and there is a drop of 500 feet from top to bottom of this old railway.

A charge of dynamite was placed under the car at the top of the incline with the evident intention of sending it hurtling down the hill where it would have undoubtedly have crashed into some of the houses located there. It could not well have escaped them.

That form of deviltry does not belong in this country. It was not brought in here by our early settlers nor has it developed in their families. There is nothing Canadian or British about it. It is distinctly a foreign thing which has been brought into this young country by people whom no stretching of the imagination could class as assets.

A native-born Canadian or a man with good red blood of Britain in him will fight upon provocation but he will do it with his fists. He will not go in the dark of night to plant a charge of dynamite hoping and planning that the resulting mischief will crash upon the homes of people while they sleep. It does look at times as though our national door had been too widely opened.

So He Asked The Editor

The editor of the Cleveland Plain Dealer received a post card in the mail, and on it was written this message:

"Tell me what will happen to me. Last night I accidentally run down a lady. It wasn't my fault. I got a family to feed and I got a job last week. I can't lose it. I got to know what happened. She screamed so awful. I been wandering around for three hours."

The editor of the Plain Dealer knew who had been hit, so in his paper he made reply, informing the unknown driver he had struck Miss Betty J. Queisser, 24, a junior student at Wells College, Aurora, N.Y. After which the editor tendered this advice through the columns of the paper:

"There is only one answer—face the music. You have two choices: Fear, quivering, aching fear—of everybody you see and of yourself, the worst kind. Or else speaking the truth, lifting a heavy load from your mind, and consideration of the hands of the law. Your message shows you have human feelings. Prove it! Step forward and be a man."

And that is about as sound a bit of advice as one person could give to another. The man who drove that car did not know which way to turn. He was undoubtedly telling the truth when he said he had been wandering about for three hours. He wanted advice because the thing was too big for him; he longed to talk it over with some one. That is why he sent that card to the editor of the Cleveland paper. He felt he was asking advice from a man whose advice he could trust. The editor did all he could for the man; he pointed to him one and only way out of his trouble—tell the truth. Whether the advice was taken we do not know, but that post-card and the reply to it tell a great present-day story.

He Made A Speech

There are more service clubs today than there used to be. Time was when there were none. They meet together each week, mostly at the hour of noon. They eat, indulge in community singing, call each other by the front name and then listen to a speaker.

So that all creates a demand for more after-dinner speakers. One such in Ottawa may find himself in a bit of trouble, or indeed a depth of trouble which may take him up to the chin. Dr. Chang Lok-chen, the new Consul-General of China to Canada, was asked to address the Gyro Club in Ottawa, and representing a country which is hard hit and hard pressed by war the newly-come Doctor was moved to say things which had their root in war feeling.

We learn he had a word for the Canadian people and told them that in depending on the British navy to guard their coasts they were like children crying for the moon. He was certain also that the Monroe doctrine, by which United States casts a protective shadow over the Latin nations of South America was something which would not come to the aid of Canada in time of stress. It was a kindly influence which operated toward the south but did not point toward the north. So if an attack were made on Canada the Monroe Doctrine would not appear in the trenches nor yet in the air.

It is also on record that Dr. Chang Lok-chen said that the real object of Japan in invading China was to secure more man-power so that in turn the Chinese could be made to fight the Russians. Also the day is coming when Japan will confront the English concerning the ability of Japan to finance her operations, the Consul-General said he was certain Japan would be bankrupt inside of a year.

So trouble threatens to come, and the people called "observers" in Ottawa think the Canadian government may be moved to make some sort of representations to the government of China regarding the address of Dr. Chang Lok-chen, and all because another of those very numerous service clubs desired some person to come and make yet one more address. We have sketched the remarks of the Chinese Consul-General briefly, but we believe accurately, and we fail to see where he said anything which had not considerable truth in it.

They Must Be Killed

It often happens in the course of a day's news that two events will have in them a common or central idea. The locations may be widely apart but the ingredients have much the same general texture.

To illustrate: A despatch from Hankow, China, tells of the coming of a Japanese air raid in which forty machines participated. Among the places bombed was a hospital, quite a large and well equipped affair. It was reduced to wreckage and people in it were either killed outright, wounded or burned in the flames.

On the same day there was a despatch from London quoting an article which appears in the current issue of Lancet, the British medical journal, and the plain statement is made that the Red Cross may as well disappear as it is no longer regarded as a symbol of neutrality, and it is continually bombarded in modern warfare.

Continuing Lancet says:

"In the circumstances of today it is all too evident that nearly all of us are English or German or Japanese or Communist or property owners before we are doctors and scientists . . . A doctor attached to a modern army is no more neutral than a munition worker or an artilleryman. And since he is not neutral he will be bombed."

The common idea which runs through those two items is easy to see; it is plain upon the surface and visible at both ends. It means that modern warfare has been stripped of everything which might pass under the general heading of chivalry.

Men who put on the uniform and go away to battle can of course be killed, but the women and children and the older folk who stay at home are put in the same class. They must also be killed.

The man who is so seriously wounded that he can fight no more, and who is borne to some dressing station for treatment in the hope of saving his life must be killed.

Doctors and nurses who follow the army and whose mission is to care for the wounded are no longer non-combatants; they must also be killed.

The gallantry which one brave man might be moved to show toward another—even an enemy—is something which has been or is being wiped out. War has become much like the stockyard where all the animals driven into a pen are to be killed.

And the only answer to all that can be that the great majority of people who do not want war must make themselves heard. So far they have not done so.

We Can't Quite Grasp It

Signed by three medical men, a set of rules is printed in the current issue of a Canadian house organ, and the rules tell what to do about common colds and influenza. A good many folk would probably read that with some degree of interest for the simple reason that many people continue to follow all the known and approved rules, and after doing so land up with another cold.

We were a trifle puzzled by rule number one which said: "Keep away from the germs, or keep them away from you." That needs some explanation and probably one should take a short course in order to get on to the hang of the thing. Germs, as we understood them, are not big fellows who go romping about like scared sheep, nor do they wear bells about the neck so we can be warned of their approach. We have never seen the germ which causes a cold, and we do not believe any person else has. Including the doctors themselves.

Whether there is much difference in keeping away germs or causing the germs to keep away from you is something to which we gave as much thought as might be permitted in the course of a day when there was much else to be done. It did seem possible there might be some difference in the technique required, although it was difficult to bring much conviction on the point that the ultimate result would not be much the same. Keeping away from germs would mean putting a space in between the germs and yourself, and keeping the germs away from you would also call for that space of separation between one party and the other. Just how great that space should be is something which is not mentioned. Nor is it said whether it should be measured with the handle of a broom or by degrees of latitude or by the process whereby a woman puts a piece of goods to the end of her nose and then stretches it out at arm's length and calls it a yard. We think the three signatory doctors to the document should have been more explicit on this point.

It is also suggested that the hands should be washed, particularly before eating. Admittedly that is a fine old custom, one which was followed with joyful regularity in the tin dish even on the Tenth Concession. We read as well that one should dress "suitably to the weather." We are not for the moment inclined to raise argument on that point, as there is a degree of comfort in having wool upon the shanks and a degree of padding along the spine when the wind beats down hard from the north.

But the final bit of instruction is rather odd. Just this: "If, in spite of precautions, you take a cold, see a doctor." We take it that the doctors mean the business of keeping away from the germs may work and again it may not. (We are a trifle inclined at the moment toward the later base belief.) Washing of the hands may prove a snare and a delusion, and robing the framework in sheaths of wool may be as ineffective as the battle with the germs. Telling how to keep away from a cold and then advising one to romp off to the doctor's place of business when the cold comes hardly makes sense. As the boys in the red school house used to say "It does not add up right." Some day when one of cold germs is captured and placed on view we would be pleased to knock off work for half an hour and go and see the thing.

NOTE AND COMMENT

The United States is selling more to Canada and buying less from us. That is not the road to prosperity so far as the Dominion is concerned.

Montreal has 26,000 families on relief. That is an improvement over the figures of several years ago but it still represents a heavy burden round the neck of the municipal taxpayers.

The Fire Marshal's department is investigating the Christmas Day fire which destroyed the Delaware Public School. The pupils probably feel that Santa Claus had something to do with the affair.

News story says that the free importation of used cars from the United States rattled the Saskatchewan dealers. We would have thought it would be the customers that got rattled on the cars themselves.

After a public speaker has pointed out that British Columbia would make an ideal base for a Japanese attack upon the United States the folk on the coast probably barricade all their doors before going to bed at night.

¶ The wise man who lives out our way, has got great brains the neighbors say, he reads an awful lot; and every time I see him walk, as he plods slowly down the block, he seems submerged in thought.

¶ His arms some days are filled with books, and they are ponderous in their looks, and some are great in size; that's how the notion gets around, his wisdom's deep and so profound, and he is very wise.

¶ So to this wise man's door I trod, before we'd pass and only nod, I had a plan in view; for I would read his stuff each day, and then the neighbor folk would say, I knew a thing or two.

¶ He met me with a kindly grin, and asked if I would step within, I told him why I came; I said that I would read his stuff, although I knew it would be tough, my brain was rather lame.

¶ With books the wise man bore me down, I'd be the wisest man in town, my study would not cease; the first book had a dainty maid, a villian made her so afraid, she never knew no peace.

¶ The next book had a heroine, who feared some poison when she'd dine, so she pushed back her hash; the wise man whom the neighbors praise, spends nearly all his nights and days—at reading bunk and trash.

FOR YEARS millions of automobile owners in the United States have paid heavy insurance premiums against the day when an accident would make them liable for injury to another's person or property. In most cases of course the accident never happened. Recently 38 stock insurance companies announced that beginning February 1 the careful driver would reap rewards. Those who file no claims under their policies in any given year will receive refund of 15 per cent. of the premiums. The bonus will benefit 85 per cent. of the insured drivers.

Insurance men attributed the plan to a desire to promote careful driving and to meet competition provided by mutual—benefit companies and automobile associations.

When the Chinese have a chicken to eat they really eat it. A favorite method of preparing a young fowl is to beat it to a pulp—bones, blood, gizzard and all— a few feathers more or less do not really matter. The Chinese idea of eating the whole fowl is partially the result of modern necessity but it dates from an earlier time.

A mistaken conception is held by the wisest cooks, we are told. They believe that the better food is that which is more tender. This belief has arisen because we are inherently lazy; we do not even want to chew for a living. No small number of the poor teeth and woefully undeveloped jaws of civilization are attributable to the tenderness of our foods.

FROM THE TENTH

Editor Examiner:

Sir: Have just been reading your column about "The Tenth Concession" and realize that I did not wish you the "Compliments of the Season" this year. May I do it now.

Notice with great delight "The Gumps" they are old friends of mine. The Chicago Tribune used to carry them and they were certainly loved by Chicago people. It was said that their creator (I believe he was affectionately called "Gum Shoe Al") copied them from a family he knew in one of the Chicago suburbs.

Well the Tenth Line today is snow plowed and almost like a pavement, but the long lanes are drifted and snow "knee deep."

This home has frost on the parlor windows, but the large living room is warm and comfortable, so that the plants in the windows are flourishing.

Speaking of your paper again. I note it stood eighth in classification. Many congratulations. I liked your pages of pictures and many new features. When the Examiner does not come we feel quite lost. We missed it just once I think.

Yours truly,

WHAT IS ROSICRUSCIANISM?

Editor Examiner:

Sir: The gradual weakening in the estimation of the intelligentsia, of the idea of a revealed Christian religion and the consequent abandonment to that extent of the idea of a promise of a future life has brought Rosicrucianism to the fore again. It appears to be a mysticism re-founded by Roshkreuz in the 16th century and akin to alchemy with an ancient origin perhaps in Egypt but at any rate in the East. It is difficult to say what it really is but it is no more than an attempt to probe into the mystery of creation and holds no promise of anything but knowledge and that knowledge founded upon human capacity to evolve it. If it were all true it would still leave us where we are without revealed religion. However it is reviving and spreading rapidly. People must have something to think about.

While no collector, I have several interesting coins of our own Canada, and am enclosing some rubbings. It would be very interesting if one of your readers who has made a study of coins, would contribute a few articles of their origin and histories, why—for instance—the words "Self Government Free Trade" "Ships, Colonies and Commerce?

Thousands of Cars; Not Many Garages

So Washington Has a Problem On Its Hands; Miles of Old Houses Have No Space Left Between

(From the New York Times)

THE WASHINGTON police have a traffic and parking problem which they believe is unique in this country. In the first place there is a divided authority. The District of Columbia has a Department of Vehicles and Traffic under a director, in charge of engineering the city's traffic layout, of placing lights and signs, of laying down traffic rules, but has nothing to do with their enforcement.

That is the province of the police. Then from time to time Congress mixes in. Just now the District authorities are resisting pressure from certain Congressmen who are seeking a general ban on all-night parking in Washington.

Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen, under whose jurisdiction the Department of Vehicles and Traffic rests, is firmly opposed to such a ban. "That's a hot potato," he says.

The reason is obvious to any motorist. As a member of the Traffic Bureau points out, Washington is primarily a residential city in which the greater part of the homes were laid out or built before the automobile came into general use. No provision was made for garages.

Today Washington's brick homes stretch for miles wall to wall, divided and subdivided into small apartments. Their occupants all have cars, evidently; thousands on thousands of government clerks drive or are driven to their work. The family car is parked from January to December in front of their homes.

With 620,000 population, the District of Columbia last year issued tags for 220,000 vehicles. Actual garage space is very small compared with the number of cars needing to be housed.

Except in spots where parking is forbidden at all times, every parking place seems to be filled from early morning until far into the night. Boys earn many quarters and dimes by arranging with car owners to move vehicles once around the block or a few feet or to the other side of the street to avoid violations of parking ordinances that limit the time of parking.

Tourists left over $8,000,000 in Bermuda in the last year.

A Bible Message For To-day . . .

IF YE LOVE me, keep my commandments. . . . He that hath my commandments, and keepeth them, he it is that loveth me: and he that loveth me shall be loved of my Father, and I will love him, and will manifest myself to him. Judas saith unto him, not Iscariot, Lord, how is it that thou wilt manifest thyself unto us, and not unto the world? Jesus answered and said unto him, If a man love me, he will keep my words: and my Father will love him, and we will come unto him, and make our abode with him.

This is my commandment, That ye love one another, as I have loved you. Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends. Ye are my friends, if ye do whatsoever I command you. Henceforth I call you not servants; for the servant knoweth not what his lord doeth; but I have called you friends; for all things that I have heard of my Father I have made known unto you. Ye have not chosen me, but I have chosen you, and ordained you, that ye should go and bring forth fruit, and that your fruit should remain: that whatsoever ye shall ask of the Father in my name, he may give it you. These things I command you, that ye love one another.—John xiv, 15, 21-23; xv, 12-17.

AN ODD TANGLE.

(Regina Leader-Post)

AN ODD legal tangle in Chicago suggests how courts may sometimes be the instruments of a complicated legal game rather than implements for attaining exact justice.

A Chicago woman whose husband had vanished in 1926 went to court the other day to have him declared legally dead, so that she could collect his insurance. The jury heard the evidence and retired to deliberate; while it was deliberating, word came that the man was not dead at all, but alive in a town in California. The word came too late, and the jury brought in a verdict that the man was legally dead.

And the judge, with this news at hand, held that he could not reverse the jury's verdict, and ordered the insurance company to pay up.

Higher courts will probably overturn the case; but doesn't this unbending adherence to legalistic formula seem rather odd?

LAWS NOT ENFORCED.

(Toronto Telegram)

ANOTHER thing which might be done is for the city council to call for a judicial investigation into the failure to enforce the law. Without any possibility of passing the buck the responsibility should be pinned down to either the police or the magistrates or both. It is outrageous that a man who zig-zags all over the street, drives at an excessive speed and goes through red lights should escape with a nominal fine. Yet this has happened again and again.

The Highway Traffic Act requires that in the event of a third or subsequent conviction under certain sections "the motor vehicle driven by the person convicted at the time of committing the offence, shall be seized, impounded, and taken into the custody of the law for a period of three months." This section is mandatory: why has it been consistently ignored?

A Bit of Nonsense

NOT A HOPE

"You are charged," said the magistrate to Patrick, "with being drunk and fighting in the street. Are you guilty or not guilty?"

Patrick looked sheepish as he stood in the dock.

"Sure, yer Honor, it's no use to say not guilty. Oi said that the last time Oi was before ye and ye didn't believe it. And Oi didn't have a black eye then."

British Mint Works Overtime To Meet Demands For Coins

Improved Trade And Higher Prices Said To Be Responsible

By Pat Ussher
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

LONDON, Jan. 8 — (CP) — The Royal Mint is working overtime to meet the growing demand for coins. This is one of disclosures in the report of Sir Robert Johnson, deputy master and controller of that busy institution, which stands across the road from the Tower of London.

Improved trade and higher prices are responsible for the mint's activity, according to Sir Robert. In 1936 a double shift was introduced to keep pace with demand and in recent months overtime operation has become necessary.

The report is the first to be issued for two years. Publication a year ago was postponed because the abdication of King Edward VIII made it necessary to prepare new coinage.

Concession To Dominions

At the expressed desire of Canada, Australia, New Zealand and South Africa the use of the uncrowned effigy of the sovereign has been extended to the Dominions, the report says. Use of the crowned head on coinage has been retained for British India and the colonies. On the coinage of George V the uncrowned effigy appeared only on United Kingdom coinage, Sir Robert explains.

The mint in its present form dates back little more than a century. But there was a "master of the mint" as far back as the reign of Henry I. Heads no longer fall from the chopping block across the road in the Tower of London, as they did in Plantaganet and Tudor days. But the mint still goes ahead with its job of turning out coins to speed the country's commerce.

Sir Robert explains in the report the old tradition that with each reign the direction of the sovereign's head on gold and silver coinage is changed has not been broken. No coinage was issued bearing the likeness of King Edward VIII but his reign intervened between that of George V and the present King.

Highlights Of Report

Other highlights of the report:

Pieces struck in 1937, it is estimated, will total 400,000,000.

Two hundred coin dies had to be scrapped after the abdication.

The portrait of King George VI on the new coins put in circulation in 1937 looks to the left, as did that of George V.

There is little prospect of gold coinage being struck for general circulation.

Members of the mint advisory committee regarded the idea of the new 12-sided threepenny pieces as "distasteful" but accepted it in the face of a decision to make the ex-

Milburn's Health and Nerve Pills are what weak, nervous, run down men and women need to help make them strong and well again.

They are a well balanced tonic for the treatment of those whose nerves are shattered, and for those feelings of faintness, weakness and dizziness caused by an overworked, run down constitution, or whose health is not up to par.

They help to infuse new life and energy into depressed, health shattered men and women who have come to think there is no relief for them.

Mrs. P. Broughton, Fenwick, Ont., writes:—"I was so run down and tired out all the time I did not care whether my housework was done or not.

I only weighed 96 pounds, but after taking three boxes of Milburn's Health and Nerve Pills I now weigh 122 pounds, and do my own work for eight in the family.

NO RED INVASION FOR JERSEY CITY

JERSEY CITY, N.J., aJn. 8 (AP)—Mayor Frank Hague had the support of more than 20,000 constituents today in his promise that "Jersey City will stand firm" against what he termed a "Red invasian" by committee for industrial organization workers and leaders of the American Civil Liberties Union.

Banners warned "Reds keep out," fireworks boomed, and three bands played patriotic tunes as war veterans, American Federation of Labor Unions, and Republicans and Democrats shouted approval of the National Democratic Committee vice-chairman and State party leader.

A Jersey City Armory crowd estimated at from 22,000 to 25,000 persons with an overflow of several thousands in the streets went home last night without hearing a New York speaker, Morris Ernst, American Civil Liberties Union Council, who followed Hague on a national radio hookup, tell the Mayor, "You have coerced people to come out and acclaim you."

Saying he had always had Labor's "honor and respect," Hague asserted he had "no quarrel with the rank and file of the C.I.O.," but said "hundrds and hundreds" of C.I.O. organizers were Communists.

"They shall never come into this city as long as I am Mayor," he said.

Thirteen C.I.O. organizers were arrested for distributing leaflets and others were escorted from the city in a recent organization drive.

GIRL CHOIR SINGER STABS HER FATHER CRAZED BY DRINK

JERSEY CITY, N.J., an. 8—(A. P.). — Charged with stabbing her father to death as she prepared for choir rehearsal in a church down the block, 18-year-old Dorothy Schaefer sobbed in a cell to-day: "I only meant to scare him."

Acting Police Inspector John J. Underwood said the attractive girl confessed she plunged a carving knife into her father's breast after he had annoyed the neighbors and menaced her mother and herself in an alcoholic fury over the prospect of losing his job.

The girl said her father, Charles Schaefer, Jr., 49-year-old Pennsylvania Railroad freight checker, "threatened to give me the beating of my life."

"He objected to me and mother belonging to the choir of All Souls' Lutheran Church. I had no intention of harming him."

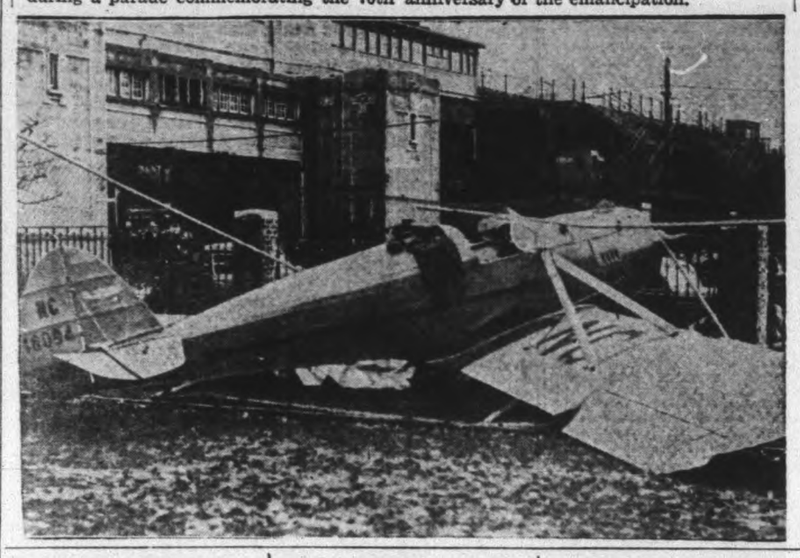
Is Given Summons

Two persons, Troy Newkerk, colored pilot, and a lady passenger, Miss Lola Jackson, escaped injury when their motor "conked out" above Yankee Stadium, New York, forcing Newkerk to land in the (ABOVE) manner. Neither was injured, but Newkerk received a summons, charging him with illegal landing and damaging city property. The accident occurred during a parade commemorating the 76th anniversary of the emancipation.



JANETVILLE MAIL REQUEST REFUSED

JANETVILLE, Jan. 8. — Local residents who were hoping for a direct daily mail delivery from Lindsay are doomed to disappointment. Petitions had been sent to the Department requesting a change whereby the mail would come and go direct to and from Lindsay rather than the present system, which takes the mail south to Burketon, then on to Toronto and back to Lindsay and points north a day or so later.

For some reason the Department would not meet with this request, but made a slight change. The mail man will come from Burketon to the village before going to Viewlake, where he will have dinner and return via Janetville at 1 o'clock or later, according to the condition of the roads. Under this system mail received can be answered the same day by the villagers, and mail can be posted up to one p.m. instead of eleven a.m. as heretofore.

The north mail route which has been capably managed by Lawrence Wright for many years has been taken over by Clayton McGill. Mr. Wright will still have charge of the south route.

HEAVY SNOW IN QUEBEC

QUEBEC, Jan. 8—(CP).—Quebec Roads Department announced today all snow removal equipment was in operation as Quebec district received the onslaught of the worst snow storm of the season.

Though plows were on duty on roads forming part of the Department's winter highway circuit, few routes were recommended for travel. The sweeping blizzard left the highways drifted high with snow.

AIR ROUTE CANADA TO ASIA FORESEEN

EDMONTON, Jan. 8—(CP).—Establishment of a commercial aviation route within the next few years between Edmonton and Asiatic cities was predicted by Reginald Jackson, director of commercial aviation in Siam, when he returned here a short time ago on a vacation.

The former Edmonton aviator who in six years has built Siamese civil aviation from nothing to its present place as a major business in that country made the forecast as he discussed Siamese air development.

Scheduled airlines extending northward along the China coast and across northern Pacific to meet other routes stretching from Edmonton to Whitehorse, Y. T., and Fairbanks, Alaska, were envisaged by the aviation director.

Civil aviation has advanced rapidly in Siam since he left Edmonton in 1931, Mr. Jackson said. Under guidance of the government-controlled Aerial Transport company, the industry was extended so that today 20-ton flying boats of Imperial Airways from London or Melbourne, large Douglas machines of United States firms and fast transports operated by Air France converge almost daily at Bangkok.

The aviation director described Siam as "one of the few remaining independent and peaceful countries in the Orient." Although the country has passed through revolutions —one of them involving abdication of King Prajadhipok—stability of government had remained and at present 12,500,000 people were enjoying peace and prosperity.

There is no unemployment in Siam, Mr. Jackson reported, and Siamese bonds are at a premium on the London executive.

"Nothing but the best and latest in safety equipment" used in Siamese air operations was credited by the aviation executive with the 100 per cent record of non-accident flying since inauguration of business in that country.

On the jungle-hopping route from Rangoon to Bangkok where 9,000-foothills jut into the sky, 400 inches of rain fall in five months and occasional monsoons sweep with unrelenting fury, air transports have been able to maintain uninterrupted schedule, Mr. Jackson said.

"This has been done by high-flying, 20,000 feet at times, with direction by radio from ground stations," he added.

On his first glimpse of Edmonton in six years, the aviation director remarked upon the "amazing" development of flying operations to the north of Edmonton into the North West Territories, Yukon and the northern sections of British Columbia, Alberta and Saskatchewan.

JAPS OUT TO SELL SHANGHAI POWER

TOKYO, Jan. 8—(CP-Havas).—Plans for Japanese competition in supplying Shanghai's electricity — now furnished by United States, Chinese and French concerns—were reported to-day.

The Japanese "North China Electrical Development Company" is preparing to enter the Shanghai field, it was said. Power hitherto has been supplied by an American company to the International Settlement, and by French and Chinese concerns to the French concession and greater Shanghai.

It was learned that attempts to interest foreign capital in the development of Manchoukuo will be made in the near future.

Meanwhile assurances Japan is anxious to respect the rights of other powers in China were given by a foreign ministry spokesman in an interview in which he denied Admiral Nobumasa Suyetsugu, before his nomination as Minister of the Interior, had predicted Japan would go to war with Great Britain to drive the latter out of the Orient.

GUARD AIRPLANES AS GERM CARRIER

DARWIN, Australia, Jan. 8. — (CP)—The Australian government has taken steps to make sure disease is not brought into the country by airplane. Dr. Paul Mitchell, chief quarantine officer of the northeastern district, details elaborate arrangements made for examination of air traffic including cargoes and passengers.

A bio-chemist, armed with spotlight and test tube, will enter each plane on arrival in Australia while a doctor examines passengers and crews and every measure is taken to prevent unauthorized people from entering the quarantine area before planes have been given pratique.

Before Australia-bound planes leave the last port they are sprayed with disinfectants to prevent the introduction of yellow fever from the west coast of Africa. If a suspicous insect is found on board thorough fumigation of machines will follow.

Until the quarantine officer presses an electric button giving the "all clear" signal it is virtually impossible for any arrival to come in contact with any other person awaiting the plane landing in Australia.

Leader Of Rescue Is Hailed A Hero

Leader of the survey party of 15 lost along the Ontario-Quebec boundary east of James Bay, was Lt.-Col. J. Romeo Guenet, pictured here after aeroplanes had rescued the group from threatened starvation, along with his son, Roger, also a member of the party. Lt.-Col. Guenet was credited by his followers with heroic courage in keeping the group cheerful and optimistic in the face of threatened death.

Housewives Plan 10 Cent Milk

TORONTO, Jan. 7—(CP).—Mrs. D. Freeman told the Ward Three Housewives' Association last night that members will have milk delivered at 10 cents a quart as soon as the organization numbers 500 in each ward. The association was formed when the price of milk here was increased recently to 13 cents a quart. It had been 12 cents.

"We propose to purchase milk under the section of the Milk Control Act which provides that peddlers may buy their supply at 7½ cents a quart," Mrs. Freeman, captain of a Ward group, said. "The Association will be the peddler, with its own trucks, and drivers receiving union wages."

WRITES FRANKLY OF EXPERIENCES IN PUBLIC LIFE

TORONTO, Jan. 8—(CP)—Years of contact with men and events in journalism, radio and politics combine to illumine a wealth of miscellaneous memories in Hector Charlesworth's first book in eight years, "I'm Telling You." It is a candid chronicle in the best tradition of reminiscence.

Mr. Charlesworth naturally devotes several chapters to his four years as chairman of the Canadian Broadcasting Commission, illustrating with anecdote the fight for national broadcasting, for a system which would distribute the riches of the air on city and cross-roads alike.

His dismissal—when, he writes, he had been promised 10 years' employment—he attributes to the influence of Premier Mitchell Hepburn of Ontario, in "a rush campaign to be put through before Rt. Hon. Mackenzie King could arrive home from abroad."

Much that is mellower than the Ottawa experience takes Mr. Charlesworth over trails bordered with memory. In Nova Scotia he heard the story of the Irish-Canadian Mounted Police Sergeant who was supposed to instruct Eskimo mothers in pre-natal care. It was in British Columbia that the tourist saw Jacques N. Cartier of Montreal sign his name and asked if his ancestors had not come over in the Mayflower. "Mr. Cartier's people crossed in a boat of their own," the desk clerk explained.

In Ottawa, he finds, "envy, hatred and malice are pretty active," but, "there is no city in which a man in a position that leaves him outside public affairs, may lead a happier life." The sunniest old age he ever saw was that of Sir Robert Borden, "ex-officio Canada's first citizen." Mr. Charlesworth, incidentally, first induced Sir Robert to face a microphone in the Empire broadcast of 1935.

He makes many observations on public personalities. Of Premier Mackenzie King's administrative system: "Every minister is a prime minister within his own department." Of Mr. Bennett: "In wealth of general information he undoubtedly surpasses any other Canadian." Senator Casgrain always looks as if he is wearing a rose, and Hon. Alfred Duranleau plays the saxaphone in the seclusion of his family.

Perhaps most interesting of chapters dealing with the radio period describes the building up of programs through use of Canadian talent. Mr. Charlesworth recalls that after Eduardo di Giovanni had risen to fame as a tenor in Italy, he came home to sing in Guelph; but they didn't flock to hear "Ed Johnson." As chairman of the commission Mr. Charlesworth was resolved to combat any such inferiority complex" on the part of Canadian listeners by putting Canadian talent on the air.

VANCOUVER CLUB IDEA DRAWS 2,500 BOYS FIRST YEAR

VANCOUVER, Jan. 8.—(CP). — A boys' club started by a Vancouver police constable a year ago, boasts a membership of nearly 2,500, and its motto—it is easier to build boys than to mend men—is spreading across Canada.

From Montreal, Edmonton and Vancouver Island have come requests for permission to form branches of the "Junior G Men of Canada," incorporated under the Company's Act and announced in the Canada Gazette to-day.

Just a year ago 17 boys started a grumbling exit from a sandlot ball game, broken up by officers after a "foul" ball crashed through a neighboring house window.

"How would you like to start a club and have some place to play?" asked Eveleigh, off duty and on his front porch across the street at the time.

Enthusiasm was slow till the officer promised his backyard as a playground.

Service Club Steps In.

Then a service club advanced money for purchase of an abandoned factory which the boys turned into a clubhouse, built a gymnasium. They made their own equipment, finished the rooms and installed electrical fixtures.

Three branches in other residential districts were added with a hobby department for furniture and model aircraft construction, a travelling group of would-be actors, any orchestra and a glee club in each

Eveleigh investigates each case of "disorderly boys" brought to police attention and the membership grows.

"It is better to build boys than to mend men."

C.G.E. CAGE GIRLS WIN 33-28 - HASTINGS SWAMPS WARSAW 10-1

WARSAW CLUB EASY VICTIMS FOR HASTINGS

(Examiner Correspondence.)

WARSAW, Jan. 8.—Hastings Juniors made it two straight when they swamped Warsaw 10 to 1 in an East Peterborough Junior Hockey League game played here Friday night. The Hastings boys proved to be much too fast for Warsaw. The Homesters led 4 to 1 in the first period and increased it to 7 to 1 to start the third period. Just thirty seconds after the opening face-off, Warsaw scored their lone goal when I. Watts scored on a pass from J. Watts. Less than a minute later Hastings tied it up when Scriver scored on a long shot. Two minutes later McCarthy took Edwards' pass to give Hastings the lead. Radford of Hastings got right in as Hastings started putting the pressure on, but Digweed turned his shot aside. Turner and Phillips broke away for Hastings, but Turner's shot was blocked. As lines changed, Warsaw started turning it on, but Montgomery in the Hastings net turned all shots aside. McCoy sank one at the ten-minute mark for Hastings, but it was called back when Phillips was offside. Turner got in close after the face-off but Digweed blocked his shot just one minute before the period ended. Radford made it 3 to 1 for Hastings when he took Puffer's perfect pass.

Avalanche of Goals.

To open the second period, McCarthy and Scriver combined to give Digweed some trouble, but Montgomery was called on to make a nice save when I. Watts got right in on a return rush. Edwards for Hastings led rush after rush into the Warsaw end, and was finally rewarded after six minutes of play when he scored on a pass from Scriver. Bowen got a nice shot away for Warsaw but it was blocked. Phillips and Puffer combined for a nice rush, but Puffer's shot missed the corner. The first penalties of the game were handed out to Turner of Hastings and Myles of Warsaw for mixing it up. Puffer and Phillips again had tough luck when Phillips shot into Digweed's pads. Shearer for Warsaw came close a minute later when he fell just as he shot. After twelve minutes of play Edwards got his second goal on a pass from McCarthy. J. Watts and Myles got right in on Montgomery but he could not be beat. After sixteen minutes of play, McCarthy got his second goal of the game on passes from Phillips and McCoy, and with two minutes to go Puffer sank Hastings' seventh goal. The period ended just as Phillips missed Radford's pass in front of the Warsaw goal.

Hastings continued on the offensive to open the third period when Scriver, McCarthy and Edwards got right in. Edwards got a nice shot away a minute later, but Digweed cleared it. Shearer of Warsaw was given a penalty for tripping. Just after he returned Radford scored his second goal of the night on a lone rush. Puffer passed to Phillips, but he missed the open net. Puffer was given the gate for high sticking. Scriver made it 9 to 1 for Hastings after twelve minutes of play when he took McCarthy's pass. Hastings then made it 10 to 1 when McCarthy counted his third goal on a pass from Edwards. Turner was penalized for slashing with three minutes to go, but the game ended with no further scoring.

For Hastings, Montgomery, Edwards, McCarthy, Scriver, Radford and Puffer starred. Warsaw's best were I. Watts, J. Watts, Myles, Dunford and Shearer.

The teams:

Hastings—Goal, Montgomery; defence, McCoy and Preston; centre, Edwards; wings, McCarthy and Scriver; subs.: Phillips, Puffer, Turner, Boyle and Radford.

Warsaw—Goal, Digweed; defence, W. Cooper and P. Cooper; centre, I. Watts; wings, J. Watts and A. Watts; subs.: Dunford, Moore, Bell, Bowen, Myles, and Shearer.

Referee: A. McKee, Hastings.

The Summary.

Sylvanus Apps, star left-winger with Hamilton Tigers senior hockey club, scored three goals and gave three assists as Tigers downed Oakville 10-2 in a scheduled game at Toronto two years ago today. He turned professional with Toronto Leafs the following season and was chosen outstanding N. H. L. rookie of the 1936-7 campaign, becoming first winner of the Calder trophy. He was selected by sports writers as Canada's outstanding athlete of 1937.

P.C.I. OUTPLAYS COBOURG JUNIORS FOR 25 TO 11 WIN

Flashing a dazzling passing and accurate shooting attack in the opening half and a strong defensive front in the last, P.C.I.'s junior boys outplayed Cobourg in the opening Lakeshore basketball game at Cobourg Friday night to win 25-11. The garnet and grey went out in front 6-0 in the opening minutes and continued to dominate the play throughout to earn the win. Play was fast and open early, P.C.I. opening strong and leading 13-8 at halftime. The third quarter was much closer with very little scoring, but the visitors came back strong in the last stanza and were going away at the final whistle. Cobourg, using their small home gym to advantage, were always a threat, but P. C. I. shooting accurately scored enough to stay comfortably in the lead. There were no actual stars for either team, Peterborough outplaying Cobourg, but no individual players dominating the scoring or the play. The whole P.C.I. starting team went good, with Gillespie, Craig and Taylor accounting for 18 points as a line, while Ascott and Rogow stood out defensively, Cobourg scoring but 2 field goals. For Coburg Minie, Bennett and Phillips starred, scoring 7 of their team's points.

The teams:—

Peterborough C.I. (25)—Centre, J. Craig (6); forwards, K. Gillespie (8), E. Taylor (4); guards, L. Ascott (13, S. Rogow. Alternates, H. Amys (1), D. MacPherson (2), E. Clark (2), D. Moore (1), A. Marshall.

Cobourg C.I. (11)—Centre, B. King (4); forwards, F. Minie (3), D. Bennett (3); guards, C. Phillips (1), B. Malloy. Alternates, A. Wilson, S. Marges, F. Drury, B. Hogan, D. Dentin.

THOUSAND TIMES NO

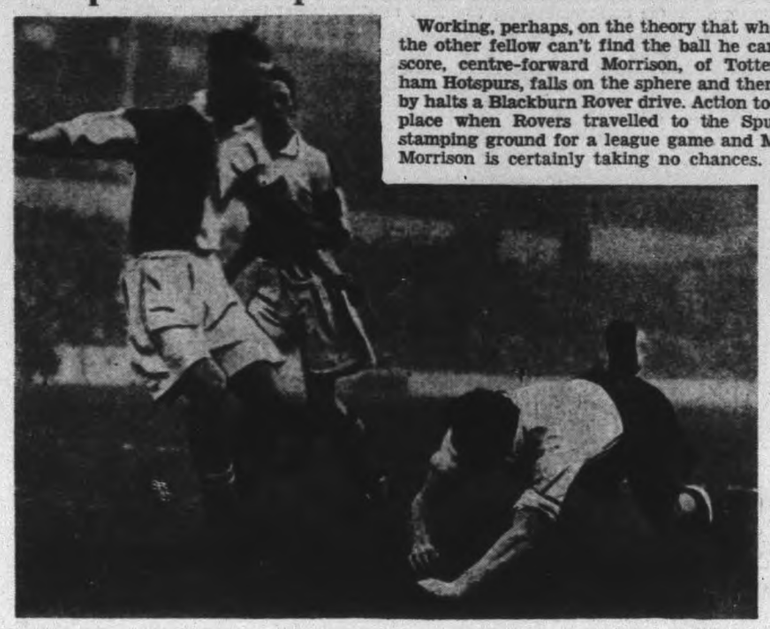
SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 8.—(AP).—Joe DiMaggio, who's spending much of his time denying he was signed with New York Yankees for 1938, said Friday he will go to New York and talk with Club Owner Jacob Ruppert "if I dont get my contract before I leave for the East next week." DiMaggio reiterated "I have not signed and that is the truth."

PAUL SCOFFS AT BOSS

SARASOTA, Fla., Jan. 8.—(AP).—Paul Waner, far from satisfied with a new baseball contract offered him by Pittsburg, said Friday the Pirates "probably want cheaper faces"—not new faces. The slugging outfielder was commenting on President Bill Benswanger's offer Thursday to trade his players "star for star."

France is gradually relaxing its price control legislation.

'Spurs Forward Spoils Blackburn Rover Attack



Working, perhaps, on the theory that when the other fellow can't find the ball he can't score, centre-forward Morrison, of Tottenham Hotspurs, falls on the sphere and thereby halts a Blackburn Rover drive. Action took place when Rovers travelled to the Spurs stamping ground for a league game and Mr. Morrison is certainly taking no chances.

P.C.I. Girl Cagers Beaten At Cobourg

Cobourg Collegians opened their C.O.S.S.A. senior girls' cage schedule Friday evening with a 38-17 victory over P.C.I. in Cobourg. It was 25-4 at halftime, and the Peterborough girls—shy Isobel Wray on defence—really lost out in the first quarter. After that, they settled down and held their own with the smart Lakeshore squad. Marg. Charlton was the shooting star of the game, this Cobourg ace dropping in baskets from all positions. Mary McPherson went best for the visitors. The teams:

P.C.I.—W. Saunders, J. Ottwell, M. McPherson, D. Glover, L. Reed, F. Wolff, M. Juby, R. Dalliday, and H. Beatty.

Cobourg.—M. Charlton, C. Allen, G. Ovens, F. Spooner, D. Throop, P. Austin, I. Stewart, A. Withers, H. Menie.

Referee, L. Thompson; umpire, A. Dufton.

CURLING

Echoes From No. '8'
By HERB MARTIN

At the end of the first week's play of the season's schedule we find last year's winners somewhat behind. In Group A, J. Lowes, a new skip this year and W. Pratten, are leading with two straight wins. In Group B, V. Currie and N. Hamley are runing ahead with two wins each. Both these skips are the club's representatives in the district cup competition. In Group C, M. Cruthers and T. McArthur are ahead with two wins each.

We would not be surprised if the Tankard and District Cup umpires were to call the preliminary round in these competitions very soon. . . In order to help beat that sand nuisance, the committee have purchased three coco mats. One is placed inside the main door and the other two at No. 8. We ask the co-operation of all the curlers.

Scores.

R. Bacon 15, D. Carlisle *; M. Cruthers 9, R. Downey 8; G. Matthews 12, B. Scott 8; T. McArthur 15, J. Richmond 10; E. Metcalfe 13, W. Oke 7; R. Best 10, H. Clegg 7.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

LOTS OF activity for local hockey teams next week. Two O.H.A. contests here, Queen's University and the Petes colliding in a senior "B" scrap on Wednesday, and Havelock and our Colts mixing in a junior "B" joust on Friday. Meantime, the Colts go to Havelock Monday, and the intermediate Bees journey to Oshawa on Monday. The Petes don't travel again till the 24th when they hit the long, long trail to Kingston. The Junior City Puck Loop opens Monday eve at the Brock with these games: Monarchs vs. P.C.I. at seven, Canadiens vs. Bombers at eight, and St. Peter's vs. All Saints at nine. Tilts must start on the dot. Two Senior City Hockey Circuit games are booked for the Breck on Thursday, Southenders playing Hiawatha and Bewdley meeting Millbrook. The Westclox bunch go to Lakefield on Tuesday. So we have hockey at the Brock St. palais de bump on Monday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. With C.G.E. loop tussles on Saturday.

• • • • • •

GORD CLARKE is as good a goalie as Ray Harding ,and Coach Pick Hines of the senior Petes knows it. He say so himself. Pick told us: "I had to drop one of these goalies to the intermediates and it was a tough task. I kept Harding because he is a little younger than Clarke, but both boys look about equally good. I couldn't carry them both but I told Gord to consider himself as one of the seniors and that, if there is any banquet or honors coming to the team later, he'll get his share. He saved our bacon in the first game with the Fliers." Clarke took it with a fine spirit, saying: "Pick is the coach and he couldn't carry us both—so it'sokay with me.". He will get into plenty of games with the intermediates.

• • • • • •

THERE was a hockey game up at the Brock St. rink last night, in case you werent among the 1,500 or so rabid rooters, and it ended up with a 5-3 victory for Trenton Fliers over the Petes in overtime. In the first O.H.A. senior "B" contest ever staged in Peterborough. They usen't to mess around with "A", "B" and "C" classes—you were either a junior, an intermediate or a senior in them thar days, mes gosoons. It was the third straight overtime struggle in three starts for the Petes this season, and we understand the Workers' Union plans to have words with 'em on this matter. It is oke with the players if they get time and a half for overtime and better working conditions.

• • • • • •

NO DOUBT about it, last night's tilt was a nice one. Two smart teams played smart hockey and it was anybody's game till the final goal was hemped late in the extra inning. Fliers weren't fooling around this time and carrying all the play, nossuh. They played canny hockey, as did the Petes, taking few chances most of the way. Just waiting for the breaks, but opening up the last half. They had a lot of speed, neat checking and some fine passing plays in close. The Petes skated with 'em, checked back effectively and also pulled some good combination. It was just the flip of a coin at the end of regulation time, and few fans would have rattled Junior's bank to bet much on the outcome. The Fliers got two in overtime, but they weren't two goals better. These teams are very evenly matched and will dish up some dandy jousts through the schedule. And we'll lay a fin the locals will win out!

• • • • • •

WE WOULDN'T name anyone as being outstanding for the Petes this time. Some of the lads flashed fine hockey in spots and others just played a good steady game. Stew Williamson, for instance, seldom stars but is as steady and reliable as they come. Weir is rounding into shape and so is McDougall. Ellis came up to the seniors last night and showed he is still a classy puckist, scoring two goals and checking well. And, boy, how he can ramble when he is going right! Barnes didn't do much rushing but impressed the customers with his class, which sticks out all over. Harding did well in goal, every one being earned off him.

• • • • • •

THAT FIRST front line of ours will keep the red light burning back of rival goals plenty this winter. Calladine is stepping along in his old form, though watched carefully last p.m., Starr is as peppery and dangerous in this company as in junior, and Vitarelli is still the pest to opponents he always was. Gratton hasn't clicked so far, though he keeps trying hard, and Kingdon will have no trouble holding down a wing position with the Petes. The whole team is just beginning to come along and, with about two more weeks of hockey, will be about as smart an outfit as any senior "B" squad in the Province. You doubt it? Okay, clip this out and paste it in your hat and take another look at it about the first of March. We think Pick Hines' Petes will go somewhere, and we don't mean out!

QUINTE COLUMNIST says the Fliers' defence flattened out in the overtime tilt with the Petes last Tuesday in Belleville. He doesn't blame Goalie Gibson so much as he does the husky defencemen, and he suggests they get a good coach to show the fellows. "On the surface," says he, "it looks as though the salvation of the Fliers lies in the procuring of a coach, one who can teach the defencemen something of value in the art of legitimate body-checking." Though this hurts worse than the landlord's visit, we sort of agree with him. Partridge and Lalonde looked much more potent last year when they were strewing rivals around the rink than they do now with their poke-checking. There are times when it is not advisable to body the oncoming forward, but most of the time you can't go wrong to hit him hard. Or are the pros all screwy? Nothing but the stiff bodying of Magee & Co. in Port Hope the other night saved the Bees a much closer contest.

UP IN Lindsay, a "mammoth hockey tournament" will be staged on Jan. 19, 20 and 21, so says Don Osborne, rink manager. Teams are invited from Toronto, Oshawa, Peterborough and a flock of other towns. Team topping the tournament splits tokens totallying $50—and what are "tokens" to amateurs, if we are not beaking too much into other folks' biz?—and runners-up knock off $25 in something. Teams will be matched so as to provide good opposition, ye olde elimination system being used. Maybe the Kadunks or some similar squad, will get in on this and have themselves a time. Lots of fun in Lindsay during and after tourneys, especially after!

College Boss

With a job that makes him virtual director of eastern college sports in the United States, Asa S. Bushnell sits him down at his desk. Mr. Bushnell has been named executive director of the Central Bureau for Eastern Intercollegiate Athletics, a newly created post, which gives him control over the sporting activities of 50 colleges in eleven sport groups. That makes Mr. Bushnell one of the continent's top-ranking sport solons.

N.H.L. TWILIGHT BECKONS JOLIAT OF THE CANUCKS

MONTREAL, Jan. 8.—(CP).— It took Aurel Joliat sixteen years to come to hockey's twilight, but he knew to-day the end of his National League career was near. And the little wisp was willing to call it a day.

"There are lots of signs that tell you when to stop,' he mused. And he went into the psychology and philosophy of giving up as he sat by his locker in Canadiens' dressing room and pulled off his practice equipment.

"Im through at the end of this season, and everything around me tells me so, Aurel smiled. "Look at those kids now. He pointed to Paul Haynes making George Brown scream under a hot shower by throwing cold water on him.

"I used to be able to hop around and take this game like that—but all that has changed just recently. Some time or other you lose that something that makes you go. You fade fast. Your legs start to give and you can't move as fast or think as fast. The people want to see youngsters coming along, and when you know they're talking that way you just finally decide to quit."

It would be hard to leave Canadiens after sixteen years, and the little man knew it.

Can Carry on for Now.

"Oh, I can carry my share the rest of this winter, though," he went on. "I couldn't help giving everything for a coach like Cecil Hart.

"Ive been pretty lucky at that. I've been in this league longer than any one ever has. But I remember the day when the defensemen never hit me. Now they bowl me over and don't bother looking to see if I've gone right through the ice."

Joliat still fits into the Canadien picture and into Cecil Hart's plans. On a recent night he scored his team's only two goals and he still can pivot on a dime and lay down a pass that's easy to take. When playoff time comes they'll place careful scrutiny over the danger-dealing wingman—Pesky they call him.

It seemed out of place to ask him the hackneyed questions about career highlights, but Joliat seldom talks as much as he talked to-day. This time he had to think twice.

"I guess I got as big a kick out of my first full year as out of anything. That was 1923-24 and Canadiens went all the way to the Stanley Cup—the hard way. We had to beat Ottawa, then Vancouver and finally Calgary.

Thriled by Howie.

That was a good year, even compared iwth 1933-34 when Joliat won the Hart Trophy as most valuable player in the league.

"Just a minute—that's not right either," he paused. "I'll tell you the biggest thrill I ever got out of hockey. It was when Canadiens brpught Cecil Hart back to coach last year and bought Howie Morenz back from New York. That put us right back in the league and I felt like a kid again. Say, if Howie hadn't died we'd have won the Stanley Cup last year—he was a great Howie."

There was going to be no turning back now that he had made up his mind.

"No. This is the last season. Say it any way you like, but it's definite to me."

FELLER GETS INCREASE

CLEVELAND, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—The powerful right arm of Bob Feller, the Story Book Kid from an Iowa farm who became itie American League strikeout ace, has earned him a salary increase as pitcher for the Cleveland Indians.

Alva Bradley, club president, announced on Friday night that Master Bob wound draw more pay for the 1938 season—but the figure was not disclosed.

While Feller's 1937 diamond income was not made public, an authoritative source indicated it was "a flat $15,000."

St. John's Teenites Win Exhibition Tilt

In an exhibition girls' basketball game last evening at the Y.W. gym. between intermediate teams, St. John's Teenites took a 13-6 win over Westclox to start off the season. Some good cage play was shown for so early with the St. John's gang having a bit more scoring punch to get the nod. The count was 3-1 for them at halftime. A. Bowler led the Teenites in scoring with six points. J. Coleman got five and E. Gynane one. L. McNaughton counted two points for Westclox, with J. Crowe, A. Flynn, D. Dawson and M. Hawthorne each cashing in on a free throw. The teams:

St. John's.—E. Gynane, J. Coleman, A. Bowler, M. Snowden, E. Clark, T. Law, H. Hart-Maxwell and E. Hart-Maxwell.

Westclox.—L. McNaughton, J. Crowe, A. Flynn, C. Metcalfe, M. Allison, D. Dawson, M. Hawthorne, N. Pammett, M. Goldie and P. Davis.

Referee, J. Cooper.

ELECTRICS COP BASKET VICTORY FROM BELLEVILLE

C.G.E. girls opened their L.O.B.A. Lakeshore cage group schedule here last evening with a 33-28 victory over Belleville lasses in the local Y.W. gym. It was a wide open, free-scoring scrap with both sides showing considerable offensive strength and neither team trying to do any real checking. C.G.E. had a 24-12 lead at halftime but had to battle hard as they were outscored by their scrappy opponents through the last stanza.

Fans saw a typical opening-season contest, with the players tiring fast in the speedy going, but turning in some promising looking hoop work. The Electrics proved a potentially powerful outfit and quickly swept into the lead. The Dundas'-coached crew continued to dominate play till the rest period, but Belleville damsels came back strong and had a little edge on the attack toward the end and made the big score uncomfortably close.

Minnie Hodson led the local attack with 11 points, with Marguerite Wood notching 10 in a nice effort, Genevieve Mann had five points, with Audrey Craig, Marilyn McCarthy and Marion Armstrong getting a basket each. Verda Bartley had a single point. For Belleville, A. Craye led the way with 17 points in a starry performance, while M. Machan got six, S. Melchoir three and M. Chapman two. There were a number of penalties called on both sides. The teams:

C.G.E.—A. Craig, G. Mann, V. Bartley, M. Hodson, R Ellis, M. Wood, K Rogow, E. Foster, H. McCarthy and M. Armstrong.

Lakefield Blanks Millbrook 7 To 0

LAKEFIELD, Jan. 8.— Lakefield senior hockey squad were much superior to Millbrook when they took a 7-0 decision from the latter on Lakefield ice Friday evening. The goal scorers were Jones 2, Stabler, Johnson, Sabatino, Beeth and Pearson. Line-ups:

Omemee's Modern Ice Palace

Varied Winter Sports Program Arranged For Official Opening January 12

Winners twenty times in twenty-two starts Omemee Blackhawks provided the incentive necessary to get a covered arena for the village of 700 inhabitants.

Four year ago Percy Parsons started the ball rolling and made every effort possible to provide a covered rink for the hockey teams of the village and district. Unfortunately the depression was at its worst and not quite enough subscribers could be found to back the venture. Last winter, when the Blackhawks were outplaying all opponents in their class, the movement was again taken up. This time it was proposed to make the undertaking a community enterprise and use village money to meet the obligations.

Shortly after the first of the year the question was put to the ratepayers and they returned a decided majority in favour of taking the idea over. The council, as soon as they had obtained the sanction of the Municipal Board issued debentures covering twenty years to cover the construction cost.

Work on the building started early this fall and the rink was completed about Christmas Time.

Large Ice Surface

Built on lines corresponding to the rink in Lindsay it is made of sheet steel over a wooden framework. The ice surface measures 75 feet by 170 while the structure itself is 93 feet by 193 feet. At present accommodation is provided for twelve hundred people with seats arranged along the sides only. Later it is expected to increase this by placing additional seats in the balcony which is over the dressing rooms and office in the south end.

Water from an artesian well on the grounds is raised to flooding pressure by an electric pump and pressure tank.

Bruce McNevin M. P. and L. M. Frost M. L. A. are to be the principle speakers at the opening next Wednesday, Jan. 12. Teams from Lindsay and Peterborough will put on an exhibition match with Joe Primeau and Baldy Cotton, Pro. puck stars officiating.

The rink is under the management of S. D. Vaughn, John Bent and Herbert Jones acting as a board appointed by the council.

Entered in the Big-Four league the Omemee team last year won each of their eight schedule games and took the playoffs two straight to win the Stinson Trophy. Following this they captured the Hughes Cup as Champions of Victoria and Haldiburton counties. In Oakwood the Blackhawks put out Little Britain in the semi-finals and then trimmed Oakwood to get the Hogge and Lytle trophy. Again at Oakwood the boys took the Hall and Hall Cup.

While this year's team has not been lined up as yet Art Williamson the manager believes they will be as strong as ever and will win the new trophy donated to the rink by Bruce McNevin for amateur competition in the two counties.

CHEAPER RARE SUGAR

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8—(AP).—The national bureau of standards announced today it has found methods of reducing the cost of making sugar from $20,000 a pound to $1,000.

It was not talking, however, about the ordinary sugar used by the housewives, but about a rare, scientifically important form of sugar known as d'ribose.

REPORT DARTS BOOM

LONDON—(CP).—The game of darts is proving so popular throughout the British Isles that sports firms found it hard to meet the demand in the pre-Christmas buying rush.

After mastering the simple snowplow and elementary details of weight shifting, the pupil should run over some fairly rough terrain, rough but not too steep, for some practical skiing at this stage will give the beginners a better idea of the value and usefulness proper skiing technique. It will also improve the straight running position as required in actual ski-running and give the student some much needed confidence.

Once the young skier has developed a steadier running ability the instructor finds it necessary to be much stricter with his running position. A little more forward lean is required and the weight of the body should be carried more on the ball of the foot, releasing the weight on the heels. As the speed increases the knees should be pushed forward and the weight of the body carried more on the front of the ski. Small bumps are taken by sliding one ski 12 to 18 inches forward with the forward knee well bent. Longer hollows and bumps are negotiated by crouching on the bump and becoming almost erect for the hollows. This will minimize the tendency to upset the centre of gravity of the body.

After travelling the bumpy terrain for 15 minutes return to the smooth slope and try weight shifting in the stem turn. The general mistake of the novice is to push the weighted ski rather than trust to riding it. To overcome this fault take a few short runs and lift alternately the left and right skis from the snow.

Sometimes too much skidding occurs when turning in the stem turn, a problem which can easily be overcome by practice. A few carefully practiced turns with the forward ski properly weighted will obviate the skidding tendency.

Descent at high speed ..chin, knees and toes are still in line perpendicular to the slope though the forward lean is enhanced. Grace Carter, of Seattle and a 40 degree slope provide the demonstration.

SENIOR BEES LOSE TO TRENTON 5-3; TORONTO GETS 6th WIN

Petes Get First Loss In Three Puck Starts Every Game Overtime

Fliers Cop 5-3 Decision Before Big Crowd In O.H.A. Senior 'B' Contest

The Petes opened their home O.H.A. senior "B" schedule with a 5-3 loss last night in overtime at the hands of the Trenton Fliers. It was the locals' third straight overtime game and their first reverse this season. A crowd of about 1,500 saw a speedy struggle between two classy, well-matched clubs.

The squads were tied 1-1 in the first, 2-all in the second and 3-3 at the end of regulation time. The Fliers rammed home two in overtime. The Petes scored first in the first three periods, but the Aviators—smarting from the 10-5 reverse the locals gave them in an extra period game Tuesday in Belleville—came back each time to tie it up, and ultimately cop the nod. It was a clean contest with some good hockey shown by the O.H.A. intermediate champions of 1937 and their strong opponents.

Fast Contest

Neat combination, good backchecking and fast skating featured this tilt. There was little to choose between the teams, though the Fliers had a bit more finish inside the enemy blue line. Both teams played cagey hockey in the first frame, but opened it up more in the second, and really went to town through the third to keep the fans yelling. The overtime inning was hot all the way.

There were no particular stars for the Petes. Harding looked good in goal, and made some fine saves. His defence went well most of the fray, and both forward lines worked hard and effectively all through. Ellis made his debut in senior company with a swell showing, Vitarelli battled his head off throughout, McDougall looked good in spots, Calladine was always dangerous and Barnes made a hit with the fans from the first. The whole gang played nice hockey and it was just a tossup which team would win out. The two McNeeleys were again prominent for the Fliers and Lecompte and Legrise shone most of the route. The defence was steady and Gibson hard to beat except for one fluke goal. The Fliers kept up a hot pace all the way and earned the nod.

Official Opening

Mayor-elect Jas. Hamilton faced off the puck to start the game. It was fast and quite even for most of this period with both sides checking closely and taking few chances. A McDougall-Kingdon rush threatened and then Eric McNeely made Harding jump. Starr bounced one off Gibson's pads and a Calladine-Vitarelli combination was dangerous. Calladine got the first one halfway through, bringing it out from a corner and fooling the goalie. Ellis went off for tripping and Fliers threatened. Williamson was chased for interference and the Airmen zoomed in on the locals with two men off. They tied it up fast when Lecompte was uncovered and took Ernie McNeeley's pass at the goal-mouth. At full strength again, the Petes fought back till the end.

Play was fast and even all through the second heat with the teams opening up somewhat and giving the goalies plenty of work, though the forwards checked back tightly. Kingdon hit the post on Ellis' pass, and the Fliers got away more shots on goal but mostly from well out. Lalonde was gated for tripping and the Petes swarmed up hard, though failing to tally. With 11 minutes gone, Ellis pulled a neat rush but was skated off to the corner. He blazed at the goal from this impossible angle and the puck sailed in off Gibson's stick. Harding robbed Elliott as the Fliers battled back.

Cowley sewed it up again at close range, aided by Legrise and Ernie McNeeley. Partridge and Vitarelli showed a tendency to rough it and both were waved off near the close.

Tied Up Again

A Kingdon-Gratton drive came close early in the third as both sides checked closely but kept stepping on the gas. There was some hard bumping for a few minutes and few real scoring chances on either net. Legrise made Harding flop fast to save and Ernie McNeeley almost bulged the twine. Ellis pulled a lovely rush. Barnes got the finger for tripping and four fliers flew down the ice, forcing the homesters to shoot the disc down the rink. Later Kingdon and Vitarelli had Gibson worried and McDougall made a dandy stab in close but in vain. It was hot up and down with the customers yelling hard. Ellis gave the Petes a 3-2 edge in close on neat work, aided by Vitarelli and Kingdon. The Fliers fairly flew, four and five rushing every time and they evened it up with two minutes to go when Patridge backhanded home Lecompte's pass with no one covering him. Play was hot and even at the gong.

McDougall and Calladine tried hard early in the 10-minute overtime inning but Fliers scored in three minutes when Lecompte took a fine pass in close from Partridge and picked a corner. Ernie McNeeley got another on a shot from blue line but it was offside. Five of the Petes tore up and pressed hotly, but the Aviators nearly broke loose twice. Starr came close on Weir's pass and then Legrise went off for boarding. The Petes pressed but had few real scoring opportunities and the Fliers kept shooting the rubber the length of the rink. Just before the final bell, Ernie McNeeley got a pass inside defence from Legrise and rifled it home to make the issue safe.

The teams:

Fliers: Goal, Gibson; defence, Lalonde and Partridge; centre, Legrise; wings, Ernie McNeeley and Cowley; alternates, Lecompte, Eric McNeeley, Halward, Deming and Elliott.

Petes: Goal, Harding; defence, Barnes and Williamson; centre, Calladine; wings, Vitarelli and Starr; alternates, McDougall, Kingdon, Gratton, Weir and Ellis.

Referee—"Army" Armstrong of Oshawa.

'Get Away From That Chicken'

THE JACK SHARKEYS, JUNIOR AND SENIOR

Little Jack Sharkey, bantamweight of an earlier day, isn't Little Jack Sharkey any more owing to avoirdupois but his son, Little Jack Sharkey, Jr., will try to keep the name alive in the ring. The youngster made his bow as a finalist the other night in New York by losing a close battle to Al Reid. Here Papa Jack is shooing Junior away from what appears to be a complete chicken.

WALKER TROPHY TEAM CHOICES ARE WITHHELD

NEW YORK, Jan. 8 (AP).—The forty-fourth annual meeting of the United States Golf Association will be held here today with announcement of the make-up of the 1938 United States Walker Cup team as the chief item of public intrest.

Actual selection of the team was made Friday in a closed session of the U.S.G.A. Executive Committee, which planned to withhold publication, probably until Sunday morning. The final choices were arrived at by majority vote after the original list of forty-five candidates had been cut to twenty-five.

Speculation on the makeup of the Walker Cup team that will meet the British team at St. Andrews, Scotland, June 3 and 4, has developed agreement on four men who appear certain of selection.

Two are hold-overs from the 1936 aggregation that swamped the Britons, nine matches to none, with three halved. They are the 1937 United States amateur champion, Johnny Goodman of Omaha, and Johnny Fischer of Cincinnati, his prdecessor.

The two most likely newcomers are Ray Billows, printing salesman from Poughkeepsie, N.Y., who was runner-up to Goodman at Portland, Ore., and Frank Strafaci, Brooklyn boy who won the 1935 United States Public Links crown and led the amateur contingent in the Metropolitan Open championship and finished a stroke behind Goodman at ninth place in the United States Open.

BADMINTON CLUB RESUMES SERIES

HAVELOCK, Jan. 8.—The Havelock Badminton Club resumed their play last evening, after an interval of two weeks during Christmas and New Year's, with a tournament and supper. There was practically a full attendance, and the evening proved to be one of the most successful the club has yet enjoyed. The members when not engaged in playing were entertained with a bingo game.

The club decided to have an "At Home" again this year and will hold it on either January 26th or 26th. Vice-president Grey Kemp was instructed to obtain the services of Doug. Hutchinson's swing band for the evening.

The members declared themselves in favour of having a separate evening at the end of each month for both ladies and men, and this system will be continued.

Refreshments provided by the male members of the group were served at the conclusion of the play.

YANKS OPTION FIVE

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—(AP).—The Yankees Friday announced the optional release of five of their minor league chattels, subject to recall at the close of the 1938 season.

Catcher Chris Harje and Second Baseman Herman Schulte, last year with Kansas City, have been sent to Newark. Pitcher Marvin Breuer, last year with Newark and Oakland; Pitcher Al. Piechota, last year with Newark and Kansas City, and Catcher William Baker, last season with Oakland, to go to Kansas City.

Outfielder Earl Bolyard, last year with Oakland and Kansas City, has been gleased outright to Baltimore. Infielder James Hitchcock, with Oakland in 1937, was released outright to Chattanooga.

Budge Redeems Himself Before Australian Fans

After answering Australian criticism of his lackadaisical performance in losing to Baron von Cramm by declaring that he couldn't be at the top of his form all the time, Donald Budge, the world's undisputed tennis king, steps out onto the courts and unleashes a dazzling variety of strokes to whip Jack Crawford, the Aussie ace. There was no kick coming from this match, with Crawford hopelessly outclassed by his younger and faster rival.

JACOBS FAVORS BANTAM BOXERS

NEW YORK, Jan. 8. — Michael Strauss Jacobs is very busily engaged with his heavyweight boxing program these days, but cagey Uncle Mike isn't putting all his boxing eggs in the heavyweight basket. One of the reasons for his success as a promoter has been his habit of planning for the future, and right now he's turning over in his mind the possibilities of the bantamweight situation.

It was a visit to Tommy Farr at Madame Bey's training camp, where he saw Mog Mason, Welsh bantamweight champion, in training, that got Jacobs to thinking that the 118-pounders might make added sugar for his bank roll. It was Jacobs, you know, who promoted the show of champions last September, at which the bantam title passed from Sixto Escobar to Harry Jeffra of Baltimore.

"That Mason looks like a great little figher, just the kind of leather thrower the fans in his country like. Why don't you boys bill him as the second Jimmy Wilde," he told a group of newspapermen to-day.

The idea wasn't taken up. It was pointed out that, while Mason is a chunky little boxer with plenty of power and doubtless plenty of ability, the only resemblance between him and Wilde was in nationality. Both are Welsh.

But Jacobs, having made a star out of one Welshman, Tommy Farr, is toying with the idea of giving Mason a chance to show what he can do among the bantams. Mason is training for a Toronto bout on January 17 against Baby Yack, the Canadian champion, and if he wins that, probably will have Jacobs rushing a contract toward him.

MOUND HELP FOR HERD

BUFFALO, N.Y., Jan. 8 (A.P.). — Steve O'Neill, new manager of the Buffalo International League Bisons, said on Saturday he had great hopes for two pitchers purchased from Philadelphia Athletics. The new men are Herman Fink and Fred Archer, rookies from North Carolina. "Fink is strong, fast, and has a good head for a young fellow," O'Neill said, "and should be a consistent winner under the lights for Buffalo." Archer, he said, was recommended to him by Connie Mack.

FOOTBALLERS UNLUCKY

PRESTON, England—(CP). — A party of Preston North End soccer players came to grief on a motor trip to Blackburn. The car overturned and Louis Bradford, reserve halfback, suffered a wrist injury.

Gene Mako In Action

With upturned eyes and a look of anguish on his distorted face, one might think that Gene Mako, California tennis star, is suffering untold pains instead of preparing to return a lofty ball served by his opponent Donald Budge, during their practise game at the Kooyong tennis courts, near Melbourne. The American tennis lads are touring Australia and playing exhibition games.

TORONTO CLUB GETS 6TH WIN

TORONTO, Jan. 8.—Flashing the same brilliant form that has characterized their efforts since the opening of the season, Goodyears hung up their sixth consecutive victory by drubbing Kitchener Greenshirts, 9 to 0, at Maple Leaf Gardens Friday night.

Victory consolidated the Toronto team's position as undefeated leaders of the O.H.A. Senior "A" race. The defeat left Kitchener still at the bottom of the league standing. They have yet to win a game this season.

HOMETOWN RINKS WIN AT LINDSAY

LINDSAY, Jan. 8 (Special). — All prizes in the annual district bonspiel, which was completed at the Lindsay Curling Club Friday, were won by Lindsay rinks. The Fee Trophy and silver trays, donated by E. D. Fee, were won by Percy Skitch's quartet with three wins and total plus of 25. Other members of the rinks were: Charlie Moase, lead; Orville Culbert, second, and Bert Everson, vice.

In second place were Bob Chapman, lead; Lloyd Phillips, second; Harry Balfour, vice, and Jimmie Mackey, skip, with three wins and plus of 24.

Third prize went to Graydon King's rink with two wins and plus of 21. Skip King was assisted by Jack Simnett, lead; George Cornell, second, and Harry Brown, vice.

Fourth awards were won by Dr. M. B. Annis, lead; Wilbur Heslop, second; Bill Hussey, vice, and Ken Richmond, skip, with one win and plus of 8.

Third round results:
G. King 14, F. Moynes 4.

ST. MIKE'S BEES TAKE FIRST GAME

TORONTO, Jan. 8.—St. Michael's Buzzers opened their Prep. School hockey campaign with a 5-to-4 victory over Upper Canada College at the Gardens Friday afternoon, but there was plenty of excitement prevalent before Dr. Jerry Laflamme's lads skated off as winners.

Away to a flying start, scoring three goals in the first frame, the Buzzers eventually built up a 5-to-1 advantage before the U.C.C. squad really got going. That was early in the third frame. From then to the finish it was a dog-fight, with the Irish just managing to hang on.

Only Two Penalties.

It was a good, fast game for this early in the season, with both teams doing plenty of hard but clean bodychecking and skating both ways at a clip that augurs well for future action. Referee Jim Primeau meted out only two penalties, both to St. Mike's.

Mahoney and Regan paced the Irish attack, each scoring a pair of goals, while Regan made the play that resulted in Somers notching the other Buzzer marker. Stewart, McCauley, Reeves and Vitali worked well throughout. Cleary and Consol shared the netminding duties for the winners, and each turned in a creditable performance.

Lawson Outstanding.

Goaler Bud Lawson was outstanding for U.C.C., making many spectacular saves. Stafford, Carpenter, Godfrey, Urquhart, Douglas and Mara turned in steady efforts.

Inside Sportin' Dope

BY A. WISE CRACKER

Mister Sporting Editor:

Well Mac, I'm writing this here epistle Fri. pm so of course what happens in the Flyers—Senior game at Brock St. ice palace is still on the lap of the gods but anyway I'm here to state that the local teams has set up something of a record what with victories 3 nites in a row in 3 different series.

Mister Hines' lads started things going Tuesday nite and that 10 to 5 licking they give the Flyers had the whole town buzzing. Most of the fans woulda been satisfied to have the Petes make a good showing again the Airmen but they wasn't very many of them that expected to the Hines talent to pile up any score like that. It was a narrow sqeak at that with the Petes getting the goal that sewed up in the game in the very last second of the regular time.

The thing that got me excited was the way they turned on the heat against the Flyers in the overtime ramming in 5 goals past the bewildred Mister Gibson, 3 of them in 20 seconds which must be a world's record from a standing start. Evidently this Mister Barnes from the wide open spaces of Saskatchewan can carry the mail for fair and his stunt of hanging up 5 scoring points was a mighty nice piece of offensive work on the part of a defence player. The Petes have a lot of punch up front too and there is no doubt with a little more work under their belts they will round into a pretty sweet squad.

Juniors Debute

Wednesday nite the juniors made their debut. The team has lost some its starry performers of last season and you can't drop puck artists like Mister Starr and Mister Kingdon without feeling it but Manager Hayden turned out a promising squad, with a number of freshmen in the lineup that should give a good account of theirselfs when the rough edges is taken off. They was in front of Belleville all the way and win on their merits. The red-sweatered visitors had lots of speed and cleverness individually but if they passed the puck all nite it was a accident. They seemed to be strangers to each other most of the evening and that made the job easier for the young Petes.

On Thursday Mister Herb Payne took his gang of intermediates down the highway to Port Hope and they cashed in with a smart win over the Ontarios in the Lakeshore group winning 4 to 1. Mister Payne has some popular performers on his lineup and they oughta make quite a showing in what looks like a classy group.

All in all neighbors, it looks like we git ourselfs some hockey players and they should be plenty of excitement up round the Brock St. frigidaire this winter.

The pro loop this week has been featured by 2 defeats for the Toronto Leaves and what made the lickings remarkable was the winners the Bruins and the Maroons each scored 6 goals against the Smythemen. As the Canadiens bagged 4 in losing the Saturday night game that means the Leafs rearguard has been punctured 16 times in 3 games and that my friends is far from Stanley-Cup winning hockey. They aint no use you getting 3 goals if the other fellows is going to get 6 and that is just what happened at Boston and Montreal.

Well that's enough hay down now so let's call it off for the nonce.

Sportfully Yours,
A. Wise Cracker.

Fights Last Night

NEW YORK. — Fred Apostoli, 161½, San Francisco, stopped Freddie Steele, 158¾, Tacoma, Wash., world's middleweight champion (9), non-title.

Chicago — Fritzie Zivic, 146¾, Pittsburgh, outpointed Harold Brown, 145½, Chicago (10).

CUBS SELL FLOWERS

CHICAGO, Jan. 8. — The Chicago Cubs announced on Friday they have sold Charles Wesley Flowers, a left-handed pitcher who played with Los Angeles in the Pacific Coast League last season to Indianapolis of the American Association. It was a cash transaction.

SMITH IS RELEASED

BOSTON, Jan. 8.— Unconditional release of Bob Smith, 39-year-old Boston Bees pitcher and coach, was announced on Friday night by President Bob Quinn. Quinn said he had waivers on Smith the past season and had sought unsuccessfully to place him with a club in a class AA league. Smith, last of the old Boston Braves, pitched only forty-four innings during the 1937 season and was charged with one loss and no victories.

STEELE TAKES BAD BEATING NEW YORK SHOW

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—(AP). — Fred Apostoli, swarthy San Franciscan, ripped the middleweight champions of two continents into bleeding, reeling helplessness, but to-day he had nothing more tangible to show for it than the championship of California.

Some 3½ months ago he scored a technical knockout over Bald Marcel Thil, champion of Europe, but Thil's title at the time was stored safely in Paris.

Last night in a non-title over-the-weight match the former bellhop gave Freddie Steele such a savage beating that the bout was stopped in the ninth round with the United States 160-pound king virtually out on his feet.

"I knew I could do it," yelled Apostoli after the bout. "I've only lived the last three years to get that guy in the ring. Now if he doesn't give me a title fight I'll claim it anyway."

He might just as well start claiming, for Steele, a wreck of a man as he lay in his dressing room, wouldn't even discuss the possibility of a return encounter at any weight. Apostli was forced to come in last night at 161½, so it was no dice.

"I'll never fight in this town again," moaned the battered champion as an ice pack was applied to his lower groin, where a wild Apostoli left caught him in the seventh round. "They wouldn't give me half the bandage I needed for my hands."

The low punch alone clouded Apostoli's victory. Referee Arthur Donovan held up the battle for 10 seconds, an unprecedented action here, until Steele recovered sufficiently to go on. Later, he blamed the punch for his defeat.

Aside from the low blow, though, the fight kept 8,000 fans screaming as the two tore into each other round after round, dealing out terrible punishment.

MECHANISM CAN'T REPLACE UMPIRE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—(AP).—Umpire Bill McGowan waved away Friday any talk of a mechanical baseball arbiter.

"Science," said the American League veteran of thirteen seasons, "may make a mechanical man, but it never will turn out an umpire, and I don't mean men aren't umps either."

People, he added, are beginning to talk about putting a robot behind baseball's home plate and eliminate all possibility of human error.

He admits a light-beam apparatus could be rigged up that would call balls and strikes in so far as they passed over the plate.

"But," he explained, "what about those technical things like the half-swing, the tip that barely grazes the bat, and the catcher that tips the bat? It takes the human eye, the ear, plus judgment and experience to call them."

Skeet Club Is Formed In City Layout Already Completed With Traphouses And Stations

Hundreds Of Marksmen Becoming Interested In This New Canadian Sport

"Pull!"

A marksman calls for a target and a spinning black disc darts from the traphouse and is powdered into dust before it has flown a dozen yards.

This is the performance that is being repeated tens of thousands of times every week by some hundreds of marksmen who take part in the twilight and week-end shoots at the scores of skeet layouts that have sprung into existence in Canada during the last few years. And now skeet has come to Peterborough with the formation of the Outboard Marine Skeet Club and establishment of a skeet layout three miles south of the city in North Monaghan.

The layout may consist of nothing more elaborate than a couple of unpainted traphouses and a few stakes set up on a vacant lot just a few minutes from a small town's residential section, or it may be a sturdy double layout complete with board walk and surrounded by the trim lawns and flower beds of a swank golf or country club's grounds. But so long as the traps can throw a sporting target the location doesn't particularly bother these enthusiastic skeeters who have found in this newest form of clay-pigeon shooting just what they have been wanting for years—a chance to get in some real wing shooting whenever they feel like it without having to wait for the season to open or the ban on green bullfinches or long-legged sparrows to be lifted.

Modest Layout

For a start, the layout which the Outboard Marine Club here has established down in North Monaghan is of the more modest variety but improvements are planned for next Spring and Summer. Two traphouses have been built and eight shooting stations located in accordance with standard skeet layout requirements. A board club house completes the plant.

A SPINNING DISK

The club is private with a limited membership and has been operating for the past three weeks for winter weather does not impede the sport. President is Hugh Campbell, Outboard Marine head, and vice-president is Sid Black. Secretary and treasurer are Bruce Payne and Clarence Neal.

Nine Years

In Canada it all started nine years ago when a somewhat bewildered squad of trapshooters ambled on to the grounds of what is now the St. Croix Gun Club at St. Stephen, N. B., to make the first round on the first skeet field in this country. Since then the game has been winning new enthusiasts every day. Progress at first was slow but sure. Die-hard trapshooters, used to pulverizing two hundred birds in a row when they were thrown within the narrow confines of the orthodox trap segment, openly scoffed at the new game, but they were secretly obsessed with a desire to master this more fascinating pastime with its baffling angle shots. Crack scatter-gun marksmen, famed locally for their ability to bowl over a string of duck or prairie chicken, sauntered nonchalantly up to station No. 1 intent on showing the tyros how it was done and retreated from station No. 8 bewildered by their score of seven or eight out of twenty-five.

And that is why everyone who has taken up skeet has stuck with it, for, like golf, it presents a challenge, a par to aim at, with the fascination of having one's score slowly improve with practice.

Doubled

During the last two years the number of skeet layouts in Canada has more than doubled and today there is hardly a fair-sized town or city without a field, and with interest in the sport still growing, clay-pigeon shooting seems destined to regain its pre-war popularity. Weekly shoots are a feature at most of the clubs, and with a steadily growing membership happily blazing away at the elusive targets at every opportunity, skeet statistics, if compiled, would be rapidly approaching astronomical figures. Some hundreds of thousands of clay targets are now being powdered every month, while the tonnage of lead pellets lying about the various gun club grounds must be on a par with that of scrap iron shipments to Japan.

And with all this shooting going on Canada is naturally developing some pretty good skeet shots. Nnmbered among the outstanding scatter-gun marksmen in Eastern Canada are men like Don Stapleton, F. Gillett, Dr. J. Beierl and R. E. Branch, who holds the Canadian long-run record of 117. All of these men can be counted upon to take some of the honours at such big intercity gun tournaments as those staged by the Seignory Club, the Brockville or the St. Hubert Gun Clubs, where the seemingly effortless way in which they smash the spinning black discs thrills the spectators just as a top-flight golf pro draws sighs of envy from the gallery with his perfect form and long distance drives.

Average Shots

Skeet, though, is no different from golf with its thousands of strugglers for every par-smashing champ. For every marksman that can dust off twenty-five birds in a row at skeet there are hundreds of men and women having the time of their lives trying to get up into the twenties, while scores of shooters sufficiently advanced in the twenties are anticipating the day when they will get the thrill of a lifetime by making the Twenty-fivers' Club.

But no matter what the score skeet never gets monotonous. It is the one form of "field" shooting that is a year-round sport. What's more, there is no limit to the bag, and whether crack shot or tyro, it is high-fun.

Three Youths Held For Murder

CHICAGO, Jan. 8—(AP).—Russel Grant, 23; Jeffrey Gilleas, 17, and Joseph D. Suddeth, 18, were in the Cook County Jail to-day awaiting trial on charges of murder in connection with the holdup slaying of a filling station attendant on November 20.

Grand Jury indictments charged each with murder although Detective Frank Miller said Grant was the actual slayer of William Hendele, 58. Miller said Grant took about $40 from Hendele.

Suddeth, Miller said, was paid $10 to serve as an alibi witness and Gilleas drove the car in which Grant fled. Grant was arrested on Thanksgiving Day after he boasted of the holdup of a tavern. Gilleas was arrested on January 2, when he returned from a visit with relatives in Sault Ste. Marie, Michigan.

BURNED GARAGE WILL BE REBUILT

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MARMORA, Jan. 8. — C. E. McElwain, whose garage was destroyed by fire on Wednesday, is carrying on his full business in the Dunlay shop which adjoined the destroyed structure. The Joseph Dale Estate has decided to erect an up-to-date garage on the site of the former garage with the least possible delay.

Skeet Makes A Peterborough Debut

STRUCK BY LIGHTNING

GEELONG, Australia — (CP). — Pulling his lawn mower under a tree during a thunderstorm, a Newton resident received a bad shaking when the mower was struck by lightning.

"Steals" Wife

Because he objected to physicians giving his wife ether, Ben Couch, 42, shoved physicians aside at a Wichita, Kas., hospital, took his wife from the delivery room and speeded her home in a taxicab where she gave birth to a five-pound daughter before a physician arrived. Couch and an 18-month-old son and Mrs. Couch and her baby daughter are shown (BELOW).

SEWING COURSE PROVES POPULAR

(Examiner Correspondence)

JANETVILLE, Jan. 8.—Mrs. W. Sanderson opened her home on Tuesday evening for the sewing course, sponsored by the Women's Institute.

Twenty ladies were present and among other things learned to make a bound button-hole, under the capable direction of the local leader, Mrs. Maiers. Each member is to bring a dress length and pattern to the next meeting.

After the sewing class was completed the first in a series of lessons on "vegetables" was given by Mrs. Allan Suggitt and Mrs. Bruce Heaslip, who were the local leaders in this particular course.

Mrs. Suggitt gave a splendid address while Mrs. Heaslip demonstrated the proper way to make carrots a la king. Vegetables lose valuable properties if cut up and left standing in water. Cauliflower should be soaked half an hour in salted water (1 teaspoon to 1 quart of water) no more and no less, so that any worms or grubs will come out of it. Cabbage should be finely shredded, dropped into boiling salted water and cooked from eight to ten minutes, etc.

Carrots a la king was served to each member by way of the main item of the refreshments and was accompanied by brown bread, tea and cake, served by the hostess.

Mrs. E. A. Bradburn moved a vote of thanks to Mrs. Maiers, Mrs. Suggitt and Mrs. Heaslip for their most capable demonstrations and to Mrs. Sanderson for the hospitality of her home.

These courses are most profitable and enjoyable and the next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. C. Deyell on Tuesday, January 11th.

Mr. Andrew McGill, one of the older residents of the village, was the victim of an unfortunate accident on Monday evening while he and two neighbor men were making preparations to leave the woods where they had been working during the day.

The horses suddenly started while Mr. McGill was standing in front of the sleigh and as a result he was knocked down and one leg badly injured. The victim was hurried to his home and carried into the house where it was found the leg was painfully swollen and blackened but not thought to be broken.

However after a painful night he was taken to the office of Dr. Parker of Lindsay who, by means of an X-ray, found a bone broken above the ankle. Mr. McGill is now resting more comfortably, but will be confined to his home for some weeks. All wish him a speedy recovery.

World's Greatest

Angelo "Hank" Luisetti (with a name like that the guy ought to be good) scored 50 points in a single game for his Stanford basketball team when they whipped Duquesne University 92-27 in a game in Cleveland; here Angelo shows how he went about putting on his oneman show. Luisetti was on the floor 38 of the 40 minutes to set what is considered a world record.

FRIGHTENING BUSINESS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8—(AP). — President Robert E. Wood of Sears, Roebuck and Company forecast today an increase in employment in the Consumers Goods Industries by March or April. He warned senate investigators, however, that recent speeches by administration spokesmen had been 'frightening' to business of the United States.

REPORTS GIVEN AS W.M.S. MEETS

(Examiner Correspondence)

OMEMEE, Jan. 8.—The monthly meeting of the W.M.S. of Trinity United church was held at the home of Mrs. L. Rea with a good attendance of members present. Group No. 1, of which Miss L. Race is leader, were in charge. The scripture lesson was read by Mrs. L. Rea followed with prayer led by Mrs. Vaughan. The devotional leaflet was read by Mrs. L. Forsythe. The chapter of the study book was given by Mrs. H. McPhee.

The president, Mrs. S. McConnell, then took the chair for the business period. Items which were discussed: secretary's report by Mrs. J. Bradley; treasurer's report by Mrs. W. Moncrief; Mission Band report by Mrs. MacTavish; Baby Band report by Mrs. S. Vaughen.

The roll call was answered by the names of missionaries and where they were stationed. The offering was taken by little Miss Helen Stinson. Misses Marion and Roberta Deyell favored with a vocal duet. The singing of a hymn and prayer brought the meeting to a close, after which dainty refreshments were served by the hostess, Mrs. Rea, assisted by Mrs. Race, Mrs. Shields and Mrs. Vaughen.

U.S. Will Cut Out Mail Subsidies

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8—(AP).—President Roosevelt said to-day he believed the time had long since passed when the United States Government should continue mail subsidies to newspapers and magazines.

Asked at a press conference if he believed it was a healthy sign for the Post Office Department to spend $38,000,000 in transporting newspapers and receive only $9,000,000 for it, the President said he always had thought to the contrary. His questioner mentioned similar figures for transporting magazines and other periodicals.

The President said the subsidy was started in the days when people had no means of receiving daily newspapers, but now every community has excellent mail and delivery service.

Asked if he intended doing anything about it, he suggested that the press take the initiative.

Hopes and Fears
Of People with Nervous Disorders

Life is made up of hopes and fears. When good health prevails we are hopeful and buoyant. In times of ill-health the fears dominate. Especially is this true of nervous disorders. Fears then make life miserable.

You fear or worry because you cannot sleep. You have a dread of crowds, and fear of being closed in or having things fall on you. But you also dread being left alone. You may even have fears of insanity. Fear and helplessness may so dominate you that you have spells of despair and discouragement, when you can do little else but cry. You must have something to restore hope, something to build up strength and confidence.

Most people have found that Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is a most satisfactory restorative for the nerves. With nerve force restored to the system you soon regain the vigor and energy which are necessary to health and hope and confidence.

NEW EXECUTIVE OF PETERBOROUGH KIWANIS CLUB IS INSTALLED

Achievements Peterboro' Club During The Past Year Reveal Many Worthy Projects

L. J. Pettit Is Installed As President Of Club By P. C. McLaurin

Proclaiming the Kiwanian aim of ever great service in the community, Kiwanian district Lieutenant-Governor P. C. McLaurin of Belleville installed 1938 officers of the Peterborough club at a gala evening last night. The club as a whole received highest commendation for its work during the past year and was given the inspiration for a year of even greater accomplishment through the powerful message of the district official.

The annual installation event was made the leading social occasion of the club's year in the form of a ladies' night. Retiring President, Al. Sharpe expressed thanks for a whole-hearted support he received from the club in 1937 and asked for continuance of the support as he turned the reins over to his successor, L. J. Pettit.

The ceremony of installation commenced with introduction of the new directors—Vern. Morphet, Will Hardill, Dr. C. B. Waite, Adjutant Neil Warrander, William English and Charlis Saunders—to Mr. McLaurin. One director, A. B. Gates, was absent. Dr. J. J. Craig introduced the new executive officers—W. A. Richardson and Fred Johnston, vice-presidents; Tom Mark, treasurer and J. A. McKone, secretary. Introduction of the new president was carried out by C. S. Browne, a past president.

Wonderful Organization

"The longer I have to do with Kiwanis, the more impressed I am with this fact—Kiwanis is a wonderful organization." Governor McLaurin declared as he charged the men with the responsibilities of their offices. "It is a wonderful organization because it is made up of wonderful men."

He hold them they were men who had an education through their association with Kiwanis. "You have not chosen to serve as officers of Kiwanis, you have been chosen by Kiwanis for you have become fitted for the responsibilities which you are assuming."

The entire official board of the club is just as strong as its weakest link and no stronger, the speaker continued. If the club executive has no weak member, it will be a strong club, he said. "Your club has a reputation for strong leadership in the past and you have but to carry on that reputation."

Declaring the offices effectives, Governor McLaurin said he was confident the confidence shown by the club in each man chosen would be justified as the year progressed.

New Chairmen

An important feature was installation of the new committee chairmen of the club. The chairmen named to serve in 1938 are: Agricultural committee, Dr. Craig; attendance, Charles Saunders; business standards and public affairs, Ivan Lillico; classification and membership, Al. Sharpe; boys and girls, Adjutant Warrander; finance, Vern Morphet; music, Leslie Unitt; Kiwanis education, Rev. J. D. Paterson; program, Bill Ovens; underprivileged children, Dr. Charles Scott; vocational guidance, C. S. Browne; house and reception, John Comstock; laws and regulations, Jacob Low; sports, Hubert Chown; sunshine, sick and visiting committee, Peck Barbour; camp committee, John I. Allen; committee of achievement, Dennis Fitzgerald; special committee on spiritual aims, Fred Johnston; executive committee chairman, Herb Cranford.

Interesting was the list of achievements of the club during 1937 to which Mr. Pettit referred in assuming his chair. The list included despatch of a carload of provisions and clothing worth $2,500 to the American flood area with $300 cash, construction of a wading pool at King Edward Park, operation of the Jackson Park Health Camp, contribution toward the civic Western Relief effort, assistance to the Y.W.C.A. and the Y.M.C.A., relief to families in need in Peterborough, provision of means for sending children to the Sick Children's Hospital, gift of Christmas presents to the children of the Shelter and the Orphanage and entertainment of the children at the Regent Theatre and the distribution of 25 Christmas baskets.

Toast Offered

Mr. Pettit sponsored the toast to Al. Sharpe and his wife and made a presentation on behalf of the club. Mrs. Pettit carried out a presentation of flowers to Mrs. Sharpe.

The club heard an eloquent word of greeting from Mayor-elect James Hamilton. Among guests in attendance was James Dutton, president of the Rotary Club. Two new members were welcomed to the club by Dr. F. C. Neal. They were Rev. E. W. Young of St. Andrew's United Church and George Cooper, a recent arrival to the city as manager of the Peterborough Transport.

Musical entertainment was provided during the program by Mrs. James Goldie and Henry Batten who offered vocal solos. They were accompanied at the piano by Leslie Unitt.

Takes Death Leap To Waltz Tune

Cincinnati, Jan. 8 (AP)

WITH a small radio blaring "Springtime in the Rockies" in his arms, 33-year-old Charles Davis leaped three stories to his death today.

Davis was killed outright, his body landing on a garage roof—but the radio, to which an extra length of electric cord had been attached, played on.

Witnesses reported that when they reached Davis's body, a dance band was playing "Home Sweet Home."

NON-STOP WORLD HOP

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 8.—(AP). — Garland Lincoln, who aided Jimmy Mattern in a search for six missing Russian aviators in Alaska last summer, said to-day Mattern plans a non-stop round-the-world flight in the spring.

He said Mattern intends to take off and land at Paris, France, and miss the United States entirely. He said mid-aid refuellings are planned in Northern Canada, Russia and at two other European points.

Mark Silverman (RIGHT), 38-year-old Los Angeles cobbler, who announced to his family that he was Jesus Christ and forthwith went into the wilderness forcing his brother (LEFT), and sister-in-law (CENTRE) to accompany him, was arrested by police after 108 days in the desert. The three, found in a small tent, had lived on a diet of fruit and raw vegetables, a diet prescribed by Silverman as fitting for humanity.

WEEK OF PRAYER SERIES CONCLUDED

The Peterborough Week-of-Prayer series was concluded with two well-attended services in Park Street Baptist and Murray Street Baptist churches Friday night. At Park Street Rev. Fred Craik delivered the sermon and Rev. G. S. Easton occupied the pulpit at Murray street.

Speaking on the value of prayer, Rev. Craik told his congregation prayer urges the Christian to soul improvement and provide relief to weighty problems of the day. He urged prayer for its steadying effect against strain and stress. Prayer refines the Christian character, he said, and continued to point out that Jesus not only prayed but helped His disciples to pray and instructed them how to pray.

"Whosoever heareth these words of Mine and doeth them shall be likened unto a wise man who built his house upon a rock." This was the text on which Rev. Easton based a warning against the present ways of man which he said are responsible for a world-wide feeling of insecurity, instability and doubt. Modern civilization is being built on sand, not on rock, he said.

The speaker urged as the solution a building of civilization on the foundation so simply and clearly outlined in the Sermon on the Mount.

Rev. C. C. Boyter presided at Park Street Baptist Church, Rev. J. T. Conn assisting in the service. At Murray Street Church, Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe presided and Rev. Dr. A. T. Barr assisted.

At a meeting of St. Alban's Guild, held on Thursday night at the home of Mrs. J. Cooper, Lundy's Lane, it was decided to close St. Alban's Mission for the time being.

PETERBOROUGH WINNERS

Little Shirley Garner, 7 and Kenneth Simmons, 9, a child song and dance team have been successful in winning the competition for Peterborough amateurs at the Capitol Theatre and on Sunday they will take part in a program broadcast from Toronto at 12.30 o'clock. The little entertainers made a big hit with local patrons.

HOME NURSING CLASSES

Under the convenorship of Mrs. Frank J. Lynch, 420 London street the home nursing classes under the auspices of the Peterborough branch of the Canadian Red Cross Society will begin on Monday, when the class for Colonial Weaving employees will be conducted by Miss C. Morris. With Miss Lauder, as teacher, the Brinton Carpet Company class will meet on Tuesday night at 7 o'clock, the Bonner-Worth class Wednesday at 6.45 with Miss F. Vickers, teacher, the C.G.E. class Thursday with Miss Mary Greer teacher, and the Western Clock, Friday with Miss Russell teacher. Mrs. Kingdon will teach the P.C.I. girls on Monday afternoons and the P.C.I. and Girl Guides on Tuesday afternoons. All the sessions are at the Y.W.C.A.

FRIDAY NIGHT CLUB.

Last evening the club chairman, Charlie Shaw, was the speaker. His topic was "Goodwill, and what it means in the business of today." Mr. Shaw used a chart to illustrate his talk, showing how a successful business had to be built. A genuine product made a firm foundation to start the successful business on. Then the product had to be honestly advertised and properly sold. The company must also give good service, as in delivering their products, and they must have sound policies to work on. The customers' co-operation is always necessary in business of any kind, and the dealer's profit is to be considered also. The speaker next week is to be H. L. Garner of The Examiner, using as a topic "The Building of a Newspaper."

Before the speaker, Bob Maybee rendered two very much approved selections on the piano.

EGGS UNSETTLED FARMERS' MARKET

Eggs were unsettled in price as an unusually large supply appeared on the Farmers' Market this morning. The demand varied from 21 to 38 cents a dozen. Chickens were 18 to 25 cents and geese were quoted at 20 cents. Butter sold between 30 and 33 cents a pound.

Potatoes brought 60 to 65 cents a bag on the outdoor market. Apples were in small offering but little change in price was evident. Prices of the different varieties ranged from 25 to 40 cents a peck. Beef brought 8 to 11 cents a pound in quarter cuts, pork 13 and 15 cents and lamb 15 and 17 cents.

GROWERS OPPOSED TO TARIFF CUTS

COBOURG, Jan. 8 (CP). — The Northumberland and Durham Apple Growers' Association, closing its annual meeting here on Friday, passed a resolution expressing strong opposition to any reduction in Canadian tariffs. The resolution urged the Dominion Government to withhold possible action in this connection pending an expression of opinion from the association.

Earlier, W. R. Reek, Ontario Deputy Minister of Agriculture, told the association in a luncheon address that apple growers of the Province should decide for themselves the best way to meet competition before asking the Government to act. The efficient producer would be the one to conquer marketing conditions, he said.

Canadian Legion Notes

The Ladies' Auxiliary have just concluded a highly successful year and have selected their officers for the coming year. During the past year they have been of great assistance to the Branch, financial and otherwise, and have looked after the relief work in a manner that is very much appreciated by the officers and members. We wish them a happy and even more successful year than the past one.

We beg to remind the cribbage players that all entries for the cribbage contest must be in he hands of Com. R. Long not later than tonight (Saturday) and the contest will start right away.

Hearty congratulations to Com. W. P. Huyoke, K.C., on his success in the aldermanic elections, and we are sure that the confidence reposed in him by the electors will be amply justified.

A Legion carpet ball league is in course of formation and a meeting of all wishing to join the various teams will be called in the near future. We are much gratified by the interest and response that has followed our efforts to make carpet ball popular amongst the members, and the result has been remarkable. Men who have never handled a ball before are now most enthusiastic and our old Com., Lou Files, is a standout. He had to be persuaded to try and now he is showing the younger fry how a ball should be rolled. The carpet and balls are there so come along any evening and have a go. The more there are of you the merrier and the better we will like it.

The C.G.E. billiard league start their second series on Monday evening and the hall promises to be a rather busy place from now on.

The Legion team in the City Carpet Ball league is not setting the place on fire, but considering it is their first year at the game they are holding their own against the more experienced players on the other teams.

W. C. ACKERMAN RE-ELECTED HEAD OF LIBRARY BOARD

At the recent meeting of the Public Library Board W. C. Ackerman was re-elected as chairman for the ensuing year.

Submitting his report on the work accomplished during the past year, F. M. DelaFosse, made the following observations:

There has been a great deal done towards getting things in better working condition. Our newspapers have been re-arranged and placed so that old fyles when asked for can be readily gained access to. This has really been a great step towards enhancing the value of our Reference Library., which is one of the most important branches of our work.

In all other respects I am glad to report progress although a cursory glance at our circulation figures may not seem to denote much advance. It will be noticed, however, that the greatest falling off in our circulation has been in fiction and that in certain other departments there has been a remarkable increase, notably in history.

It is a well-known fact that every Library has shown decrease in fiction, which may be put down to the opening of many circulating Libraries in places of business in cities, towns and villages.I think we may welcome this as a help and not a hindance to our work.

Our reference work has shown gratifying progress, as indicated by the circulation figures.

So far as the adult department is concerned there has been harmonious co-operation by every member of the staff and the same may be said of the juvenile department. The result is to be seen in both departments in the work achived.

There has been a great deal of mutilation of books and magazines and some valuable volumes have been rendered practically worthless by ruthless vandals. As has often been pointed out in former years, this is a criminal offence, which seems not to be readily realized.

The juvenile department has had an active year and every member of that staff has done excellent work. The change in the curriculum for the public schools has had a grat deal to do with the increase in circulation, but apart from that the juvenile department has accomplish a great deal and shows careful and well-organized management.

There has been a steady stream of people to visit the Denne collection of pictures, which through the kindness of Mr. T. H. G. Denne, were presented to the Library during the year. They will be of increasing value as the years go by.

During the past year 1544 books have been procured for the Library, 808 for the adult department and 738 for the juvenile. Very few books were presented during the year.

City's Relief Committee Is Able To Complete Year With A Credit Of $15,600

Takes Office

L. J. PETTIT

who was installed on Friday evening as the president of the Peterborough Kiwanis Club.

Police Called When Relief Recipient Refuses To Leave Meeting Of The Committee

When J. Murduff stated to be a relief recipient refused to leave a meeting of the relief committee last night after being ordered out for creating a disturbance, police were summoned to eject him.

Before the arrival of a constable however, the man left the meeting, being prevailed upon to do so by retiring Mayor George A. Macdonald.

James Dutton, who presided as chairman at the final meeting of the committee told a reporter, Murduff had been ordered from the relief office earlier in the day and that he showed up at the relief meeting and made a disturbance.

"We were prepared to listen to what the man had to say, but he became abusive in his demand for increased allowances. When he went to the relief office in the afternoon he wanted to get on order that was not due to him until Monday," Mr. Dutton said.

Before he left the meeting Murduff reminded Mr. Dutton he had been turned down at the polls on New Year's Day, but the retiring chairman of the committee told the alleged disturber that such a fact did not alter his opinion that Murduff had no further right to expect relief from the citizens of Peterborough. He pointed to the fact the man had a son in employment in the city.

Mr. Dutton reported to the committee the year was finished up with a credit of $15,600 out of the council's appropriation of $56,000 which amount was low by comparison with the peak of the depression period.

There was a slight increase in the per capita cost of relief, which now stands at $6.90. The increase was stated to be due to the five per cent raise in food allowance to relief recipients put into effect here last fall, and to other considerations.

At Christmas time 342 baskets of cheer were distributed as compared with 531 baskets at the same season in the previous year.

It was believed by members of the committee there is enough wood on hand to carry over the winter. The amount on hand was reported to be 1440 cords valued at $8,000.

WELFARE LEAGUE HAD BUSY YEAR

The Junior Welfare League concluded a successful half year. December 31 the club has supplied about 100 quarts of milk, cod liver oil, boots, shoes and rubbers, and many articles of clothing to 12 families who are in need in the city, and one child in the country was supplied with cod liver oil. In a few cases eggs, meat and vegetables were supplied. Christmas stockings were distributed to 47 children, and 25 local people who are in out-of-town sanatoriums were remembered by the club.

Other social service work undertaken by the members included: dental attention for a child, the driving of patients to the chest clinic, and supplying some of the clothes to the children's Shelter, and the nursing home.

The funds for this work were provided for by proceeds from various entertainments given by the members, the sale of members' work, and some donations from members. The officers of the club and the convenors are: Hon. Pres., Mrs. R. R. Hall; President, Mrs. Graeme Falkner; 1st Vice-Pres., Miss Claire Mason; 2nd Vice-Pres., Mrs. Hicks-Lyne; Sec.-Treas., Mrs. D. B. Falkner. Committee Convenors.—Visiting, Mrs. Clare Collins; Sewing, Mrs. D. MacTavish; Knitting, Mrs. Herbert Bradurn.

THANK GOD FOR THE WEEK OF PRAYER—BUT LET US NOT CEASE UNITED PRAYER NOW

That we need a Spiritual awakening is accepted by all, but how is it to be attained is the question?

The Answer is Given by M. L. Sloane in "Calling to Remembrance"

"The GREAT revivals of 1857-1860 were all marked by this one feature: They were simply the outgrowth of ardent and unceasing prayer for the out-pouring of The Holy Spirit. Often the meetings for prayer were small in number—but a handful of earnest believers met together, and often there seemed to be no evident answer to their prayers for months; but because these praying people never wavered in faith, never let anything discourage them and never doubted that God would answer their prayers, revival did come, and literally thousands were turned to the Lord, and were born again of His Spirit.

BRITISH BLIZZARD CLAIMS GIRL TRAPPED ON MOOR

Trio Overtaken at Night Took Shelter in Large Hole

COLLAPSED OFTEN

Sheffield.—Half frozen, famished and covered with snow, two young men and a girl dragged themselves to the door of an isolated farmhouse on the Derbyshire-Yorkshire border and gasped out the story of how a 19-year-old girl companion had died during a blizzard on the desolate border moorlands.

The dead girl was Nora Leary, of Birch Road, Sheffield. Her companions were Albert Garfitt (26), of Fitzwilliam Street, Sheffield; Fred Glaser (23), of Normanton Street, Sheffield, and Margaret Dearnley (19), of Staniforth Road, Sheffield.

Describing their ordeal, Garfitt said that they lost themselves on the moor.

"Shortly afterwards a fierce blizzard swept the moors, making our slow progress more difficult.

"It was then that Nora first collapsed, and within the next hour she collapsed six or seven times.

"For some distance we half dragged her and supported Margaret as well, but we soon found it impossible to go any farther.

"We settled in a large hole to wait for the blizzard to subside and to wait for the dawn.

"During the night we had constantly to clear the snow, pushing it away with our hands.

"During that period Nora died."

Nora Leary's body, covered by raincoats, was brought down from the moor on a sledge.

PETROL SUBSTITUTE SOUGHT FROM WOOD

Britain Conducting Research to Meet "National Emergencies"

London.—Experiments are being made by the department of scientific and industrial research to find a petrol substitute for times of "national emergency". This is revealed in the report of the Forest Products Research board.

Wood or charcoal gas in a gazogene, a liquid impregnated with gas, may be used.

"Work has begun on the collection and sifting of existing information on gazogenes," says the report, "as it is considered that the use of wood or charcoal gas may be important in times of national emergency."

The board has also been collecting information, says the report, on the construction of wooden silos for storage of home-grown food in a national emergency.

Tests with X-rays have been made to find means of destroying wood-boring insects.

Rays did not kill any of the insects, but the experiments proved that X-ray photography could be used to detect them in valuable woodwork. An audio-frequency amplifier was also used for insect detection.

ONCE RICH, GENEROUS IS GIVEN FIVE YEARS

Friends' Aid Fails to Save Southend Solicitor From Bankruptcy

London.—In his prosperous years Henry Barnard Snow, 54-year-old Southend solicitor, was extravagantly generous. He entertained lavishly in his house at Leig-on-Sea. His garden was the show place of the neighborhood.

In business, he gave bank guarantees for defaulters he knew only slightly. To one he gave four cars.

Lean years came. His friends did not desert him. Within six months he was able to raise loans totalling £12,185 ($60,925). But it was not enough to save him from bankruptcy proceedings, followed soon afterwards by prosecution.

Henry Snow sat in the dock at the Old Bailey, head buried in his hands, while the clerk of the court recited the list of fraud charges to which he pleaded guilty. The list was so long—there were 23 counts—that it took 10 minutes to read them. He had converted to his own use £16,658 ($83,290) of his clients' money.

Mr. Justice du Parcq passed sentence of five years' penal servitude. But his comment on the gravity of Snow's offences was confined to a few words. "I would add nothing to your unhappiness," he said.

NO LOCK MAN 75 COULDN'T OPEN

London.—Although in his 75th year, no lock can baffle Benjamin Gerlick.

The underworld always consulted "Benjy" when a difficult padlock separated them from loot and riches, and he was willing to lend a hand and take a "cut" in the proceeds.

At the Old Bailey, Gerlick, with two other men, Abraham Levison, aged 51, a traveller, and Lewis Lazarus, aged 37, a dealer, pleaded guilty to breaking into a warehouse in Stepney and stealing furs worth £400 ($2,000). They were each sentenced to three years' penal servitude.

SOCIALIST M.P. WINS $4,000 DAMAGE SUIT

Reduced to 50 Per Cent. Man Says Counsel

London.—Damages of £800 ($4,000) have been awarded George Benson, Socialist M.P. for Chesterfield, for temporary impairment of his professional capacities following an automobile accident.

Counsel stated in court that Mr. Benson had been reduced to a "50 per cent. man and that his professional and parliamentary duties had been seriously affected by his injuries. He had been appalled by his faltering speech in the House. "You heard his speech on the public works loan bill. The least said about it the better," said counsel in argument.

BOY, 10, BREAKS LEG FOR FOURTEENTH TIME

Started in Cracking It Right After He Learned to Walk

Bath.—For the 14th time Kenneth Swartz, the 10-year-old, brittle-boned boy of Bath, has broken a leg.

He is in Bath United hospital, and as he lays with his leg suspended in wires, he told his story.

"I can't remember the first time my leg broke," he said, "It was just after I learned how to walk.

"What happens is this. I walk along or run up the stairs when suddenly one of my legs gives way.

"I have broken my right leg six times and my left leg eight times.

"It doesn't hurt much. I just call my mother and wait for the ambulance."

Kenneth attends St. John's school and his one worry is that he cannot play football. But he makes up for that by being the school's musical "genius."

"I shall be a musician when I grow up," he said. "Then I shan't worry about my legs. Already I can play three waltzes and a polka on the piano."

The boy was drawing caricatures of his nurse on a pad. She doesn't mind. She and Kenneth are old comrades.

STEEPLECHASE JOCKEY LOSES MIND, DIES

Epsom.—The mind of a former steeplechase jockey was said at an inquest at Epsom to have gone back 15 years as a result of a motoring accident. His children, it was stated, seemed entire strangers to him.

The man, Charles Horace Bruton, a dealer in house property, Worcester Park, died in hospital.

Wr. van Buuren said that Bruton had had several accidents, including a fracture of the spine, fractured ribs and a cracked scalp. The loss of memory suggested an underlying pathological condition of the brain, and its was possible that he might have had a fit of dizziness while driving.

Preesnting a series of concerts during the holiday season before eminent Londoners were these twenty-four members of a Viennese boys' choir, who, after their arrival in the metropolis, were taken to County Hall for a medical examination. Londoners found their costumes somewhat like British boys' sailor suits.

DIDN'T FILE EXPENSES LOSES VOTE 5 YEARS

Defeated Municipal Election Candidate Also Fined $50

Hythe.—For failing to make a return of his expenses at the Hythe municipal elections, an unsuccessful candidate was fined £10 ($50) under the Illegal Practices act, and disfranchised for five years.

He was William Wrigley Diggle, an architect, of Long Barrow, West Hythe.

It was stated that when the town clerk wrote for the return he received a reply starting with the word "Blackmail".

Diggle told the local bench that he acted on his solicitor's advice in sending a return to the home secretary. He had not received the papers back.

WOMAN WATCHES HUSBAND SWALLOWED UP BY EARTH

Old Saxon Grain Pit Collapses Outside Cottage Door

MAN IS DROWNED

Sittingbourne, Kent. — A young wife saw her husband vanish into the bowels of the earth near here right outside the back door of their cottage home.

Bob Burgess, a farmhand, of the little village of Redjar, was given up for dead after a rescue party had toiled all day to recover him from a prehistoric cave nearly 200 feet deep.

Tests showed that the hole contains 65 feet of water.

Mrs. Burgess said her husband took two steps across the cobbles of the yard, then the earth opened and he vanished without a cry.

A sound as of distant thunder brought neighbors running, but all they could see was a gaping, jagged hole over which leaned Mrs. Burgess, calling in vain to her husband.

The hole is one of several in North Kent. They are believed to have been dry and used as hidden granaries in Saxon times, more than a thousand years ago. They are known as "dene holes."

Foul gases made it impossible to lower anybody to the rescue, and Burgess is believed to have been drowned at once.

Old inhabitants of the village say that the shaft was bricked over many years ago and forgotten.

SENTENCES REDUCED ON PRISON MUTINEERS

Quarter of Extra Penalties Remitted by British Government

London.—Convicts who took part in the Dartmoor prison mutiny in January, 1932, are to have their sentences reduced by a quarter.

This was announced by Sir Samuel Hoare, home secretary, in the Commons.

Commenting on the decision, Wilfred Macartney, who wrote "Walls Have Mouths," after serving ten years' penal servitude, said: "The remissions point to the fact that the sentences were obviously too heavy, and I do not think Sir Samuel Hoare has erred on the side of generosity. But he has certainly showed himself to be more humane than his predecessors.

"The remissions are obviously a result of the campaign of Mr. Compton Mackenzie, Mr. Maxton, Mr. Golancz and others.

"While one must be grateful for small mercies, one would like to see a more substantial reduction, particularly when one realizes that some of the men have to remain in prison until 1942."

CONVENT GIRL, EX-OFFICIAL UNDER BLACKMAILER'S SWAY

Attended People as Doctor, Gave Diabetes Injections to Artist

HAD SERVED TIME

Winchester.—The power exercised by a man described as a "liar, impostor, cheat and fraud" over a convent girl, and over a once-prominent railway official, was revealed at Hampshire Assizes at the close of a trial for blackmail.

The details were given by Detective-Inspector James, of Portsmouth city police, who denounced as the impostor Thomas Ronald Hyman Max Davies (four years' penal servitude). His real name, the inspector said, was George Maxim Davidson.

One day his wife went shopping, leaving him at home with their two children. She returned in 45 minutes.

He had gone—and George Maxim Davidson had ceased to exist. He became, instead, "Dr. Davies, M.R.-C.S., L.R.C.P." He had no qualifications.

He attended people as a doctor. He gave a well-known variety artist 40 injections for diabetes. The artist had no such complaint.

Gwendoline Davies (nine months' imprisonment) was spoken of by the inspector as Gwendoline Edwards. She was educated, he said, at a convent in the Pacific Islands and at Wrexham.

She met Davies casually at a dance in London, and at the time of her arrest was definitely in fear of him.

Charles Thomas Duke (18 months' hard labor) was born at Clerkenwell. Obtaining employment as a railway clerk, he gained rapid promotion, and was paid £1,800 ($9,000) on retiring.

HAD BIRD ILLEGALLY MINISTER PAYS FINE

Rector Thought Hawfinch Got in Czechoslovakia Didn't Require Ring

Chelmsford—Rev. Percival Kingsford Venner of the Vicarage, Gosfield, near Halstead, was summoned by the R.S.P.C.A. at Chelmsford for offering for sale a live bird other than a close-ringed specimen bred in captivity.

Gordon Jones, prosecuting, said Mr. Venner was an exhibitor at a Chelmsford cage bird show. A hawfinch entered by him did not conform to the regulations regarding wild birds in captivity because it did not bear a ring on its leg.

Mr. Venner told an R.S.P.C.A. inspector that he got the bird in Czechoslovakia and thought it was not subject to the regulations. According to the catalogue, the bird was offered for sale at £1 ($5).

Mr. Venner wrote saying he had forgotten he had priced the bird and had done so unthinkingly.

He was fined £1 ($5), and a guinea ($5.25) costs.

James Osborne, a ship's painter, of Burns Pl., Tilbury, was fined for a similar offence, concerning a bullfinch, arising out of the same show. On his behalf it was stated that the bird was entered by mistake.

GRASSHOPPERS FEED COD

Leetom, N.S.W.—Many large cod came to the surface on the Murrimbidgee River to feed on a cloud of grasshoppers which swept over the water.

LAW WON'T PROTECT GIRLS 'ON OWN WORD'

Cadi Sees "Every Man Shot" Without Evidence

Hull.—"Girls who go floating about, practically encouraging immorality, are not to be given the protection of the law in bringing cases without any evidence to support them."

J. R. MacDonald, Hull stipendiary magistrate, made this comment in dismissing an 18-year-old girl's application for an affiliation order because of lack of corroboration.

"The girl's own word is not sufficient," he added. "They must bring someone to support their allegations; otherwise every man in the kingdom would be liable to be shot at by any wicked or wild young woman."

FOUR RESCUE JAILERS THEN SENT TO PRISON

Convicted Quartet Could Have Escaped When Van Overturned

Brighton.—Four persons, unhurt when their prison-van overturned and freed them on the Brighton-Lewes road could have escaped.

Instead, they ran to rescue the two jailers trapped in the driver's cabin. Both men had been flung violently against the windshield and stunned.

A fierce gust of wind had caused the front wheels of the van to skid on the rain-swept road at Falmer.

One of the prisoners stopped a Lewes-bound bus, and in this the four men and their jailers continued the journey to Lewes prison.

Early in the day all four prisoners had faced theft charges at Brighton, where they lived, and had been sentenced to hard labor.

They are James Francis Wyatt (one month's sentence), Frank George Nutley (three months), Victor Oswald Greening (four months), and Frank William Sargison (three months).

Wyatt had pleaded for leniency. "Drink seems to turn my mind to stealing," he said.

'ONLY 50 P.C. MAN' HUSBAND, WIFE SUE

British Labor M.P. Claims Damages After Auto Crash

Birmingham.—Said to have been reduced to only a "50 per cent. man" by injuries received in a car crash, George Benson, Labor M.P. for Chesterfield, is suing a motorist for damages.

In the action, which started at Birmingham assizes and was adjourned, his wife also claims damages.

Defendant is Leslie Lewis Williams, of West Wolverhampton.

Arthur Ward, counsel for the Bensons, said that the M.P. had since become nervous, unable to concentrate, and unable to carry out his professional or parliamentary duties as before.

"To-day," Mr. Ward continued, "doctors say that he is only a 50 per cent. man. If he attempts to do too much mental work he becomes a wreck entirely.

"He returned to parliament, where he was regarded as a brilliant speaker, only a short time ago, and made his first speech since that accident. When he read that speech the next day he was appalled at its badness. It was not concise, and he was surprised to see the number of times he had repeated himself unnecessarily."

NEWS AND VIEWS FROM ALL CORNERS OF THE WORLD

MAY FINGERPRINT TOURISTS TO CHECK FRENCH MURDERS

Proposal Calls for Submission of Identity Card to Police

WOULD NEED VISA

Paris.—Thousands of British tourists will be forced to have their finger prints taken if proposals by M. Marx Dormoy, minister of the interior, become law.

Because of a number of murders by foreigners recently the government is considering measures to make the entry of aliens more difficult.

M. Dormoy has worked out this scheme. Every foreigner wishing to visit France must go to the nearest French consul in his own land and obtain a visa for his passport.

He must give the French consul his finger prints, which will be put on an identity card signed by the consul.

Within 48 hours of arriving in France the foreigner must take his passport and identity card to the police, who will have power to hold any undesirable pending an inquiry.

At present no visa is necessary to enter France.

M. Dormoy may try to obtain a decree giving him power to put his proposals into action without the delay of a debate in the Chamber of Deputies.

Later the chamber would be asked to ratify the proposals.

25 CHARGES SCORED AGAINST MERCHANT

Will Do Seven Years Hard Labor for Frauds

Dar-es-salaam.—The longest case in the history of the East African courts ended recently when Esmail Hussein Ali Hasmani, 22, a prominent Indian merchant, was convicted on 25 out of 30 charges of forgery and fraud, and was sentenced to seven years hard labor.

The case had caused the greatest local interest. Hasmani lavishly entertained the Aga Khan during his East African tour in February.

The charges mentioned were of forging and uttering bills of lading, bills of exchange and insurance policies for alleged shipping operations. The amount involved was stated to be £200,000 ($1,000,000).

FRANCE SENDS OUT NEW AIR CRUISERS

Paris.—France has just shown the world two material factors of active preparation for the conquest of the North Atlantic and the establishment of a commercial airline across the ocean. They are the giant seaplane Lieutenant Paris and the equally large landplane Lieutenant Guerrero, both completed [illegible] North Atlantic route.

By their record flights across the South Atlantic in November, France revealed to the world that it is basing the flight for North Atlantic conquest on the experience gained on the well-established South Atlantic line.

LIQUOR SALES CLIMB AS MALAY PROSPERS

Tin and Rubber Demand Highest Yet—Drinking Increases, Too

Singapore.—In British Malaya prosperity is causing the whole country to drink more.

Consumption of wines, beers and spirits is increasing at a record rate. British Malaya, the world's leading producer of tin and rubber, is enjoying a tremendous prosperity owing to the improved world demand for these commodities and the higher prices they are bringing on the leading markets. Malayan trade has increased by nearly $180,000,000 during the past six months.

As a result there has been a corresponding increase in the liquor trade. Whiskey imports have gone up 26.8 per cent., brandy (foreign) 53.5 per cent., brandy (Empire) 46 per cent., sparkling wines 78.8 per cent., still wines 34.3 per cent., beer 40 per cent., stout 37 per cent.

Empire brandy is now gaining ground and represents almost two-thirds of the total of brandy imports.

ELEVEN ARE RESCUED FROM BLAZING 'PLANE

Gasoline Tank Exploded Just as Last Man Hauled to Safety

Johannesburg, S.A.—Eleven passengers, trapped in a blazing airliner which had crashed near here, were saved by the radio operator. Thirty seconds after the last man was dragged to safety the gasoline tank exploded.

The machine, a Junkers mailplane of South African Airways, began its first commercial flight from the land airport.

After flying a mile one engine cut out. The machine plunged down to a plantation, struck a tree, slithered to rest facing the opposite direction.

Flames were licking down one wing towards the cabin when it was found that the emergency door had jammed. Women passengers were terrified, though there was no panic.

The radio operator, Herr E. Tornow, wrenched a handrail away from the wall.

With the smashed windows leaped out and dragged passengers through.

Just after the last man had alighted the wreckage was blown in all directions. The 500-gallon gasoline tank had exploded. A woman and two men were taken to hospital seriously injured.

8 ARE KILLED AS LIGHTNING EXPLODES DYNAMITE IN MINE

Eleven Charges Are Detonated When Bell Wire Is Struck

EUROPEAN IS SAVED

Johannesburg, S.A.—Eight native workers were killed in a Rand mine when lightning struck a bell wire on the headgear of the central shaft. It detonated 11 dynamite charges, 4,000 feet underground.

The natives were in a party of 15, preparing dynamite charges under the supervision of two Europeans.

One European, J. J. P. Pretorius, was saved from serious injury, perhaps death, by a native, who pushed him aside in the first explosion.

Four natives were seriously injured.

The mine is owned by East Rand Proprietary Mines, Ltd.

MEXICO IS FORGING AHEAD IN BIG WAY

Mexico, D.F.—The year 1937 was one of important social and economic changes in Mexico.

President Lazaro Cardenas pushed forward his land program with unprecedented vigor. Millions of acres of big estates in many parts of the country, but especially in Yucantan and Sonora, were taken away from their owners and given to agrarian communities, composed of Indians.

Simultaneously the railroad, highway, and irrigation construction program went forward at a rate even faster than that outlined in the "Six Year Plan" which went into effect in 1934.

TO TURN BUSHVELD INTO DEFENCE ZONE

South Africa Plans Against Possible Invasion

Cape Town, S.A. — The South Defence department is planning to make the bushveld an ally instead of an enemy in case of invasion.

A special military unit capable of operating easily in the bushveld is being developed, the department announces, pointing out that should South Africa ever be involved in a war it would expect to do 90 per cent. of its fighting in bush country.

OFFICER 'NASTY MAN' DUCHESS TELLS COURT

But Constable Testifies She Wouldn't Obey Traffic Order

London—For two hours in Bow Street court there waited the 43-year-old Duchess of Rutland. Then the motoring case against her was heard—and she was fined 15s ($3.75).

Police Constable Hart told of the duchess driving eastward along Piccadilly on the occasion of the visit of the King of the Belgians when Piccadilly traffic lights were switched off.

Said the constable: "The duchess stopped on the offside line of traffic, waiting to turn right into St. James St. I directed her to drive straight on along Piccadilly.

"She replied, 'I don't want to go that way. I am not going. I shall fight it in court.' You are a nasty man. I will ask the officer over there, indicating a police sergeant."

Said the duchess to Mr. Fry: "I thought they (the police) were there to help traffic. A little tiny bit of consideration on the constable's part and I should have been there. He was unfair and unreasonable and that put my back up. It is because of that I stand in the court now. He was so very unhelpful and uncivil."

Then Mr. Fry fined the duchess for refusing to drive in a particular traffic line when directed by a police officer.

Sports Clothes Are Appealing

Soft, Bright-Colored Woollens Used This Season

Wool blanket cloth sports coat, for between ski jumps, with pastel striping.

(By Lisbeth)

Even if a woman isn't particularly interested in skating, skiing and taking part in other active outdoor sports, she will find herself intrigued and ready to try them out when she sees the new sportswear they are showing—and wearing.

Even if you're a kibitzer and take your sports in comfortable relaxation on the side lines, you will find most attractive clothes to wear.

Every season there is a widening range of apparel for having fun in the snow and on the ice. Fine, resistant wools, light in weight for freedom, but warm and cozy for comfort, is tailored to perfection in handsome suits that have been carefully designed for complete protection.

Specially constructed for close contact with the elements, fine wool gabardines, sturdy bedford cords, fleecy snowcloth, and soft close-knit wool fabris, are water-repellant and wind-proof in attractive colors. They are used for decorative snowsuits as well as for classically simple ski costumes favored by European professionals.

Cape Is Useful

Fine for spectator wear or to slip on over your suit for periods of rest are the new wraps of snowcloth and soft wool blanket fleece. Fine plaid or striped wool blanket cloth is used in graceful capes, which are warm and charming and liked by skier and kibitzer alike. One is shown here, a hooded cape in a gay authentic clan plaid which uses the fringed edge of the blanket for trimming on cape and scarf, and is held nicely closed at the front by a narrow self belt which runs through comfortable arm slits at each side.

Fleecy snowcloth in pastel colors or white with stripes in harmonizing shades makes attractive tailored spectator sports coats that are young and bright. The double-breasted style in snowy white, shown left, uses rainbow blanket stripes as appropriate trimming, and has a becoming high-cut neck which is smart when worn either open or closed well up about the throat.

Strong Fabrics Classic

Among the classic types of sportswear are strong worsted fabrics such as gabardine and bedford cord—acknowledged leaders in the field. Solid color suits, generally dark in color, are styled on sleekly tailored lines with smooth closings, well-fitted collars and snug-waisted, high-built trousers. Rib-knit wool cuffs at wrist and ankles assure protection from wet snow.

With these suits are worn bright wool accessories which give a decorative touch in the form of matched sets of sweater, cap, scarf, mittens and socks in soft monotone or brightly patterned wool in simulated hand-knit construction, if you have not a faithful family knitter in your home.

JUST BETWEEN US WOMEN

"'Tis when the wound is stiffening with the cold,
The warrior first feels pain—'tis when the heat
And fiery fever of the soul is past,
The sinner feels remorse."
—Sir W. Scott.

Dear Friends:

How many ways we, as mortals, try to escape from the realities of life. Youth thinks that when it grows older, all the things they crave to do, they will be able to do, then find they waited too long, and try to kick over the traces that bind them.

Or again, some have life too smooth, (I wonder how it feels) and try to inject some spice into it, then wake up feeling like a worm, and are glad to climb into their humdrum life again.

And youth today feels more or less bewildered. All the old ideals have been swept away. They saw what their mothers or fathers went through, and are determined that life will not get the chance to do these things to them. So they try for some way of escape also, and sometimes come a cropper.

Life does not need to be too humdrum, neither need it lack spice. There are more ways of having a good time today than ever before in the history of the world.

Look around you. Do you see many happy satisfied faces? I don't. They all seem to be seeking, seeking something they have not found yet.

"All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy," but we have never been taught how to play. The simpler things are the best all the time, the things that do not leave a bad taste in the mouth, nor remorse or regrets to torture us.

If you are having what you call a good time, and someone else is made miserable because of the form the good time takes, how can you be comfortable?

If you are afraid of being found out in your good time, how much good is it doing you? If your conscience troubles you because you know you are lowering yourself, where is there anything good in it?

How many have thought they were having a whale of a time, then wake up to the fact that they must pay all the rest of their lives for it? You cannot get away from yourself, no matter what sort of a time you are having.

But books, walking, interesting conversation, having a hobby, travel, doing your part, none of these will give you a "hangover," nor the "morning after" feeling.

Don't think I don't know what it is all about, that I haven't the desire to kick over the traces many times, but I do not think I would like the after-effects, nor the feeling I had let myself down.

We all get to the stage where we look at others and think of the good times they seem to have, while our lives are dry and tasteless. We think, "Well, if they can get away with it why can't I?"

"A little folly now and then, Is relished by the wisest men." O.K. But use moderation. Set a mark for yourself, and see that you do not step over it. We all need an outlet, something which will make us forget the sad realities in life. But be moderate while you try to be modern, then you WILL have a good time.

Your Friend,
ROBERTA.

Auxiliary Plans Membership Drive

Having four thousand members as their objective, the present officers and members of Nicholls Hospital Ladies' Auxiliary announce they are launching a house-to-house campaign. It is hoped by the sponsors of the campaign that every women in Peterborough, who is interested in the welfare of Nichools Hospital and who is not already a member, will assist. The membership has been set at the nominal fee of twenty-five cents, and members may be active or inactive, as they wish. Among one of the most recent undertakings of the Ladies' Auxiliary was the donation to the hospital of curtains for use in the private and semi-private maternity wards. Complete with nickle-plated fittings the curtains ensure a maximum of privacy, when desired, for each patient in the wards mentioned.

Forced to vacate premises, fixtures and stock of Clysdale's Cigar Store, Charlotte and Aylmer, are for immediate sale.

Told Her Story About Two Hats

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., Jan. 8.—(CP)—Congresswoman Edith Rogers of Lowell treated her associates to a display of millinery the other day, says The Standard-Times. She exhibited two hats made for women. One, she said, was made in Japan, and could be bought here for 79 cents. The other was made in the United States and retailed at $1.25.

Mrs. Rogers intended her display as an argument for additional protection for American hat manufacturers, the paper says, but many of the men in her audience must have made a mental note to inform the little woman and the daughters, if any, that they had seen a perfectly swell bonnet that could be bought for $1.25, and to remember that the next time they went to their milliners.

Lavish In Linen Visitor Reports

MANCHESTER, England, Jan. 7. —(CP).—"A Niagara of linen towels, table napkins and bed-clothes which they change daily and which they must find a highly-expensive or laborious item of daily life" was one impression an English visitor to North America received of the continent's back yards.

It struck the visitor as "overlavish" she said in her letter to The Guardian. But she was in love with the newer houses, with their automatic heating, cleaning, hot water and washing (everything, in fact, worked by pressing a button, with the exception of cooking). These were less trouble than corresponding houses in England. The excellent polished floors and simplicity of furnishing alone made a great difference.

American houses have become more comfortable, the writer thought, because a great deal of service is available. While it was true that the large houses had "cut down their staffs drastically, those lucky enough to be able to move into smaller houses have been able to enjoy service, which is cheaper and better than in prosperous times."

"Servants are rather glad to get a job now and there is therefore a choice," the English woman writes. "A good many people who before did the work themselves now have one servant who is also willing to work the washing-machines or even to do the house-linen at home. This is different from 12 or 15 years ago when a good cook received anything from 25 to 30 pounds a month."

ONE WIFE PRAISED

LONDON—(CP).—Hailed as St. John Ervine's best work, "Robert's Wife," with Owen Nares and Edith Evans, is much praised by critics and rate a sure success.

W. I. Addressed By Health Officer

ROSENEATH, Jan. 8.—The time was all too brief for the special features on the program at the regular meeting of the Women's Institute on Thursday afternoon.

Dr. T. J. Morin, M.O.H., gave an address dealing with diseases common to children, also tuberculosis in humans and in bovines. His talk stressed T.B. and diphtheria, as it affects children, and the success attained by scientists in combating these diseases.

Diseases mentioned and enlarged on, also possible causes, prevention and treatment were: diphtheria, T.B., scarlet fever, and its possible complications, rickets, rheumatic fever and St. Vitus Dance.

The second feature of the afternoon was a demonstration and lecture on the proper method of cooking vegetables and their value in the daily diet.

This features was presented by Mrs. Charlton Grigg and Mrs. C. Sandercook, delegates to the cooking school held in Cobourg in the late fall, arranged by the Department of Agriculture Institutes Branch.

The part vegetables play in a healthy diet, a greater use of vegetables, the conserving food value of vegetables, along with milk, eggs, fruits, meats and cereals in a properly balanced diet, were contained in a lecture by Mrs. C. Grigg. Vegetables cooked and served were: carrots a la king, and scalloped cabbage.

The meeting was held in the town hall, with Mesdames E. and C. Sandercock as hostesses. The president, Mrs. B. Thackeray, presided.

During the business session arrangements were completed for the eucher and dancing party to be held on January 11. After the closing exercises the hostesses served refreshments. There were upwards of forty present.

LAKEFIELD, Jan. 8.—The principal and staff of the Public School assembled in Miss Carveth's room recently, to read to her a farewell address, and to present her with an electric coffee maker.

On behalf of the staff, the presentation was made by Miss Kidd and the address was read by Miss Kennedy.

The principal expressed words of regret at Miss Carveth's departure, and the address testified to her good work and co-operation in school interests.

Miss Carveth replied, graciously expressing her thanks and pleasure for the gift remembrance.

London Likes Winnipeg Girl

LONDON, Jan. 8.—(CP)—Carla Lehmann, former Winnipeg actress, is a member of the distinguished cast which has placed J. B. Priestley's "People at Sea," among the list of current hits.

In the role of Nona Stockton, Miss Lehmann is afforded an excellent vehicle for her talents and has been commended for her work by the critics.

Priestley's other two successes, "Time and the Conways," and "I Have Been Here Before," appear headed for long-distance runs.

Branch Notes

ALL SAINTS BRANCH

The first meeting of the year was held on Monday when the new executive took over office.

The installation service was held on Sunday evening when Canon J. D. Paterson installed: Leslie Cavalier, president; Ken Gibson, vice-president; Mary Cavalier, secretary; Dorothy White, treasurer, and Mary Sisson, publicity secretary. The guest speakers were Professor and Mrs. Coggan of Toronto.

The branch is holding a toboggan party on Monday next.

ST. LUKE'S BRANCH

Our activities this week took the form of entertaining the Senior Sunday School at their annual treat on Thursday evening. After supper the pupils played games under the direction of V. Sedgwick and C. Hope. The interesting and varied program took the form of an amateur night, announced by V. Sedgwick. R. Krant led the community singing. Several members of the A. Y. P. A. took part in comedy numbers on the program including Misses C. Long, Q. Hope, Mr. P. Forkes and Mrs. F. Curtiss and R. Mason, A. Northcott, B. H. Pammett, R. Krant, Miss P. Starr and Miss M. Flowers were the accompanists.

A short business meeting meeting was held afterwards during which last minute details were settled for our Sixteenth Birthday Party to be held next Thursday evening, Jan. 13th.

ST. JOHN'S BRANCH.

The branch started off the year with a devotional meeting, with Iris Williams in charge. Miss Hilda Phillips opened the meeting with prayer and Jack Marshall played the piano for the hymn singing. Mrs. J. Cridland then gave an interetsing reading on the second chapter of the A.Y.P.A. Study Book, "The Way of the Witnesses."

Two suitable poems were read by Florence Lemmings. A vote of thanks was moved to Mrs. Cridland by Kay Chivras. A contest of Bible questions was then run by Iris Williams, proving very interesting and causing much discussion.

Splendid Cough Remedy Easily Mixed at Home

It's So Easy! Makes a Big Saving. No Cooking.

To get quick relief from a distressing cough, mix your own remedy at home. Once tried, you'll say it's your favorite cough medicine, and it's so simple and easy.

First, make a syrup by stirring 2 cups granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. A child could do it. No cooking needed.

Then get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any druggist. This is a compound containing Norway Pine in concentrated form, well known for its prompt action on throat membranes.

Put the Pinex into a 16 ounce bottle, and add your syrup. Thus you make 16 ounces of very efficient remedy, and you get four times as much cough medicine for your money. It tastes fine and never spoils.

And for quick, blessed relief, it is splendid. You can feel it penetrating the air passages in a way that means business. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and eases the soreness. Thus it makes breathing easy, and lets you get restful sleep.

Just try it, and if not pleased, your money will be refunded.

CHAPTER 34.

After my talk with Aunt Mary about love and romance, I went upstairs to write a letter to Mimi. I could not wait—I wanted to pour out my heart to her.

The room was cold, so I wrapped myself in a warm robe, set my lamp on my little table, and propped Mimi's card against it—it was a charming thing, illumined in her colors, green and blue and copper.

I wrote pages which I tore up, I wrote other pages which I copied. It was not to be, I had decided, a love letter. Mimi had asked for my friendship. I would assure her if its eternal quality. I would be her friend though the heavens fell. It took 12 sheets in which to tell her!

I heard my father come in. He and Aunt Mary talked for a time and then the house was silent.

And in that silence, I read, at last, Lionel's letter. I had not heard from him or from Bernice since I left St. Louis, although I had written them.

He said that things were not going as well with him and Bernice as he hoped. Mrs. Barry had forgiven them, and Mr. Barry was making them a small allowance. He had been willing, he had told his daughter, to entirely support her husband. "He doesn't realize," Lionel complained, "that a little help now would do the trick."

He wanted me to come back. He and Bernice were to leave the hotel, where they had been staying since their honeymoon, and to take an apartment. They would be glad to let me have a room, and he and I could go on with our work. "I need you to tell me I can do it, Jerry. We are a bit hard up, but we are not regretting our marriage. The game is worth the candle, and having Bernice is greater luck than I deserve."

"We are all expecting the news of Mimi's engagement to Fuller. He is rushing her no end. So far she has held him off. But you know how her mother feels about it, so it is probably only a question of time. She called me up this morning to ask your address so I fancy you'll be hearing from her. I wish you had Andy's money, old chap. I'd tell you to go to it, and cut him out."

Money, money MONEY! I had none to lay at the feet of the woman I loved. And of what use to dally with a friendship which must end with her marriage to another? Why should she torture me with the offer of it? To see me flutter like a butterfly on a pin?

I tore the letter which I had written her into bits. I opened the window and flung the scraps of paper out into the night—they went whirling off on the wings of the wind. The wind, too, buffeted me, and blew the hair back from my face. Yet I did not feel it. The only thing I felt was the sharp stab of the thought that friendship with Mimi would be futile—I wanted more than that—I should always want more.

So my answer to her overture was silence. I know now that it was the most potent reply I could have made. Had my letter gone to her, she would have rested in the certainty that I was hers forever. Failing that assurance, she thought of me, wondered, made Andy no promises.

I wrote to Lionel, and told him I was doing good work, and should stay with my father. I sent news later of the acceptance of my story. I hoped that he might pass the news of my little triumph on to Mimi. But I did not ask him to do it.

I wrote, too, to Olga. But got little satisfaction from her. She had not the pen of a ready writer, and I felt, sensitively, that she resented that scene in the library, when she had hoped to play Lady Bountiful and had her gift flung back in her face.

So the life in the old city on the Mississippi gradually receded. I found myself entering into the activities of our small community. I took charge of the church music, organized a children's choir, and rehearsed a pageant which would take place in the summer and would give something of the picturesque history of our township.

Thus the days passed. I was unhappy, but my unhappiness was tempered by the knowledge of my growing powers. And in a sense the life was satisfying. It was so stable. So free from the irritating excitement. It was as serene as Lake Erie, which stretched out to far horizons, it was as aspiring as the high heavens which arched above us.

It was in March that the spring began to come to the countryside. The snow melted and left wet patches of brown earth, the mornings glimmered with a new brightness, there was a golden haze at dusk instead of the sharp clearness of winter sunsets.

Then came April, burgeoning and blooming, with daffodils in the garden and the orchards pink and white; with lambs, and little chickens, and the nesting birds. May, with strawberries in great blue bowls on our breakfast table, and peonies in rose and crimson masses along the edges of our stone walk. Soft winds blew over the fields and fluttered a thousand leaves of green and silver. Our great lake was a sheet of azure with clouds like puffs of thistledown.

My father and I, in our walks in the spring twilight, often went to the lake. I was writing a story about it, only, in my story, the lake was the sea, and my hero, with a buccaneering spirit, which I felt transcended my own timidities, carried the heroine off against her will in a very modern ship.

I outlined the plot to my father. "That is what I ought to do— carry Mimi off."

"But—failing a ship, Jerry?" he was smiling.

I felt that it was not a smiling matter. "I might carry her off anyhow."

"Modern life isn't like that."

"Why shouldn't it be?"

"It is too complex."

"It remains then for somebody to simplify it."

"And you want to be a pioneer, Jerry?"

"Why not? Why shouldn't a man find new worlds right here in the midst of our civilization? Why doesn't somebody write about it? Why doesn't somebody say, 'Here is fresh spiritual soil,' just as our adventuring grandfathers said, 'Here is land for us to make ours?' Father, there are new countries in the midst of crowded communities," my thought was not quite clear, but I got it at last. "I mean if some strong souls would say, 'Let us strip life of its complexities,'"

"People have tried it."

"Well, they can try again. I am going to write about it."

"Good. You may be a preacher yet, Jerry."

I weighed this seriously. It showed the change in me that I should feel there might be a call to me not unlike that which had come to my father. I might sway a larger world . . . !

Then all in a moment everything that the winter had brought to me was swept away. I came home late one night from my choir practice. We had rehearsed the pageant, and I was proud of my work, and had walked under the spring moon with a quickened sense of all I had achieved, tinged with an exquisite melancholy of my memories of Mimi.

Looking Back
On This Date

By FRED WILLIAMS.

When Sir Francis Bond Head had "suppressed" the rebellion in the Toronto district and had William Lyon Mackenzie on Navy Island, he thought that the trouble was at an end, and he so told the legislature at Toronto; but, soon after the beginning of 1838, he had a rude awakening, from the Sandwich district. The indignation over the violation of neutrality by the seizure and burning of the Caroline on December 30 was widespread in Buffalo and Detroit, and was fanned to fever heat by refugees from Canada and the Fenian element in both cities.

Early in January there was organized at Detroit what was called the "Patriot" army of the Northwest." It gathered men, arms and ammunition, under the command of "General" H. S. Handy of Illinois. Finally its performances became so disturbing that the governor of Michigan issued orders that the "Patriot" forces must move. Accordingly, on January 6, the arms, ammunition and provisions were put on board the schooner Anne and the steamer McComb was secured to carry the troops, but this latter, as well as a second steamer, was seized by United States regulars and the "Patriot" navy was reduced to the Anne.... Handy then ordered his troops to be taken in squads during the night to Gibraltar on American Island at the mouth of the Detroit River opposite Fort Malden. A sail was secured for the schooner and she started for Gibraltar, but on the way she met the steamer United States on which were 60 Canadian volunteers.

Then both parties got scared of each other. The Canadians saw three guns on the Anne and made for the Canadian shore; the "Patriots" alarmed that their design had been discovered sailed back to Detroit. This made Handy pretty mad, and he decided to change his subalterns, but before new plans could be made word was received from the governor that Gibraltar must also be go to Bois Blanc Island. He gave orders that everything should be there discharged from the schooner except three cannon and 30 men to man them. A temporary fortification was to be thrown up. On the evening of the 9th the schooner was to be made ready for action, and on the morning of the 9th the tri-colored flag was to be raised and the surrender of the fort demanded. In case of refusal a brisk cannonading was to be opened, the troops landed and the fort carried by storm. Meanwhile Handy was to take possession of the public stores at Sandwich and Windsor and march thence to Malden and take command.

How these plans were foiled will have to be told on Monday.

Dorothy Dix's Letter Box

DEAR MISS DIX—Not long ago you said in an article that husbands didn't read up on topics of particular interest to women, such as beauty culture, clothes, etc., in order to be able to talk to their wives about the things in which the latter were interested. Maybe the old-fashioned husband didn't, but the modern husband does. Mine tells me that he read in the papers that the right length of skirts is fourteen inches from the ground this season; that he saw an indelible lipstick advertised in such and a store; that So-and-so's face powder contains no orris root and so on. Believe me, the up-to-date husband doesn't intend to be a humdrum breadwinner and forget the little things that makes him a companion to his wife. He has seen how it worked out with his father, and knows better.

MRS. W. D. D.

Answer:

I have long contended that the modern husband was as great an improvement over the old-fashioned husband as a new streamlined automobile is over a horse and buggy, but I confess I did not know that he had progressed to a point of perfection where he had become an authority on clothes and cosmetics.

But I can certainly visualize a happy home in which a husband could see eye to eye with his wife about her make-up, what sort of a hair bob she should have, and when she asked his opinion of her new dress he could make an intelligent reply instead of mumbling: "Looks all right to me." Or: "It looks like heck, and at that it isn't as lousy as that dofunny you've got on your head."

But I can only hope that when husbands go in for the study of women's topics in a big way that they will have better luck than women have when they read up on the sports and the stock market in order that they may be spellbinders for their husbands. For my observation has been that men seldom care to discuss business trends with their fraus, and that they only snort when Friend Wife ventures an opinion on what the stock market is going to do, or prophesies about who is going to win the heavyweight championship.

But, alas, this is a sad world and there is always a fly in the amber. While the modern husband who takes a real heart interest in fashions has his points that no one will deny, there are also going to be drawbacks to him. He is going to know too much and be too critical. The chances are that he will pick out his wife's clothes and make her wear what he likes instead of what she prefers. Also he will know what everything costs, so there will be no opportunity of ringing in a bit of extravagance on him.

Every woman know that a husband who knows how to cook is not the unmixed blessing that he seems at first sight. He sits in judgment on every dish and tells his wife that HIS cake never falls and how HE makes holondaise sauce and coffee. Undoubtedly the husband of today is one of the greatest modern improvements. He is far more just and generous and considerate of his wife than his grandfather was, and no doubt there is still plenty of room for still further improvements, but I advocate his devolpment along these ethical lines instead of his breaking into woman's sacred sphere.

* * * * *

DEAR MISS DIX—I have been married more than twenty years and I am less acquainted with my wife now and less able to understand why she does the way she does than the first time I saw her. She is, I believe, the hardest working and most sincere woman I ever knew, but she is so devoted to her relatives that she thinks that most of our income should go to their support and that I should be glad to work to give them what they want. We have no children, but we have had lots of experience in raising her families'. Though she sacrificed her own pleasure and neglected her home life for them, none of these grafting relatives appreciate it. She is not MY wife. She is just a natural slave to blood relatives and cannot help it. Our only future together is to be surrounded by deadbeats who are just vultures, caring not how much she suffers. It has turned me into a professional grouch and nagger. Should I go on, or use my own judgment?

ED C.

Answer:

In dealing with a case of this kind it is generally better to use your heart than your head. Your judgment will tell you how unfair it is that your wife should enslave you to her family and that the wise thing is not to put up with it any longer, but your love and sympathy will tell you that you cannot leave this poor weak woman to the untender mercies of her predatory relatives, who will desert her as soon as she has nothing to give them. Moreover, no matter how much she aggravates you nor how much she is in the wrong, you love her still and cannot be happy without her.

I do not know of any offense that wives commit against their husbands that is greater than that of sacrificing them to their families. Yet so many women do it. I have known scores of cases of hardworking men who earned fortunes and should have been rich, but who were kept so impoverished by their wives' giving to their people that they were not able to lay up anything for their old age, or even to give their own children the advantage they should have had.

The wife's mother was always needing an operation, or her father a new car, or the brothers and sisters had to be sent off to college, or the nieces and nephews had adenoids, and the wife would weep or beg the money out of her husband so there was nothing left. But there is no cure for the wife with the family complex. He husband just has to come across, or get out, when they want things. She will always sacrifice him to them.

DEAR MISS DIX—What do you think of Dutch treats?

LIL.

Answer:

Fine. It makes for friendship and good feeling when girls go out together for each to pay her own way. And when boys and girls who earn about the same amount of money go Dutch treat, it is nothing but fair and it enables them to have more parties.

You're Telling Me!

By WILLIAM RITT

The meeting of the American Myths has been called by the Ground Hog, and when the others arrived, they — Santa Claus, the Easter Rabbit, and Jack Frost — could plainly see something was worrying the meek little fellow.

✧ ✧ ✧

"As you know," began the Ground Hog nervously, "I'm scheduled to show up on February 2. Frankly, I'm worried. All this news I hear about invasions, civil wars, business recessions frightens me. I'm afraid if I come out to look for my shadow I'll somehow get mixed up in the world's woes.

✧ ✧ ✧

"Now all you fellows have been to Earth since my last trip, and I'd like your impressions. Is it as bad as I've been told?"

✧ ✧ ✧

The Easter Rabbit sat up and cleared his throat. His eyes seemed to brim with tears, but then they always looked that way. "When I delivered the eggs last March 28, I was shot at several times while crossing Spain," he said and sat down again.

✧ ✧ ✧

Jack Frost laughed bitterly. "You didn't see anything," he told the Rabbit. "In my very first appearance last autumn guns and bombs were blowing China to pieces and in every other country people were worried about war."

✧ ✧ ✧

At last Santa Claus rose. "I found the same condition," he said in his soft, old voice, "that Jack Frost did—except worse. But I also noticed that in most of the millions of homes I visited the folks were praying for peace and that which folks pray hard enough for they usually get. No, sir, I haven't lost my faith in the human race."

✧ ✧ ✧

The Ground Hog heaved a sigh of relief. "That—that settles it," he announced. "Since most of the world still is really decent I shan't lose my faith, either, in mankind So, if you happen to run across my Shadow tell him I'll be looking for him, at the same time and the same place."

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR THE EXAMINER

By SHEPARD BARCLAY

"The Authority on Authorities"

CREATING AN ILLUSION

CREATING illusions is part of the job of a good bridge player. An opponent will refuse to lead to an entry for a setup suit in the dummy if he can size up that situation, but if you can make it appear as if the suit is blocked, he may with great gusto do exactly what you desire.

(Dealer: North. East-West vulnerable.)

In the third hand position, South opened the bidding with 1-Heart, North called 2-Diamonds, South 3-Clubs, North 3-Diamonds and South 3-No Trumps.

The spade 7 was West's opening lead, on which dummy played the 4, East the J and South the K. If the dummy could be entered, the declarer figured he could cash six diamonds, two spades and a heart, if the opponents were kind enough to permit him to get into the dummy.

Bert Wheeler of New York was the declarer. Before disclosing his holdings, he tried to confuse the opponents as much as possible. He cashed the diamonds A and K and then led his spade 3. Figuring his partner for the diamond Q, West decided to clear his suit at once, so jumped in with the spade A and led another spade to dummy's Q. On this Mr. Wheeler discarded his diamond Q, ran his remaining diamonds and cashed his heart A, making his game.

What is the correct defense against South's 3-No Trumps contract?

THE STARS SAY . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Sunday, January 9

Sunday's horoscope holds auguries for a fairly active day in both private life and employment. In all, however, there is need for adopting a conciliatory tone, especially with superiors and those in authority. In social affiliations also it might be advisable to maintain amiable relations.

Those whose birthday it is are likely to enjoy a fairly active year, with new undertakings favored. But in employment and in dealing with superiors and those in power, deal tactfully and do not run counter to authority.

A child born on this day may be active and enterprising and inclined to work "on its own," rather than in employment.

For Monday, January 10

Monday's astrological forecast is for a particularly lively day, with the mental faculties alert and looking for fresh and quick outlets for expression.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a year of great activity and some brilliant opportunities if they will apply their keen minds to achieving solid denouements, rather than flash gambles, speculaton and quick profits. Over-expansive and inflationary schemes may be detrimental.

A child born on this day may have excellent talents and much versatility, with large ambitions. These, however, may be defeated by overacting and extravagances in thought, behavior and expenditure.

Jewish Classics Are Taken By Police

MONTREAL, Jan. 8. — (CP)—Headquarters of the Canadian Labor Circle, whose officers described it as the "largest non-political Jewish organization in Canada," were raided by police officers who carried off 300 of 950 books on the library shelves.

Officers at the organization, in existence 10 years, claimed the books taken were Yiddish classics.

Five officers, carrying a warrant signed by the attorney-general, took part in the raid, staged last weekend, but news of which became public only today. The warrant empowered the police to search for and seize any literature considered communist propaganda.

BEDTIME STORY

By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY RINGS THE Bell.

(By Howard R. Garis.)

As Uncle Wiggily was hopping past the Hollow Tree School one day he heard from it a voice calling him.

"Uncle Wiggily. Mr. Longears. Will you please come in here a minute?"

"In where?" asked the rabbit gentleman.

"Here—in school. I'm the jolly old rat gentleman janitor."

Uncle Wiggily looked across the road down which he had been hopping through the woods to look for an adventure. He saw, waving his white cap, the rat gentleman janitor of the Hollow Tree School where the Lady Mouse Teacher taught the animal children.

"What's the matter?" asked Uncle Wiggily. "Have any Bad Chaps goten into your school?"

"No, indeed," sail the janitor. "But I didn't ring the bell."

"What bell?" asked the bunny.

Bell Stuck.

"The bell that I ring each morning and noon to call the animal children to school," said the rat gentleman janitor. "But I can't get a sound out of that bell. It seems to be stuck."

"But why do you want to ring the bell now?" asked Uncle Wiggily. "It is Saturday. Besides, it is still the Christmas vacation. There is no school until Monday."

"I know that, Uncle Wiggily," said the rat janitor. "But I am getting the school cleaned and ready for opening on Monday. And the Lady Mouse Teacher said I must be sure to try the bell. But I've tried and it won't ring. If that happens on Monday half the children will be late."

"That would be too bad," said Uncle Wiggily. "I'll see what I can do to help you."

Uncle Wiggily hopped into the school and he tried to ring the bell. He pulled on the long rope that was fastened to the bell in the belfry, but not a ding-dong sounded.

"Is there any way to get up in the belfry where the bell hangs?" asked the rabbit gentleman.

"Oh, yes, you can climb up there by a ladder," said the rat.

"Then I'll climb up and see why the bell doesn't ring," said the rabbit. "You stay down here to pull the rope if the bell is there."

"Why wouldn't the bell be there?" asked the rat gentleman.

"Some of the big boy animals may have taken it away so it couldn't ring and call them back to school," said Uncle Wiggily. "But I'll climb up and have a look."

Frozen Tight

When Mr. Longears reached the belfry he called down to the rat.

"It's all right; the bell is here, but it's frozen."

"Frozen?"

"Yes, the cold rain blew in the open belfry and froze into ice on the bell clapper. It's frozen as tight as a drum. That's why it won't ring. Can you get me any hot water?" asked the rabbit gentleman.

"I can boil some in the school cooking-room," said the janitor.

"Fasten a kettle of boiling water on the rope and I'll pull it up and thaw the bell clapper loose," said the rabbit. So the rat gentleman did this.

"Stand from under," called Uncle Wiggily as he started to pour boiling water on the bell. Soon he melted the ice, the bell was thawed and then the janitor rang a few merry peals to make sure it would be all right for Monday morning.

"Thanks a lot," said the rat gentlemen to Mr. Longears, who came climbing down the ladder.

"It was a jolly adventure for me," said the rabbit.

And if the water pistol doesn't shoot the rubber boot in the toe, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily's mistake.

Segar's Credo For His Old Salt 'Popeye' Impressive As Model For Cartoonists

The credo which animates E. C. Segar, cartoonist of "Thimble Theater," the comic strip which, after a succession of progressively funnier and more human characters, culminated in "Popeye," might be printed in large script and hung profitably in the studio of every aspiring comic artist.

Segar, like all really great cartoonists, takes his star character seriously. That is, he has come to believe in "Popeye" as a real person, absurd, preposterous and rather owlish with his single eye—but always fired with the authentic spark of life.

"To me," Segar wrote to a friend not long ago, "Popeye is much more than a goofy comic character. He represents about all of my emotions—and he is an outlet for them. I'd like to cut loose and knock the heck out of a lot of people, but my good judgment and size hold me back. So I use my imagination and let the sailor do the dirty work.

"Popeye's past life has been a sad one. And I claim that pathos is the best background for humor. Tragedy and comedy are so closely related it is only a step from one to the other. The deeper the plot the more chance of humor.

"To me Popeye is a serious fellow. And here's something to think about: When a serious person does something funny—it's funny—but when a funny person tries to be funny the result is sickening. If you give the readers the impression that you're trying to make them laugh—you're lost!

"Anyway, that's my way of thinking."

When Segar wrote the foregoing he probably stated a philosophy—"philofosy" to you, Popeye!—of life which is pretty near to the touchstone of comic strip success. Many people have wondered why Popeye suddenly sprang into national fame from the scores of widely read comics in the field.

The answer, it may be, lies in the candid and intensely sincere words which Segar wrote himself.

You can see the result of this "philofosy" every day in "Thimble Theatre, Starring Popeye," comic feature of The Examiner.

Coming To The Capitol

New Capitol Attraction Shows Montgomery as Greenwich Village Artist —Miss Russell Plays Society Girl Who Gives Up Wealth for Love in a Garret—Robert Benchley Adds Laughs and Helen Vinson Plays "Other Woman".

Robert Montgomery, Robert Benchley and Rosalind Russell as they appear in "Live, Love and Learn at the Capitol next Monday and Tuesday.

"The Awful Truth" Hits New Hilarity High

"The Awful Truth"—and the only thing awful about it is that it ends too soon—is so terrificially entertaining it is a menace to those with short winds and weak stomachs. You can't laugh uproariously for seventy-five minutes without being able to take it.

Mainly responsible for this situation is the madcap Irene Dunne, whose deft clowning as Lucy Warriner tops her Theodora for laughs. So sure and side-splitting are her antics opposite Cary Grant, who is a top-plight funster himself, that it is hard to imagine fans ever letting her return to her stately film past.

Superlatives as a rule are a risky business. Nevertheless, "The Awful Truth" at the Regent Theatre, where it opens a four day run Sunday night, fully justify them. The film is undiluted joy. It is based on the Arthur Richman stage success of the same name in which Ina Claire starred. The story is as meaty as it is funny, and happily stays on this side of the "screwball" sort of screen fare.

Coming to the screen from the wit-dipped pen of Vina Delmar, author of "Bad Girl," "The Awful Truth" depicts the marital mishaps of the Warriners, played by Miss Dunne and Cary Grant. Wealthy and very much in love with each other, they nevertheless come to grief in the divorce courts when misunderstandings are amplified with disastrous results.

At this point in the story Mr. Smith makes his entrance. Mr. Smith is their wire-haired terrier, played by Skippy, seen as Asta in "After the Thin Man." Irene wants him, but so does Cary. By a ruse Irene wins custody of the animal but the court permits Cary to visit him once a month.

On one of these visits to Mr. Smith Cary meets Ralph Bellamy, an Oklahoma oil tycoon who is courting Irene. Cary, himself, is running around with a cabaret entertainer but wants a reconciliation with his wife. Failing this, Cary soon announces his engagement to a wealthy social butterfly. It is then Miss Dunne realizes her love for her ex-scamp and sets out to nail him this time for good.

Posing as Cary's sister, Irene attends the swank engagement dinner party, pretends to be drunk, and feigns such ill-breeding that in the resulting uproar she and her "brother" are virtually thrown out.

"The Awful Truth" belongs on anyone's "must" list. It is brilliant high comedy, played with distinction and restraint, and never veers from its hilarious course. It is sumptuously mounted and was directed by Leo McCarey with superb timing and clever characterization. Miss Dunne and Joyce Compton sing, and the star performs a mirth-provoking dance specialty with Ralph Bellamy.

10-YEAR WESTERN DAIRY POOL GIVES MEMBERS $13,500

SASKATOON, Jan. 8.—(CP). — Manager C. T. Gooding of the Saskatoon Dairy Pool claims success of the 10-year-old co-operative organization and to prove his contention reports the pool las Tuesday paid $13,500 to its members.

Financial report at Nov. 30, 1937, showed the organization's capital account increased $27,000 in the last year, Mr. Gooding announced yesterday.

The manager explained the pool's success in this manner: "The 250 farmer members have made this co-operative enterprise the medium through which they can market all of their dairy products. In addition, they have built up the pool to take care of their financial problems, and also to obtain markets for their produce.

"We don't owe a penny to anyone," Mr. Gooding said. "Last year it was a howling success."

Record of the dairy pool, organized in 1927 by a group of farmers interested in having a continuous market for all their dairy products, is one of the most interesting in the history of the co-operative movements in Canada. The pool was organized "on a shoe string." Members shipped their milk and cream, all of it, to the pool, and from every milk cheque a five-per-cent deduction was held as reserve for 10 years to enable the organization to become well-established. The pool put in special processing equipment so milk and cream not taken by Saskatoon distributing firms could be turned into chese, butter, powdered milk and other products.

In 1936, the deductions made in 1927 were paid back to the members enc last year more than $11,000 was repaid on 1928 deductions. The $13,500 paid to members Tuesday represented five per cent deductions made in 1929.

Custer Massacre Witness Dies

WINNIPEG, Jan. 8—(CP).—Eyewitness of the Custer massacre, Charlie Cuwiyukoa, 76, veteran Pipestone Indian, is dead, it was learned in Winnipeg to-day. He died on January 3 at Pipestone in the southwest corner of Manitoba.

At the side of his aged grandparents, the 15-year-old boy watched the battle beween the American troops and the 5,000 Indians at the headwaters of the Little Big Horn.

Often he related the stirring scene —the Americans getting ready for the attack, the Indians keyed up to expectancy.

Custer moved forward, but "before they knew it, the Indians were upon them."

"At the sight of Custer—'Yellow Hair' we called him—our band went wild."

New Alaskan Airport Is Key Defense Unit In Pacific

Sitka Military Base Regarded As Stragetic Barrier To Invasion

By CHARLES THORNE
Central Press Canadian Correspondent

SITKA, Alaska, Jan. 8.—Establishment of a strong U.S. air squadron at Sitka, Alaska, has focused international attention on the strategic position which Alaska occupies.

Strong Japanese protest against U.S. naval activity along the northwest peninsula, coupled with friction between American fishermen and the Jap Pacific fleet, give added significance to the entire Alaskan question.

Disregarding Japan's objections to the Alaska airfleet, the U.S. navy has placed six patrol bombers and 70 men at Sitka, with instructions to survey the fog-bound northwest coast.

Futhermore, to aid in a possible future northwest defence, a government weather station has been built on lonely Unalaska island, one of the Aleutian archipelago—a chain which stretches like a whiplash across the Bering Sea, westward towards the Soviet coast and Japan.

Important Defence Key

While Tokio seethes with militarism, U.S. officialdom looks with comfort upon Alaska, grateful that an earlier generation of statesmen foresaw the way when a "buffer" along the northwest coast might be employed to stem the tide of Asiatic ambition.

This year, in which the seventieth anniversary of Alaska's purchase is being celebrated, has produced an abundance of records to prove that even when considered from a purely economic standpoint, the Alaskan territory has been one of the American nation's outstanding assets.

Purchased from Russia in 1867 for the sum of $7,200,000 Alaska has already produced minerals worth more than 100 times that figure.

Minerals, however, are only a small part of the picture. Topping the export list is canned salmon, of which $45,386,512 worth was shipped to the United States during the fiscal year of 1937.

Total commerce between the United States and Alaska, including all imports and exports for fiscal 1937, amounted to $114,923,169. Included in this figure were fish, copper ore, fur skins, gold, silver and miscellaneous products.

Tourists "Discover" Alaska

Travel interest, as well as commerce, increased during the fiscal year. Records of the several steamship companies servicing Alaska indicate that approximately 72,000 passengers were carried on the 12 freighters and 25 passenger ships plying the coastal routes.

Federal resettlement activity in Matanuska valley, while beset with many perplexing difficulties, has proved that the soil and climate of the territory are well-suited to profitable farming.

In his annual report to the U.S. government, Gov. John W. Troy called attention to the remarkable expansion of commercial aviation in the territory. The first air service began operating 15 years ago, and recent records show that almost 90,000 passengers have been flown. At present there are 40 aviators and 101 Alaskan aeroplanes under federal registration.

Considered in the light of its economic contributions, its defensive possibilities, and its rich agricultural future, Alaska must be adjudged one of the most profitable purchases ever made by any nation.

Capture Bear Cubs

Farmers, game officers and provincial police ganged up on a pair of blackbear cubs near Picton, and captured the two in a tree.

Convicted of the theft of 136 fountain pens at Belleville, Glen McAllister of Toronto was sentenced to three years in Kingston Penitentiary.

Convicted on a charge of failing to return to the scene of an accident, Horton Knapp was sentenced at Toronto to 14 days in jail and his license was suspended for three months.

An explosion of dynamite at Elizabethton, Tenn., killed the three children of Harmon Gouge, confessed murderer.

HAVELOCK

REBEKAH LODGE ENJOYS EUCHRE

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, Jan. 8.—A very successful card party was held on Thursday evening by the Rebekah Lodge in their rooms, there being eight tables of euchre. Prizes were awarded to the following: Ladies' first, Mrs. Ross Brown; ladies' consolation, Mrs. Richard Sanderson; men's first, James Diaper; men's consolation, George Iles.

The lucky draw was won by Mrs. George Hubbel, who received a very beautiful quilt.

Had Monster Tapeworm FROM BABYHOOD!

After using your tapeworm remedy my little boy, aged nine years, was relieved of a monster tapeworm. I cannot begin to tell you how wonderful I think it is. He had tapeworm for seven years. We had him in the hospital twice and up to the time we tried your remedy it had cost us nearly three hundred dollars and he was not relieved. If you only knew what he went through. We would have to starve him for days and then he would be ill for days after taking prescribed remedies. But with your remedy, No starving—No after sickness, within a half an hour the tapeworm passed away complete and he was outside telling every one about it. Thanks to your remedy he has gained 12½ pounds. I could go on and on, but will send you his picture and you can see for yourself why I am so pleased. Yours Truly, Mrs. Fred Manning, 186 Woodside Ave., Kitchener, Ont.

Many people have tapeworm and are not aware of it. That nagey feeling may be your warning. Round-worms are just as bad, read about them.

ROUND-WORMS.

Thousands of children and adults are thin, pale, run-down and irritable because they have round-worms and don't realize it. It seems incredible, but Doctors know that even the greatest care cannot prevent worms in children (nor grown ups). Invisible worm eggs reach the system many different ways. The eggs hatch out and vicious worms develop (½ to 16 inches long). When children sleep badly, have belly pains, lose appetite and weight, have ticklish feeling in the throat, night coughs, bloating of stomach, cry without cause, excitability, nausea, bad breath, etc., worms are likely to blame. It is almost impossible to tell if you are a sufferer of round-worms. That half sick, irritable or down feeling may be an indication. Wise people use Mulveney's Mother's Friend just to make sure that they are free from worms. (Note: Mulveney's B'WELL is stronger and recommended for adults.) Both these remedies are recommended for constipation, and other ills arising from the stomach, liver or kidneys. That means they are bound to do good even if worms are not the trouble. If you are a sufferer of Tapeworm or desire further free information about them, telephone LL. 7336 or write R. L. Mulveney's Remedies Ltd., Dept. J. 311 Ossington Ave., Toronto, Canada. When in Toronto drop in and see us. Your druggist can supply you with Mulveney's fast acting remedies.

PAPRIKA YIELDS CHEAP VITAMIN C

MONTREAL, Jan. 8 (CP)—When Prof. Albert Von Szent-Gyorgyi's wife served him a dish he couldn't eat, he analyzed it and discovered something he had been seeking a long time—an economical method of producing ascorbic acid, vitamin "C" to the uninitiated.

The dish, Albert Szekely of Szeged, Hungary's second largest city, disclosed in an interview here, was highly-flavored with paprika, too highly flavored, in fact. Szekely, president of the Hungarian Paprika Export Company, is in Montreal with Canadian and United States' orders for 7,000,000 pounds of the spice.

"Prof. Von Szent-Gyorgy of the University of Szeged," explained Szekely, "first outlined his identification and isolation of vitamin "C" before the British Association for the Advancement of Science at Aberdeen in 1934.

"The professor had noticed the relation between the scruvy-preventing propensities of vegetables and fruits on the one hand and the adrenal glands of men and animals on the other.

"He followed this trail to the Chicago slaughterhouses and there with the help of the Josiah Macy Jr. Foundation he spent a year working on tons of adrenal glands of cattle. But he managed to produce only a minute quantity of pure vitamin 'C' and, discouraged, he returned to Hungary.

"One day his wife served him a dish so highly flavored with the spice (paprika), he could not eat it. He took it to his laboratory instead and from it produced, of all things, vitamin 'C'. What is more, its production from 'capsicum anuum' (Hungarian paprika) is cheap and efficient. It can be readily administered intravenously and is useful in curing purpural hemorrhages, nephritis, certain non-inheritable forms of haemophilia, pyorrhea and Addison's disease."

Prof. Von Szent-Gyorgyi won the 1937 Nobel Prize for physiology and medicine.

Driver Bags Wolf With His Bus

NORTH BAY, Ont., Jan. 7 (CP).—The northern forests have one wolf less to-day and Paul Mantha, bus driver, figures to be $20 richer.

Mantha, driving a light bus with five passengers on the Timiskaming-North Bay run to-day, sighted tracks of wolves about 10 miles from the paper town. A little further along he spied a wolf running along the highway.

Speeding his bus to 45 miles an hour, Mantha struck and killed the 100-pound female timber wolf with it. He will collect the $15 bounty, and also expects to get $5 for the pelt.

Collegiate Notes

SPORTS

Both basketball and hockey is seasonable again, and the feverish P.C.V.S. interest in rugby has been turned to these winter sports.

During the Christmas holidays W. E. Jackson called several hockey practices at All Saints' Rink. With fine hockey weather prevailing, P.C.V.S.'s hockey enthusiasts were able to swing into action Tuesday after school another heavy practice was held at the Brock St. rink. These early practices have aided Coach Jackson very much in picking out a strong team to open the schedule next Monday evening in the Brock St. rink, when they play the St. Peter's High School squad.

BASKETEERS

The Christmas holidays and the decorated gymnasium interrupted basketball practices seriously. The gym has been in great demand all week as three of the four teams were striving to get in shape for their opening games which they played in Cobourg last evening. In the practices after school the players were showing excellent class for such a short time together. Many of last year's stars are still on hand and several new prospects have appeared.

The newly-formed junior girls' team did not get into action this week-end. This team will not have any set league games. Several opponents for exhibition combats have been found, however. The young team is a credit to the girls and should form a fine foundation for the future senior girls' teams.

DOWN TO WORK

Realizing how time flies, the "Echoes" staff is really settling down to work. A meeting, attended by the form representatives, was held Tuesday after four ,to advance many angles of preparation. A list of prizes was drawn up for best contributions to "Purple Patches." Details will soon be posted on the bulletin boards. The closing date for sending in material will be January 28. All are being asked to share in contributions. You may compose an essay, or maybe a new school song. Don't we need one? If you are an artist, demonstrate your ability, and present it at the Echoe's office sometime before the closing date.

Several senior students have been holding regular target practices at the Armouries on Monday and Wednesday afternoons. No, the boys are not going to war, but they are improving their marksmanship to compete for the medals offered by the Dominion of Canada Association.

AT HOME

The anual At Home is now just another memory. Although praise has already been given to those who helped to make the event a success, it is not out of place to repeat it again here. Many hours were spent by the students' committee, directed by Miss Thompson and Edna Borland to transform the bare gym into a beautiful ballroom. Many students assisted at the supper on the evening of the dance. Dr. Kenner expressed his appreciation to the school in the Monday morning assembly.

OBSERVATION PLATFORM

The senior boys' basketball players received new garnet and grey sweaters, which they wore in their game at Cobourg . . . The Camera Club will resume regular activities after its first meeting, to be held next Wednesday. Members are reminded that this term's membership fee is payable any time now. . . . . The result of last night's school basketball games will be found on the sport pages . . . . . Next Friday evening the senior boys' and girls' basketball teams play their first home games against Lindsay. . . . The first week of resolved goodness has passed in the new year with few reported mishaps. . . . . First and second formers may be happy about the whole thing but Middle and Upper School have a gloomy after-holiday outlook when they think of their examinations, not more than three weeks away . . . . Now they wish they had written the exams before Christmas rejoicing.

TREES NEW ASSET TO SOUTH AFRICA

CAPE TOWN, Jan. 8. — (CP). — Reviewing South Africa's foresiation efforts during the last few years, The Argus says that in the face of peculiar difficulties and some deep-rooted prejudices the country has been converted from a land almost devoid of commercial timber into one with a considerable and increasing supply of this important national asset.

"Compared with those countries whose work has been the conservation and exploitation of natural forest, the Union has had a difficult task," The Argus continues. "And for that reason silviculture has been more closely studied than in many more favored lands.

"Primarily our new forests are a bank for the safekeeping of a national asset. Whenever the expected world shortage of soft-wood timber is felt, the Union will have occasion to recall with gratitude the labor of those whose skill and patience have made the forests available for the day of special need. Meanwhile, the State's sound pioneer work is ensuring raw material for valuable rural industries and standards of grading, seasoning and manufacture that will give confidence to an increasing use of South African timber by the building trade."

Prehistoric Bones Found At Weyburn Lizard-Like Type Of Huge Reptile

WEYBURN, Sask., Jan. 8 (CP).—While doing excavation work on the Souris river bed, at the rear of the mental hospital in Weyburn, 65 miles southeast of Regina, workmen unearthed a number of bones believed to be the remains of a lizard-like reptile extinct for countless years.

Five large spines, four ribs several feet in length and a number of what appear to be tail-bones were found and are now in the possession of Dr. R. C. Riley, hospital pathologist. Further excavating is being done in the hope that skull and other important anatomical parts can be discovered.

Largest of the spines is about 10 inches in length and seven inches wide at the widest point where junction was apparently made with the upper part of the reptile's vertebrae. The smallest is about eight inches long and seven inches wide.

This is the second discovery of the kind to be made here within a year. West of here last year a skeleton of a prehistoric reptile was found by J. Reidle. It was also buried in the river bed.

Excavation work in the river here is for the purpose of creating a deeper reservoir for water in the river and the earth taken out is being used to build up the driveway along the river's edge.

DEFENDS CABINET AGAINST CRITICS

LONDON, Jan. 8. — (CP). — Herwald Ramsbotham, minister of pensions, has taken Lloyd George to task for accusing Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden of having "an assembly of nervous wrecks behind him always pulling at his elbow."

"Mr. Lloyd George says the Cabinet is composed of nervous wrecks," said Mr. Ramsbotham, "but 13 out of 21 of them saw active service; two got the D. S. O., and seven the Military Cross, and are as likely to have as much courage and nerve as those who never got within miles of the firing line."

It was nearly 20 years since the war, he continued, yet a visit to a hospital revealed still the wreckage of that awful time. He was thankful the government was not in the hands of the warlike old men and pugnacious old women who passed bellicose resolutions and urged the government to take strong measures and to run the risk of a war in which they themselves could play no active part.

Lloyd George termed the foreign secretary a "first-class chauffeur."

"When will he get tired of being bullied by these men," he asked, "and stand up for what he really believes? If he does he will be the biggest man in Great Britain."

But the editorial writers didn't see things that way. The Western Mail of Cardiff, though the leading paper of Lloyd George's own Wales, led the counter-attack by terming the "Welsh Wizard's" statement "the most shocking example of his recklessness."

FALSE ALARMS SOLVED

WELLAND, Ont., an. 8—(CP). — Years of discouraging efforts by Welland authorities to run-down ringers of false fire alarms here were rewarded with success to-day when three lads, two of them juveniles, were hailed into court as a result of investigations following false alarms on Christmas Day and New Year's Day. It was disclosed the lads had drawn lots to decide who should turn in the alarm. Police Sergeant Anderson said that each false alarm cost the city $50.

COUNCIL BEGINS YEAR WITH RECORDED DIVISION

Britain Said Ready To Allow Japs Extended Powers

Likely Confine Changes to More Nipponese Police On Settlement Forces, But No Permanent Revisions.

LONDON, Jan. 10.—(AP)—The British government today declared opposition to any permanent administrative changes in the international settlement at Shanghai such as have been demanded by the Japanese.

Great Britain, however, was authoritatively represented as ready to agree to some of the Japanese demands for increased power in the rule of the Shanghai settlement.

The British position was stated in communications to the United States, France and the British authorities at Shanghai. Officials would not indicate on what points the government was ready to meet Japanese demands, but it was intimated they included increased Japanese representation on the settlement's police force.

In the city a hand grenade was thrown at a group of Italian troops on the international settlement boundary in a continuation of Chinese terrorist activity against tightening Japanese control. No one was injured.

Putting Up a Fight.

Chinese reinforcements pushed into Southern Shantung Province to meet advancing Japanese who threatened the Lunghai railroad, China's east-west life line.

A decisive engagement for control of the route appeared imminent. Japanese forces were nearing Suchow, important Lunghai junction point in Northern Kiangsu province, from both the north and the south.

In addition, Chinese said, Japanese transports had arrived at Haichow, eastern terminus of the line some 125 miles north-east of Suchow, to land bluejackets for a drive inland.

Japanese announced unresisted occupation of Tsingtao, Shanghai province seaport from which Chinese forces had evacuated by Dec. 31. The announcement said, however, Japanese bluejackets were "continuing mopping up operations."

Japanese naval planes flew over Tsingtao, dropping leaflets advising the populace to submit to Japanese administration and policing.

ALEX. WELCH IS PLACED ON TRIAL FOR OBSTRUCTING

Sequel to the "Battle of the Bonner-Worth" on August 10 when 25 police forced a way with clubs and tear gas through strike picket lines for returning mill workers, Alex Welch, strike organizer and leader, went on trial before Judge D. B. Coleman in County Court this afternoon. The charge against him was obstruction of Chief of Police Samuel Newhall in the course of his duty.

Welch was arrested along with a dozen others on the occasion of the battle. Held on bail of $1,500, Welch was arraigned at the December General Sessions of the Peace here. He pleaded not guilty and, his case being switched to non-jury trial, to-day was set as a special trial date.

Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., is conducting the prosecution and J. L. Cohen, K.C., strike legal adviser during the summer, is defending.

Mr. Melton Called

First witness called by Crown Attorney McElderry, D. G. H. Melton, manager of the Bonner-Worth mill, recalled the story of the exciting morning, climaxing the strike which occupied the greater part of the summer.

Do you know the accused?" Mr. McElderry asked.

"I saw him that morning and I've seen him since,".

The witness related he was in his plant at seven o'clock on August 10, and saw a crowd of pickets outside the plant. A rotating line was in operation, he said. He testified the accused was to be seen.

"Shortly after seven I saw the accused apparently directing the picket line. I could not hear, but apparently he was instructing them."

"Did you see the Chief of Police?"

"Shortly after 8 o'clock the former Mayor, accompanied by the Chief of Police, attempted to address the gathering. The Chief apparently succeeded in pushing through the picket line but the Mayor did not."

Mr. Melton told of the march of the returning workers down the street under police protection.

"Did you see the accused after that?"

"I don't recall seeing the accused after the employees entered the plant."

PAIR TACKLE THUG SAVE JEWELRY

NEW YORK, Jan. 10 (A.P.). — Captain Kinsley G. Howe, 54, retired British Army officer, and his wife saved jewelry they valued at "several thousand dollars" to-day after a struggle with a burglar in their 15th floor hotel suite.

Captain Howe, who lives in the suite below the Penthouse apartment of Sinclair Lewis, the author, told police he and Mrs. Howe grappled with the intruder when they awoke and saw him creeping toward a dresser containing their jewelery.

The burglar ran from the room after striking Captain Howe and his wife with blunt instrument.

Police said the Howes identified a youth found hiding behind an elevator shaft in the basement as their attacker. The youth, who said he was David Williams, 23, of Carmel, N.Y., bore several scratches on his face and neck. He was booked on a charge of felonious assault and burglary.

Last Minute News Flashes

TORONTO.—Sir Joseph Flavelle resigned to-day as chairman and director of the Board of the Canadian Bank of Commerce. His successor is Sir Thomas White, Canada's war-time Finance Minister.

TOKYO.—The outstanding ace of Japan's naval air force, Commander Norindo Obayashi, was killed Dec. 22 in an air raid on Nanchang, capital of China's Kiangsi Province, the Admiralty announced here to-day. He was credited with having brought down more than 30 Chinese planes.

North Australia reported a temperature of 70 degrees above in December.

Mayor Hamilton's Inaugural Address

The following is the text of Mayor Hamilton's address:

"It is with mixed feelings that I assume the office of Mayor of the City of Peterborough. Hopeful and confident that with your help we will accomplish things of real value to the City this year. Hesitant because I have gained some appreciation of the high calibre of many of the men who have preceded me in this chair, and when I consider the responsibility it brings.

This city means much to me, more than I can express in words, as it does to each one of us here. I believe each of you is assuming his duties with a desire to promote the city's welfare. If sincerity of purpose is to be the measurement of success then I know this 1938 Council will be most successful.

Most of you are more or less veterans in the work of the Council. I am glad that this is so, because the benefit of your experience is going to be most helpful. I believe that the continuous service of members of this Council has helped much in building Peterborough's fine municipal record. I am hopeful that I shall receive the same full measure of co-operation, that you gave to other mayors.

Welcomes New Aldermen

I desire to welcome into the circle the three newly-elected members, Aldermen McCannan, Huycke and Bradburn. Your own record, and that of your families, is well known to us. We are confident that you will have much to offer which will benefit the work of the Council.

Without trying to discourage the new members, I must warn them that they may have certain programs which they will never see put into execution. Chief disappointment will be the realization that while the Council is responsible for setting the tax rate and collecting approximately $900,000 annually in taxes, actually the Council has little responsibility for the spending of this money. This is a fact often forgotten by the taxpayer.

About two-thirds of the $900,000.00 must be turned over partly to the City Trust for debt payment purposes, and partly to the School Boards, homes for the aged, relief, etc. The Council last year was responsible for the expenditure of only $285,926.16 raised by taxation for general purposes.

Of this amount: $15,000 was for administration of justice; $20,000 for charity, of which I shall say more later; $34,743.04 for the Fire Department, of which $29,000 was for salaries; $7,000 was for bank interest, paid on amounts borrowed before taxes were raised; $22,500 was for street lighting; $8,500 went for old age pensions and mothers' allowance; $11,500 to the Public Library Board; 30,000 approximately to the Police Commission; $20,000 for water purposes for fire protection; $7,250 for suburban roads.

I quote these figures to point out that of the one-third of the taxes for which the Council is directly responsible a large part is used up

Man Swallowed Stamp While Licking It

STATED to be a visitor to Bridgenorth, a man recently bought three 3-cent stamps in the post office here and suffered the embarrassment of swallowing one of them.

He was stated to be in the act of licking one of the stamps in the post office, when he suddenly started to gag. He made a vain attempt to retrieve it, sticking his finger down his throat. It was a useless attempt though, and he had to go back to the wicket and buy another stamp.

Given 12 Years, Lashes Prisoner Only Smiles

St. Thomas Cadi Hopes Stiff Sentence Will Curb Armed Holdups

ST. THOMAS, Ont., Jan. 10 (C. P.). — Joseph Moran, 29, Vancouver, was sentenced to-day to 12 years in Kingston Penitentiary with 20 lashes for the armed holdup of F. H. Walley, in his drug store, here on December 20.

Judge Duncan C. Ross said in passing sentence: "I have found you guilty of a very serious offence. You were not only armed with an offensive weapon, but also with one which was loaded. I take it that in cases of this kind, it means potential murder and nothing else. The public must be protected from men such as you.

"Recently we have had much trouble of this kind in this country, and this sort of thing has become altogether too common. It must be stopped. Any like-minded persons must be nipped in the bud."

Moran, chewing gum energetically, rubbed his hands and smiled broadly as Judge Ross passed sentence.

Cathedral Has Movies Instead Of Sermon

Chichester, Eng., Jan. 10 (CP)

TALKING pictures last night substituted for the regular evening service in Chichester's Twelfth Century Cathedral.

The first moving picture service to be presented in an English Cathedral, the service was handled entirely from the screen after a brief opening ceremony by Very Rev. A. S. Dungan-Jones, Dean of the Cathedral.

In place of the sermon, the main film was based on Stolstoy's work, "Where Love Is God Is." Other, shorter, films showed Biblical scenes and adaptation of parables. The screen was hung in the nave.

SAFECRACKERS ESCAPE

TORONTO, January 10—(CP). — Safecrackers surprised at work by watchmen in two theatres early today escaped from both places.

Andy Cirak, caretaker of the Bellevue theatre, reported to police he found two safecrackers at work. The robbers threatened him with a crowbar then fled, he said. The upper hinge of the safe was sawed off but the safe was not opened.

Safecrackers made a hurried exit from the Crown Theatre when the watchman found them. The safe was unopened but the combination handle had been knocked off.

Indian Pinned Under Tree Chops Foot Off In Vain

Found By Family After 2 Days And Left In Wigwam While Sons Hike Week For Aid

MOOSONEE, Ont., Jan. 10 (CP).—A 40-year-old Cree Indian lies today in a hastily-erected wigwam 100 miles from the closest settlement, one foot amputated by an axe.

It's 35 below zero in the remote region, 100 miles west of Albany on James Bay, where George Methat lies awaiting assistance that may not reach him for several days. Word reaching here yesterday from Albany said help was on the way.

Methat, a trapper living on the small Ghost River that flows into James Bay, was alone on his trap line when a tree fell on him, breaking one foot. When he did not return home that night, and for two days, his wife and two sons started a search for him.

When they found him, according to the story reaching Moosonee, the trapper was pinned by the tree and his foot was cut off, possibly in his efforts to free himself with an axe. Blood-poisoning had set in. The sons built a wigwam with canvas and tree branches.

Leaving their mother to care for Methat, the sons journeyed seven days on snowshoes to Albany for help, reaching the James Bay settlement late last week, exhausted and hungry. Most of their food supply was left with the injured Indian.

A Roman Catholic priest and three Indians are en route to Ghost River with the sons on snowshoes. If they reach him in time he will be taken to the Methat home on a sled, where the priest will give medical treatment. Later, the Indian may be taken to Albany.

Yelds Gun At Revival Then Gets Arrested

Toronto, Jan. 10 (CP)

IN response to an invitation by Rev. John McNeil at a revival meeting here last night Angus Ellis walked forward and handed a church elder a loaded automatic revolver. He was charged later by police with having possession of an offensive weapon.

Ellis said he had never used the revolver after buying it in the United States about two months ago. Unemployed, he said he had prospects of getting a job and church officials said they would assist in his defence.

Marquess Riding To The Hounds At 83 Breaks Neck As Horse Falls

Tunbridge Wells, Eng., Jan. 10.

THE Marquess of Abergavenny was killed today while hunting to hounds at Groom Bridge in Sussex. He was 83.

The marquess, descendant of a Companion-In-Arms of William the Conqueror, fell from his horse when it stumbled against a low wire. His neck was broken.

Lord Abergavenny, who succeeded to the Marquessate on the death of his brother in 1927, was one of the country's largest landowners, with about 50,000 acres. He was a keen hunter and formerly was M. F. H. of the Bridge hunt.

One of his younger brothers, Lord Richard Nevill, was comptroller of the household to the Dukes of Connaught and Devonshire during their terms as Governor General of Canada.

The title falls to Major Guy Larnach-Nevill, Lord Abergavenny's nephew, an insurance company director.

Vote Is Registered On Appointment To Fill Vacant Seat

Aldermen Huycke and Gordon Propose Dr. Crough In Place of James Dutton to Fill Sloan's Seat

Peterborough's new city council began the year with a recorded division at its inaugural meeting this morning.

The appointment of James Dutton as successor for one year to M. R. Sloan who resigned some five months ago was opposed by Alderman W. F. Huycke and Alderman G. N. Gordon, K.C. who were alone in proposing that Dr. E. M. Crough, one of the defeated candidates for the two year terms, be selected for the tenth seat in the council.

Later in the session City Clerk Armstrong telephoned Alderman Dutton, and asked him whether he would accept the chairmanship of the relief committee.

It is common knowledge that the members of the council were all eager to dodge that responsibility.

Mr. Armstrong returned to the council with the statement that Ald. Dutton had said he was not keen about again acting as chairman of the relief committee, but if it was the wish of the council he was willing to carry on.

The nomination of Mr. Dutton for the vacancy was made by Alderman Cotton, seconded by Alderman Glover after the opening ceremonies, including prayer by Rev. P. J. Kelly, and Mayor James Hamilton's first address to the council, an interesting outline of prospective business for the new year, an appeal for harmony, and a welcome to the aldermen who were re-elected and a special greeting to the three new members, Herbert J. McCannan, Wilfrid F. Huycke K.C., and Herbert I. Bradburn. Mayor Hamilton advised them not to build up hopes of accomplishing all the projects they might contemplate on their entry into municipal administration.

Huycke Amendment

Ald. Huycke followed the Cotton-Glover motion with an amendment to appoint Dr. Crough. It was seconded by Ald. Gordon.

"I wish to speak to the amendment," Ald. Gordon said, before Alderman Wilson, presiding in committee of the whole for the second reading of the bylaw, called for the vote. Ald. Gordon said the Catholic people of the city represented one-third of the population but were not represented in the council largely because the effect of a private bill obtained years ago requiring in Peterborough that the people must mark their ballots for at least four aldermanic candidates. Dr. Crough had been a resident of the city for 12 years, and had received a substantial vote, but, Alderman Gordon asserted, he had not received the aid of "the ganging up played by a number of American industries who sent out cars to draw votes for the candidates they were supporting".

On the other hand, he stated, Mr. Dutton's record in the council had not been endorsed by the people.

Exceptional Service

Alderman Glover said he had been associated in relief work with Mr. Dutton for seven years, and knew from that experience that his work in behalf of the city was an exceptionally fine service. "Mr. Dutton does nothing for his personal glorifi-

DU PONT EXPECTS 23 P.C. SALES DROP FIRST HALF OF '38

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—(AP).—Lammot Du Pont told the Unemployment Investigating committee of the United States Senate to-day E. I. Du Pont De Nemours and Company expects a 23 per cent. drop in sales during the first half of 1938, compared with the first six months in 1937.

"I hope that this forecast proves erroneous," the president of the Chemical Manufacturing Company told the Senate committee, "but on the basis of careful estimates I cannot be too hopeful of increased employment in ou rcompany during the first half of the year, for it is evident that we are in a pronounced recession."

Du Pont said he had no "panaceas" to improve business, but that "government and business should take counsel together in a spirit of forbearance and cooperation."

Some of the Reasons.

He said tax uncertainty, the fear of higher prices due to the rising public debt, uncertainty as to the value of money, the number of strikes, and "fear of changes in and the multiplication of the legal rules under which business must operate" had contributed to "the present fog" of business.

Detailing the experience of the Du Pont company as a guide to the general business situation, the company head said Du Pont employment had reached a peak of 59,800 in Sept. 1937, as compared with 42,000 in 1929, but dropped to 51,600 by the end of the year.

The Du Pont Company, he said, spent $53,900,000 in plant extension and modernization in 1937 and $194,000,000 over the past eight years.

"New construction outlays projected for 1938, according to the compilation that has just been made, approximate $35,000,000. We are still looking ahead and hoping for better business."

President Roosevelt, discussing economic conditions in his Jackson Day address on Saturday night, said:

"The White House door is open to all our citizens who come offering to help eradicate the evils that flow from undue concentration of economic power or unfair business practices."

"No Compromise" Fight.

He reiterated his demand for elimination of business abuses and called for a "no compromise" fight against "a mere handful of the total

Carol Pleads For Understanding From Great Britain

Nationalism Demanded By People—No Hint Of Dictatorship—Jews Mostly Invaders

LONDON, Jan. 10 (CP-Havas)—A plea to the British people to understand the "entirely different" conditions existing in Rumania, as compared to Great Britain, was made today by King Carol defending the new nationalistic, anti-semitic government of Premier Octavian Goga.

In an interview with A. L. Easterman, special correspondent of the Daily Herald, Labor organ, King Carol said Rumania had not the old civilization and parliamentary tradition of Great Britain and the Rumanian people wanted nationalism.

"It must be understood that words like dictatorship are not of universal application," the king added. "They can mean one thing in one country and something entirely different in another."

Not the Same In Roumania.

"The term democracy does not have the same application in Rumania as it has in England, where conditions are entirely different. Our civilization is shorter in time. Your country has a parliamentary tradition.

"But there is no suggestion of dictatorship as you understand it. I do not know if elections always represent public opinion accurately. The role of a sovereign is to judge what really is the public spirit. It cannot be denied that in Rumania

Duce Sends Negro Christmas Gift

New Glasgow, N.S., Jan. 10 (CP)

ROY Coates, 19-year-old New Glasgow negro, is showing friends a Christmas present he received from Premier Mussolini of Italy.

Last spring, Coats wrote Il Duce, told him he was a negro, very interested in history, and asked if he could spare a few of his own writings.

A few days before Christmas a package of 10 books, two of them written by Mussolini and translated into English, arrived for Coates. Those by the Italian Premier were "The Doctrine Fascism" and "The Co-operative State."

A letter from the Italian Consul in Montreal which accompanied the books, thanked Coates for his letter.

COLLINGWOOD'S GIRL MYSTERY IS RE-OPENED

Jail Tip Sends Police After Murder Suspect

TORONTO, Jan. 10 (CP).—Provincial Police said to-day they had reopened investigation into the death of 32-year-old Marjorie MacMurchie of Collingwood, Ont., whose body was found in Collingwood Harbor last summer, several weeks after her disappearance was reported.

As the first step of the investigation, police said they were searching for an Owen Sound, Ont., sailor whose name they did not know.

Inspector William H. Lougheed of the Criminal Investigation Department of Provincial Police, said new information had been disclosed by a prisoner in Toronto jail. The renewed investigation was based on his story.

The unnamed prisoner said that several months ago, while he was serving a sentence in a Buffalo, N.Y., jail, he met a man who said he killed Miss MacMurchie, associate editor of the Collingwood Enterprise-Bulletin, and threw her body into Georgian Bay. The man said he was from Owen Sound.

Police verified the fact the Toronto prisoner actually was in a Buffalo jail.

Tip Cannot Be Ignored.

"We have got certain information from this man in Toronto jail about the death of Miss MacMurchie," said Inspector Lougheed. "It is of such a character it cannot be ignored, and we are sifting it, like all the other leaders we received about the case.

"The peculiar feature about this man's theory is that we never once heard of the other man's name during the course of our investigations in Collingwood. We now are hunting for this man."

Miss MacMurchie left her home two hours before midnight April 15. Earlier she had answered a knock on the door and then had gone to her room to dress before leaving. Her parents thought she had gone out to visit her sister.

The body, fully clothed, was found in the harbor May 7 and police investigation failed to reveal how the girl editor came to her death.

LONDON SWINDLE JAILS THREE MEN

LONDON, Ont., Jan. 10 (C.P.). — An alleged "high finance" scheme in which sums of $6,600,000 and the name of the wealthy Du Ponts were said to have been mentioned, was charged by Government authorities to-day to have been a swindle to obtain money from district residents.

Credited with having a part in the alleged scheme, three London men were speeding toward Chatham this afternoon in custody of Provincial Police, to face charges there.

The three are: Gerald Wyant 23, his grandfather Samuel Willis 69, and Thomas Agnew 57. They were arrested last night and to-day in a Securities Commission probe.

The trio are accused of representing themselves as members or representatives of a syndicate which had $6,600,000 on deposit in a Toronto bank, requiring only the posting of a bond to distribute to noteholders.

While no mention was made of it in the information sworn out in court, it was alleged by authorities that the three claimed the vast sum of money in the Toronto bank came from the sale of a new gasoline discovery to the Du Ponts.

The discovery was alleged to have been a chemical anti-knock preparation.

On the strength of that story, the Ontario Securities Commission charges, the three men got $500 from two Delaware Township brothers, John and William Barney.

WANTED TO BE JAILED

HAMILTON, Ont., Jan. 10 (CP).—Weary after an unsuccessful journey all over the country in search of work, Thomas Hyslop, Scottish sailor, smashed a lamp globe in front of the police station yesterday in order to be locked up in jail.

Arraigned before Magistrate H. A. Burbidge, Hyslop pleaded guilty today to a charge of wilful damage and was fined $10 and $2 damages or 10 days in jail.

"Canned" Music Idea For Church Belfry Rouses English Bell Ringers

Weymouth, Eng., Jan. 10 (AP)

BELL ringers were aroused today over a proposal to introduce "canned" bell ringing at St. John's church here by installing a gramophone and amplifier in the belfry.

A spokesman for the Guild of Bell Ringers, announcing the innovation would be discussed by the Guild, said:

"Synthetic church music is an American importation—we cannot welcome it."

The vicar, Rev. F. E. Coryton, declared, however, "some people were against the automobile, the airplane, and even the radio, but it is our duty to move with the times."

There are 3,000 bell ringers in England. In many cases their jobs are hereditary.

London Man Arrested After Girl Found on Street; Says She Refused to Go Home, Had to Keep Her

LONDON, Ont., Jan. 10.—(CP)—Wilmer Steele, held in jail throughout the week-end on a charge of vagrancy, will appear in court here today in connection with the disappearance for more than 24 hours of seven-year-old Barbara Hebblethwaite.

Steele, 29, was arrested at his home Saturday after a man had been seen to leave Barbara sitting on a hand-drawn sled before the home of George Hartas, Salvation Army adjutant. The girl had been missing since she was seen to leave school Friday.

Barbara told police a story of being kept in a house against her will and led constables to a Jean street home where Steele was arrested. Steele said he had looked after the girl for the evening and she had refused to go home.

The child was brought to the Hartas home at 6 p.m. Saturday by a man who left the scene immediately. Taken in charge by members of the Hartas family, Barbara told police she met the man at the corner of Horton and Waterloo streets and he led her to the Jean street house, nearly a mile distant.

PRESS PREDICTS FLOOD OF HOWLS OVER TARIFF LIST

NEW YORK, Jan. 10—(CP)—The New York Journal of Commerce predicted today that the predominance of manufactured goods on the list of products upon which the United States may grant tariff concessions in the projected trade agreement with the United Kingdom, the colonial empire and Newfoundland, will bring forth "an unusually large number" of protests.

In issuing the list, containing more than 1,000 articles, the United States department of state pointed out the commodities were merely being considered for inclusion in the trade agreement. Persons interested in the commodities listed were invited to state their views.

"Submission of the list at this time," the Journal of Commerce commented in its "business outlook" column, "will make for more vociferous protests than were lodged against earlier treaties. A check of the list of products discloses that practically all of the industries that might be affected by a trade pact now are operating at very low levels and face an uncertain outlook.

"Even industries such as steel, which have benefitted from a large volume of exports recently, will protest tariff concessions to Great Britain. They will point out that despite the armament programs abroad, European exporters have maintained contracts here and are still shipping a sizeable volume into this country under the present duty schedules."

HASTINGS

CLUB PRESENTS ONE-ACT PLAY

HASTINGS, Jan. 10—A hilarious one-act play was presented by four pupils of Cobourg Road School at the first regular meeting of the Catholic Young People's Club, held in the parish hall Friday night. The play was entitled "Marie Misses Marriage." Those taking part were Rose and Jack Smith, Frances Smith and Albert Lamey.

President Marcella Sullivan gave a short address at the beginning of meeting on the occasion of the first meeting. Frank Carrol, secretary, read an account of the inaugural meeting and of two executive meetings. Madge McCoy, treasurer, read a very pleasing report on their recent "At Home." The report also showed a small balance in the bank. The meeting then adjourned.

A dainty lunch was served and a pleasant social evening was spent in round and square dancing. A goodly number were in attendance.

55 Campbellford Births In 1937

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 10.—The stork visited Campbellford once more in 1936 than in 1937, according to statistics issued from the town Clerk's office on Saturday, while improving conditions were reflected in the fact there were four more marriages during the year just closed. Deaths also showed an increase with six more in 1937.

Following is a comparative table:

	1936	1937
Births	56	55
Deaths	39	46
Marriages	29	33

LOWER TAXES

WINDSOR, Ont., Jan. 10 (CP)—Reduced taxes for the majority of taxpayers will result from Windsor's new system of collecting local improvement charges, which goes into effect this year, according to R. J. Desmarais, assessment commissioner for local improvements. By the new system, local improvement charges will be spread over a period of 20 years, except where the amount outstanding against a property is $20 or less.

90,000 TEXTILERS THREATEN STRIKE IN NORTH FRANCE

PARIS, Jan. 10.—(AP). —Ninety thousand textile workers in Northern France threatened to complicate the Government's labor troubles to-day with their discussions of a general strike for more pay.

Their representatives, demanding wage increases for all classifications, rejected a government conciliator's offer of a general 5½ per cent pay raise at a meeting in Lille yesterday.

Workers' representatives argued the proposed increase was not proportionate to increased living costs.

Some delegates demanded a strike affecting 38 unions. Final decision was postponed until Jan. 16 pending further negotiations.

In Paris, the Employers' Federation summoned officials of affiliated unions and provincial groups to discuss Premier Chautemps' invitation to a labor conference Wednesday. The Workers' Federation already has accepted the invitation.

Chautemps sent out the invitations in an effort to bring workers and employers together in a conference designed to halt wave of strikes which has become serious enough to threaten the Popular Front government.

Attempts to break the deadlock in the trucking and food strikes were still unavailing.

this spirit tends toward nationalism.

"It was therefore more in accord with public sentiment for me to call to power a party which was more nationalist than the others.

"My choice of a government was not dependent on what might be said elsewhere but solely on the ground of national needs. The government is authoritarian and I think this is necessary. My people must feel that there is order in the country.

"It cannot be denied that there is a strong anti-semitic feeling in Rumania—an old problem in our country. What happened was something in nature of an invasion of Galician and Russian Jews who came in illegally. Their number has been exaggerated, some saying they total 800,000—but the maximum is about 250,000. They invaded the villages and are not a good element.

Residents Before War Safe.

"Can people be regarded as good citizens who entered the country by fraud. Those Jews who lived in Rumania before the war will remain untouched.

"But those who came after the war are without real rights except as refugees. We will consider what we must do about them. There is no question of expulsion. But public feeling is such that we cannot give political rights to invaders.

"If we take certain measures which seem illogical to the British mind and not in accordance with civilization it should be borne in mind that our object is to save the remainder. It is important to note that the Jews concerned—the invaders—do not come within the scope of the minority treaties, which apply only to citizens legally transferred to different territories as a result of the war."

of business men and bankers and industrialists" whom he contended hold "autocratic control over the industry and finances of the country."

Robert H. Jackson, Assistant Attorney-General, said at New York that business and Government each needed the other's good will and ability "for mutual protection against a selfish minority."

In a few weeks the President expects to send to Congress a message outlining in greater detail suggestions to strengthen the anti-trust laws. By that time the Senate Unemployment Committee may have presented its preliminary findings.

Auto Deaths Costing Ontario $50,000 Each

Caledonia, Jan. 10

EVERY auto death costs the Province $50,000, made up of loss of time, medical and hospital expenses, property damage, legal and police expense and insurance premiums, James Macgregor, Caledonia, revealed in an address at the Women's Institute here yesterday.

For each auto death in Ontario there are 35 accidents involving personal injuries and 150 accidents involving property damage without fatalities.

Sixty per cent of auto accidents in Ontario were in cities, towns and villages, while 40 per cent occurred in the country, Mr. Macgregor said.

97 P.C. ALBERTA FARMERS KEEP MORTGAGES UP

Few Taking Advantage Of Moratorium Law

EDMONTON, Jan. 10.—More than 97 per cent of Alberta farmers whose land is mortgaged have ignored the moratorium and other debt legislation passed by the Social Credit Government, and have paid according to crop conditions and individual abilities to pay, this last fall and winter, it is revealed in a survey of nine of the biggest companies doing business in the province. Four of these companies have main offices in Edmonton, four in Calgary and one in Lethbridge.

The nine companies reported the following percentages of their mortgagors who are refusing to pay anything on either interest or principal because the moratorium permits them legally to postpone meeting their obligations: 1 per cent, 5 per cent, 5 per cent, 3 per cent, 2 per cent, 1 per cent, 5 per cent, one farmer out of 350 and two farmers out of 350.

Voluntary Adjustments

'Social Credit Board Chairman Glen L. MacLachlan and other Social Credit Government speakers last fall stated on a number of occasions when speaking at country points that "$50,000,00 had been kept in Alberta by virtue of the passing of the moratorium last spring.")

It is also revealed that, despite inaction of the Aberhart Government on the mortgage indebtedness adjustment scheme presented by the lending companies last March, these companies have made adjustments in pricipal and interest rates in many instances. It is pointed out, however, that adjustments in principal are being made only where individual circumstances warrant it, for instance, in the drought areas of the province. Generally, the basic interest rate is being reduced to 6 per cent.

Eight of the nine companies reported "collections better this year than last."

HIROHITO CALLS ALL JAP LEADERS IN WAR PARLEY

TOKYO, Jan. 10.—(AP).—A conference in the presence of Emperor Hirohito to-morrow will decide formally "Japan's unshakeable policy toward China."

Only twice before has such a conference been held—in 1894 at the time of the Chinese-Japanese war and 10 years later, to meet the Russian-Japanese war crisis.

The conference was summoned after Premier Fumimaro Konoye placed before the Emperor the government's decision on future policy in China. Details of the plans were kept a secret, pending a decision by the conference.

Chiefs and vice-chiefs of the army and general staffs, the premier and the foreign, navy, army, home and finance ministers will attend the session.

Japanese press reports have been that the Cabinet, in two days of conferences with the Imperial Headquarters, was drafting a program to "destroy the anti-Japanese administration in China."

The foreign office spokesman said Japan was prepared either for peace or prolonged hostilities, and added peace was impossible so long as General Chiang Kai-Shek, head of the Chinese government, maintained his anti-Japanese attitude.

Asahi and other Tokyo newspapers said Admiral Nobumasa Suyetsugu, home minister, was insisting on a formal declaration of war against China and withdrawal of recognition of the Chinese government.

STOP FOR SUPPER COSTS DRIVER $82

LONDON, Ont., Jan. 10—(CP).—If Sharon Kelly of Lambeth district had gone to the most expensive night club he could find for his evening meal, it wouldn't have cost as much as the quiet supper he had at home on Sept. 27.

Judge Wearing assessed the value of the home supper at $82.50, in first Division Court Friday. Sharon's brothes, Eber will have to pay the bill, however.

Sharon drove his brother's truck to his home on No. 2 Highway near Lambeth. He left it standing on the side of the road, with part of it sticking out over the pavement while he went in to supper.

While he was eating, John D. Thompson of Iona Station came along. He ran into the back of the truck, scarping the side of his car. Then he sued Eber Kelly.

Thompson said there was neither light nor reflector at the back of the truck. It was agreed the lights were not on, but the Kelly's claimed the reason the reflector couldn't be found after the crash was because Thompson's car knocked it off.

"It's a clear case," said the judge. "The defendants were lucky there wasn't a more serious accident."

Vote Is Registered On Naming Alderman To Vacant Seat

cation. He does what he thinks is in the best interests of the city. I would like to see him appointed because I feel the public does not appreciate his value as an alderman."

Ald. Huycke said his only reason in proposing Dr. Crough was that he felt sincerely the five thousand Catholic people were entitled to one representative in the city council.

"We all recognized that Dr. Crough is a fine young man," Ald. Stocker said. "I have sat with Mr. Dutton, and I am now beginning my ninth two year term. I have seen aldermen come and go, but I can say that the most outstanding alderman in that time has been Alderman Dutton. I have sat with him on the relief committee, I know how much he has done for the city in that and in many other ways. He is fearless and yet he always tried to be fair."

When the vote showed that Mr. Dutton was almost unanimously the choice of the council, Alderman Gordon called for the ayes and nays.

"That's the whole idea," Alderman Cotton commented.

Mayor Hamilton and Alderman Wilson voted with the others who supported the nomination of Mr. Dutton. Aldermen Gordon and Huycke recorded their votes for Dr. Crough.

The Opening Ceremony

The inauguration of the new council was begun with an invocation of God's help. The opening prayer was offered by Rev. P. J. Kelly, rector of St. Peter's Cathedral. "I invited Father Kelly as an old Peterborough boy who was a school chum of mine and also of Alderman Glover," Mayor Hamilton said. "And I believe all the other members of the council know him. I requested him to come here this morning and ask divine blessing on our proceedings."

Rev. Father Kelly read the first five verses of the fifth chapter of the first epistle of St. Peter: "The elders which are among you I exhort, who am also an elder, and a witness to the sufferings of Christ, and also a partaker of the glory that shall be revealed:

"Feed the flock of God which is among you, taking the oversight thereof, not by constraint, but willingly; not for filthy lucre but of a ready mind;

"Neither as being lords over God's heritage, but being examples to the flock.

"And when the chief Shepherd shall appear, ye shall receive a crown of glory that fadeth not away.

"Likewise, ye younger, submit yourselves unto the elder. Yet, all of you be subject one to another, and be clothed with humility: for God resisteth the proud, and giveth grace to the humble."

Father Kelly concluded with the following prayer: "We offer our humble prayers to thee, O Lord, that in Thy boundless wisdom Thou wouldst aid for the city of Peterborough this council which, by its zeal for us, shall be pleasing unto Thee and by its good government shall ever be honored by the citizens for the glory of Thy name; through our Lord Jesus Christ, Amen."

Before retiring, Father Kelly thanked Mayor Hamilton and the members of the council for the honor of being invited to offer prayer at the inaugural meeting. "My father was a member of this council for sixteen years, and I am sure he would be pleased to know that his son had received this honor."

Appointing of Chairmen.

Appointment of chairmen of the standing committees began with Alderman Juby's proposal of Ald. Wilson for the Board of Works, and after a brief discussion it was agreed that these two aldermen exchange the posts they held last year, Alderman Juby taking the Fire, Water, and Light Committee.

When it came to the Manufacturers' Committee, Alderman Glover was named by Ald. Cotton and Ald. Stocker.

Alderman Glover said he was willing to act again if there was any evidence of receiving the co-operation of all the members of the Council. Events af last year had put the city in a position that made it less attractive to industries, and for that reason efforts would have to be redoubled if the Council was to meet with any success.

"If anyone thinks he can handle this committee better than I can, it will be all right with me," Alderman Glover said, and said that all the experienced members of the Council should assume chairmanships since three new members were coming into the Council.

Ald. McCannan was persuaded to take the chairmanship of the Property Committee. Alderman Gordon refused it, and said he was not prepared to accept any chairmanship this year. Besides, he said, he wasn't familiar with the detailed work of that committee.

Alderman Glover — Personally I would prefer not to have a chairmanship.

Alderman Juby—So would I.

Alderman Juby touched on a recent note in the aldermanic elections when he said he was not a member of the Board of Health last year, "as you said I was in your advertisement."

Alderman Gordon — I said you were in a ring.

Alderman Juby — I was in no ring.—

"Don't let us start into that kind of thing," Mayor Hamilton interrupted, and quickly passed on to the naming of a chairman of the Parks Committee which went without any question to Alderman Stocker.

Alderman Wilson inquired whether Alderman Dutton would take the Relief Committee.

Alderman Juby—I move that Alderman Gordon take it.

Alderman Gordon — Thank you very much.

Alderman Glover proposed Ald. Gordon for the Legal and Reception Committee, but not even the expected visit of the Governor-General this year was an enticement to Ald. Gordon, he said in declining.

When Mayor Hamilton suggested that he would like to see Ald. Gordon on the Manufacturers' Committee, Alderman Glover said smilingly and bluntly, "I don't think Mr. Gordon and I would get along very well."

ALEX. WELCH IS PLACED ON TRIAL FOR OBSTRUCTING

constable on special duty, related his recollection of the arrest of Welch.

"The Chief of Police had sent me from Park street down to the main gate where other officers were gathered awaiting orders. Welch was talking to a man named Hickey, instructing him on the performance of the picket line."

The constable told of the march of workers down the street and the fight at the gate. Several were arrested and taken into custody inside the plant.

"The employees had got inside the plant. I was standing alongside the Chief when Welch approached the Chief to ask how many had been arrested and so on, and if he could see them. The Chief told him he couldn't, and asked him to move on several times. He refused. Welch put his hand on the Chief to push him aside, and the Chief ordered Constable Rogers to arrest him."

Britain Starts Mechanization Of Her Indian Army

Fewer Horses And Mules On Frontier Service Ease Worry About Water Supplies

NEW DELHI, India, Jan. 10 (C. P-Reuters). — New Year's Day saw the start of the scheme of mechanization of the Army in India, which will ultimately result—though not to the same extent as in the United Kingdom — in near-elimination of the horse and mule. A start will be made with four out of the five British cavalry regiments in India.

The scheme of modernization of these regiments is expected to take approximately three ar four years, but this period may be shortened because of mechanized units from England replacing those in India in the course of normal transfers.

India depends on the United Kingdom for the trained soldiers necessary to maintain her British units at their full strength. The Army here is, therefore, affected by the process of modernization at home.

Future drafts of British troops, unlike cavalry troopers of the past arriving to replace men whose period of foreign service has expired, will be composed of men who, though they may be trained motor drivers.

Coughlin Returns To The Radio

DETROIT, Jan. 10 (AP)—Rev. Charles E. Coughlin, returned to the radio yesterday for the first time since the ordainment of Archbishop Edward Mooney of Detroit.

The priest advocated Americans "cease sniping at our democratic form of government"; that a policy of "strong industrial organization" be adopted by all classes of society; that the American Federation of Labor and the Committee for Industrial Organization "terminate" their quarrel; and that "we stand together at home free from entanglements abroad."

REFORMATORY TERM.

KITCHENER.—Joseph Waechter, 22, his sister Rose, 27, both of Bamberg, and Leonard Lanka, also in his early 20's, of Kitchener, were today convicted of breaking entering and theft of ten chickens. WINNIPEG GRAIN.

A late buying flurry following the thinnest trading session this year forced wheat futures on Winnipeg Grain Exchange higher to-day. Futures rose from losses of more than a cent to close ⅜ to ¼ higher, May $1.30¼, July $1.22⅜ to ½, and October $1.02⅜ to ¾.

Though wheat jumped back to Saturday's closing levels after declining in sympathy with unexpected weakness at Liverpool and other bearish influences, the trend generally was ½ to ¾ cent down.

Reports of beneficial rains in United States Winter-wheat belt and in the Argentine corn area turned away large-order trade witnessed last week.

STRIP-FARMING TREE-PLANTING ARE ADVOCATED

By Frank Flaherty
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

OTTAWA, Jan. 10 (C.P.). — Discovery of an effective method of controlling soil-drifting marked the completion of the major task on the experimental side of Prairie farm rehabilitation. Through experiments conducted on Dominion experimental farms and stations and study of farming methods in various districts it has now been established that strip farming will keep soil drifting under control.

Wide areas of Prairie farmland have been more or less permanently injured by soil-drifting. Finely pulverized dry soil is carried along by the wind and piled up in drifts, leaving the land bare of its fertile surface.

Strip-farming is planting crops in long narrow alternating strips of summer fallow and forage crops where forage crops can be grown. The strips run at right angles to the prevailing wind and may be from 4 to 16 rods wide, depending on the severity of conditions making for soil drifting.

Other aids are tree-planting, cover crops, seeding abandoned land to grass, and special methods of cultivation calculated to leave as much stubble and other refuse on the surface of summer fallow as possible.

Soil-drifting has proved one of the most annoying accompaniments of drought on the Prairies. It robs the soil of fertility, destroys crops, in some cases buries roads, fences and even buildings. But it also afflicts the city and village dweller with suffocating dust storms.

Although few areas on the Prairie are entirely immune from soil-drifting its causes are not yet fully understood. Wherever there is bare soil and certain other factors including dry weather and high winds there is usually some drifting. Scientists, however, believe there must be a certain turbulence in the wind before drifting starts.

Tons Blown Off

If one inch of surface soil were blown off a section of land 100,000 tons of soil would be moved. As several million acres are subject to drifting the amount of soil shifted each year is tremendous.

Experts have estimated that the removal of one inch from an acre of land means the loss of 694 pounds of nitrogen, 155 pounds of phosphorus, and 5,380 pounds of potash. The phosphorus alone is equivalent to the amount removed in the production of 485 bushels of wheat or bumper crops for 20 years.

The drifting also removes certain living organisms which profoundly affect the productivity of the soil. It spreads weed seeds and insect eggs, injures growing crops in its path, makes living conditions in farm houses almost unbearable.

Strip-farming originated in Southern Alberta where some farmers noticed the last places to drift were the west sides of their fields, and that the prevailing winds came from the west. This led to the idea of presenting as many as possible west sides to the wind.

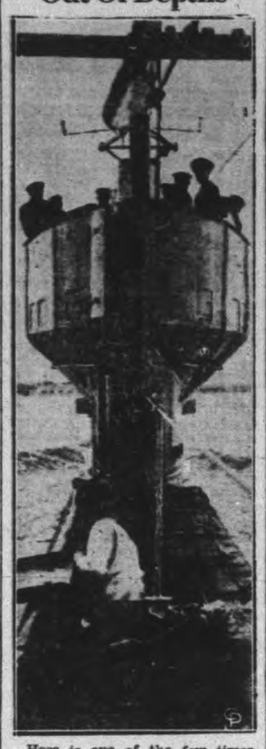
Tired Grandfather No Longer Takes Back Seat

You've seen him—that tired, sleepy, slow old man mooching about with the help of his cane. You'll have to be up early now to see him skipping down the steps, out for his daily "marathon" before breakfast.

You'd hardly believe that this active, wide-awake man was once the tiredest grandfather in town. But he was tired and sleepy only because poisonous wastes remained in his body, clogging his system. He couldn't feel right or be right while uric acids, arising from these impurities, were causing rheumatic pains, lumbago and other aches.

Fynnon Salt corrected the trouble. It gave his kidneys, liver and bowels the needed daily reminder. Fynnon Salt in a glass of water taken every morning eliminated the poisonous wastes, washed away the pain-causing uric acids, toned his system like a treatment at one of England's famous spas. That is the secret of the effectiveness of Fynnon Salt. The most valuable mineral elements found at British spas—Sodium, Potassium, Lithium—are combined in Fynnon Salt, providing "spa" treatment at home, bringing back the energetic feeling that makes life worth while. If you feel tired, achey, out-of-sorts—start taking Fynnon Salt and see how much brighter and better life can be. Get a large 75c package from your druggist, today. If you have any difficulty getting supplies, write: Laurentian Agencies, St. Gabriel St., Montreal. 21

Out Of Depths



Here is one of the few times that the one wof a submarine is able to stretch its legs and get a bit of fresh air. This British undersea craft is travelling along the surface and the tars are swarming on to the top deck and into the conning tower for a breath of ocean ozone.

GROOM WORRIED GUESTS WAITED

ALTON, Hampshire, Jan. 10—(CP)—William John Cutts of Wokingham, thinks something ought to be done about this business of upsetting a bridegroom on his wedding day. And he speaks from experience.

His wedding was due to take place in a little church at Standford. On the way he called at Whitehill for the deputy-registrar who had to be present at the ceremony. But the marriage register was locked up nine miles away at Alton.

Cutts hurried off for Alton only to be told the registrar had gone to Grayshott, some miles away, and had taken the keys with him. He raced for Grayshott but had to wait until the registrar had concluded some urgent business. Meanwhile 100 guests in the church held an impromptu service. The bride, warned of the delay, sat patiently at home.

The ceremony was performed two hours late. Later the motorist bridegroom and his bride set off on a motoring honeymoon.

MARMORA

Miss Nellie Phillips spent last week in Madoc as the guest of her sister, Mrs. L. McCarey.

Mr. Ralph Campion of Peterborough spent the week-end at his home here.

Mr. Michael Finnegan of Picton is spending a week's holidays at his home here.

Mr. Hugh Devine of Spokane, Wash. is visiting his sister, Mrs. Rose Johnston.

Mr. Tom Crawford of Cobourg spent the week-end at his home here.

Mrs. C. E. McElwain visited her daughter Jean in Toronto over the week-end.

A very successful card party was held in the Separate School on Friday evening by Group 1 of the Ladies of the Sacred Heart Church. The bridge prizes was won by Mrs. L. P. Hughes, while euchre winners were Charles Cronkright and Miss Rose Cassibo.

Marmora High School is holding its annual "Open Night" to parents on Saturday evening Jan. 15th, from 7.30 p.m. to 10.30 p.m.

MANY DENOMINATIONS

CRESTON, B.C.—(CP).—Spiritual welfare of Creston, in the East Kootnay country, rests in the hands of seven ministers. The town of only 800 has seven different denominations, each with a resident parson.

NEW FRENCH CHEF PLACED IN CHARGE OF KING'S MEALS

LONDON, Jan. 10—(CP)—London hostesses are looking to their kitchens. Not for more than 10 years have there been such brilliant formal entertainments and more than ever success is a matter of culinary effort.

At Buckingham Palace there has been a change of chefs. During the reign of George V, Monsieur M. Pourpart prepared royal meals. He resigned in the time of Edward VIII, returning to superintend the coronation banquets for George VI and to instruct Monsieur Rene Roussin who has taken his place.

At the reception given by the Marchioness of Londonderry—the most brilliant affair of the season to date—refreshments came from the historic tiled kitchen that is large enough to accommodate an army of servants and has great copper pans more than 100 years old lining the high shelves.

It is no longer considered smart merely to have a caterer come in. Old cook books are being brought out, old recipes tried out. Women who bear great names are house-proud of new electric appliances and are taking pride in offering their guests delicacies prepared under their own supervision by their own cooks.

Dress Resplendent

Lovely gowns were worn to the opening of parliament, Mrs. Neville Chamberlain's mauve and silver brocade with purple velvet cloak being given special mention by the papers. Costumes were also a feature at the Londonderry reception on the evening preceding the state opening. It was attended by about 2,000 of London's elite.

Hemmed in by brilliant uniforms and scintillating jewelry it took guests 20 minutes to ascend the marble staircase and greet the hostess, Lady Londonderry, who wore the spectacular diamond tiara and brooches given her ancestress by a Russian Czar. Yet, amongst all the women's gowns one particularly stood out, a marvellously-embroidered yellow Chinese silk dress worn by Madame Quo Tai-chi, wife of China's ambassador. It made besequinned satins look ordinary.

Queen Elizabeth spent only four days in London when she first returned from Scotland before leaving for a tour of Yorkshire. While in town she chose her white and gold gown for opening of parliament and a collection of other dresses from the house that has made for her since she grew up.

For evening, the Queen decided on a white-gold lame patterned in small squares shot with the mauve and green of beetles' wings. This is known as "Precious Stones" and will be worn on official occasions. For family parties she chose an ashes-of-roses satin broche, resembling a lovely old damask. Her day-time dresses, all made with three-quarter or hip-length coats, are in old rose velveteen, made with a blouse of lame, in soft biscuit angora—with matching satin top and in "Queen's Blue" wool—heavy morocain top.

The Duchess of Kent has thrown her lot in with women who wear hats in the evening. She appeared with the Duke at a restaurant late one evening recently in a black velvet evening gown and tiny black velvet hat with a nose veil.

WAR REFERENDUM ISSUE IS OPPOSED

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—(AP).—Administration leaders made individual appeals to members of the United States House of Representatives to-day to vote against considering he Ludlow war referendum proposal, declaring they wanted to prevent any "inflammatory" debate on International affairs.

Their aim was to defeat at the outset a motion to begin discussion of the proposed constitutional amendment, which would require a popular vote before the United States could enter a foreign war.

Both sides agreed the outcome would be close. Should the administration forces win, the amendment would die. Should they lose, the House would debate it for six hours before voting on its merits.

Majority Leader Rayburn of Texas and Democratic Whip Boland of Pennsylvania after a canvass expresed confidence the proposal would be killed on the second vote if not on the first.

The amendment, by Rep. Ludlow, (D.-Ind.), has been before the House Judiciary committee for 18 months.

President Roosevelt, State Secretary Hull and administration leaders in the House have opposed the referendum, asserting it would tie the government's hands in current as well as future international problems.

CHOOSE JOLLY ROGER

LONDON—(CP).—No. 100 (Torpedo Bomber) Squadron of the Royal Air Force has adopted a new badge, a skull and two bones, apparently the old Jolly Roger emblem.

"NERVES" SHE CALLED IT

Losing interest—losing friends—she never went out any more—always too tired. "Nerves," she thought — but it was her kidneys, the filters of her blood, that needed attention. Delay meant danger. She took Dodd's Kidney Pills at once. The improved action of her kidneys helped to clear away blood impurities and excess acids. Fatigue, headache, backache, lack of energy, disappeared. 117

Modern Cinderella

This is the Cinderella girl that New York suddenly discovered in its midst when 22-year-old Helga Gunderson, daughter of one of Norway's richest men, was found working as a chambermaid in a mid-town Manhattan hotel. Helga's suite-cleaning duties began after midnight and her identity was revealed when the occupant of one of the hotel's suites walked in while Helga was making the bed and recognized his dinner companion of the night before. It was easily explained; Helga works as a chambermaid to learn all about hotels because she is planning a career as hotel director. After work she goes to her own suite in the same hostelry. At LEFT Miss Gunderson is pictured at a dinner given by the Norwegian consul in New York—at RIGHT, busy with her duties as hotel chambermaid.

FISHERS' STRIKE ENTERS 12TH DAY

LUNENBURG, N.S., Jan. 10 (C.P.). — The tie-up of the Lunenburg fishing fleet entered its 12th day to-day, seemingly as far from a settlement as ever.

Claiming the fishermen could no longer operate during the winter months for prices prevailing, a meeting of captains and the executive of the Fishermen's Federation, headed by Captain Angus Walters of the internationally-famed Bluenose, decided to tie up the fleet if the buyers would not pay increased prices.

Representatives of buyers who did attend meetings called as joint conferences between union and dealers, said they were unable to guarantee any definite fixed price for fish because of a fluctuating market.

The men and buyers deadlocked on that point and have remained since.

Wholesale Prices.

Walters said the buyers had refused his final request, an increase of ¼ cent per pound on haddock. He gave prices paid by various wholesalers as:

General sea foods—Two cents for haddock, 1¼ for steak cod, 1½ for market cod, 1½ for flounders, ½ for scrod.

National fish — 2½ cents for haddock, 1½ for straight cod, 1½ for flounders, 1 for scrod haddock, ¾ for scrod cod.

Lockeport cold storage— 2½ cents for haddock, 1¾ for steak cod, 1½ for market cod, 1½ for flounders, 1 for scrod.

Lunenburg sea products — 2½ cents for haddock, 1¾ for steak cod, 1½ for market cod, 1 for flounders, 1 for scrod.

Schooners in port remained at their berths. Most of the crews went home. Those at sea, generally discharged their fares when they returned and then tied-up in sympathy. Only one, the Sir Ernest Petter of the deep sea fishing fleet, broke the tie-up and went to the Banks.

She returned yesterday and met a cold reception. After a conference between Federation officials and Captain Nepean Crouse, the latter agreed, fishermen said, to join the union.

WIDER DIVORCE LAW

TORONTO, Jan. 10—(CP)—Alderman Nathan Phillips said last night he would ask Toronto City Council at its next meeting to adopt a motion requesting the Dominion Government to extend the grounds for divorce to include cruelty, desertion or insanity. He said he will contend that Canadian divorce laws should be made to conform with recent amendments to British laws passed by the British Parliament.

WOMAN REPORTER DIES

NEW YORK, Jan. 10—(CP).—Dorothy Dayton Jones of the New York Sun staff, one of the best-known women reporters in New York, died in hospital yesterday following an operation. She was 39 and had passed 21 years in newspaper work.

One of the finest journalistic achievements to Miss Dayton's credit was her investigation of prison conditions in Oklahoma, as a reporter on the Oklahoma City Times.

WILL READ POETRY TO CLASS OF BEER

LONDON, Jan. 10 (CP). — Now there's to be poetry sung in England's pubs. Not that this is an innovation, for in ye days of olde, when coaches rushed by night in fear of brigands and ruffians the public house did often ring with ballad both beery and beautiful.

But it is a rather startling renovation for the tavern of today is one of the last places a man expects to hear a bit of Shakespeare. The days when the mighty bards conversed in lyric form with their fellows under the sign of the "Boar and Stag" have given place to quiet exchanges of racing tips for tomorrow or rantings for and against fascism. Politics, principles, people and prattle—yes; but poetry, no.

Now there's a society about to change all this, the "Committee for Verse and Prose Recitation." Moreover, it has been sponsored by John Masefield who, as Poet Laureate, is not given to putting his name to insincere movements.

The committee aims to take poetry and even drama into the taverns and started with a performance of "Twelfth Night" by the Oxford University Dramatic Society in Downham Tavern in South London. It is stressed the promoters look forward, rather, to the reciting of poetry and presentation of plays in humbler style and without fanfare.

This this end the committee has arranged a series of recitals by volunteer performers in London with bits of Tennyson, Kipling, Masefield, Shakespeare and Chesterton in the programs. The performances are not intended to be obtrusive.

The reciter will hie him to a side room, take a chair or table, according to his mood and go ahead. If the assembly in the main room is sufficiently mellowed from the strain and stress of every-day affairs to saunter out and lend an ear, the more's the good. They may bring their beer with them and laugh or cry according to the poet's sentiment.

SENATOR BENARD DIES IN WINNIPEG

WINNIPEG, Jan. 10 (CP)—Funeral services will be held tomorrow for Senator Aime Benard, prominent Manitoba agriculturist, who died suddenly Saturday. He was 54 years of age.

Native of Henryville, Que., he was a Conservative member of the Manitoba legislature 10 years until he resigned in 1917 to enter the senate.

Mr. Benard came West in 1891 and six years later married Marie Louise Lafleche of St. Charles, Man. He farmed many years in the district 35 miles west of Winnipeg and the nearby town of Denard was named for him.

In 1907 he was elected to the Manitoba legislature for Assiniboia, was re-elected in 1910 and, after the constituency was divided, was elected for Iberville in 1914 and 1915.

Senator Benard did much for promotion of Manitoba's agricultural industry and was for many years member of the senate agricultural committee and other farm committees.

Senator Benard was a keen motorist and fisherman and he maintained a fishing lodge at McIntosh, Ont.

Surviving are his widow, a daughter Cecile, and one son, Leon, member of the 1924 Selkirk hockey team that lost to Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds in the Allan Cup final. Leon is a Winnipeg barrister now.

WARKWORTH

A very successful dance was held in the town hall here Friday night, Jan. 7th, under the auspices of the hockey club.

Miss Dorothea Richardson of Toronto spent the week-end with her friend, Miss Helen Black.

Mr. and Mrs. George Dawe have returned after spending three weeks with the Rev. Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Fowler, Renfrew.

Mr. John Covert attended the funeral of the late Marion Osborne, Colborne on Saturday, Jan. 8th.

Miss Margaret Dudley is visiting friends in Toronto.

TRANSIENT RECOVERING

TORONTO, Jan. 10 (CP)—Frank Cassidy, 38-year-old transient who collapsed on the street here Friday and was taken to hospital suffering under-nourishment, was reported in satisfactory condition in hospital today.

Cassidy, believed in critical condition when admitted to hospital, said he had gone without food for four days while searching for work. He came here recently from Windsor, Ont.

Work Is Underway Hastings Church

HASTINGS, Jan. 10.—Rebuilding the interior of Trinity United church, which was gutted by fire on Sunday morning, Jan. 2, will begin Monday, according to a statement given by Rev. F. W. Newell, pastor. The contract was given Roy Eggleton of Stirling and will take about two months to complete. A few minor changes from the original plan may be made.

The building committee, R. C. Doxsee, W. T. Tate, and J. H. Hess have received a very satisfactory adjustment of insurance through the adjuster, Mr. Sydney Fisher.

DRIVER NEGLIGENT

TORONTO, an. 10—(CP)—Finding of gross negligence by James Sweetman, Toronto, was recorded Saturday by a jury under Coroner Dr. C. N. Mooney. Sweetman was the driver of the car which struck and killed A. Beedle, 55-year-old blind news vendor and his wife early Christmas morning. Sweetman said the Beedles had been crossing an intersection against a traffic signal when he hit them. He did not return to the scene of the accident because he was unnerved, he said.

BASQUE REFUGEES RIOT IN ENGLAND

HEXHAM, Northumberland, England, Jan. 10 (CP).—Young Basques from Spain have more than a word for it when they become annoyed. In fact a group of refugees at the Larches, children's hostel here, said it with a miniature riot in protest against hostel regulations.

Captain T. P. Wilson, a former warden, said he was glad to see the last of them. Here's his reason: "The boys simply thrived on excitement and wanton destruction. They chased an assistant warden with daggers and bottles, hacked the walls and electric light fixtures, attacked the matron, broke every pane of glass and every piece of crockery, smashed the gas stove, broke fences and slashed plants and shrubs."

Five of the ringleaders were sent back to war-torn Spain.

Hardy sugar cane found in New Guinea is to be grown on mountains of Hawaii.

Forced to vacate premises, fixtures and stock of Clysdale's Cigar Store, Charlotte and Aylmer, are for immediate sale.

Backing Franco

Counter-attacking against the Spanish government forces which captured Teruel is this unit of Gen. Francisco Franco's artillery. Their guns bedded in the rocky crags which rise north of the city they are harassing the government forces attempting to hold the city after a capture which marked the greatest loyalist victory of the war. The picture reveals the mountainous and rocky area in which the battle for Teruel was fought.

What of YOUR Tomorrows?

WHAT will you be doing one year . . . five years . . . ten years . . . from today? Will you still be struggling along in the same old job . . . always waiting for something to turn up . . . standing still while others forge ahead? Will all your tomorrows be like today?

They needn't be. Your future can be whatever you choose to make it. You can bring success and larger earnings within your grasp by training yourself to do some one thing well. And, like thousands of other ambitious Canadian men and women, you can get this specialized training at home . . . in your spare time . . . through I.C.S. Home Study courses. It costs nothing to find out what I.C.S. can do for you. Mark and mail this coupon today. It may be the most important step of your life.

Destructive Criticism

With its inaugural meeting this morning and the first regular session tonight Peterborough's city council launches out on what is hoped will be a year of useful public service. It will be that if the whole membership of council is impressed with the importance of co-operation and an honest effort to arrive at a course of action most likely to further the interests of the community. We do not mean by that, of course, that there will not be honest differences of opinion on the merits or otherwise of various proposals—we do not expect to find a whole council unanimous very often on any important matter—but that when such differences arise and there is criticism to be voiced that it will be constructive and not destructive.

The danger with the second type of criticism is the effect it may have in unexpected quarters. When for example the industrial policy upon which Peterborough has become one of the country's great manufacturing centres becomes the subject of bitter attacks, when contracts approved by the people and entered into honestly by council and industrial concerns are assailed the damage done locally is a trifling matter because the criticism is usually discounted. Outside the effect is much more serious. The impression is set up that Peterborough is not friendly to industry, that even the concessions granted in previous administrations are no longer safe, and the result is that every manufacturer who contemplates establishing a branch factory crosses this city off its list of possibles. We cannot afford to get that kind of reputation if we want to expand our industrial set-up and obviously it is only through such expansion that the city can hope to grow and prosper. Another factory or two in the coming year would be a veritable blood transfusion but we cannot hope to land any industrial prizes if we keep on hammering at the manufacturers already located here.

The Annual Scramble

One of the busiest men in the community this week promises to be the issuer of motor vehicle licenses, for with Saturday named as the deadline—less than half the owners of cars in this district have taken out their new markers. Somehow or other we do not seem to be able to get this annual levy down to a business basis and there is invariably a mad scramble at the eleventh hour. When Premier Hepburn slashed the license fee and put this year's crop of markers on sale in September as a proof of the Santa Claus nature of his government there was a mildly brisk business for a few days but with the election out of the way the sale of licenses soon petered out and now we are facing the same old conditions that exist each year as the final date mentioned by the government draws near.

The only way to avoid it would seem to be to follow the practice of most of the states across the border where license markers expire at the end of the years and no one expects to do any more driving until he has equipped his car with a new set. The sale of licenses begins a reasonable time before the close of the year and motorists as a matter of course purchase their new markers in readiness for the New Year. There are no days of grace and car owners have learned not to expect any. Here on the other hand the custom has been to extend the time sometimes on two or three occasions and the result, naturally enough, is that the majority of motorists wait until the final warning has been given. The American plan has much to commend it.

He Should Forget It

We find it difficult to work up much enthusiasm over the fact that a Toronto alderman proposes to introduce a resolution in the council of that city calling upon the Dominion government to widen the grounds upon which divorce may be granted in Canada. In the first place we do not believe that when folk voted for this particular alderman they had any idea that in so doing they were delegating to him the responsibility of attempting to force divorce legislation, something that seems far afield from the jurisdiction of city councils. And beyond that, and more important, is the conviction that there is no strong current of public opinion anywhere in Canada in favor of making the path to divorce easier than it is at the present time.

Situated as we are alongside a country where the marriage ties have been steadily weakening with the passing of the years and having an excellent opportunity to inspect the wrecks along the shores of the sea of matrimony in the United States, Canadians as a whole have no desire to follow the example of their neighbors. Flouting the sacrament of marriage seems to most of us to involve the destruction of the home and the shattering of family life and we are not prepared to extend the facilities through which the obligations and responsibilities of marriage can be discarded. Ald. Phillips of Toronto will probably not get very far with his resolution; and by this time it is possible that public opinion indicated itself sufficiently to cause him to withdraw his motion without discussion.

Important Training

One of the activities of the Canadian Red Cross Society that is least known to the public and yet is of vital importance begins in Peterborough this week when classes in home nursing, involving groups of girls from a number of local industries and from the Collegiate Institute and Girl Guides, get under way.

The Red Cross is convinced—and it is not easy to argue successfully against the statement—that knowledge of the principles of home nursing, health, hygiene, sanitation and how to meet emergencies as they arise in the home should take its place alongside a knowledge of cooking, sewing and other home duties in the mental equipment of the modern housewife.

The necessity of a more general knowledge of home nursing can be grasped when it is realized that only about fifteen per cent of sick people living in cities are taken care of in hospitals and that in the country where hospital facilities are necessarily more limited a much smaller percentage of ill folk can have hospital care. With 85 per cent of all cases of illness treated in the home and trained nurses as a rule only called in to the most serious of these cases, most of the burden falls upon some one in the home, usually the housewife. It is therefore of the utmost importance that she should be helped to meet her problems efficiently and intelligently.

That is why the Canadian Red Cross has stepped into the picture with its home nursing classes and it is not surprising to find that although this training was only inaugurated some thirteen years ago over 35,000 women and girls in Ontario have completed the course of training.

It is gratifying to know that Peterborough girls and women are taking advantage of the opportunity to secure a knowledge of what to do in the emergencies that may happen in any home any day. Wisely the Red Cross training stresses the simple things that crop up in everyday life—the minor illnesses—the household accidents that require quick action and ready knowledge of just what should be done. It is fine equipment for the housewife.

Doing A Fine Job

The annual report of F. M. DelaFosse, librarian of the Peterborough Public Library is always an interesting document. The library, one of the city's best-managed institutions, ranks high in the estimation of the public for the entertainment and educational fare it offers and its progress from year to year is watched therefore with considerable interest.

Mr. DelaFosse reports on this occasion that there has been a falling off in the circulation of fiction, explained to some degree, he says, by the increase in the number of lending libraries. We imagine that another cause for the decrease is the fact that unemployment was less during 1937 and that numbers of folk who wisely used the facilities of the library during the time they were idle had fewer leisure hours last year in which to read. That is a trend that should be welcomed.

So too should the increase that is noted by the librarian in the circulation of non-fiction books. Especially in the field of history 1937 showed a notable gain and that is a significant fact for it shows that the Library is discharging its responsibility as an educational institution. There is a legitimate place for good fiction and that place has been well filled by the public library, but beyond that it is desirable that there should also be more substantial reading offered the public and we imagine that in this particular department the local library will be found to be better equipped than any similar institution in the smaller centres of the country. In its reference books, its volumes on useful arts, biography, sociology and its other non-fiction departments it offers its patrons a rich store of useful knowledge and it is refreshing to find that more and more use is being made of the many excellent works now available.

Few public departments provide so much in the way of worthwhile entertainment and helpful training as the Library contrives to do on a budget that is modest indeed compared to the benefits it furnishes to a large section of the public.

For Safer Driving

With over 39,000 lives taken in the toll of traffic accidents in the United States last year, a death list of over one hundred persons a day, it might be expected that a panic-stricken nation would be calling for a national conference and immediate steps to cope with such a terrible situation. Were that many people to lose their lives in an epidemic the whole nation would have been aroused long since and every possible course taken that promised to check the spread of the deadly disease. Automobile fatalities however are accepted apparently as a matter of course and only here and there is there any move to attempt to cut down the death total.

Buffalo is one city that seems to have realized that it is time something was done and the Safety Commission there has just announced an interesting plan. A Citizens' Safe Traffic Committee is being organized, to consist of several hundred members from every walk of life who will be known by their number and not by their names. They will be furnished with report cards and it will be their responsibility to watch traffic conditions and report to the commission any breaches of traffic regulations they notice. The offenders will receive a courteous letter from the commission calling attention to the violated regulation and asking for the co-operation of the driver in making Buffalo a safer city. If a second report is received from the same member as to a second offence by this particular driver, no attention is paid to it but if another member complains of a second offence the police are notified and the erring motorist is given a lecture on safe driving by a police traffic expert. Presumably a third complaint would lead to court action but the Safety Commission does not believe that this will be necessary in very many cases.

It is felt that with several hundred zealous investigators reporting faithfully on dangerous driving practices a very real step toward eliminating the conditions that cause fatal accidents will have been effected. There is merit in the idea and if the motorists accept the plan in its proper light good results should follow. At least it is a sincere attempt to cope with a situation that requires the best thought available, not only in Buffalo but everywhere cars run and people are being killed.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Baseball items are beginning to make their appearance. After all spring is not more than a couple of corners away.

As a correspondent to a Toronto paper puts it, there are scarcely no Communists in rural Canada but there are times when even a farmer "sees red."

We feel better now with the announcement that when all the coal in the world is exhausted we may be able to get power and heat from the sun.

The British medical journal Lancet says the Red Cross is no longer the symbol of neutrality. In other words war gets to be a more horrible business every day.

Hon. Norman Armour, United States Minister to Canada who has been named Ambassador to Chile is sorry to have to leave this country. By the same token Canadians are sorry to see him go.

A farmer near Fort Erie found a live snake in the snow and believes it to be a sign of an early spring. Sometimes seeing snakes means something quite different.

The difference that skiing has made is shown by the fact that many Ontario towns are glad nowadays to announce the fact in the newspapers that they have plenty of snow.

A woman physical instructor says the dizzy whirl of social activities is enough to breed a race of neurotics. We can almost imagine we hear some cynic murmur "Well isn't it?"

A Toronto paper says that the horse and buggy days are gone and we might believe it if we had not heard a Toronto hockey crowd booing a referee for a penalty against the home team.

The announcement that St. Peter's Bode, a newspaper printed in Muenster, Sask., in the German language has been barred from Germany will be the first news most Canadians have had that such a paper is published in Canada.

Five vacancies in the Senate are to be filled shortly and a good many politicians throughout the country are vainly trying to disguise the fact that they are like Mr. Micawber—waiting for something to turn up.

The Scots curlers have not had a great deal of luck in their first games on Canadian soil. That is probably not worrying them in the least for it is just the playing of the game and not the winning of it that they revel in.

COUSIN EZRA

(By A. R. K.)

¶ My Cousin Ezra he complains because his body's racked with pains, the roof is leaking too; the springs upon his bed are old, the fruit downstairs is showing mold, the coal is nearly through.

¶ The hens they lay no eggs for him, his brindle cow is poor and thin, his dog has got the mange; last night he was not feeling good, he rammed into the stove some wood, and broke the kitchen range.

¶ He has some books he likes to read, on what to do when off your feed, and when you're feeling bent; my cousin searched for them a bit and then he nearly threw a fit, he found they had been lent.

¶ The chimney smokes and hurts his eyes, he's sick from eating heavy pies, his teeth fall on the floor; he took two pails of colored pills to try and cure him of his ills, he's worse now than before.

¶ He lost his cat and so he moans, and fills the room with wails and moans, my cousin's getting thin; when he gets on a wailing spell you might as well just let him yell—there is no joy in him.

GEOLOGISTS have spent centuries finding out what the earth consists of. They've drilled holes 12,800 feet into the ground and taken temperatures at depths of 9,000 feet but until recently their only clues as to what is at the bottom of the ocean were the few inches of ooze that stuck to sounding lines.

✧ ✧ ✧

Recently Dr. Maurice Ewing, assistant professor of physics at Lehigh University explained a new method for investigating the composition of ocean beds.

✧ ✧ ✧

He got his idea from prospectors who use surface explosions to find out what lies beneath a potential oil site. The resultant waves that vibrate down into the ground travel faster through rock than loose soil and seismographs record the speed. Thus the prospectors can figure out what compose underground layers.

✧ ✧ ✧

Professor Ewing sailed off the Atlantic coast to a spot where the ocean is about three miles deep. To the end of a 5-mile steel cable he attached a 20-pound charge of TNT in a pressure-resisting container. Then he gingerly lowered the cable and bomb into the water. At four 500-foot intervals he clamped instruments that pick up vibrations. Finally 500 feet farther on he added a steel cylinder containing amplifiers, batteries, an oscillograph to record vibrations and a timing device to set off the TNT.

In 1934 Dr. Charles S. Piggot had built a 20-inch barrel of steel with a projectile at its lower end. When the gadget hit bottom six miles below a cartridge exploded driving the projectile several feet into the submarine ooze and slicing out a core of the ocean floor's top layer of mud. Included in the debris when it was analyzed were found pebbles, lime and silt that had been dry land nearly a million years ago.

Japanese Goods Dropped.

THE GROWING number of people who refuse to buy anything "made in Japan" has caused leading chain stores in the United States and Canada to stop importing Japanese merchandise and orders have gone forth from a number of firms to steer clear of Tokyo. This means more imports from European countries particularly Czechoslovakia which is best equipped to supply the novelty goods formerly supplied by the Orient.

Armiger isn't much of a stylist but he's crazy about trains. He spends much spare time in the Minneapolis railway yards talking to engineers, switchmen, watchmen and railway subofficials and at night after he has finished his homework he types out his news briefs in the South Side apartment where he lives with his mother. He pays the pastor of his church a dime monthly for the use of the church's mimeograph machine for "printing."

Air-conditioning engineers are employing refrigerated pipes—dehumidifiers—to condense water from damp air. This process is necessary to industry because candy packed in humid air will not last long for sugar absorbs moisture and chocolates may soften into sticky masses. In lithographing plants too water-soaked air may shrink paper and ruin printing jobs and so it is necessary to get the moisture out of the air.

THE BRILLIANT WONGS

Editor Examiner:

Sir: While reading the St. John Telegraph Journal tonight I noticed this in the paper so thought you might be interested in receiving it.

Yours very truly,
H. L. JOHNSTON.

R. J. Lovell traveller of Toronto and resident of Peterborough.

The clipping follows:

"Lakefield high school has produced a situation the parallel of which has probably not been seen elsewhere. At the annual commencement exercises Principal J. F. Harvey, in presenting diplomas, announced that four children from the same family stood highest in four forms of the school: Rose Wong, highest in the first form; Lily Wong, highest in the second; Mary Wong, highest in the third, and George Wong, highest in the fourth form. The average marks of each of the children was well over ninety per cent."—Peterborough Examiner.

They're going strong, these folk named Wong.

THAT WHEAT SURPLUS

Editor Examiner:

Sir: May I say that your feature-column "You May Find It Here" is a favourite among many it is my good fortune to see. That story of the disaster out of which John Wesley Hyatt won the secret of celluloid appealed to me.

Someone has spoken of the tendency in the spirit of man "to pluck from the thorn of disaster the rose of economic and social victory." As every Canadian is acutely aware, we are just emerging from a half-dozen of the most disastrous seasons in the normally rich story of Canadian wheat.

The Feed Research Institue (California) has just issued its annual review of the world wheat situation, 1936-37, and refers to a chart indicating world wheat stocks from 1926-1937 as follows: "The period spanned by Chart 9 includes one complete cycle in world carryovers. Stocks of old wheat were exceptionally low as of about August 1st 1925; they appear to have been about the same in 1937, which seems likely to mark the low point for some years to come."

In brief, it may be said that said "stocks" stood at just 500 million bushels at August 1925 and were back to a similar level at August 1937—having climbed in 1934 to "an all-time peak practically double what then seems to be a normal level." As briefly, it may be set down that a surplus (?) of 500 million bushels gathered itself around the wheat world, and was permitted to send prices for "world wheat" to ruinous levels and to keep them there for more than 5 years!

No one did anything about it—an interesting example of everybody's business being nobody's? Today, however, vast sums of real cash are being paid out for that insane experience of ruining a world of wheat farmers. During the depression years the world production of wheat for the five years (1930-34) taken together aggregated somewhere around 25,000,000,000 bushels! Imagine a miserable 500,000,000 bushels being permitted to destroy valuations for fifty times its own weight!

The duPonts would not permit that process? Germany would have turned it into 1,000,000,000 gallons of industrial alcohol!

City Manager Must Have Free Hand

In Theory Idea Is Absolutely Sound But It Has Not Worked Out So Well

(From the Sarnia Observer.)

AT THE INAUGURAL meeting of Niagara Falls city council, bylaws were adopted dismissing Herbert E. Goddard, city manager for the past 10 years, and making separate appointments to the posts of city clerk and city treasurer. Three aldermen opposed the move.

The preamble to the bylaw repealing that which originally defined the manager's duties set forth that certain authority was vested in the city manager empowering him to employ such other officials or employes as he may deem necessary to conduct the affairs of the corporation, but that the council now considers "such authority under control of one official is not in the best interests of the municipality." The only other clue afforded by the published discussion in council is found in a statement by Ald. McAninch that he believed "if it hadn't been for so much personal friendship between members of the council and the manager, Mr. Goddard might still be serving the municipality and serving it well." The whole trouble, he added, was that the manager was given too much authority.

Evidently, in the hiring and firing of city employes, the Niagara Falls manager failed to please everybody, including the aldermen. Whether or not this reflects upon the merits of the city manager plan is a matter of opinion. When Cleveland, Ohio, voted out the system, some years ago, it was said by outside observers that it had succeeded too well; that the manager saved the city a lot of money but ran counter to those who sought to exercise political control. Probably a municipality should not adopt the plan unless it is prepared to allow the manager to manage. That implies as well that the right man must be chosen for the job; but if a mistake be made there it can be rectified without throwing over the system.

Ontario municipalities and councils have not shown eagerness to delegate the powers which a manager assumes under the council-manager plan. Guelph, Chatham and Niagara Falls, as we recall, have been the only examples. Guelph council in 1924 abolished the post of manager after some years' trial, but even with the reversion of Niagara Falls there are still two cities in the province with managers, as Belleville electors a year ago voted to adopt the plan, reducing the council at the same time to a membership of six. The commission-manager plan was a plank in the platform of George H. Stirrett, alderman-ic candidate in this city in 1935, but was never approved by council. Windsor in 1929 obtained power through private legislation to appoint a city manager, and subsequently consolidated the offices of assistant city clerk and city solicitor, ostensibly as a step toward the manager system. But the method seems to gain little ground in Ontario or throughout Canada. Even in the United States, where hundreds of municipalities have adopted it, there are frequent reversions to the old plan of administration wholly by council and its committees:

Under favorable conditions, including complete co-operation on the part of the elective body with a city manager who has the administrative qualifications and the necessary independence, the system should succeed and in numerous instances has worked well. But a council cannot have its cake and eat it too, and of it is not prepared to give the manager a free hand the experiment is foredoomed. In theory the manager idea is absolutely correct. It is supposed to make efficiency the watchword of the administration but in practice, efficiency is not the first consideration on the part of those who have to go to the people to be elected. What they want is re-election.

Wants Uniformity In Daylight Saving

Only Way Out Is Passing a Provincial Law And a Federal Measure Would Be Better

(From the Brantford Expositor.)

AT THE RECENT municipal election in Peterborough the citizens voted on the proposal to adopt daylight saving and everwhelmingly endorsed it by a vote of 3,095 to 1,531. That was the most emphatic endorsation ever registered in that city on this issue. The Peterborough Examiner records that the last time a vote was taken on the question four years ago the by-law was defeated by the narrow margin of fifty-four votes. Later in the year, when a number of the factories went on summer time of their own accord, the Council passed a daylight saving by-law and the system has been in force during the summer months ever since. Apparently the citizens were convinced of the desirability of daylight saving, for only three out of thirty-nine polling subdivisions gave a majority against it.

In Brantford daylight saving for some reason has not won popular favor, perhaps largely for the circumstance that towns and cities throughout Ontario are divided on the issue, thereby creating confusion in time schedules. There is only one way, however, by which uniformity can be reached, and that is by the various municipalities voluntarily adopting the scheme in such large numbers that it can be made a provincial law. A Federal enactment, however, would be more serviceable similar to that which prevailed in 1918, when the entire Dominion was forced to go on daylight saving.

It is sometimes argued that fast time is not popular among workers in factories, yet in Toronto and Hamilton, the two largest industrial cities in the Province, it has gained and retained overwhelming support. Early in the war the British people saw the wisdom of adopting daylight saving as a means toward the more efficient prosecution of their part in the conflict. When peace came they adopted it permanently as providing not only financial saving, but greater leisure for recreational pleasures. There is no doubt that it has its advantages. It saves the long mornings for work and the long summer evenings for personal enjoyment. It affords opportunity for gardening, indulgence in recreation and sport, motoring, or any other pleasures in which people delight to participate. Some day Canadians may be uniformly appreciative of its advantages.

Hard to Believe How Time Flies

JANUARY 10.

1908: School Board estimates it will require $45,000 to finance its operations this year.

Dr. J. A. Morgan has been installed as leader of Peterborough Circle No. 193, Canadian Order of Home Circles.

The Board of Education chairman for the year are B. F. Ackerman, property, L. M. Hayes, Finance, John Crane supervision and W. H. Hill, appointments.

The Lindsay Hockey Club runs a special train to Peterborough and for the first time on record defeats the local intermediates here. The score is 6 to 4.

1918: Gus Kastantino, employee of the Boston Cafe loses his life when a fire sweeps through the building.

Harry Blewett, Lakefield member of the 93rd Battalion has been awarded the Military Medal for gallantry overseas.

A quota of 62 draftees from Kingston, under Lieut. Mark, has reached the local armouries.

Word is received that Pte. T. P. Reid, formerly of the 93rd Battalion is suffering from gas poisoning.

Dr. J. H. Hess has been elected reeve of the village of Hastings.

1928: Tablet is unveiled by the 21st Battalion club to the memory of fallen members of the battalion.

Hon. G. Howard Ferguson promises to address the Women's Canadian Club in the near future.

900 Entries have already been received for the annual poultry show.

V. J. McElderry is elected president of the Peterborough Law Association.

Dr. J. J. Craig, W. H. Dickin, J. John and J. J. Turner are appointed chairmen of committees making arrangements for the boy scout gathering here.

A Bible Message For To-day . . . .

CANST THOU by searching find out God? canst thou find out the Almighty unto perfection? . . . If thou prepare thine heart, and stretch out thine hands toward him; if iniquity be in thine hand, put it far away, and let not wickedness dwell in thy tabernacles. For then shalt thou lift up thy face without spot; yea, thou shalt be steadfast, and shalt not fear: because thou shalt forget thy misery, and remember it as waters that pass away; and thine age shall be clearer than the noonday; thou shalt shine forth, thou shalt be as the morning. And thou shalt be secure, because there is hope; yea thou shalt dig about thee, and thou shalt lie down, and none shall make thee afraid.—Job xi, 7, 13-19.

✧ ✧ ✧

There is no fear in love; but perfect love casteth out fear: because fear hath torment. He that feareth is not made perfect in love.—I John iv, 18.

✧ ✧ ✧

Let us hear the conclusion of the whole matter: Fear God, and keep his commandments: for this is the whole duty of man. For God shall bring every work into judgment, with every secret thing, whether it be good, or whether it be evil.— Eccl. xii, 13, 14.

LUKE HANSARD.

(Manchester Guardian)

LUKE HANSARD, whose surname is now everlastingly associated with the official reports of Parliament and whose portrait in the members' dining room at the House of Commons it is proposed to clean, was born at Norwich in 1752. He was brought up a printer, but Norwich did not satisfy his ambitions, so, like Dick Whittington and Samuel Johnson, he turned his face towards London. He found employment with Hughes, the printer to the House of Commons, and in time succeeded to the business. His despatch and accuracy in printing Parliamentary papers and reports won him a great reputation, and he became quite an institution.

At first he did not employ a special staff, but took the reports of speeches from the morning papers. Those reports were not always correct, for they were often altered and amplified in accordance with the wishes of members. On his death in 1828 the business was continued by his family, but in the late eighties Hansard became a public company.

for fixed charges and services.

Therefore when it comes to lowering the tax rate, unless given the co-operation of other civic bodies, the Council has a difficult problem.

I believe that we will have the co-operation of all civic bodies this year, and I am hopeful that a further reduction in the tax rate can be made. However, a reduction in the rate will depend also upon the measure of co-operation given the Council by the Provincial Government and also upon the continued good employment record of our industries, because unemployment will mean increased relief costs.

I urge upon the Council the benefits to be derived in smoother efficiency in the city offices from striking the tax rate as early as possible. I hope we can strike the rate at least a month earlier this year than usual.

Low Fire Loss Record

I desire at this time to compliment Alderman Wilson, Fire, Water and Light Committee chairman of last year, the Fire Chief and his Department, on their record for 1937 of the lowest fire loss in the city's history. I also desire to thank the citizens who by their co-operation made this fine record possible. I express the hope that this condition may continue, because at the present time the Council is trying to have the fire insurance key rate for this city reduced, which if accomplished will be a great saving to every citizen.

In 1937 the Council expended approximately $32,000 for charity. Charity is the term applied to payment of hospitalization of Peterborough people who are unable to pay for such services. These payments were made chiefly for patients in sanitaria of which we are now maintaining 22, and for patients in local hospitals.

I sincerely believe that it is only right that our sick should receive the best attention and services medical science can give. However, I do not think that municipalities should have to pay the cost of this ever-growing social service. The Provincial Government by establishing a Department of Health has acknowledged its responsibility for the health of the people of the Province. It is my view that the hospitalization costs of those who can not pay, particularly those suffering from tuberculosis, should be borne by the province.

43 New Homes in 1936

Last year's Council, as Mayor Macdonald stated in the Examiner, finished with a balanced budget and we are starting with a clean financial slate. During the last essessment year 43 new homes were built. The City Council encouraged this home building. I am hopeful that greater encouragement in this direction can be given this year. I think this can be done by interesting real estate men in the sale of city lots, thus more lots will be sold and more homes built.

The year promises to be a busy one for this Council. One of immediate decision deals with the garbage collection system. A committee of the last Council studied garbage collection and recommended that the city take direct responsibility for this service and have a motorized system. We must immediately strike the garbage rate, and decide upon the system.

Foot-bridge Needed

Another matter which requires immediate attention is that of building a foot-bridge on the London street dam. Unless this bridge is built, I understand the dam will be closed to pedestrians.

Consideration should be given also to the advisability of making suitable housing facilities for our Board of Works machinery, trucks, etc. This equipment is valuable, must be kept in first class repair, and should be properly housed.

Victorious Loyalists

Pouring into the city of Teruel, for many months the spearpoint of a dangerous insurgent salient pointing directly at Valencia, are Spanish loyalist troops after their sudden advance through blinding snow and bitter cold surprised and defeated the insurgent garrison. After capturing main sections of the city, the loyalists faced days of bitter fighting with small detachments of rebels barricaded in the city's older quarter plus counter-attacks by the insurgent armies north of the city before the success was consolidated. Labor squads can be seen beginning the task of clearing the debris of bombardment even as the loyalist regiments march into Teruel.

Improvement of our local produce marketing facilities is awaiting the Council's attention also. Existing conditions are claimed to be very unsatisfactory.

The incinerator is another problem for this Council. It has been used over capacity for some years, and while it has been repaired from time to time, its period of usefulness appears very limited.

This city has always prided itself on its beautiful shade trees. However, a close examination of our streets will disclose that many of our trees are dying. I believe the time has arrived when a program of tree planting should be put into effect. Many old trees that are in a state of decay should be removed and others planted in their places if Peterborough is to continue as a city of trees.

I hope that the Council will decide to improve the driveway and enlarge the parking arrangements at the Ashburnham Memorial Park, one of the city's popular beauty spots. I think a roadway can be built at moderate cost over the northern portion of the property too. We must also endeavour to make progress in beautifying the Crescent about Little Lake. A plan for this work has already been suggested.

Improve Tourist Camp

Improvements are required at the city's tourist camp at Riverside Park. I believe that at small cost the facilities of the park may be improved, and considerable revenue derived from the operation of the park for tourists.

Many of our city roadways require re-surfacing of a permanent nature. In Peterborough we have shown beyond question that the Board of Works is capable of building good hard-surfaced roads that stand up under motor traffic and which are free from dust. Surfaces of the type I mean are on Burnham street and Sherbrooke street west from Park street.

We have our own stone quarry now and we are well equipped to produce at low cost the necessary crushed stone. I hope the Council will do considerable of this kind of road work this year.

For some years the Council has economized on the Board of Works and it was impossible to purchase modern equipment. Last year some equipment was purchased, but I hope that this year we can purchase a street oiler, which is needed if best results are to be obtained from road repair work. Better methods of street cleaning are also desired.

We must continue to impress upon the Dominion Government the need of a new building here to house its public services. We must also continue our work in the Central Ontario Highways Association in order that work is commenced soon on the new east-and-west highway through Central Ontario. In my opinion the building of this road will be of great importance not only to Peterborough, but also the whole area between this city and Orangeville, and to the commercial and tourist business of the whole province.

More Industries Needed

More important than anything else, however, will be the securing of new industries. A determined and well organized effort must be undertaken this year to induce more factories to locate in Peterborough. It may not be easy, but we have done it in the past and we can do it again. If this city is to grow and prosper more employment must be provided. Let us get behind this effort whole-heartedly not only to get more industries but also to induce those already here to extend their activities in Peterborough.

Probably an outstanding event of this year in Peterborough will be the official visit of the Governor-General, Lord Tweedsmuir. We have reason to hope that the Vice-Regal party will come to Peterborough this summer and possibly spend a few days here and in the lake district.

I have touched briefly upon some of the matters requiring this Council's attention. I am confident that, working in harmony and in sincerity of purpose, this Council shall perform its duties to the satisfaction and benefit of the citizens."

Face Broke Out In Large, Red Pimples

Many an otherwise beautiful and attractive face; many a cheek and brow in the mould of beauty, have been sadly defaced, their attractiveness lost by the presence of skin eruptions.

Pimples are caused by the blood being in an impure condition, and are a source of embarrassment, and many of those so afflicted are ashamed to go out in company.

Burdock Blood Bitters drives out the impurities from the blood, and leaves the complexion clear, smooth and healthy.

MISS PHYLLIS TWIDDY, Ivanhoe, Ont., writes:—"Last spring my face and back began breaking out in large, red pimples.

It was very embarrassing for me to go out in company, and people began to avoid me.

I tried several kinds of blood purifiers, but none of them seemed to help me. I heard of Burdock Blood Bitters. I took three bottles, and my friends wondered where all the pimples had disappeared to."

Aged Whittler Attending Classes Learns Wood-Working At Age Of 90

WINNIPEG, Jan. 10 (CP)—J. I. Langille, white-haired, blue-eyed old gentleman who has made whittling his hobby since boyhood, has enrolled at Kelvin night school to learn more about wood-working at the age of 90.

One of the hearty bluenose stock from Nova Scotia, Mr. Langille has not missed a class since the term began. His teacher says he generally arrives a few minutes early and he is one of the tidiest members of the class.

"I have been whittling ever since I was a youngster. Many's the scolding my mother gave me for making a mess around the house," he chuckled.

He farmed in Nova Scotia until 1906 when he journeyed to Drake, Sask. "I made a mint of money out there but lost it all," he said. He settled on a farm at Stonewall, Man., 12 miles north of Winnipeg, in 1919. In recent years he has been working in his Winnipeg gardens and is as active as most men half his age.

Sleep regularly, keep out in the open and go right on working is his motto. "If I hadn't kept working I'd have probably been in my box long ago."

His hearing is still good and he wears glasses only for fine work. "I think I must be getting my second eyesight. I used to wear my glasses a lot more than I do now."

He proudly displayed the magazine stand he is making at school, and told how much he enjoyed the work. Next summer he will get at his gardening again.

Miss Okada was billed for a performance in one of the leading theatres in Tokio this month.

TSINGTAO FALLS, GERMANS ESCORT JAPS TO CITY HALL

TSINGTAO, Jan. 10 (AP)—Japanese navy tonight occupied this rich north China port without firing a shot. Landing parties of Japanese marines marched in without meeting the slightest opposition.

First of the forces of occupation to arrive was a contingent of 400 marines which landed at Shtzekow, 18 miles from here, and marched in afoot.

Shortly afterward Japanese troopships entered the harbor and began disembarking additional marines. Five Japanese destroyers lay offshore.

As its new masters marched in Tsingtao was peaceful. A few Chinese in the streets went about their affairs apparently unperturbed by the passage of their city once more to alien control.

The entering marines were supported by naval airplanes which roared overhead in groups of three.

No Shore Leave

Foreign warships in the harbor permitted no shore leave tonight, but otherwise their routine was unchanged.

A delegation of German residents carrying the Nazi flag met the first Japanese contingent, assured its commander the city was not defended and escorted the Japanese to the city hall.

The hoisting of the white flag by the remaining Chinese leaders was in compliance with Japan's demands in leaflets dropped from planes for such evidence of submission.

The leaflets announced Japan was taking over administration of Tsingtao and its district. They warned those who did not yield would be killed. Foreigners were warned to keep away from danger zones and to concentrate for safety.

It was on flagstaff hill the German flag was hoisted 40 years ago on Tsingtao's first surrender to a foreign power. Since then it has been German, Japanese and again Chinese territory.

FARM PROBLEMS ABLY DISCUSSED BY H. B. COWAN

Recent agricultural developments in Canada, particularly the organization and activities of the Canadian Chamber of Agriculture were discussed in a most interesting and informative manner by H. B. Cowan in addressing the Peterborough Rotary Club at its weekly luncheon today. Mr. Cowan, who is secretary of the Chamber, pointed out that the organization had been effected two years ago because of the desire of the farmers of Canada for an effective scheme of national marketing and because of the depressed condition of agriculture throughout the Dominion.

It was announced during the meeting by Rotarian Ald. James Juby that the city council at its inaugural meeting this morning had appointed James Dutton to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation last year of Max Sloan and the announcement was received with hearty applause by the Rotarians.

Among the guests today were J. J. Duffus, M.P., Dr. G. Raymore Scott, chairman of the Board of Education, Ald. Walter Stocker and Herb McCannan and Rotarians Frank Mitcell of Windsor, and N. Denham of Blenheim, Ont.

To Hold Joint Meeting

President Dutton suggested that Rotary hold a joint meeting some Friday with the Kiwanis Club to hear an address by a representative of the provincial mental clinic and the proposal received the approval of the meeting.

The speaker was introduced by President Dutton and began by pointing out that agricultural developments in the last few years had been so rapid that it was difficult to keep in touch with them. Speaking of the tendency to look askance at the leadership of farm organizations Mr. Cowan recalled attending agricultural meetings in the west 20 or more years ago at which such men as Charles A. Dunning, T. A. Crerar, E. C. Drury and others attended and said that in the leaders now available there were men just as capable of playing a big part in Canadian development.

The speaker dealt with some of the reasons for the formation of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, pointing out that the farmers felt that the old law of supply and demand was no longer working satisfactorily and that some national marketing plan was necessary to meet the situation. At the same time the depressed condition of agriculture was also a factor in bringing about the organization of the chamber. A recent survey had shown that over half the farmers in the United States did not own their farms and reports from the Farmers' Creditors' Arrangement Administration showed the situation was develop... side of the line. 29,659 fa... made applications under ... act, and their total liabilities were $178,000,000 as against assets of $126,000,000.

The speaker explained the construction of the Chamber which was based on provincial chambers reinforced by representatives of a number of Dominion-wide farm organizations so that it was thoroughly representative of farm opinion throughout the country. Mr. Cowan pointed out a number of important matters which the Chamber had been closely studying including the New Zealand experiment of guaranteeing prices for cheese and but-

LEAFS OUTSCORE HOCKEYISTS LOSE CLOSE 2-1 CONTEST TO WESTWOOD

...D CLUB Re-arranged Last Pla... ELGIN ...AST BATTLE

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Jan. 10.—Westwood defeated Elgin 2 to 1 Saturday night in a scheduled game of East Peterborough Rural Hockey League, played in Norwood rink. Considerable rivalry has developed between these teams and as a result spectators saw a much faster type of hockey than their previous games. The games are a bit rough but the boys seem to take it all in fun. Two, thirty minute periods were played in order to clear the ice for the Saturday night skaters.

Four minutes after the face-off in the first period, Sargent for Westwood outguessed E. Preston, Elgin goalie, and got the first counter. C. Stevenson from a scramble in front of Elgin net scored Westwood's final goal. At 20 minutes, Bruce Scott for Elgin scored their first and only counter of the game. Elgin began to put on the pressure, after their goal and play was mostly in Westwood territory. J. Graham for Westwood got a 2 minute penalty for tripping. F. Spencer, Westwood goalie was badly worried for the time his team was a player short. R. Thistlewaite for Egin was given a penalty for boarding.

Spencer for Westwood made many nice saves as the shots came at him. Elgin scored a goal only to have it called back for an offside. Penalties were given Bruce Graham and J. Graham, Westwood players, for tripping. Spencer was again the target for many shots as the close of the final period approached. Both teams were really mixing it up in fine style as the gong sounded. The line-ups:—

Westwood: Goal, F. Spencer; defence, W. Buck, J. Graham; centre, A. Stevenson; wings, E. Stevenson and C. Stevenson; alternates, S. Ross, L. Sargent, E. Morris, J. Chapman, W. Graham, B. Graham, C. Lockhead, A. Starke.

Elgin: Goal, E. Preston; defence, F. Grady, V. Fleming; centre, R. Richardson; wings, G. Richardson, J. Preston; alternates, R. Thistlewaite, R. Scott, L. Fleming, B. Scott, C. Metcalfe, J. Richardson.

Hastings Player Is Seriously Hurt

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Jan. 10 — Carlos (Lefty) McCoy, husky defenceman of Hastings juniors hockey team, will be on the sidelines for at least two weeks. He was walking about with the aid of crutches Sunday due to injured ligaments in his leg, sustained in the Hastings-Warsaw game, Friday night. He had fallen on the ice and a Warsaw player accidentally tripped over him, stretching the ligaments in his foot and causing some damage to his knee.

Future Cupper?

JOSEPH FISHBACK

Defeating Martin Kantrowitz of University of Texas, Joseph Fishback, above, of St. John's University, becomes new U.S. junior indoor tennis champion in New York. Fishback is hailed by eastern experts as promising Davis Cup material.

MUNRO FEATURES QUEEN'S VICTORY

PRINCETON, N.J., Jan 10.—(CP).—Headed by Johnny Munro, bullet-shot centre, Queen's University downed Princeton 3 to 2 in an International Intercollegiate hockey game here Saturday. It was the third defeat suffered by Princeton this season at the hands of Canadian opposition.

In the first period Munro picked up a pass from Williamson, and in the final session Poupore and Miller both figured in Munro's scoring play. Doug Baker netted a pass from Bob Burke for Princeton's first tally, with Al Lane capping the scoring late in the game.

McEwen's work in Queen's goal was one of the features of the contest, particularly in the second period, when Princeton's plays were clicking.

Italy received over $12,000,000 for silk sent to other countries in the last year.

TOOLROOM WINS C.G.E. FIXTURE

Toolroom took a 2-1 tussle from Induction Motors Saturday afternoon at the Brock St. Rink in their first clash of the C.G.E. Shop Hockey League season. Each side scored a goal in the opening inning and the victors blasted one by Black in the middle heat to earn the nod. It was a nice hockey game with lots of fast, smart puck play dished up between two experienced and well-matched squads, each sporting some classy puckists on the lineups. The losers fought hard to score the equalizers in the third but were checked too closely.

Williams notched the first goal but Londevin tied it up for the Motormen in the first period. Barnes banged in the winning counter in the second. Barnes, Williams, Inkpen and McDougall shone for the winners, while Londevin, Schultz and Creighton looked best for the losers. Both goalies kicked aside a raft of hot stabs. The teams:

Induction Motors: Goal, Black; defence, Jakafby, King; centre, Sharpe; wings, Johnson, Londevin; alternates, Young, Schultz, G. Creighton, Stabler.

Toolroom: Goal, Sanderson; defence, Barnes, Giardino; centre, Williams; wings, Wade, McDougall; alternates, Inkpen, Lipsett, Conroy, Wellman, Connor.

Referee—Red Creighton.

C.G.E. SHOP LOOP OPENS WITH DRAW

The C.G.E. Shop Hockey League was officially opened at Brock St. rink Saturday afternoon before a good crowd of fans, with Wire Dept. and Fractionals battling to a 1-1 tie. Taking part in the opening ceremony were E. G. Hardie, I. McRae, H. A. Cranfield, Jack McCarney and Chris Jay.

Both goals were scored in the initial inning and both sides battled hard but vainly through the scoreless second and third chukkers. Loucks tallied unassisted from Fractionals, while Heal hemped the Wire marker, aided by Pammett. These latter two, with Bannon and Williams went best for the Wire crew, while Loucks and Whatman stood out for the other outfit. Both goalies made a flock of neat stops, and both teams suffered from numerous penalties. The teams.

Wire Dept.: Goal, Bannon; defence, Williams, Beuaclerc; centre, Heal; wings, Jobe, Pammett; alternates, F. Spencely, Walker, Millard, Moher, Hawkes, Barry.

Referee—Red Creighton.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

JAVA JOE, who slugs coffee and mangles words with equal gusto, was dunking a doughnut in a bowl of java late Saturday night when we hit the eating house. "Hi, you," says we, "long time no see." And he returns the greeting: "Long time, nosey!" We fell to discussing the 5-3 win for the R.C.A.F. Fliers over the Petes on Friday p.m. here. "The Air Forcibles guys," Joseph offers, "declose more complication on the attack with their passing, and their shooting is more accumulate, too—always right at the gool. The Petes aren't in the pint of contrition yet, but here they go shooting three-men rushes right to the gool-mouth, instead of hanging one back near their own descents. They assemble the action of Eel Deuce of Italy playing both ends against the muddle with Franco on the Spainish front. He'll bite off more than he can emancipate, too, just as sure as gun is medal!"

* * * * * *

SORT OF fascinated by this criticism in reverse English, we adroitly steered Joe back onto hockey and away from European—and English—entanglements by asking him how our lads shaped up. "It is as simple as Abie's sea," says he, "and I told some of the frantics at the game who were reclined to cricket size the Peters and hand them the huckleberry. Give the Peters three or four more fixers nader their belches and they will have the contrition to make those Air Forcibles from the Airdrum think they got hardening of the artilleries. The Peters have a good gooley, a strong descents that will reprove in the near futurity, and three or four frontmen who will give any exponent a hard time. There are also a couple of lilies of the value on the team who toil not neither do they backcheck, as some Scribe or Parisee quotated a spell back. Bring up a few of the immediates, make the team practise till the preparation is in beads on their foreheads, give them a few more fixers, and you've got a team that will elucidate the Air Forcibles."

* * * * * *

JOE, WHO really is a well-read chap, though he kicks the King's English around in pitiful style, discussed a lot of things. We finally got a wedge in and worked the subject around to rugby, not having seen him since the U.S. celebrated Turkey Day. "That game will never become preposterous for the guys putting up the financee obligations," he predicts, "owing to weather contritions. I personality have no white corpse cells but I am not in the market for ammonia, so I seldom become a griddle frantic. The last day they had two payoff contrasts on two local griddles, one at the nickel oval and one in the river park. It was most complicity for the overage frantic."

* * * * * *

WITH A soupish gurgle, Java Joe drained his cup, and resumed: "However, I resided not to pay any absorbent price but to see both fixers if possible. I dunned a colorful sweater shirt and toted an empty black suitcase along to both fixers, and stated: 'Trainer' each time a guy asked me for my ticket. No trouble at all. But I nearly got high blood pleasure when the P.C. studies submerged victorious while the useful spirits all yelled about highchair, highchair, chin, chin, grub! At the Orfuls' game I lost a bet of modern proportionings to an actoroon, or maybe he was not more than 70—but a tough baby when I tried for fun to kid him it wasn't the score at halftime at all I had bet upon. It was my only griddle experience last year. But forfeiting sports, did you see where the Japansies are cuffing about the foreign cops in their territorial in Shangay now?" But we dug deep for two bits to cover a hot meat sandwich and java, and waved adieu to Joseph.

TWO OF our O.H.A. teams trek to other ice cushions this p.m. to do battle in group fixtures. The Colts have a junior "B" scrap 'gainst Havelock on the Norwood ice surface while the intermediate Bees are in Oshawa. That latter should be a tough morsel, all right. The Bees don't play again, after tonight, till Whitby comes here a week from this eve. Ye Queen's U. squad has a senior "B" joust here Wednesday against the Petes, and another huge crowd should be on deck at the Brock for it. On Friday, Havelock and the Colts clash here in another junior squabble. And that's the dope affecting local O.H.A.-ers this week.

* * * * * *

JUNIOR CITY Hockey League is away in a cloud of smoke tonight at the Brock, a triple-header opening the 1938 schedule at seven bells. It is Monarchs vs. P.C.I. in the first fray, Canadiens against Bombers at eight, and St. Peter's vs. All Saints at nine. These six squads step into action each Monday night, all games being at the Brock St. arena. The lively young City Puck Loop is sponsored by the Hockey Club and is first-rate training for future O.H.A. stars. Most of the present Colts are former City Leaguers. Should be plenty of action in the trio of tilts tonight, and fans are invited to give them a look-see.

* * * * * *

FOUR GAMES gave the C.G.E. Shop Hockey League a bangup beginning on Saturday at the Brock St. rink on fast ice before a goodly gathering of fans and fannettes. Opening ceremony saw E. G. Hardie, H. A. Cranfield, I. McRae, Chris Jay and Jack McCarney, taking part. Fractionals and Wire Dept. started it with a 1-1 draw, Switchgears took a 5-3 nod over Machine Shop, Office dropped a 4-2 decision to Refrigerator Cabinets, and Toolroom beat Induction Motors by a 2-1 count. Lots of action, penalties and good puck play seen. Quite a bunch of O.H.A. players perform in this nine-team shop circuit and the calibre of hockey is fairly high. Three or four games every Saturday aft at the rink, free gratis for fans.

* * * * * *

QUINTE REDMEN were rubbed out of the VanHorne playoffs in Kingston the other eve by the Kingston crew, who now tangle with the Fliers in finals. Queen's play in Belleville tonight in a four-point game, Bert Hedges being referee. Incidentally, ex-Umpire Ken Colling of Belleville, who writes sports sometimes, must be writing his column these days—as he umps his ball games—minus the needed services of specs! He stated the other day we had mentioned Belleville winning a senior O.B.A.A. title in 1922—when it should have been 1928. A checkup will show we called the turn for 1928, with no mention made of '22. Now, we wonder just who was in the right that playoff contest in Kingston last fall when Peg Hurst was fingered out of the game by Colling!

* * * * * *

OBSERVATION PLATFORM: Dundas Red Bombers, who rubbed out our Orfuns in grid finals last month, were feted in Hamilton Sat'day . . . . Seven of the eight teams in the Knotty Lee pro ball loop say they'll be back in '38 . . . . Some Church Loop and City League cage dope in tonight . . . . And the Ladies' Basketball League schedule is listed this eve . . . . Max Reesor will referee the Bees' tussle tonight in Oshawa . . . . St. Paul's-Murray St. church puck game billed for eight tonight is called off; St. Paul's on Thursday e'en at eight will play George St. Juveniles at All Saints' rink . . . . Two P.C.I. cage crews started their schedules with wins in Cobourg . . . . Despite the big crowd, the Riverview A.C. dropped dough on the last mitt show here—due to heavy expenses and so many free fans . . . . Belleville Redmen hope to bolster tonight with two more players . . . . One hails from Prescott—we know his place but can't face him!

SWITCHGEAR WINS OVER MACHINISTS

Switchgear took a 5-3 decision over Machine Shop to start their C.G.E. Shop Hockey League schedule Saturday afternoon in the Brock St. rink. It was a fast, fairly even fixture on good ice before a nice crowd of rooters. The score was 2-1 for the winners in the first frame and 4-2 for them going into the even third canto. The losers battled hard, especially in the wind-up stanza but were down two at the finish. Play was speedy and mostly clean throughout.

Tompkins scored three markers for the victors with a fine performance, while Legon got one and Abraham, aided by Weir, tallied the other. Tompkins, McNabb and Leggitt starred for the winners. Edward, Murduff and Langton were the Machine Shop scorers, the latter along with Riel going best for the losers. The teams:

Switchgear: Goal, McNabb; defence, Whatley, Weir; centre, Tompkins; wings, Padgett, Legon; alternates, Abraham, Mowry, Maudsley, C. Heal, Leggitt.

Machine Shop: Goal, Heath; defence, McGillen, Seabrooke; centre, Riel; wings, Langton, Charlton; alternates, Murduff, Bullock, Edwards, Curtin, Pearson.

Referee—Red Creighton.

OFFICE GANG LOSE TO REFRIGERATORS

Refrigerator Cabinets copped a 4-2 nod over the Office outfit Saturday afternoon at the Brock St. rink to start their schedule in the C.G.E. Shop Hockey League. An edge in the second period when they ran in two counters without a comeback gave the winners the edge, each side tallying once in the first and third chukkers. It was a lively scrap with some good hockey in spots, fast skating and rugged checking.

Brady, Vitarelli, Magee and Brown scored for the Cabinets while Tranter and Starr bulged the hemp for the White-Collar crew. Magee and Brady played outstanding hockey for the winners, as Starr and Provey proved best for the losing squad. A number of O.H.A. puckists lined up for this game. The teams:

Ref. Cabinets: Goal, Fleming; defence, Spencely, Magee; centre, Vitarelli; wings, Brady, Brown; alternates, Flint, Ralph, Earle, Tedford.

Office: Goal, Prevey; defence, Murphy, McMullen; centre, Primeau; wings, Hugh, Palmer; alternates, Edson, Tollington, Starr, Tranter, Parnall.

Referee—Red Creighton.

CURLING

Echoes From No. '8'

By HERB MARTIN

The first 1938 Saturday afternoon bonspiel proved that these competitions are just as popular as ever, with every inch of available ice being used. It may seem hard at first but we believe the boys appreciate starting right on time and being through around 5 o'clock. The ice was fast and the games close, there being only one three-game winner.

We heard unofficially, that the district cup playoffs may be staged here next Friday, January 14.... James Harkness, C. Giroux, Harry Dulmage and Elmer Metcalfe will leave tomorrow (Tuesday) morning to play in the Midland bonspiel.... Mrs. Don Clarke, Rubidge Street, entertained a nice crowd of mixed curlers after the Saturday evening games.

Bonspiel Winners.

First: R. Williamson, T. Ryan, G. Robertson, Sr., J. Lowes (skip)—3 wins plus 15.

Second: W. Fletcher, J. Adams, G. Robertson, Jr., J. Sedgewick (skip)—2 wins, 1 tie plus 14.

Third: D. Bell, T. Doughty, D. Grant, H. Clegg (skip)—2 wins plus 13.

Fourth: W. Sinclair, R. Martin, C. Taylor, J. Richmond (skip)—2 wins plus 10.

Electrics Lose To St. Paul's

St. Paul's, last year's champs, proved too much for C.G.E. in a preliminary City Basketball League game Saturday night at the "Y" and copped a 40-22 victory. It was close in the first half but one-sided the last session. Thorburn returned to form with 19 points. Weir and Marsh formed a stout defence. The C.G.E. weakness was lack of experienced defencemen. Cadd and Jakafby went best for them. This game was an exhibition one before the league opens. The teams:

St. Paul's: Marsh, Pulkinghorn, Gemmell, Thorburn, Broadley, Weir, Sedgewick.

C.G.E.: Jakafby, A. Holmes, Cadd, Magee, G. Hunter, Galley, Brindle, Archibald, Cameron, Tranter.

Referees—V. Holmes, H. Hammell.

YALE TIES BLUES

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Jan. 10 (CP)—Yale University's Battling Bulldogs came from behind here Saturday night to earn a 2-2 tie with Toronto University in an International Intercollegiate Hockey League overtime game.

Nearing The End

AUEL JOLIAT

This season will mark the end of the hockey trail for little Aurel Joliat according to a Montreal report which says that the mighty "Little Atom" of the puck lanes has just about decided he is through. Still a dangerous scoring threat the midget left-winger with the heart of fire is finding the bumps harder to take as he slows down to a pace that permits defence men to land the checks that once failed to connect.

Badminton

R. O. BENSON

After a lull, experienced by practically every club in the city during the Christmas holiday season, good crowds showed up at the Armouries and Peterborough courts, braving the sting of a frosty Saturday night. Most of the stars of each spot were on hand to get in a practice for forthcoming home and home series with out of town teams. The Armouries club expects to take on the Port Hope Garrison crowd here about Jan. 24th and then hop back to the lakeshore town that same week or at least before the end of January. Peterborough people are also contemplating a home and home series with Port Hope soon.

Up at the military stronghold mixed doubles games predominated. One of the neatest of these fixtures was that in which Florence Adams and Gord Tollington gave battle to Helen Cole and Ken Anderson. Johnny Sparrow was back in the thick of it after being out for six weeks with a bad ankle. He was still favouring it a little, but got a good workout with Mrs. Sparrow as they were shaded 15-12 and 15-11 by Col. and Mrs. Stuart. Margaret Rogers and Howie Shields had a noticeable edge on Vi Davidson and Red Sorby. In a men's doubles encounter, Major Bolton showed up extremely well. His play along with the redoubtable Jack Green featured their match with Gil Putnam and Russ Kitchen, the latter coming to bat with some clever plays.

Scheduled intra-mural matches were called off at the market hall club Wednesday since many seemed still exhausted after the big job of bringing the new year in. On Saturday, however, a real bunch came out and gave up a good display. Men's doubles games, in particular, were of good quality and the Toole-Ross and Howson-Hall game stood out. The teachers took the verdict 15-10 with a steady offensive fighting against stiff opposition. Jim Hall, who looks better every time out, had some beautiful low pick-ups and was uncorking some brilliant smashes. Dr. Howson was all right too...Herb Bradburn lined up with Grahaeme Faulkner, won quite handily from Johnny Murphy and Jim Esson, a hard-hitting pair when they're clicking, in a nice contest.

SCHOOL LEAGUE OPENS JAN. 14

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 10.—Norwood and Havelock schools have joined with Campbellford to form the inter school league for the 1937-1938 season and at a meeting held on Saturday attended by representatives of the three schools S. S. Breckon of Norwood was elected honorary chairman of the league, Earl Stephens, Campbellford was made chairman and E. H. Greig also of Campbellford was elected corresponding secretary. Mr. Drinkwater of Havelock will be secretary-treasurer.

It was decided there would be a play-off only if the team in second place had beaten or tied the league leaders and also that the home team should supply its own referee with visiting team to bring at least two officials.

The winning team will go into the Ontario Secondary School playdowns.

Jan. 14—Norwood at Campbellford.
Jan. 20—Havelock at Norwood.
Jan. 25—Campbellford at Havelock.
Feb. 1—Campbellford at Norwood.
Feb. 8—Havelock at Campbellford.
Feb. 10—Norwood at Havelock.

P.C.I. Senior Boys Get 39-28 Victory

P.C.I. senior boys' cage team opened its schedule in the Cobourg "bear pit" on Friday evening, with a 39-28 win over the strong Cobourg crew. It was a close fast contest, with 25 personal fouls called, 14 on Peterborough, with the homesters capitalizing on six and the Petes on nine. The score was 21-16 for the visitors as the see-saw first half ended.

Turner and Foster led the leaders with 17 and 11 points respectively, the former outstanding in close and Foster netting many shots. Davern flashed numerous combination plays while Kelly and Johnston formed a close-checking defence, each getting three points, as did Cutting. For the losers, Payne and Lucas were deadly from a distance, getting 13 and 9 each. Ravensdale and Guy were good on defence. Davern, Foster, Turner and Kelly all had three fouls called on them. The teams:

P.C.I.: Davern, Cutting, Dougherty, Foster, Turner, Johnston, Kelly, Smith.

Cobourg: Guy, Ravensdale, Turpin, McLaren, Drewy, Payne, Lucas, Parkinson, Winter, Woods, Thomas.

City Cage Loop Starts Season

In an exhibition City Basketball League game Saturday night in the Y.M.C.A., the Kings took a 25-16 win from the Clothiers. The score was 9-7 for the losers at halftime but the Kings went on a scoring spree in the last heat to cop the nod. They had a better defence in Grose, Gunsolus and Smart to earn the win. White and V. Holmes led the scorers with three baskets each. The teams:

Kings: V. Holmes, Wolstenhome, M. Hunter, Ferguson, Downing, Laing, McMillan, Rennie, Hunt, Porter.

Clothiers: Grose, Gunsolus, Smart, White, McArthur, Thomas, Hammell, Weese.

Referees—O. Weir, J. Jakafby.

Skiing Hints

By Fritz Loosli

INSTRUCTOR, TORONTO SKI CLUB

THE LIFTED STEM....READY TO START THE ACTUAL TURN

When confidence has been gained in the stem turn and rhythm acquired in weight-shifting the lifted stem should be mastered.

Start at the top of a hill preferably and at low speed. When ready for turn begin as in the stem turn; when halfway around drop the point of your ski pole into the snow about a foot from the top of the inside ski and six inches away from it laterally (the left pole for a left turn, the right pole for a right turn. Trust the weight which you have been carrying on the inside ski, to the police which is kept in a line with the shoulder (see cut). The iside or unweighed ski is then lifted completely clear of the snow and carried around parallel to the lower ski which has already swung through the turn.

The proper execution of the lifted stem depends almost entirely on correct timing of the weight shift, the swing and dropping of the pole.

When teaching I spend a great deal of time on the lifted stem; it may be done without the aid of the pole, but with the pole it remains the most secure way of changing direction on any terrain and in any snow except the braking crust.

Once you are able to do a lifted stem in proper timing and rhythm, try to execute this turn without the help of the pole and by turning only slightly, perhaps 30 degrees; slide your inner ski rather than lift it. Bend your knees a little more than when in parallel running position. Give your turn a long curve rather than a sharp twisted jerk, and practise this until you feel that your body is rolling from one side to the other instead of being thrown. This is the beginning of the much desired high speed turn.

Addicts of the old standard technique are much against introducing at this early stage of instruction, anything in connection with tempo turn, or high speed running, but my careful tempo turn should be taught right after the lifted stem without pole. It is much easier to learn high speed technique at this stage of instruction, than later on, when the skier is learning in the christiania turn to keep weight on the heels.

Rangers Revenge Toronto Loss By Defeating Wings 4-1 Sunday

TORONTO, Jan. 10 (CP).—Bill Stewart is likely to tog Major Frederick McLaughlin in a netminder's outfit and prop him in the Chicago Black Hawks goal any day now. Coach Stewart having won a game with Defencemen Earl Siebert and Art Wiebe playing as forwards, not even the Chicago owner will be safe when he again feels the urge for innovation.

Stewart not only switched Siebert and Wiebe from the defence when Hawks met Montreal Maroons in Chicago last night. He introduced two rookies from the American Association — Harold Jackson and Virgil Johnson—after selling Glen Brydson to New Haven. The result of the shaking up was a 1-0 win over Tommy Gorman's Maroons.

The Hawk win came as Detroit Red Wings were taking a 4-1 beating from Rangers in New York and enabled Stewart's team to move five points up on Wings, lately threatening Chicago's hold on the National Hockey League's American Division third spot.

Revenge Toronto Defeat.

By beating Wings after losing an unlucky 3-2 decision to Toronto on Saturday, Rangers drew within three points of the division leading Boston Bruins, who were swamped 6-2 by Canadiens in Montreal Saturday night. The splendid win by the Frenchmen tied them with New York Americans for second place in the Canadian Division behind Leafs.

The speedy line of George Mantha, Rod Lorrain and Polly Drouin paced Habitants to victory after Bill Cowley and Cooney Weiland had given Bruins a two-goal lead in the first period. The line figured in four goals.

Mantha and Babe Siebert wiped out the Boston lead within two minutes in the first, Lorrain and Joliat added goals in the middle frame and Toe Blake and Siebert came through with a pair in the third to make the win decisive.

Lucky Goal Counts.

A lucky goal gave Toronto victory over Rangers. The teams were tied 2-2 and there was a little more than two minutes of the third period to play when Jimmy Fowler lofted a long shot at the Ranger cage. Dave Kerr came out nonchalantly to meet the puck. But it slipped through his skates and rolled into a corner of the net.

It was a tough loss for Rangers, whose combination had overshadowed Leafs for most of the game. Cecil Dillon and Neil Colville scored for them in the second to overcome the lead Bill Thoms gave Leafs in the same period. Then Thoms, a star all night, flashed through for another counter in the third to set the stage for Fowler's marker.

The baffling Ranger attack was more successful against Wings in New York. While 16,000 fans jooked on Lester Patrick's team scored in every period and held the world champions to a counter by Bucko McDonald in the first.

A neat combination effort gave Neil Colville the first New York score before McDonald scored, and a perfect pass out by Ott Heller to Bryan Hextall in the second handed them the lead. Babe Pratt, Clint Smith and Dillon staged a brilliant passing attack for the third goal, scored by Dillon, and Phil Watson tallied alone in the last minute of the contest.

Hawks Defeat Maroons 1-0.

Johnson, the Chicago rookie, got a point in his first N.H.L. game. After he backhanded the puck from 20 feet out at Bill Beveridge, Johnny Gottselig slapped the puck past the Maroon netminder halfway through the third period for the game's only goal.

Lionel Conacher, former maroon defenceman, sat on the Montreal bench with Gorman and the Montreal manager later said he might have a statement "on Conacher" within two days.

St. John's Cagers Win Church Tilt

St. John's Juveniles took a 44-14 Church Cage Loop win over St. Paul's Saturday night at the "Y". Craig and Dyer, who scored 34 between them, proved too much for the young St. Paul's gang, the winners leading all the way. The Presbyterians, led by E. Taylor, found this pair too much for them all the way. The teams:

St. Paul's: Taylor, Ferguson, Dundas, Dunford.

St. John's: Castle, Forsythe, Moore, Marshall, Craig, Dyer.

Referee, H. Galley; scorer, W. Ferguson.

N.H.L. All-Stars

(By the Canadian Press)

Rod Lorrain, Canadiens, figured in three goals, scoring the winning one, as the Flying Frenchmen kept pace by defeating Boston 6-2 Saturday.

Babe Siebert, Canadiens, led his club's attack from the defence and scored twice against Boston.

Bill Thoms, Toronto, bagged two goals as Leafs downed Rangers 3-2 to stay three points up to Canadiens Saturday.

Johnny Gottselig, Chicago, scored only goal when Black Hawks administered 1-0 beating to Maroons Sunday.

Neil Colville and Cecil Dillon, Rangers, got goal each at Toronto and did the same as Blueshirts downed Detroit 4-1 last night.

SYRACUSE TAKE 9 TO 4 VICTORY FROMPITTSBURG

TORONTO, Jan. 10 (CP)—Syracuse Stars may be in last place in their International-American Hockey League section, but don't be fooled by that—the Stars still show a knack of knocking off the tough teams and can easily regain the top spot they relinquished a short while ago.

Stars showed the most power of any Int.-Am. team during the week-end, whipping Pittsburgh Hornets, 9-4, last night. Hornets led the Western Section by a point over Cleveland Barons, while Stars are three points away from the Cleveland team. Hornets have been able to get only one victory in four games against Stars, who have taken three, this season.

It was the only game in which Stars played during the week-end, but Hornets took a 2-0 victory Saturday over Springfield Indians. Barons defeated Providence Reds, 1-0, the same night but lost last night in a return game, 3-1. Philadelphia Ramblers and New Haven Eagles saw action against each other twice, with Eagles winning 4-1 Saturday but dropping a 4-2 decision Sunday.

Hold 4-Point Edge

Reds hold a four-point lead in the Eastern Section over Ramblers, while Indians and Eagles are tied for third place with 14 points apiece, 11 points away from Providence.

Fans at Philadelphia probably had the most excitement when their Ramblers clashed Saturday with Eagles. The players repeatedly swung fists and the game ended up with police guarding the penalty box.

Little Maxie Bennett and Jack Markle led Stars to their victory, getting two goals apiece in the rout. Norm Locking, Jack Howard, Jack Parsons, Eddie Convey and Jack Fox each got a Syracuse goal, while Eon Deacon and Doran each bagged two for Pittsburgh. Deacon had a big week-end for he scored both goals in Pittsburgh's victory over Indians.

Five major penalties were handed out in the first Philadelphia-New Haven game, three going to the latter team. Near the end of the game Cliff Barton of Ramblers and Ossie Asmundsen of Eagles removed their gloves to fight in the centre of the rink. When the New Haven player went to enter the penalty box, partisan fans swarmed down to threaten him.

One specator took a swing at Asmundsen and the entire New Haven team rushed over to the box with upraised sticks. The officers formed a cordon about the box while the game was finished.

In between the battling players Joffre Desilets scored two goals for Eagles, while Freeman Jack and Tony Hemmerling tallied one each. Llyod Rouzell scored the only Philadelphia goal.

The two teams tended strictly to business in their second clash. Ramblers won on goals by Charlie Mason, Cliff Barton, Eddie Wares and Lude Wareing. Desilets scored another for Eagles, while Tex Hexmer also tallied one.

Barons played to a home crowd of 9,300 fans in winning Saturday against Providence. Lorne Duguld gave them victory with a goal just one minute and 46 seconds after the start of the game. Art Giroux gave Reds victory in their return meeting with his two goals, while Jack Keating got the other Providence tally. The lone Baron goal went to Bud Cook.

Hockey's Big 7

(By the Canadian Press).

Cecil Dillon of Rangers stepped to within four points of Gordon Drillon of Toronto among the National Hockey League's top scorers during the weekend when he scored in Rangers' 3-2 loss to Toronto Saturday and again in the 4-1 victory over Detroit Sunday. Drillon's total of 27 left him well ahead of other members of the big seven, which was swelled to include nine men by Canadiens' 6-2 defeat of Boston. Rod Lorrain of Canadiens made his point total 20 and George Mantha and Toe Blake advanced to 10, tieing Nels Stewart of Americans and Marty Barry of Detroit for sixth place.

The leaders:

RULING MODIFIED FOR GOLF STYMIE

NEW YORK, Jan. 10—(AP).—Although admittedly dodging the issue of either abolishing the pesky stymie or keeping it, the United States Golf Association appears to have hit upon a popular idea in modifying the stymie rule.

At its annual meeting here Saturday the U.S.G.A. eliminated stymies when the nearer ball lies within six inches of the cup. Except for this modification, the rule remains unchanged, permitting the lifting of the ball for a putt only when it lies within six inches of one that is "away" from the hole.

Francis Ouimet, who again was chosen non-playing captain of the United States Walker Cup team, continued his opposition to the stymie.

"While the new rule is an improvement over the old, they either ought to play the stymie or abolish it, and I favor abolishing it," he said.

The association's executive committee announced the new rule will be in effect during 1938 only as a trial.

WIN...

TORONTO, Jan. 10 (C... Joe Primeau and his unbeaten ... onto Goodyears will move into Brantford tomorrow night to play Brantford Rangers in a Senior A Ontario Hockey Association game—and there seems little doubt it will be a victory for Goodyears.

The Toronto team knocked off yesterday and today after trimming Kitchener Greenshirts, 8-0, Friday in Toronto and then hopping to Windsor, where they played a 3-3 tie Saturday night in an exhibition game against Windsor Bulldogs of the Michigan-Ontario League. It was the first time this season Goodyears had failed to win.

Primeau expects his team to make it seven games in a row over Ranger, thereby putting Goodyears in shape for their important clash the night after against Port Colborne Sailors. The Sailors, in second place, have dropped a decision to Goodyears but are hitting up a speedy clip right now.

Goodyears showed their comeback powers against Bulldogs, who shot into a two-goal lead in the first period in tallies by Mickey Drouillard, reinstated pro, and Herb Jones. Goodyears scored twice in the second period with Don Metz getting the first and Jim Primeau, the coach's brother, the second.

Red Heron sent Goodyears into the lead in the third period but Norval Fitzgerald, another former professional, evened matters on an assist from Drouillard. The teams did not play overtime.

GRATE

VOL. LXX. 10 (CP). — Coals ...ly in the open fire- ... Britain to cling to this ...timental heart-warmer or will it be swept away in the march of science as a smoky menace to public health?

The intimate circle around the hearth—a habit dating back as far as the records can go—is no mere romantic thought in this country where central heating is either a luxury or a delusion. The fire's the thing in England, says the plain man, and fie on the Smoke Abatement Society and the scientists who would sell their gadgets and instal pink glow-worms in the living room.

"Come and toast your toes," is the invitation. "And let our back freeze," adds the opposition. But the man who taps his pipe and stares into the embers just says "tosh" and mumbles something about the modern generation being soft and sheltered.

"I am an advocate of the open fireplace," said Lord Horder. Britain's No. 1 physician and prime adviser to the government in matters of health, "I do not say this without due knowledge of the various allegations made against the coal-burning fireplace. I know all about the uneconomic features, about 80 per cent of the heat going up the chimney, about the smoky room. But I do not want to see the home deprived of its cheerful, comfortable and healthy influence, well-founded in traditional affection."

Nevertheless, Lord Horder did feel fireplaces might be improved so the heat wouldn't disappear up the chimney. As to the loss to the English family of the mental and spiritual consolation of the open fire Lord Horder had no doubts whatever. He spoke of "synthetic heating," of "mechanized flickers", and of living-rooms "that make the modern operating theatre look cheerful by comparison."

Furnaces Scarce

To Canadians in homes warmed throughout by a furnace in the basement this talk about grate fires has perhaps only a remote interest. But in this country where tradition dies hard they are still putting up homes without furnaces, homes with small fireplaces in many rooms but without that uniform temperature that avoids the necessity of planting your chair in the right spot.

Central heating is making slow progress. Certainly it has been used to good advantage in many buildings and expensive homes. But elsewhere the "central heating" consists of a small radiator with the chill of steel only slightly taken off it or of no attempt at heating other than the grate fire.

The Yorkshire Post felt there was something greater than mere sentimental prejudice in favor of the open fire, but it did admit that the indictment of open fires and dirt-laden moisture was somewhat warranted. The London Star, however, plumped for the open fire. "Nobody knows how much," it declared, 'of the meaning of 'Home, Sweet Home' America sacrificed when she turned to the worship of systems with dials. America has road-houses instead of homes."

Meanwhile architects continue to throw up great rows of suburban houses without central heating. The visitor from the land of gadgets and dials may protest against such ostrich tactics, may freeze to death in a November fog. But the contractor must sell his house—and to the woman who rules: "I hate a room without a fire."

BATTLE OF TERUEL FAR FROM SETTLED

HENDAYE, Franco-Spanish Frontier, Jan. 10 (AP).—Fresh insurgent victories indicated today the fight for possession of Teruel was far from over, despite the government's success in crushing all resistance within the captured provincial capital.

Dispatches said government commanders had decided on counter-attacks north and south of Teruel to offset insurgent victories on those flanks.

The capture of a place called La Coca, plus further gains by General Franco's troops in the Villastar sector southwest of Teruel, threatened to cut the government's communications between its flank elements and their supply base, the dispatches said.

Insurgent sources reported steady progress on the two wings had enabled them to form an arc around Teruel while the government was concentrating on subjugating the insurgent garrison trapped within the city when government troops took it in a surprise attack more than two weeks ago.

The surrender of this insurgent garrison and civilian supporters — numbering about 6,000—was completed Saturday night, according to the government.

CHICAGO, Jan. 10 (AP)—Women—at least some of them—primp because they feel the need of a pick-me-up after 'blue spells" or spats with their boy friends.

Others put on fancy frills to punish their husbands by making them pay the bills, one of three psychologists said today.

Another view—and this from a woman—Miss Agnes Sharp, chief psychologist of the Psychiatric Institute of the Municipal Court, was that women dress just to capture the interest of the male.

The psychologists came out of separate mental huddles on the question of why women go in for self-adornment on a big scale, after Prof. Joseph T. Casey of the philosophy department of De Paul University had said that women primp because of other women.

"Woman," said the professor, "is far more concerned about reactions from members of her own sex."

PRINCESS LOUISE ENERGETIC AT 90 IN SOCIAL TASKS

LONDON, Jan. 10 (CP)—Ninety years young, the oldest Princess in England is busy with public appearances while other more sprightly members of the royal family are holidaying.

Princess Louise, Duchess of Argyll, daughter of Queen Victoria, once used the ballroom at Rideau Hall in Ottawa as a sculptor's studio while her husband was governor-general. There she made the statue of her mother now in front of Victoria College, Montreal. She also founded women's art and education associations in Canada and now she is still actively engaged in furthering the causes of her favorite charities.

Early in September this energetic Princess attended the church parade of ex-service men and Sandhurst army cadets, opened an Old English Fair at Hendon in aid of a hospital and has a long list of similar engagements for the autumn.

It will be almost Christmas before the entire royal family are back in London. The Princess Royal will probably be the last to return as the King and Queen will visit her at Harewood House in October.

Country week-ends have proved a boon to royalty. The King and Duke of Kent both make full use of their country homes, Royal Lodge and Coppins. There is much talk of Queen Mary also acquiring a country "cottage" and Sussex is mentioned as the most likely locality. This habit of "days off" for royalty and their attendants is entirely new and very popular.

Many country hostesses brought large parties up to town for the premier of the autumn ballet season at Covent Garden. Fashion shows are taking place almost daily. The great dressmaking houses on Hanover Square, Grosvenor Street and Bruton Street are decked out as for weddings and vie with each other in the strength of their cocktails as well as with the beauty and chic of their new style models.

A new silhouette has appeared. Mannequins seen at the first dress shows have had to adapt their figures to wear it. Some designers chose girls of athletic build to show off the new peacock-line and short-skirted evening dresses. Waistlines are considerably higher, bust and hiplines now measure about the same.

New fashions appear everywhere. A September bride carried a book-marker bouquet. She was very slight so it was decided a conventional bouquet would look out of place. However, from a vellum prayer book a three-foot tulle book-marker fell, covered with lily of the valley trails. The more serious side of women's activities has not been neglected.

A nurses' charter was adopted by the Trades Union Congress, by what is considered an "appalling" shortage of nursing recruits in England. The charter urges limitation of nurses' hours to 96 a fortnight, special pay for overtime, a month's holiday with pay, disability pensions, superannuation and other reforms.

A charter has also been urged for domestic servants who are in increasing demand. Statistics show about 2,000,000 women engaged in domestic service in England, with indoor servants numbering about 1,300,000. There are about 140,000 charwomen, 69,000 boarding landladies and the statistics even include 198 women undertakers, 27 women chimney sweeps and one woman gamekeeper.

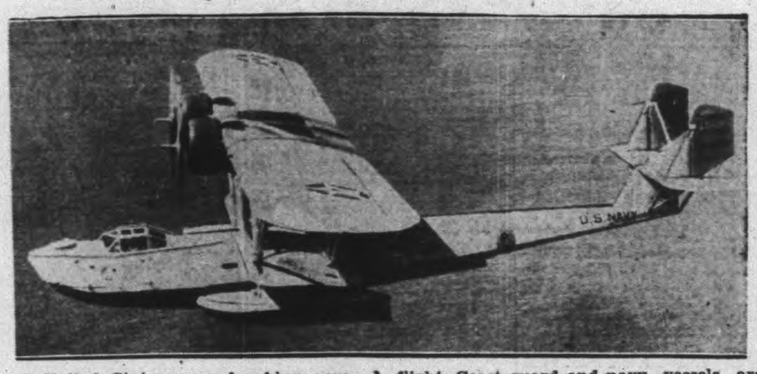
KEENE, Jan. 10.— Two Keene youths met with painful accidents when they collided while skating in the rink. Billie Miller sustained a fractured leg and Hugh McFarlane received a gash on the face which required seven stitches to close.

U.S. Navy Plane Vanishes With Seven Aboard



A United States navy bombing aeroplane of the same type as this vanished mysteriously off the southern California coast with seven crew members aboard after becoming separated from other machines of its squadron on a formation flight. Coast-guard and navy vessels are combing the Pacific for trace of the machine which lost contact with its radio headquarters. The type is a two-motored bomber considered capable of landing safely even in rough water.

BRITAIN STARTS MECHANIZATION

may never have been near a horse in their lives.

Changes for Infantry.

The Indian infantry will also be affected by the mechanizaicn process started in the United Kingdom. Four of the British infantry battalions here are already being reorganized as machine-gun units, while the remaining British battalions are being converted into "rifle" battalions.

The effect of mechanization during recent operations on the North-West Frontier are now being closely studied by military authorities.

The introduction of light tanks, though they cannot go where a mule can, has very greatly facilitated operations on the Frontier. Light tanks were first used in frontier operations in the Mohmand Campaign of 1935, and have been extensively employed in Waziristan this year.

The partial elimination of horse and mule has also simplified the question of maintenance and greatly reduced recurring costs in the case of the North-West Frontier, provision of sufficient water for man and beast has always been a difficult problem.

OXFORD ATTRACTS YOUNG AMERICANS

SWARTHMORE, Pa., Jan. 10 (CP).—Rhodes scholarships at Oxford are becoming more attractive than ever to young American college men, said Dr. Frank Aydelotte, United States secretary to the Rhodes Trustees, as nearly 600 young candidates went before state selection committees.

Of the 590 applicants, a larger total than last year, 32 will be chosen to take two or three-year courses at Oxford with annual stipends of £400 ($2,000) each.

Expansion of the English university's educational facilities, largely owing to the gifts of Lord Nuffield, motor magnate, was given by Dr. Aydelotte as the reason for the increased competition.

Of an additional £500,000 ($2,500,000), the university is seeking to raise to supplement the Nuffield gifts, Dr. Aydelotte reported, some £18,000 ($90,000) has been contributed by Oxonians in the United States. Dr. Aydelotte is president of Swarthmore College.

NURSE TO SERVE MAROONED AREA

HALIFAX, Jan. 10 (CP).—Dr. P. S. Campbell, chief health officer of the Nova Scotia Public Health Department, announced last night a Department nurse would be stationed in the Bay St. Lawrence district of Victoria County until such time as a doctor could be obtained.

In telegrams to Nova Scotia daily newspapers last week Rev. Paul MacNeil, Roman Catholic priest at St. Margaret's in that district, said 2,000 persons were without services of a physician or hospital and, with the advent of winter, were facing a "crisis."

The district is cut off from direct steamship communication with the rest of Cape Breton Island after the northern harbors freeze.

OBITUARY

WILLIAM J. NORTHEY.

LAKEFIELD, Jan. 10.—The death of William John Northey of Lakefield, occurred at his home here on Saturday morning at 3 a.m. after an illness which lasted more than a year. He was in his seventieth year.

Mr. Northey, formerly a resident of Smith township, moved to Lakefield about five years ago.

The funeral was held from the family residence on Bridge street at 2.00 p.m. on Monday.

THOMAS WATSON

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, Jan. 10.—The funeral of the late Thomas Watson of Lakefield was held on Saturday afternoon at 2.15 p.m.

Mr. Watson, whose death occurred suddenly on Thursday afternoon, Jan. 6, succumbed to a heart attack. He was seventy-seven years of age.

Born in Lakefield in 1860, Mr. Watson was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Watson, and spent his life as a resident of this village and is well known and highly respected by everyone in the community. Older members of the community recall the days when Mr. Watson was an ardent and efficient cricketer, and in later years his interest in sport was evidenced by his enthusiasm for the gentler art of fishing. Mr. Watson was an expert at luring the wily muskie from its haunts.

In 1915, on the completion of the new post office which graces the corner of Queen and Bridge streets, Mr. Watson was appointed caretaker of that building by the Dominion Government. The ever-immaculate condition of that building during the twenty-two years he held the position, bears testimony better than words can do, to the faithful service and devotion to duty which Mr. Watson displayed. It is stated that he was rated by the Post Office Department as one of the best caretakers in the service.

Deceased was a member of St. John the Baptist Church, Lakefield, and exercised the duties of rector's warden of that congregation, faithfully for many years.

Mr. Watson's wife (formerly Miss Hetherington of Smith) predeceased him on September 20, 1936. One son T. J. Watson of Cobourg, and two brothers, William and Robert, both of Lakefield, survive.

After a short service at the family residence, the body was taken to St. John the Baptist Church where Rev. Creighton conducted the funeral service. In his address Rev. Creighton paid tribute to the late Mr. Watson's sterling qualities and mentioned that he was a descendant of one of the first families to settle in this district.

Messrs. Stanley Rosborough of Smith, Andrew Wilson of Young's Point, and F. W. Bailey, Earl Edwards, George Jackman and Reeve Chas. S. Tanner, all of Lakefield acted as pall-bearers.

Interment was in Hillside Cemetery.

The child was taken in a cruiser car by constables who were directed to a residence on Jean street in the south-east section of the city. Steele lived with relatives, Mr. and Mrs. George Littleton, who said Barbara refused to go home and "we couldn't do anything else but keep the child for the night."

Barbara was seen to leave Governor Simcoe school carrying a big doll which she took with her for a class party. Scores of constables and residents searched the city and district throughout the night and all day Saturday for the child before she was found.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Harmful poisons go into the body, and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

A mere bowel movement doesn't always get at the cause. You need something that works on the liver as well. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless and gentle, they make the bile flow freely. They do the work of calomel but have no calomel or mercury in them. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name! Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c.

"Products advertised in the Local Daily are easier to sell" says MR. W. D. MARTIN

"A wholesaler is in a position to measure the effect of a manufacturer's efforts to move his goods. I find that when the Local Daily begins to carry advertising for a product, that product immediately moves faster from our warehouse. One manufacturer who cancelled the Local Daily two years ago and confined his advertising to other media, resumed substantial schedules in the Local Daily a few weeks ago. A definite increase in demand for this manufacturer's products has developed since this advertising reappeared."

NEW ETHNIC AGE TO BE SOLUTION OF WORLD'S ILLS

Dr. Frank Addresses George Street Forum

The approach of a new ethnic age in which man will abandon his infinite religious theologies for an application of religion to the practical betterment of humanity, in which man will demonstrate he is master of his own destiny by controlling the number and quality of earth's inhabitants and in which man will put into operation a system of distribution of the world's wealth and goods equal to the system of production developed in the present age was heralded by Dr. R. W. Frank of this city in an address to the Men's Forum at George Street United Church Sunday afternoon.

"It is coming to be more widely recognized that all the theologies are but the reflect of the more or less faulty knowledge of the age in which they originated and that the true and abiding purpose of religion should be the practical betterment of humanity, the advancement of civilization in the best sense of the word," Dr. Frank said. "But it is equally recognized that as yet this can be best achieved by different systems of theology adapted to the various needs of the different peoples."

"One of the results is that there is not the enthusiasm today that existed a few generations ago to impose on the cultured millions of the east a religion that alien to their trend of thought, perhaps less suited to their needs and perhaps less ethical than their own," he continued. "Nor is there at home the same intolerance to the other man's way. In other words, the common purpose of all religions is slowly superseding superificial forms of worship and rigid dogmatism.

Quality Not Quantity

"It must be equally obvious also to the cosmopolite that the belief is growing that quality rather than numbers must in future determine the efficiency of any given community and that the census is being kept up today at the cost of propagating a low order of intelligence.

"The belief is rapidly taking form that man should be the conscious aribter of his own racial destiny and that the procreation of the unfit is a menace to progress and civilization. There are countless millions in Europe and America today, and that includes Canada, whose mental development is close to the upper strata of barbarism and these undeveloped or atavistic creatures are procreating their specie infinitely faster than their more cultural contemporaries.

"Race suicide is thereby prevented but progress and civilization are no less surely handicapped. However, signs are not lacking that this strange illogicity will in time be remedied."

The speaker saw hope of a rational disposal of the international difficulties of the future. "Our more hopeful sign of progress is international morality. This may sound like a strange anachronism in a day when nations are feverishly arming to annihilate each other. But you must not mistake immediate events for long term trends and the trend is unmistakably against war.

Spicidal Folly

"Communal intelligence is rapidly rebelling against such suicidal folly. If a plebecite were taken tomorrow for and against war, 99% of the people of the world would vote against it. You may well ask then, how can we have wars? The answer is very simple. Because the masses of the people do not know why wars are brought about. They do not realize that nationalism is but a continuance of tribal savagery based on blood relationship and common interests."

Dr. Frank declared: "So in spite of all the preparations for war, internal wars, revolutions and fratricidal disputes, depression and poverty, I have no hesitation in prophesying that the travail through which we are now passing will communicate the truth to a new ethnic period based on humanitarianism and internationalism."

Dealing with the faulty distribution of wealth which he claims was at the bottom of most world ills of today, Dr. Frank said: "I told you that our present ethnic period was ushered in by the invention of the team engine and was characterized by a rapid and accelerating growth of what we call the power or machine age. That is simply the substitution of tireless machines operated by solar energy to replace human labor.

Wants Supplied

"The result has been such a greatly increased production and production capacity that for the first time on this world every conceivable want of man can be abundantly supplied.

"Our present ethnic period has taught us how to produce goods and services in abundance. Our next enthic period will be consummated when we have learned how to distribute them in an equitable manner. Much of the agony through which the world is passing today is due to the conflict of theories as to how this is to be brought about. Up until now we have held as a general principal that work shall be the only claim on wealth but we have substituted machines for men reducing thereby the claim per cent. of goods with the result that 10 per cent. of our population have no claim on anything and the majority of the rest have likewise no claim when they have maintained themselves at a standard of living as low as is consistent with the maintenance of

$73,876 Less at Gates 301,000 Fewer Attend

TORONTO, Jan. 10.—(CP). —The Canadian National Exhibition reported to Mayor Ralph Day to-day the 1937 show had a deficit of $56,229 after paying to the city debt charges of $158,143. The loss was attributed to the infantile paralysis epidemic centered in Toronto and felt in almost all parts of Ontario during the Exhibition.

Elwood Hughes, C.N.E. general manager, reported the attendance at last year's Exhibition showed a decrease of 301,000 from the 1936 show. Total revenues for 1937 of $765,477 were $100,669 less than the $866,146 received in 1936. Gate receipts were down $73,876.

With The Boy Scouts

The Rover Council recently met at the home of Skipper Harold Legrow. A letter of congratulations was received from Toronto Rover Council. All arrangements were completed for the Joint Rover social evening, being held in St. John's Parish Hall on the evening of Tuesday, January 18. All Rovers and Squires are requested to hold that date open. This will be a mixed party.

A meeting of officers was called by the Commissioner and I regret a very poor turnout was realized. There were present: C.M. Frank Pammett, S.M. Fred Ford, R.L. G. E. Groombridge of St. John's; S.M. Henry Nokes, St. Luke's; C.M. Mrs. Langhorne, St. George's; C.M. Peter Dominic, S.M. W. Flint, Sacred Heart; C.M. George Brooks, All Saints'; S.M. T. Thomas, St. Peter's; C.M. Lily Bull, St. Paul's; Father Begley, Immaculate Conception; S.M. Stan. Leggett, St. James'; S.M. Alec Chivas, 11th North-end Troop; C.M. W. Anderson; S.M. A. H. Sturrock; District Cub Master Gordon Clegg, Assistant Commissioner L. Grant. The aim put forward by Commissioner J. T. Hornsby was to have 300 Cubs, 420 Scouts and 32 Rovers in this city by 1939. Also that the various leaders of the groups cooperate to help stop loss of passing Cubs to Scouts, and Scouts to Rover age.

At St. Paul's Pack the boys were receiving instructions in skipping. Friday was the first meeting for several weeks the Cubs being unable to get into their quarters owing to new flooring being laid. It is hoped that the meetings will be held regularly from now on. Saturday afternoon the boys went for a tobogganing party.

St. Andrew's Pack met as usual and enjoyed various courses of instruction under Akela and his assistants, Miss Whalen and Lloyd Wilkinson. Cub Ralph Green received his house orderly, handicraft and toy maker's badges.

Some 41 boys met in the Pack jungle in St. John's on Friday. During the evening several games were played. During instruction, many tests were passed. Sixer Ted Chalmers was given his first star. Peter Rhodes was invested as Sixer of the Blue Six in a ceremony in which he renewed his Cub promise and made his Sixer promise before the pack. Akela Ingham from St. Andrew's attended the meeting and assisted in the instruction work.

The pack hockey teams are to be formed next Friday, and games will begin immediately within the pack. At Red Flower, Ted Chalmers played a tune on his mouth organ and Akela told the story of "How the Red Flower began.

The Scouters' Club is scheduled to meet on Thursday, January 13, but up to the present no hall has been obtained to meet in. It is a great pity that such an organization as the Scouts cannot name a definite headquarters. Any kind friend of Scouting who has a large room to rent at a reasonable rental, please phone me at 3067; ask for G. Groombridge.

I would appreciate more reports from other troops and packs.

Sacred Heart have failed to turn up this last two weeks and All Saints are missing. This is your column. Make us of it.—"The Skipper."

MOTORIST SUFFERS FACIAL INJURIES

Albert Warman, 560 Albert Street, was driving south on Monaghan Road around four o'clock Sunday afternoon, he reported to police, when a boy at play on the street, ran into the left running board of the car, fortunately escaping injury. The lad, W. O'Neill, 11 years old, of 28, New Romaine Street, told the driver of the car he was not hurt, after the driver had stopped to render assistance. Mr. Warman declared he was about sixty feet from Romaine Street when he observed a number of boys at play on the street. He slowed down while they dispersed, but the O'Neill boy presumably got confused and ran into the side of the car. Herbert Lane, 485 Patterson Street, was a witness.

Grace McKenna, 220 Dublin Street, required stitches in her lip as the result of a mishap that befell her while riding in a car reportedly driven west on Highway 7 Sunday afternoon by Bruce Scott, Port Hope. Scott was said to have been driving about three miles west of Peterborough when a car ahead of him stopped suddenly. When he applied his brakes to avoid colliding with the rear of the car ahead of him, the car stopped with such suddenness that Miss McKenna was thrown forward against the windshield. Dr. G. R. Scott attended her.

PARKED A MONTH

KIRKLAND LAKE, Ont., Jan. 10. —(CP).—Police got tired of waiting after a motor car had been parked on Main street at Rouyn for nearly a month.

They discovered that temporary financial embarrasment had left the owner of the car stranded. With the automobile and its contents impounded by police, all the owner could do was arrange with a barber to buy the car from him for $50. He paid $5 to the police for the car's release and used the balance to straighten out his affairs.

BLACK WOLF PELT

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., Jan. 10. —(CP).—Sceptics who doubt the existence of black wolves in the Algoma district to-day have evidence to the contrary. A. Schwartz, trapper, came to town with a pelt believed to be the darkest ever taken from a wolf in these parts. It was one of a pack of eight wolves of varying shapes which pulled down a cow mocse on Sand River.

OBITUARY

JOHN GEARY.

A lifelong resident of Ennismore, John Geary died in St. Joseph's Hospital Saturday night after a short illness. He was in his 78th year.

Born in Ennismore, he was son of the late William Geary and Johanna Collins. His lifetime was spent in farming. He was a member of St. Matrin's church, Ennismore.

Never married, he is survived by three sisters, Mrs. Sullivan of Victoria Road and Elizabeth and Kathleen Geary of Ottawa.

The funeral will be held Tuesday from the residence in Ennismore, Lot 2, Concession 3, to St. Martin's Church for requiem mass and to St. Martin's Cemetery.

MRS. JANE WILSON.

The death of Mrs. Jane Wilson, widow of Robert Wilson, occurred today (Monday) at the home of her daughter, Mrs. J. F. Gillespie, 275 Thomas Street. She was in her 89th year.

A prominent member of Trinity United Church during forty-five years' residence here, Mrs. Wilson was born in Emily Township, daughter of the late John Wilson and Jane Mills. She came here from Cavan.

She was an early member of the old Charlotte Street Methodist Church and continued as a very active worker in Trinity United Church up to her illness, three years ago. Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. Gillespie, with whom she resided, and Mrs. Ada Gardiner, also of this city, and three grandchildren: Delbert Gardiner and Jean Gillespie of this city and Mrs. C. H. Ferguson of Bethany. Her husband predeceased 15 years ago.

The funeral will be held Wednesday at 2.30 o'clock from the residence, 275 Thomas Street, to Little Lake Cemetery, Rev. George S. Easton officiating.

MRS. ELIZABETH McCRACKEN

Mrs. Elizabeth McCracken died at her residence 650 Stewart street on Sunday in her 64th year. Her death followed on an illness of a year's duration. A daughter of the late Samuel Wall and Margaret Crowe, she was born in Dummer Township and had resided there before coming to Peterborough thirty years ago. Predeceased by her husband the late Francis McCracken, she leaves two daughters, Mrs. William Jewell, Peterborough, and Mrs. Joseph Scott, Toronto and one son, Percy McCracken of Rochester, New York, also a sister, Mrs. Edward Whatley, Peterborough and a brother George Wall of this city. A daughter, Mrs. Frank Carter, died in November last. The funeral is to be held on Wednesday at 1 p.m. from the family residence with the Rev. George S. Easton pastor of Trinity United Church officiating. Interment at Little Lake Cemetery.

Five special boats and 12 trains carried turkeys from Ireland to England recently.

HARVEY ELECTIONS.

Official figures for the recent municipal election in the township of Harvey have been issued by Margaret B. Hall the clerk and returning officer. For Reeve, M. W. Shearer 191, Hugh Given 159; for councillors, Charles Flynn 272, Ernest Irwin 236, Darius Hall 183, John Hill 153 and Arthur Haines 139. The first four councillors were elected.

ROBIN IN WEST-END.

Positively identified by its appearance and song, a robin was seen by Percy Blade near his west-end greenhouse on Sunday morning. It was chirping on a telephone wire in the familiar notes of spring. Probably missing the autumn migration it is wintering around the city, and so far has been able to forage for food, and withstand the cold weather.

LETTER FROM WEST.

Jimmie Record of Reid street, received a beautiful letter from Mrs. James Byrne, of Moosomin, Saskatchewan acknowledging receipt of the articles of food send by St. John's Church Sunday school at the time the cars f relief were sent west. Mrs. Byrne told of the many hardships she and her family have had to suffer and she said they had had to give up their farm and her husband was working for $10 a month, which wage just provided the bare necessities of food. The food sent by St. John's, she said, were greatly appreciated luxuries.

SUBURBAN HOUSE SOLD.

Arthur T. Johnston of the Windsor Hotel is reported to have bought the G. C. Carruthers suburban house on the Peterborough-Port Hope Highway.

GOING TO OWEN SOUND.

The McLeod brothers at the corner of Albert and Park Streets are about to part company. Cecil D. McLeod has acquired a drug business in Owen Sound, and is winding up his stay in Peterborough this week.

MORE DUPLEX HOUSES.

Two more houses in the city are in the process of conversion to duplexes. At an estimated cost of $1,600, the house at 610 George Street, owned by Mrs. M. J. Graham, will be reconstructed. The contractor is Bert Graham, and the job is to be completed by February 15. A home at 561 Gilmour Street is being converted to a duplex for Bruce Scott by Contractor Fred Robson. The estimated cost is $1,000, and completion date is March 1. Conversions to duplexes have been very frequent in the city since the housing shortage became acute in 1937.

"SACRAMENT".

"Sacrament" was subject for the Lesson-Sermon for First Church of Christ, Scientist, Peterborough on Sunday. The Golden Text was, "The cup of blessing which we bless, is it not the communion of the blood of Christ? The bread which we break, is it not the communion of the body of Christ?" Selections from the Bible included the following from Matthew 26:26, "And as they were eating, Jesus took bread, and blessed it, and brake it, and gave it to the disciples, and said, Take, eat; this is my body." Correlative citations from the Christian Science textbook, included the following, "The true sense is spiritually lost, if the sacrament is confined to the use of bread and wine. . . . If all who seek his commemoration through material symbols will take up the cross, heal the sick, cast out evils, and preach Christ, or Truth, to the poor, —the receptive thought,—they will bring in the millennium."

URGED SOCIAL SERVICE.

The Catholic Women's League of St. Peter's parish began the new year with prayer instead of business at a devotional meeting Sunday afternoon at the Cathedral. Rev. P. J. Kelly gave a short address, pointing out the scope of the League's work and especially commending its efforts in the field of social service.

CONSIDER LAW FEES.

Alex Elliott, M.L.A., was elected president of the Peterborough Bar Association Friday afternoon. Emmett F. Sheehy is the vice-president, Jacob Low secretary, and John R. Corkery treasurer. Trustees are Judge Smoke, E. A. Peck, K.C., and R. R. Hall, K.C., and the auditor is John A. Harstone. A special committee composed of Mr. Corkery, T. J. Carley, Mr. Low and W. R. Philp was appointed to consider revision of the present tariff of legal fees. The last revision was made in 1913.

TOOK DOWN CAR NUMBER.

But for the presence of mind of a witness who took down the license number of the car involved, the person responsible for smashing the fence at the home of Ray Brown corner of Park and Charlotte streets, might have escaped responsibility. At the time the accident occurred, the driver of the car knocked at the door of the home, with an honest face, gave his name and address with instructions that the bill for the damages be sent to him. A subsequent check-up revealed no such name at no such address as given. The identity of the driver is, however, now being traced for a witness to the accident happened to copy down the license and report it.

Personnel Of Committees

The personnel of the committees and their chairmen were appointed as follows:

Board of Works—Alderman E. R. Wilson, chairman, and all the members of the council.

Fire, Water and Light—Alderman Juby, chairman, Gordon, Cotton, Wilson, Glover.

Manufacturers— Alderman Glover, chairman, McCannan, Bradburn, Wilson and Juby.

Parks—Alderman Stocker, chairman, and Cotton, Juby, Dutton and Huycke.

Relief—Alderman Dutton, chairman, and all the other members.

OFFICER RUN OVER FIXING HIS AUTO

STURGEON FALLS, Ont., Jan. 10. — (CP). — Unconscious since struck by a truck Saturday night at Verner, nine miles west of here, Provincial Constable Robert Eddington is in hospital here with serious injuries. Sturgeon Falls is 25 miles of North Bay.

Constable Eddington's face and forehead were gashed and his front teeth were knocked out in the accident. Extent of his injuries were not known but when his condition allows him to be moved he will be taken to nearby Cashe Bay, then flown to Toronto for treatment, physicians said.

Provincial Constable E. Berrard, Sturgeon Falls, said the Warren provincial officer was in a Verner restaurant and when he left had difficulty in starting his automobile. The car finally started then stalled in some ruts in the street.

Constable Eddington, getting out to look at the engine, stood on the right side of the car, Constable Berard said. A truck driven by Leo Turpin, Ferris township ,approached the stalled car and the driver swerved to the right as far as possible. It was believed Constable Eddington stepped into the path of the truck which ran over him. No charge was laid against Turpin.

TOO MUCH SHELL

KITCHENER, Ont., Jan. 10.—(CP).—Grocers have been developing an increasingly anti-Fascist outlook here as complaints continue to come in against the unyielding quality of a shipment of Italian almonds sold widely at the Yuletide. Because of the war, the Italian nuts were cheaper than the Spanish, which have been sold in previous years.

"It's all right to sell the Italian ones, but when your customers come back with broken teeth, that's bad," said one dealer.

TURKEY DIET VARIES

ROSSLAND, B.C., Jan. 10—(CP). —Butcher Henry Mager cleaned about 150 turkeys for the holiday trade in this West Kootenay town. Inside the birds he found: One old tooth filling, one gold nugget the size of a thumb nail, five medium-sized marbles.

TOO MANY IN TRUCK

MONTREAL, Jan. 10 (CP)—Sylvio Brunet of Lefebvre, Ont., pleaded guilty in recorder's court yesterday to a charge of "inconveniencing animals on a motor vehicle."

In the truck when an S.P.C.A. inspector halted Brunet were: 33 hogs, 10 calves, one cow and three crates of chickens.

...N CONFESSES FRAUD ...LAIMED BABY WAS HERS

HOLLYW... Action! A...

"Badly Wanted to Recapture Man's Attention," Court Is Told

"GUILTY", IS PLEA

Chester—"She badly wanted to recapture the man's attention and hit on the idea that a baby would provide the age-old bond between them."

This was part of counsel's plea for a woman who, with her daughter, was accused at Chester assizes of conspiracy and of causing a false entry to be entered in a register of births.

It was stated that a baby seen in bed with the elder woman by a man she alleged was the father, was really the child of another woman.

The elder woman, Mrs. Violet Adelaide Shepherd Bowen, 38, known on the stage as Goodie Leyton, pleaded guilty to both charges. Her daughter, Goodie Leyton Thomas, aged 20, variety artist, known as Gloria Leyton, pleaded guilty to the first and not guilty to the second.

George Banks, prosecuting, said the charges of conspiracy arose out of an application for an affiliation order by Thomas against George Evans of Wallasey. After a conversation between Evans and Mrs. Bowen, Thomas wrote asking that the summons should be withdrawn, and stating that a settlement had been reached.

He added that a child born to a woman named Margaret Quinn in a Liverpool hospital was taken to a convent. Thomas later asked Mrs. Quinn if she could adopt the baby, and she took it from the convent.

Thomas went to register the birth, but as it was not her baby the registration was not accepted. Later Evans went with Mrs. Bowen and Thomas, and the child was registered.

The father was given as Evans and the mother as Bowen.

J. P. Elsden (defending) said Mrs. Bowen's first husband died from wounds. Her second husband attempted to commit suicide, and she obtained a maintenance order against him.

It was clear that Mrs. Bowen's motive was never one of "gold-digging."

Mr. Justice Lawrence bound both women over for an indefinite time.

FATHER MUST RETURN DAUGHTER'S PROPERTY

But Has Right to Ask Why She Left Home, Court Says

Uxbridge—Edith Scammell, 17, summoned her father, Alfred Scammell, of Hayes, Middlesex, for the return of property which included articles for her "hope chest" at Uxbridge police court.

Sidney Smith, aged 20, also summoned his future father-in-law for the return of goods which he had purchased for his home.

Edith said that after she had left home and gone into lodgings, she and her sweetheart went back for their belongings.

"My father asked me where I had been and said that I had no right to leave home. I refused to answer him, and he ordered my young man out of the house."

The chairman of the magistrates, ordering Scammell to return the property, said to Edith, "Your father has every right to know why you left home."

'MODERN OTHELLO' SENTENCED TO DIE

Ronald Smedley Convicted of Murder of Jessie Ball

Derby—Shakespeare provided arguments for prosecuting and defending counsel at Derby assizes. Ronald Smedley—whom the police hunted over Derbyshire moorlands for twelve days—was sentenced to death for murdering Jessie Ball.

R. O'Sullivan, K.C., for the crown, said the tragedy could be compared with Othello's murder of Desdemona. The motive powerful of human motives."

Norman Winning, defending, said the affair could not be compared with the Shakespearian tragedy because Othello committed his crime after brooding for some time over imaginary wrongs.

SEES WAR'S BOMBS DROPPED IN ONE DAY

Sir Samuel Hoare Warns of Air Danger

London—"During the four years of the Great war 300 tons of bombs were dropped in this country. At a low estimate a greater tonnage of bombs could now be dropped in 24 hours."

In that sentence the home secretary, Sir Samuel Hoare, in the House of Commons pictured the peril that might face the civilian population in the event of another war.

A single medium-sized bomber, he said, might cause 150 fires. He disclosed three new types of fire engine are being prepared which will carry not only the means of extinguishing fires but also an emergency supply of water.

RAPS LOUNGE LIZARD PASTOR URGES SPORT

Too Much of "Ballroom Methods," He Says

Kingston Hill, Surrey—The Get Fit campaign is making too much use of "ballroom and dance hall methods" and not enough of the boxing ring and the football pitch. So said the Rev. A. Wellesley Orr to a congregation of amateur footballers in his church, St. Paul's.

He declared: "Perhaps they are obsessed with the idea of trying to create muscle, when what they want is intestinal fortitude. Sport will bring strength into a soft generation that has got too many lounge lizards, and effeminate young men."

CABARET IN PRISON ENTERTAINS CONVICTS

Millionaire Puts On Lavish Entertainment for His Fellow-Inmates

London—Maidstone jail convicts, among them, sitting side by side, Clarence Hatry and Leopold Harris, had a two-hours West end cabaret show in the prison.

Hatry, former millionaire, often in the past engaged such shows when entertaining guests at his wonder-house at Stanhope gate, Park lane, W. Harris, wealthy assessor who turned fire-raiser, knew some of the artists personally.

They both applauded with the other 240 convicts in the hall and joined in the choruses to "Lady of Laguna," "Two Lovely Black Eyes," and other songs.

Included in the show was Giovanni, the conjuror and master (for amusement only) pickpocket. He did card tricks, extracted the prison chaplain's waistcoat without making him take off his coat, and produced all sorts of unlikely articles from the pockets of the unsuspecting.

SHE ENTRUSTED $700 ADMITS FOOLISHNESS

Says She Gave Sum to Save for Marriage

Leeds.—"The judge was right. I was foolish—but a woman in love, trusting a man, does things she may regret afterwards."

Miss Madge Leach, slight, 29, said this after the close of her breach of promise action at Leeds assizes.

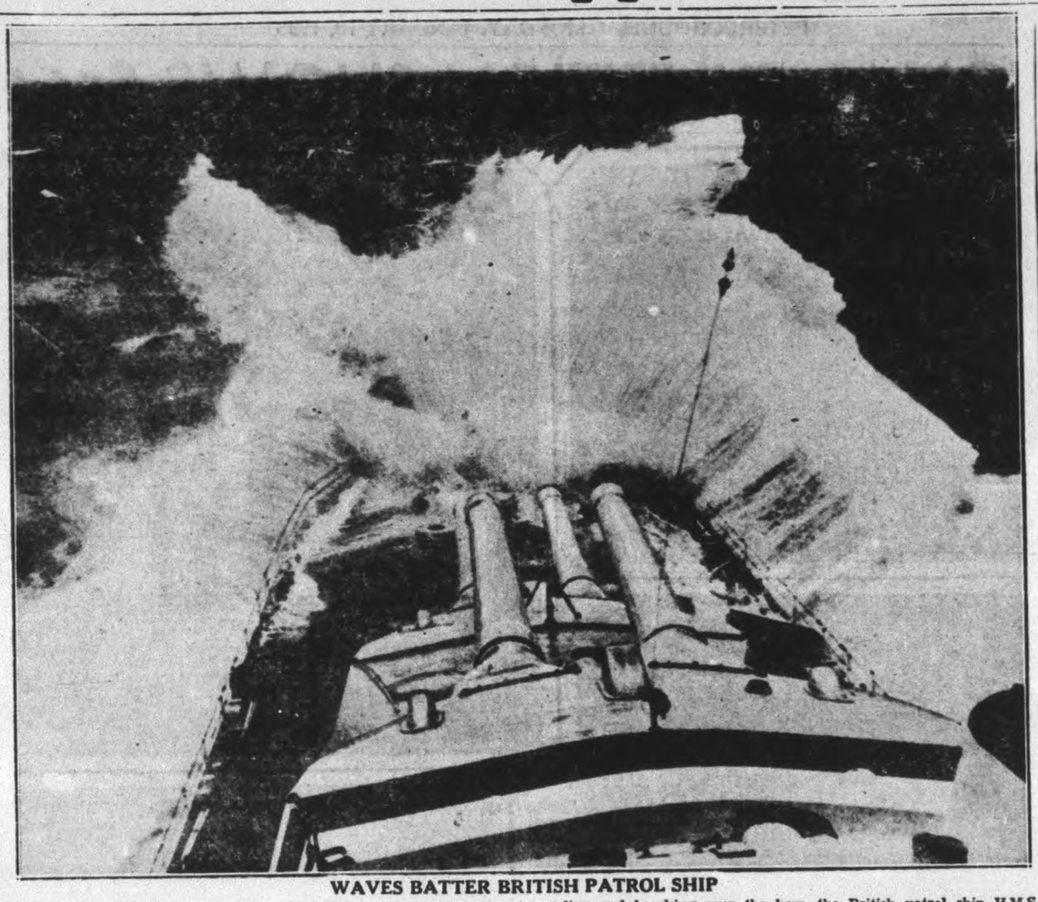
She was awarded £100 ($500) damages and £51 ($255) which she claimed was money given to her former lover, Bernard Brown, 26, painter and decorator, of Haxby, York, to save for their marriage.

BABY DRIVE SLOWS UP

Nazi Population Receives Setback After Good Start

Berlin.—The Nazi drive for a bigger population has received a setback.

The campaign for more babies started off well, the returns for the first half of 1935 showing an increase by 78,306 births over the corresponding period of 1934. In the first six months of 1936, however, there was a decline by 4,072, and the figures remain practically unchanged, showing a decline of 4,000 as compared with 1935.



WAVES BATTER BRITISH PATROL SHIP

Usually thought of as a gentle blue sea, lying beneath sunny skies, here is a stormy Mediterranean, proving much different from the average person's conception, as with lowering skies, black water and huge waves pounding and breaking over the bow, the British patrol ship H.M.S. Malaya surges forward on duty's errand. Judging from the size of the waves, the deck at such moments would be far from being a safe place to promenade.

VICTIM SAYS THIEVES WERE NEAT WORKERS

"They Left Hardly a Mess at All," Englishman Declares

Ashby-de-la-Zouch.—Even after being deprived of some of his silver, miniatures, china ornaments, and a bottle of whiskey, Earl Ferrers, head of an old English family, had a kind word to say for burglars who entered his Georgian mansion, Staunton Harold, near here, in early morning.

"I must say they were exceptionally neat workers," he said. "They left hardly any mess at all.

"An entry was gained through a window of the drawing room after the shutters had been forced.

"During the night a calf was born on the Home Farm, and my uninvited guests may have been disturbed by the mother's lowing or by men moving about the farm.

"They left without a clue—except their footmarks on the ground outside. Probably they had a car waiting somewhere beyond my grounds."

MAN 'NO JAIL COULD HOLD' IS BACK IN 'DURANCE VILE'

Jeremiah Mills Captured After Daring Escape From Sligo Prison

AWAY FOR A WEEK

Londonderry—Jeremiah Mills, who boasted that no jail in Ireland was strong enough to hold him, wriggled through a small window into Sligo prison garden and scaled a 20 foot wall to reach freedom with the aid of a rope ladder.

He was working in the prison laundry while serving a sentence of six months' hard labor for breaking into the home of Lady Louisa Crofton.

His description was circulated to civic guards throughout the Free State and to the Royal Ulster constabulary.

For a week the search went on. Civic guards believed he would seek "sanctuary" in Northern Ireland because of a widely held misconception that prisoners cannot be rearrested outside the Free State boundaries.

SAYS REST OF WORLD JEALOUS OF BRITAIN

Lack Fortitude to Recover in Same Way, Says Nuffield

Glasgow—Lord Nufield, in a typical straight - from - the - shoulder speech in Glasgow, explained why Britain's trade is booming, and why he thinks that prosperity will continue.

"Take it from me," he said at a luncheon to Scottish distributors of his vehicles, "every other country in the world is jealous of Britain.

"We are on top because we have a little more fortitude than they have. It looks that all is well with British business for 1938.

"Next year will see extensive business for all of you, and, when I say that, it applies to all the businesses in the country."

DEADLY POISON SCATTERED ON MANCHESTER STREETS

Police Guard Area to Save Children From Possible Death

SODIUM CYANIDE

Manchester — Cars, motor-cycles and vans were used to rush every available police officer to the Collyhurst district of Manchester, where deadly poison was found scattered on the pavements.

Over an area of more than two square miles, officers went from door to door warning parents to fetch their children in from the streets and to keep them in the house.

A radio SOS sent anxious mothers and fathers scouring the district for their children.

One five-year-old child had already been taken to the hospital because he mistook a poison tablet, which looked like a peppermint cream, for a sweet.

Three pounds of the poison—sodium cyanide — had been missed from a motor-car in Roger St., Redbank, Manchester.

The tablets are used to fumigate slum property, one of them giving off a highly poisonous fume, when placed in water, which is guaranteed to kill every living organism in a house within a few seconds.

Any one of the tablets, or even a small portion, would be fatal if eaten.

"If they were dropped in a puddle, a large quantity of poisonous gas would be given off," a reporter was told, "and if there is a quantity of them lying about in the streets a shower of rain would endanger anyone near."

Death would follow in a few seconds if fumes were breathed in sufficient concentration.

Quantities of the tablets were found in alleyways and roads in the district, and after six hours' search about half had been recovered.

Earlier children had been seen throwing them on to a nearby electrified railway line, and others were climbing up to recover them.

BRITISH PORTIA WINS CASE FOR HERSELF

Measures Distance of Traffic Signs—Cites Precedents

High Wycombe—By pointing out 50 similar summonses had recently been dismissed at Windsor, a woman motorist successfully contested here a summons for failing to stop at a "halt at major road ahead" sign.

Florence May Cook, Tring Rd., Aylesbury, said she measured the distance from the white line to the sign and found it was four feet more than 30 yards specified in the act.

She showed a newspaper report of the dismissal of summonses on similar pleas at Windsor and, after consultation, the magistrates dismissed the case.

'FAITHFUL' MAID BENEFITS

Liss, Hampshire.—Miss Doris Stay, a woman in her early thirties, has been left four cottages by Edwin Finch, of the Limes, Liss, by whom she was employed as maid-servant, for "faithful and ungrudging service to me and my late dear wife."

Mr. Mitchell, of Liss, a friend of Mr. Finch, told a reporter: "Miss Stay had been with the family for more than 10 years, but she was more than a maid to the couple. She was devoted to them, nursed Mrs. Finch during her last illness four years ago, and stayed on to look after Mr. Finch."

EX-OFFICER ADMITS MURDER OF GIRL, 18

Declines Judge's Advice to Plead Not Guilty

Exeter. — After a trial lasting barely 10 minutes, John Moss, 26, taxi-driver and ex-policeman, was sentenced to death at Exeter assizes for murdering the 18-year-old girl with whom he lived in a bungalow.

Mr. Justice Hawke, appealed to Moss to plead not guilty. "You know there may be some doubt about your mental condition at the time," said the judge. "I still wish to plead guilty," was the stolid reply.

The judge said he would make a special plea to the home secretary to inquire into whether Moss' mind was affected at the time of the murder.

KILLED CAPONE AID GETS NINE MONTHS

27-Year-Old Painter Sentenced at Old Bailey

London—William John Sullivan, 27-years-old painter, of Gray's Inn Rd., Holborn, was sentenced at the Old Bailey to nine months' imprisonment for the manslaughter of John Patrick Sherry, once one of the most feared men in the underworld of Chicago, and a former lieutenant of Al Capone.

Sullivan appeared in the dock with another man, Joseph Williams, a van-guard, aged 20, but the case against him was stopped.

A native of Glasgow, and known to be a gunman of resource, who shot his way out of trouble with the police, or rival gangsters, Sherry met his death in a house in Queensland Rd., Holloway, N. Following a dispute with Sullivan, he was struck over the head as he sat in a chair.

Sherry's career in Chicago was built up on bootlegging and "hijacking," and money flowed like water into his pocket. He lived in a well-appointed apartment and wore the best clothes.

BIRTHPLACE OF KING NORFOLK HOUSE SOLD

Mansion Where George III Born to Give Place to Flats

London — Norfolk house, St. James' Sq., S.W., the birthplace of George III, and town residence of the Dukes of Norfolk since the 17th century, has been sold to a firm of building contractors.

Luxury flats and offices are likely to take the place of the magnificent Georgian mansion, which, with its gardens and adjoining buildings, covers more than 30,000 square feet.

The Duke of Norfolk, who is the present owner, offered the house for auction in 1930, but it was withdrawn at £250,000 ($1,250,000).

It was in the original house, part of which still stands behind the principal building, that George III was born. The bedroom still exists

Frederick, Prince of Wales, son of George II, had a bitter quarrel with his father in 1737. He was ordered out of St. James' palace with his family. The ninth Duke of Norfolk offered Norfolk house to the homeless prince and the future George III was born the next year.

About 15 years ago Norfolk house could be rented at $17,800 for the season. In 1924 Mrs. Harry Brown of U.S.A. rented it at $5,000 a week. The Duke of Norfolk has used the house very little.

PRETTY PEASANT GIRL LEAPS OFF TRAIN, FLEES VICE GANG

Makes Escape in Tunnel—Had Been "Sold" to French Indies Trader

MARRIED SAILOR

Paris—A lovely French peasant girl escaped from a white slaver's clutches by leaping from the Paris-Marseilles express as it roared into a tunnel during the night.

Although suffering from severe bruises and shock, Paulette Castille, 17, staggered along the permanent way to the nearest station, where she told the police the dramatic story behind her escape.

Paulette left her home to seek work in Marseilles in June, but, unable to find a job as a waitress, fell into the clutches of a white slaver.

One day he told her he had sold her to a wealthy dealer in the French Indies and that she must prepare to leave.

That night a French boat from Japan put into Marseilles and a young sailor, Lucien Peroux went ashore, where he met Paulette.

She told him her life's story and he was so touched by it that he spirited her away to Paris, where they were to be married.

A few days ago there was a knock on the door of Paulette's hotel room, and when she opened it, she was horrified to find that the white slaver had followed her from Marseilles.

He forced her at the revolver point to leave with him.

Shortly after the train had left Paris and just as it was about to roar into a tunnel, Paulette leapt out.

Her description of her persecutor was flashed to all stations along the line, and at Laroche, the first stop, he was arrested.

SPRING BUBBLES UP WHEN NOISE MADE

Phenomena Considered Sacred by Natives of Ceylon

Colombo.—In a forest in the heart of Ceylon there is a spring that bubbles furiously when any loud noise is made in the vicinity. The spring is regarded as sacred and it is said wild elephants, before drinking water, pay homage to it by trumpeting, whereupon water flows freely.

Sir Don Baron Jayatilaka, minister for home affairs, investigated the phenomenon. Approaching quietly he hound the water very calm, but when his party made a noise it became agitated. The experiment was repeated several times, with similar results.

MAY DAMP PROOF TAJ MAHAL ROOF

Agra, India.—Plans to make the dome of the 300-year-old Taj Mahal damp-proof are under consideration by the authorities here. While there apears to be no danger of the great dome in the centre of the famous white marble mausoleum giving way, carved stones placed on it in recent years have added greatly to its weight and may be removed.

Concrete added to the original roofing has not achieved the main purpose of making it damp-proof to the extent anticipated. The great monument, one of the world's most beautiful buildings, was recently inspected by Rao Bahadur Dikshit, director-general of archaeology.

PLAN INDIA HIGHWAYS TO CURB FAKIR OF IPI

Waziristan Trouble-Makers Still at Large—Fled to Afghan

New Delhi.—Steps taken for the pacification of troubled Waziristan on India's northwest frontier are outlined in a communique issued here. It says efforts by the Fakir of Ipi to stir up fresh trouble on a wide scale have been unsuccessful.

Since the settlement reached in mid-September, the Fakir, elusive trouble-maker in the frontier operations, had organized sporadic raids. Driven by the British forces from the Shakto Valley, he took refuge near the Afghan border. He was still at large in mid-November.

The communique, covering operations from June 10 to Sept. 27 says in that period casualties among British and Indian forces in Waziristan totalled 58 dead and 161 wounded. Casualties suffered by opposing tribesmen are estimated at approximately 122 dead and 116 seriously wounded.

Motor roads are under construction, leading into the Shakto Valley, scene of military operations earlier in the year.

HAD U.S. IDEAS

Paris.—Imbued with the vicarious thrills of U.S. gangsters' movies and newspaper accounts of kidnapings and holdups, a 16-year-old French boy returned from the U.S. determined to set himself up in the extortion racket in France.

Now he is in the Sante prison facing five years of reformatory schooling followed by two years military service in the "Bat-d'Af," French penal battalion.

'HOUNDED BY POLICE' EX-CONVICT ENDS LIFE

"Never Hit Man When He's Down," to Go on Tombstone

Sydney, N.S.W.—Never hit a man when he's down is a hackneyed axiom. But it will be engraved on the tombstone for Clarence Thomas, reformed convict who believed fate crossed him in the game of life.

Following his release from prison, Thomas became a devout churchgoer. He formed a close friendship with a Methodist minister and frequently spoke from the pulpit. He was bitter in his allegations against the police whom he charged with persecution.

When Thomas was again arrested, on a charge of consorting with criminals, the minister fought hard for his acquittal. Thomas told the magistrate he had tried to go straight, but his every movement was closely watched by the authorities. He won his release.

But Thomas brooded. While walking along a crowded street he whipped out a revolver and shot himself through the head. "Now they can't hound me any more," he whispered before he died.

BIG SWEDISH CROP

Grain Figures Reported Mostly Above Average Yield

Stockholm.—Sweden has harvested a rich crop, according to statistical figures released. The quantities of the various species are, wheat 71,000 tons; rye 31,000 tons; barley 195,000 tons; oats 1,225,000; mixed grains 555,000 and hay 6,261,000. Most of these figures are higher than average, those of hay being particularly favorable.

EVERY BICYCLE IN A TOWN WAS STOLEN, SAY OFFICERS

Competitor Brings About Police Raid on Own 'Stock' From Brussels

HOLD GARAGE MAN

Ternath, Belgium.—Every bicycle in this little town has been seized by the police—they were all stolen in Brussels.

George Mourote owned the town's largest garage. He also ran a bicycle store on the side. His bicycle business prospered more than his garage.

A competitor became curious. He investigated. He learned Mourote obtained all of stock of bicycles from Brussels. He also learned that the bicycles were stolen.

But the competitor did not tell the police. Instead he used his business initiative and also found a place in Brussels where he could buy stolen bicycles cheaply. He began to cut in on Mourote's business. Mourote sent an anonymous letter to the police.

The second garage man was arrested. But as he had not yet received his "stock" the police found nothing.

But they did find a great quantity of bicycle parts and re-painted "bikes" when they raided Mourote's place after a tip from Mourote's competitor.

Bridgetown, Barbados.—Male shop assistants are obliged by law to be gentlemen. A recent bill, passed by the Legislature here, after some discussion on the point, required that seats be provided for female shop assistants only.

INDIA BOY SCOUTS FORM OWN GROUP

Resolution Passed to Operate as Separate Body

New Delhi.—Boy Scouts in India will have their own independent organization.

After protracted deliberations the triennial conference of the all-India Boy Scouts' association passed a resolution deciding the Boy Scouts' association in India should be a separate organization and that application for its affiliation should be made to the international bureau.

The conference recognized the great services which had been rendered to the Boy Scout movement in India by Lord Baden-Powell and Imperial headquarters.

DIES OF SNAKE BITE

Charmer Fails in Immunity Exhibition With Reptiles

Rangoon.—A snake turned on its charmer and bit him fatally at Pantanaw, Burma.

Saya Wa, a well-known snake-charmer, was giving a demonstration of "immunity" from snake-bite.

Before a crowd he applied some "medicine" to his body and took a viper from a basket. No sooner had it emerged than it coiled up with a hiss and bit him.

Saya Wa died a few days later.

London—An 1886 Dominica penny stamp was sold for £240 ($1,200) at a sale of a stamp collection here.

DRIVER PUTS ONUS ON CITY

Judge Sympathizes But Fines Motorist $2

London.—A motorist summoned before Sir George Wilkinson at Guildhall for causing obstruction in Coleman St. said he was a city ratepayer and "it was about time the corporation did something about providing adequate accommodation for rate-paying motorists."

Sir George: The city corporation have had this matter under serious consideration for a long time. However, my duty is to administer the law as it is. My sympathy is with you, and I shall fine you the nominal sum of 10s (about $2.)

HIGHWAY DEATH TOLL 618

October Figure Highest of Any Month This Year

London.—Great Britain's October death toll from road accidents was 618, the highest of any month to date in 1937. Accidents in October, 1936, also resulted in 618 deaths. Injuries on the roads in October, however, showed a drop of 354 compared with the same month last year. They totalled 19,868. In the London metropolitan area October road deaths totalled 89.

TO BUILD 730 RAIL COACHES

Will Have Total Seating Capacity of 37,000

London.—The L.N.E.R. 1938 carriage-renewal program involves the building of 730 new coaches, with a total seating capacity of 37,000. An extra, third-class streamlined coach is to be provided for the "Silver Jubilee" train, as on many occasions passengers have had to be refused.

HOLLYWOOD

Annabella

The picture is "The Baroness and the Butler" and the baroness is played by Annabella, the French star.

We watch Director Walter Lang shoot a scene between the two.

In this particular shot, the game of love and not the game of politics is being played.

Powell and Annabella are facing each other across a small table. He is wearing white tie and tails. She a black evening gown. He is a butler in her father's home but this night is attending a party as a political personage. She loves him but isn't ready to admit it. They are fencing with small talk.

Annabella offers Powell a cigarette.

He remarks that it is an expensive Turkish brand with a rose leaf tip.

This is no fake. The cigarettes used in the scene really do have rose leaf tips and cost $5 a box. Powell smokes only a few puffs in the scene, then hands the cigarette to an assistant director. He passes it around the set as a curiosity and the electricians sniff it and make faces.

After the last take, however, Powell comes off the set smoking the cigarette. This is unusual, for Powell, whose finesse in lighting a cigarette is equalled by few actors, doesn't smoke off-screen.

If you notice, he always holds a cigarette away from him.

Otherwise the smoke gets in his eyes and bothers him, like any amateur.

Walking over to another stage, we find Dolores Del Rio, George Sanders and Leon Ames doing a scene for "Shanghai Deadline."

This thriller, dealing with the munitions racket, has several claims to distinctio..

It is the only Shanghai picture Hollywood has made since the war that actually takes place in Shanghai. Others have been on trains going to Shanghai, or it has been explained the heroine has a cousin living in Shanghai, but this one really takes place in Shanghai during the recent siege.

The picture is reticent on only one point. No mention is made of the Japs at all. The enemy remains anonymous.

Another of the film's claims to distinction is that the heavy gets shot while sitting down. It is an established rule in Hollywood that all heavies get shot standing up and do a tumble to the floor.

We watch the scene leading up to where Heavy Leon Ames comes to this unconventional end.

It is in a ship's cabin and the hero, George Sanders, has come to retrieve a money belt containing a million dollars. When Ames refuses, his long suffering wife, Dolores Del Rio, whips out a pistol and compels him to surrender the money.

Right after this in the story, Ames is killed.

There is no use waiting around for this scene, however. It has been shot three days before.

A confusing business, the movies.

Many a Hollywood star will get a laugh out of R-K-O's "Joy of Loving," for Irene Dunne plays an actress who supports all her relations.

It is before breakfast and Miss Dunne is receiving the advice of her loved ones. Alice Brady and Guy Kibbee are her mother and father. Then there are her sister, Lucille Ball; her sister's husband, Frank Milland, and her five-year-old nieces, the Steirer twins.

It is evident that Miss Dunne is doing all right by her family, for Miss Brady wear a fancy negligee covered with green ostrich feathers and Lucille Ball is done up in a mist of blue tulle. The star herself is wearing a blue silk robe.

Irene Dunne

We wonder about the real breakfast routine of these three actresses and ask them about it.

Miss Dunne and Miss Brady always eat breakfast in bed. Miss Dunne is apt to wear the same kind of robe she wears in this scene. Miss Brady favors a fur-lined jacket.

Lucille Ball says, "I eat breakfast in bed when I can, but it isn't often. What do I wear? Well, nothing like this. When I get up, I often jump into an old broken down bathrobe."

The story of the Bill Powell-Al Kaufman trip to Europe gets better the more you hear of it. In Hungary Kaufman posed as Powell's bodyguard. When people asked why he had chosen such a small man for a bodyguard, Bill lowered his voice and said impressively:

"Because he is the fastest man on the draw in the United States."

Thereafter, Kaufman was the subject of morbid curiosity.

HOLLYWOOD—Seventeen and on her way to stardom, Olympe Bradna gets her first screen kiss in the picture, "Stolen Heaven." It is reliably reported that she blushed when Gene Raymond took her in his arms and implanted the caress upon her lips. Be that as it may, the French actress is the most perfectly chaperoned girl in the movies. Her mother and father accompany her to the studio and one of them is usually on the set. They take her home at night and, though this is Hollywood, in 1938, Olympe is not allowed to have dates.

After the kiss she was asked to describe her sensations.

"Oh, it was nice," she said, "but why do all these people have to be around?"

Olympe's first screen kiss was viewed by 150 extras, not to mention the crew on the picture.

Sample of how fast Hollywood gossip travels, Lucille Ball wears a wedding ring in the picture, "Joy of Loving." She couldn't get it off the other night, so she wore it home and to dinner at a cafe.

By the next night she had received four telegrams of congratulations on her marriage to Al Hall.

Jeanette MacDonald who traces her ancestry back to the MacDonald clan in Scotland, would like to do a musical with a Scotch background. She is reading a script now based on the story of Annie Laurie. The author is Dave Weber, the dialogue director on "The Girl of the Golden West."

Though he now owns an estate in Bel Air, Bob Burns often suffers nostalgia for the scenery around his home town, Van Buren, Ark. This is the explanation of the log shanty that is going up on the comedian's property. On the outside, it could pass for one of the homes in the Arkansas hill country. The logs to build it are being imported from Arkansas. But the inside, Burns confesses, will have all the Hollywood conveniences. The actor will use it as a den and a study. He'll have a few friends in to help christen the shanty as soon as he finishes "Radio City Revels."

Song-writers Pollack and Mitchell raffled off a radio and turned the proceeds, $500, over to the waitresses in the Twentieth Century-Fox commissary. Not to be outdone, Fred Allen, who won the raffle, then turned the radio over to the waitresses.

They drew lots and the girl who got it fainted.

Down in Louisville, they went crazy over the success of Marjorie Weaver, the home town girl, in "Second Honeymoon." The papers think her good enough story to fly photographers to Hollywood to take special pictures. Can't remember this ever being done before.

Phil Regan has succumbed to the lue of a farm. He's bought a place not far from James Cagney's acreage at Martha's Vineyard in Mass. . . . Mrs. Regan's mother is moving up from Brooklyn to look after the farm. . . . Jeanette MacDonald's horse, "White Lady," and Gene Raymond's "Black Knight" came in second and third in the hunter's trials at Riviera. . . . Jane Withers is giving a piano to a little school with 30 pupils in Neosho, Mo. This is one child star who is giving generously from her movie salary to help others. . . . If you care, Kitty Kelly paints her long nails on both sides . . . Earthquakes or not, Margaret Lindsay is vacationing in Taxco, Mexico, as soon as she finishes "Jezebel" . . . And, if you like to keep up with former favourites, Mary Doran and her husband, Kurt Reifenberg, sent us a Christmas card from Cologne on the Rhine, Germany.

Joan Bennett, who is trouping in "Stage Door," left Detroit for St. Louis and Chicago, then back to Hollywood for a new picture.

Took A Chance

JACK OAKIE

Jack Oakie, whose real name is Jack Offield, claims inspiration in Lindbergh's flight for his own projected trip to Hollywood. Born at Sedalia, Mo., Nov. 12, 1903, he eventually reached New York and obtained a job as clerk in a Wall Street office. His reputation as a humorist reached the notice of May Leslie, society impresario, who formed a partnership with him that lasted until 1927. Together they appeared in many stage shows including "Innocent Eyes", 'Artists and Models" and "Passing Shows". When Lindbergh came into the news, Jack Oakie reasoned, "Lindbergh took a chance and made it."

Coming To Capitol

Humorist Bob Benchley Supports Montgomery In 'Live, Love, Learn'

Robert Montgomery and Rosalind Russell in their first screen appearance together since their joint triumph in "Night Must Fall" are the stars of "Live, Love and Learn," coming to the Capitol Theatre today and Tuesday with Robert Benchley and Helen Vinson topping an outstanding supporting cast.

As a penniless young Greenwich Village artist who marries a rich society girl, wins startling success overnight, is lionized by the "400" and loses his head, his talents—and almost his wife—Montgomery is offered the greatest opportunity of his career to display all his genius for comedy and melodrama.

Miss Russell, as the rich society girl who renounces wealth and position to share the harum-scarum life of a Greenwich Village Bohemian artist and who watches wealth ruin the fine talents of the man she married, has been provided with a vehicle which permits her full scope to show the world why Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer made her a star.

Fidelity of setting called forth all the talents of technical experts. A Greenwich Village studio in New York plays an important part in early sequences of the story. In strong contrast with the shabby garret sequences are the magnificent settings used for the period when Montgomery's sudden affluence prompts him to live beyond his means.

One of the largest supporting casts to feature a Hollywood production in many months is headed by Benchley and Miss Vinson. Benchley, famous for his comedy shorts and humorous writings, plays the role of "Oscar," Montgomery's bibulous boon companion. Miss Vinson, whose blonde glamour has won her outstanding roles in many pictures, is cast as Lilly, friend of Miss Russell's, who tries to take Montgomery away from his wife.

The direction of "Live, Love and Learn" was entrusted to the veteran director, George Fitzmaurice on the basis of his outstanding work in many of Hollywood's four-star successes.

LAVISH SETTINGS IN 'THE FIREFLY'

Thirty major sets, most of them exteriors requiring the use of from 150 to more than 500 costumed extras, plus two locations, one of which took the company to Lone Pine for mountain backgrounds, constitute the settings against which Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's most colorful musical, "The Firefly," was filmed. The picture opens at the Capitol Wednesday.

Jeanette MacDonald appears in the title role of the story adapted from the Rudolf Friml operetta, with Allan Jones and Warren William as her leading men. The picture opens in the streets of Madrid in March, 1808 when Ferdinand the Seventh of Spain is making his first entry into the city as King of Spain. It moves to the Madrid cafe in which "The Firefly" has gained her fame as the city's most famous singer-danced, thence to a Pyrenees mountain road, an inn outside Vittoria, a marketplace in Bayonne and a cafe in the same French city, the battle of Vittoria and Wellington's headquarters.

Seven outstanding musical numbers feature the production: "Love Is Like a Firefly," 'He Who Loves and Runs Away" and "When a Maid Comes Knocking at Your Heart," sung by Miss MacDonald "A Woman's Kiss" and "The Donkey's Serenade," sung by Jones, and "Giannina Mia" and "Sympathy," in which both are heard.

Miss MacDonald's soprano also rings out against a background of a 40-piece male military chorus.

For the first time in her screen career, the star enacts a role that requires even more dancing than singing. For weeks she rehearsed dance routines under the supervision of ballet mistress Albertina Rasch. In the Madrid cafe sequence, she dances completely around the circumference of a table 18 feet in diameter, necessitating a 360-degree camera shot, for which special apparatus had to be developed. This set is unique in that it is complete with four walls and ceiling.

George S. Kaufman, Broadway playwright who scoops in at least $250.000 a year ran a humor column on a Washington paper just 20 years ago for $20 a week.

DEFT CLOWNING BY IRENE DUNNE FILM HIGHLIGHT

Irene Dunne, the Theodorable screen comedienne, scores mightily in the year's choicest comedy role as Lucy Warriner in Columbia's "The Awful Truth," which opens today at the Regent Theatre. Irene merely scratched the surface of her comedy capabilities in "Theodora Goes Wild." It remained for her hilarious clowning in "The Awful Truth" to reveal the treasure-trove of talent in her inimitable personality.

This gay, madcap story of the Warriners, played by Miss Dunne as Lucy and Cary Grant as Jerry, is so uproariously funny it should make the annual ten best list in a wilk. The fune starts when Jerry and Lucy decide to separate with the only bone of contention the custody of Mr. Smith, their wire-hair terrier.

The court allows Mr. Smith to Lucy but permits Jerry to visit the dog. Thus many of the film's outstanding comedy scenes arise out of Jerry's visits to Lucy, apartment while she is entertaining impatient suitors.

Le Affaire Warriner takes it most ludicrous turn, however, when Jerry announces his engagement to a flighty young thing with a social register background. He determined to win Jerry back attends the sumptuous ensosts, party, posing as Jerry's fiancee by actions totally unbecoming lady, manages to have herself her "brother" thrown out on collective ear. "Colossal" was coined for just such a scene.

Irene and Cary, teamed for the first time, are, of course, superb. Ralph Bellamy gives a deliciously hill-billy flavor to his Oklahoma oil tycoon. The veteran Cecil Cunningham plays Miss Dunne's dour Aunt Patsy. Alexander D'Arcy is excellently romantic as the French vocal teacher.

'The Awful Truth" is handsomely mounted. No less important than all these qualities is the finished direction of Leo McCarey. In "The Awful Truth" he has unquestionably made one of the standout films of the

The "pilot, his girl and his chief gunner", is the way the scenario casts Clark Gable, Myrna Loy and Spencer Tracy (ABOVE) in a new production entitled "Test Pilot." The three stars are just arriving back in Hollywood after a strenuous day on location.

CHAPTER 35.

When I arrived at the house after choir practice everyone was in bed. My letters were on the table. I read them standing by the sitting room lamp. The last one I opened was in a long legal envelope, and there were papers enclosed. The letter was from a Denver lawyer, and told me of my Uncle Jerry's death. I was, he informed me, my uncle's sole heir. The papers had to do with my inheritance!

When I read the lawyer's letter a second time I went into my father's room. I had the lamp in my hand, and the light waked him. He sat up at once, looking rather young and boyish with his ruffled hair and open collar.

"What is it, Jerry?"

"Father, I shouldn't have waked you, but I wanted you to see this."

I held out the letter to him, then, conscious for the first time of the shock it might be, I stammered, "It is very bad news of Uncle Jerry."

"Is he dead?"

"Yes, father."

"Let me see the letter."

I gave it to him. So absorbed was I by the vista which was revealed to me by my inheritance that I could not grasp, at the moment, the tragic significance of the statements which must have struck my father like a blow. Uncle Jerry had died alone in a hospital. He had been suffering for several years from an acute trouble. He had asked to be buried on the side of the mountain above his ranch. He had left me, because I was his namesake, his house, and all properties, real and personal, of which he died possessed. The lawyer enclosed a copy of the will. He was not sure, he explained, how much income I would receive. Uncle Jerry's affairs were somewhat complicated. He thought the house was free from mortgages. He would let me know as soon as possible.

When my father had read it all, he got out of bed. "We can't talk here. Our voices will disturb your aunt and grandmother. I'll dress and come to you, Jerry."

When he came, we left the house and walked under the moon. And as we walked we talked of Uncle Jerry.

"This will be a sad blow to Mother and Mary," my father said. "Jerry went out of their lives long ago. But they will mourn the boy he used to be."

"Somehow it doesn't seem fair that he should leave everything to me, Father."

"He talked that over with us when he was here. We wanted him to do it. He could give you the opportunities which none of the rest of us could give."

For the first time I had a feeling that Uncle Jerry's legacy tied me to something, that it placed on me a certain responsibility for success, lest I disappoint those who had sacrificed so much.

I tried to explain this feeling to my father. We had come to the little cemetery, and stood leaning on the gate. We could see the white shaft of the stone which marked my mother's grave. She was often thus a part of our councils.

"I wanted," I said at last, "to be free."

"You are free, Jerry."

"No," I said, "I am not. The right thing for me to do would be to stay here and work, and fulfill all your ambitions for me, and Aunt Mary's and grandmother's. But I don't want to do that. I want to live, father. I want to live."

He did not speak for several moments then he said: "Just what do you mean by living?"

I faced him in the moonlight. "Well," I said, "I want something more vivid than life has brought you. I want color and glow . . . as you wanted it once upon a time . . . I want to feel, to the last quiver of sensation . . . I want to seek adventure . . . as did the man in my story . . ."

"When we are young, we want all those things, Jerry."

"Don't you want them now, Father? Don't you?"

"Perhaps," he said, " but since I shall never have them, I am content."

"But if you were young again?"

" I don't know, Jerry. Honestly. I don't know. I chose what seemed best."

"But for me, Father? If I marry Mimi . . ."

"You are thinking of that?"

"Of course. I have something now to offer her. I am going back to St. Louis. I shall make her see what life can give us out there on Uncle Jerry's ranch."

"What do you know of life on his ranch?"

"The things he told me."

"You mustn't depend too much on that—" he checked himself, unlatched the gate and went in. I followed him and we made our way among the stones until we came to a flat one like a bench where Theresa and I had sat years before. There were roses blooming as there had been then; they showed like small white ghosts against their dark foliage. The wind had come up, and the moon drifted in a sea of clouds. It cast spectral shadows over the headstones. And there I stood, young, red-blooded, urging my claims to a quick and stirring future.

"Your Uncle Jerry," my father was saying, "saw everything through the eyes of his own optimism. He loved life, and he grasped at every experience that came to him. I am not sure that it paid. I should not like to think that you must lose so much to get so little. The chances are, Jerry, that his ranch is not luxurious, and that your income will be small. I should advise you to go out there and see what you have to offer before you ask a woman to share it."

"But why wait . . .? It may be too late."

"To late?"

"She may be—married. I can only hope . . . Father, I've got to go to her."

A cloud was over the moon; his voice came to me out of the darkness: "Go if you will, and God go with you."

I thought him wonderful then. I still think him wonderful that in spite of his doubts, in spite of his wish to warn me, he should yet feel that my own adventure was mine, and he would not hold me back.

Yet, I know my selfishness. I had no thought of his loneliness. I was lost to all sense of his double bereavement in the death of his brother and in the desertion of his son. I was filled with the exquisiteness of hope. I was drunk with the fragrance of the roses, and the beauty of the high-sailing moon. My inheritance made all things possible, and I was going back to Mimi.

✧ ✧ ✧

I married Mimi Le Brun just 24 hours after I arrived in St. Louis. The thing, as I look back upon it, seems incredible. It is hard even now to recall the moves in the game I played. For it was a game, with the highest stakes in the world—my own future and Mimi's.

I had written to her—a short note—telling her it was imperative I should see her. And that I would call her up as soon as I reached St. Louis.

"I ought not to speak to you Jerry," was the first thing she said to me over the telephone, "after the way you have treated me."

I ignored that. "May I come now? I can't wait."

"Not until 1 o'clock. Mother has a luncheon engagement, and she will be out by that time."

"Can't you lunch somewhere with me?"

"No. I have a seamstress working for me—and anyhow I am not quite sure that I have forgiven you, Jerry."

But I knew that she would forgive me. I would admit no thought of failure.

My train had arrived at 11:30. I went to a downtown hotel, made myself spick and span, and found a florist. I bought an armful of roses, paying an unspeakable price for them, but I felt that my prospects justified the extravagance. I had saved the money I had received for my story, and after paying my debts there had been two months' accumulated allowance. This would serve for immediate needs, and there was affluence ahead of me.

As I left the florist's it began to rain, a June shower, with a wild bit of wind at the beginning and then a heavy downpour. I took a taxi and reached Mimi's at the appointed time.

She was not in the little living room to receive me. So I sat on one of the chintz-covered chairs, with the box of flowers on the table beside me, while the maid went to announce me.

As I sat there, the silence was broken by a faint ticking sound in the room beyond. It stopped and began again, speeding up until the air was filled with the humming vibration.

It was the seamstress, of whom Mimi had spoken, at her sewing machine. Presently the noise ceased, and from behind the curtains, which separated the living room from the dining room, appeared the charming little Frenchwoman, Lucille Merrick, who had once sent Mimi and me on a quest for spools of blue silk.

She came forward and spoke with a sort of smiling breathlessness. "I must say something to you before you see Mimi. She has just had a fitting and is getting dressed. When you see her you will be shocked. She has suffered. Her mother and Andy Fuller are like wolves—tearing her."

She was very much in earnest. "They are trying to make her marry him. Next week they are all going together to a house party on Lake Michigan. And Mimi doesn't want to go. She told me so just now. And she cried."

Mimi in tears! I couldn't believe it. Yet my heart leaped. "I have come to save her," I said.

Heart-Hunger Is Not an Exclusive Feminine Trait; Friendship, Partnership and the Willingness to Guard His Health Also Holds Husbands to their Own Firesides.

EVERY wife should be six things to her husband. First, she should be a sweetheart. Before marriage a man does the courting. After marriage the wife must do the love-making. She must never let the fire of romance burn out on the hearthstone and she must keep her husband seeing her as a Lady Love instead of just a cook and the children's mother.

Wives are always complaining that their husbands take them for granted and that they never play them a compliment, or notice what they have on, or give them any outward visible sign of affection. But these same women give their husbands precisely the same sort of a frigid deal and then wonder why said husbands wander off after glamorous ladies who tell them how handsome, big, strong and wonderful they are. Heart-hunger is not an exclusively feminine complaint. Men suffer from it, too. They also crave appreciation and flattery and for their wives to give some indication that they regard them as men instead of cash registers.

As long as a wife stays a lover and dresses herself up for her husband and uses all the arts and wiles to hold him that she did to catch him, he is virtually siren-proof.

Secondly, a wife should be her husband's friend. She should be the one person in the world to whom he can go, secure of sympathy and understanding, and whom he never bores because the slightest thing he does is more thrilling to her than world-shaking events abroad.

She should be a friend to whom he can bare his soul and tell his secrets, with the certainty that his confidences will be kept locked in her heart instead of being passed on to Mother and the girls. She should be a friend to whom he can boast of his triumphs without having them belittled and bewail his failures without being told they are his own fault. She should be a friend to whom he can tell the truth without being nagged about it ever afterward.

A wife should be a friend whose society her husband finds more entertaining and interesting than that of any one else. She should be interested in the things that he is interested in, read the same books, like the same people, enjoy the same movies, because there can be no real friendship between people who have not the same tastes. And she should be a good listener, willing to lend him her ears when he talks about his business or his golf score. She should laugh at his jokes and make as great an effort to be agreeable to him as she would to any other man she wanted to charm and whom she wanted to think that he had drawn a lucky number when he got her for a dinner partner. When a man speaks of the woman to whom he is married as Friend Wife and means it, it is a gilt-edge certificate of domestic felicity.

Third, a woman should be her husband's business partner. No woman has a right to take all and give nothing in marriage, and the parasitic wife is as contemptible as any other grafter. In the domestic partnership the woman's end of it is in making her husband a comfortable home and keeping him well and happy, and it is just as much up to her to turn out a good job as it is for him to do so.

Of course, there are a few men who are such born go-getters that they will achieve their ambitions no matter what sort of women they marry, but nine times out of 10 whether a man succeeds or fails depends upon the side partner he has. Most of the big fortunes were founded on the nickels and dimes that thrifty wives saved by peeling the potatoes a little thinner and walking 10 blocks to buy cheap cuts of meat that they turned into wholesome and nourishing dishes.

The lazy wives, the bad cooks, the spenders, the whiners and complainers and naggers are millstones about the necks of their husbands that sink them. So it is up to every woman to be a real helpmeet to her man. To do her share of the work, to keep him fit by feeding him properly, to brace him up when he is discouraged and keep his faith alive in himself, to go with him where his fortune calls, to make friends for him and to do it all under cover so that he, himself, does not know how much he owes to his partner. But more of this Tuesday.

For Tuesday, January 11.

A progressive, prosperous and happy day is forecast from the prevailing astral influences. It is a good time for seeking promotion, increase or favors from employers, superiors or those in places of power.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of outstanding progress and prosperity with much personal happiness. Promotion, financial increase, tokens of preferment and honor are in order. Deal with corporations, rings, political, diplomatic and fraternal bodies.

A child born on this day may be splendidly equipped for success and position in life. It will have fine talents, be ambitious and have a charming and pleasant personality as well.

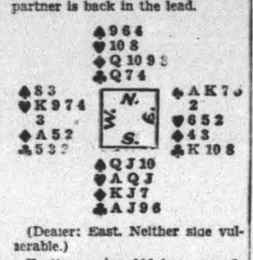
By SHEPARD BARCLAY

"The Authority on Authorities"

NOT A SINGLETON LEAD

A GOOD PARTNER seldom will open your suit against the opponent's no trump game if he has just a singleton in it. Counting him, therefore, for two cards, can give you a reading on the declarer which will enable you to let a round of the suit go by, so that you can bring it in later when your partner is back in the lead.



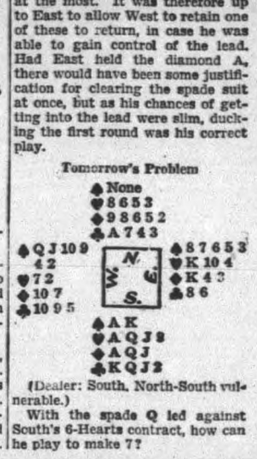
(Dealer: East. Neither side vulnerable.)

East's opening bid here was 1-Spade, South overcalled with 1-No Trump, North bid 2-Diamonds and South jumped to 3-No Trumps in view of his excellent fit for the diamond suit.

In response to his partner's bid, West opened with the spade 8. East cashed his two high spades and led another to clear the suit. The declarer then went after diamonds and was agreeably surprised to find the diamond A with West. West having no more spades, it did not matter which suit he elected to return, as South's contract was safe.

Quite a different situation would have resulted had East allowed the declarer to win the first spade trick. For his no trump bids, South surely held three cards of the suit, which would leave West with two at the most. It was therefore up to East to allow West to retain one of these to return, in case he was able to gain control of the lead. Had East held the diamond A, there would have been some justification for clearing the spade suit at once, but as his chances of getting into the lead were slim, ducking the first round was his correct play.

Tomorrow's Problem



(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)

With the spade Q led against South's 6-Hearts contract, how can he play to make 7?

UNCLE WIGGILY'S MISTAKE

(By Howard R. Garis)

"Ha! Ha! Ha!" laughed the Bob Cat, and he giggled so hard he had to sit down on his silly little tail to keep from falling.

"What's the joke," asked the Fox. "Tell us and we'll laugh, too," sneered the Woozie Wolf.

The other two Bad Chaps had called to see the Bob Cat hoping he would have something to eat. But he hadn't. He just laughed. So the Fox and the Wolf went sneaking and snooping and sniffing around the Bob Cat's den, thinking they could find something good, for they were very hungry.

"It's no use looking!" the Bob Cat mewed after a while. "If there was anything good to eat I would have nibbled it myself before I asked you chaps in."

"Then if you have nothing for us to eat why did you ask us?" inquired the Fox.

"That's what I want to know," said the Wolf.

"Ha! Ha Ha! laughed the Bob Cat again.

Has a Plan

"I certainly didn't come here to listen to you giggle," said the Wolf.

"Nor I," added the Fox. "Come on, let's go, Wolfie."

"Wait a minute!" purred the Bob Cat in a sort of red flannel voice. He would have purred as soft as silk only he was a rough chap. "I asked you here," the Bob Cat mewed, "because I have thought of a way to catch Uncle Wiggily and eat him."

"What, again?" sneered the Fox.

"What do you mean—again?" snarled the Wolf. "We haven't eaten that rabbit once, yet."

"That's what I mean," said the Fox. "I mean the Bob Cat again is silly enough to think he can catch Mr. Longears. I have tried and so have you, Wolfie, and so has Bobbie here, but never once have we caught that clever rabbit."

"We shall this time," cried the Bob Cat. "This time Uncle Wiggily is going to make a mistake and we'll have him. Then you chaps won't have to go 'round snooping for something to eat."

"Well, go ahead. Broadcast!" sneered the Fox.

"The mike is open," added the Wolf, pretending to be a sponsor.

"Look at this," said the Bob Cat suddenly.

He showed his friends a little electric flashlight. But the tiny lamp in it, instead of being white, was colored pink.

Imitation

"Wait a minute. Come to the dark part of the cave," said the Bob Cat. And when his two Bad Chap friends were there he flashed the light and said: "What does it look like?"

"Uncle Wiggily's pink nose twinkling in the dark," said the Fox.

"Only," added the Wolf, "it is too small. It's more like the pink nose of Baby Bunty, the orphan rabbit."

"That's exactly what I got it for," said the Bob Cat. "I am going to pretend to be Baby Bunty, twinkling her pink nose in the dark woods. Uncle Wiggily will make a mistake and think it is Bunty. He will follow me, thinking it is her and I'll lead him to my den."

"Ah, ha!" whispered the Fox and the Wolf. "Hurray for Uncle Wiggily's mistake!" They went out of the den.

Meanwhile Uncle Wiggily, in his hollow stump bungalow, was just starting out. It was afternoon.

"On your way home," said Nurse Jane, "you might stop at Susie Littletail's house and bring Bunty back. She is there at a party."

"I'll do that," said the rabbit gentleman, twinkling his pink nose as he hopped away. And if the dusting brush doesn't try to fasten its hair up with a clothes pin I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily and Bunty's nose.

WORLD TO FEEL ANGLO-U.S. PACT

LONDON, Jan. 10 (CP-Havas) — An Anglo-American trade agreement will not only directly affect all English-speaking countries but will have indirect repercussions beyond their borders, The Times (Independent) said in an editorial today.

The editorial, an analysis of President Roosevelt's Jackson Day address in which he pledged himself to right the "autocratic" business minority in the United States, said the benefits of such an agreement will be commensurate with the difficulties involved in its negotiation.

The editorial declared in this regard that the joint trade of the British Commonwealth and the United States is almost half of the world's total.

The newspaper added "a prosperous America makes it easier for the rest of the world to regain prosperity' but a United States in the throes of a new depression "w[illegible] handicap recovery everywhere."

BISHOP BLUNT ILL

LONDON, Jan. 10 (CP Cable)—Rt. Rev. Alfred Blunt, Bishop of Bradford, arrived in London today to consult a specialist. He is believed to have suffered a nervous breakdown.

It is understood Bishop Blunt has not been well since his illness last summer at Halifax, N.S., when he was forced to cancel a proposed Canadian tour. Diocesan authorities insist his condition is not serious although he has been unable to keep recent engagements. In October, when the King and Queen visited Bradford, he was unable to appear to be presented.

Caledonian Club Holds Meeting.

The annual business meeting of the Caledonian Club was held in the Woodmen of the World Hall on Friday evening. J. Miller, president, presided over a fair attendance. In the unavoidable absence of the treasurer, R. Welsh, the annual financial report was read by the secretary, J. Wyllie. A nominating committee—J. Miller and S. Leith—was appointed to prepare a slate of officers for the February meeting, when the election will take place. Mrs. J. Reid and Mrs. W. Petrie were appointed hostesses for the balance of this month. Burns' anniversary will be observed on the 28th, when the members will hold a concert. Mesdames R. French, A. E. Borland, R. Higgins and J. Wyllie were appointed to be in charge of the refreshments on this occasion. A card party and miscellaneous games will be the entertainment for the other meetings.

Much gratification was afforded the members when a letter of appreciation was read from Alick Dick of South Bend, Ind. The writer, a former member of the club, was a New Year's visitor in the city, and, along with Mrs. Dick, attended the Hogmanay dance. The letter contained congratulations on the club's being able to function during the depression years, and on its present condition. The hearty welcome accorded the visitors, along with the great pleasure they received in the meeting of old acquaintances was fully appreciated by the writer.

After the business was concluded refreshments were served and a social hour spent.

McMullen-Clarke.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, Jan. 10. — A quiet wedding was solemnized on Saturday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. S. J. W. Clarke, when their eldest daughter Margaret was united in marriage to Allan McMullen, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur McMullen of Havelock. Rev. A. L. Sisco of Millbrook officiated at the ceremony.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, looked lovely in a blue gown with accessories to match. She was attended by Miss E. Siscoe of Millbrook. The groom was attended by Harold Hunter of town.

Shortly after the ceremony the happy couple left by train for a short trip. Mr. and Mrs. McMullen will reside in Kitchener.

✧ ✧ ✧

Edwards-James.

The marriage took place in All Saints' Anglican Church on Saturday afternoon at 2.30 of Dorothy Ann James, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank James of Lafayette Avenue, to Glen Edwards, son of the late Prof. John Edwards and Mrs. Edwards of Dublin Street, Canon J. D. Paterson officiating.

The church was decorated with white tulle bows at the ends of the pews and with baskets of carnations and ferns surrounding the altar. The music was played by Mrs. W. A. Logan and during the signing of the register, Miss Ivy James, a sister of the bride, sang "Because."

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white satin trimmed with lace and matching veil and white accessories. She carried a beautiful bouquet of roses and lily of the valley. Kay Edwards, a sister of the groom, attended the bride, and wore a gown of turquoise blue with a juliet hat and carried a bouquet of roses. The best man was Frank James, a brother of the bride, and the ushers, two cousins of the bride, was Neil Clark and Bud Goodson.

After the ceremony a reception, at which over 50 attended, was held at the home of the bride, where the bride's mother received, wearing a gown of purple crepe and black velvet hat. The groom's mother, who also received, wore a gown of wine colored velvet with a hat of black velvet.

The young couple will reside on Romaine Street.

The Edwards-James Wedding

Castor Oil, Long a Bugaboo of Youth, Now Is An Aid to Feminine Beauty

BUFFALO, N.Y., Jan. 10 (A.P.)—Castor oil, long a bugaboo of youth, now is an aid to feminine beauty, Dr. George W. Fiergo, University of Buffalo scientist, announced to-day after three years of research.

"Young women who 10 years ago viewed the approach of a castor oil bottle in mother's hand with anything but thoughts of beauty, soon will be using castor oil vanishing cream, castor oil cold cream, and even castor oil lipstick," he predicted.

Dr. Fiero, a professor in the University Pharmacy School, said he had discovered the new beauty aids by passing hydrogen through castor oil in the presence of a catalyst and obtaining "hydrogenated castor oil."

"The same treatment has been given other vegetable oils," he explained, "but castor oil differs chemically, is more active and gives an extremely hard product which has yielded itself to many uses."

Ladies' Club Meets In Armstrong Home

(Examiner Correspondence.)

KEENE, Jan. 10. — The Ladies' Club held its meeting on Wednesday night at Miss Jean Armstrong's, when Mrs. Earl Doris and Miss Armstrong were joint hostesses. The meeting opened by all singing the theme song, "Little Old Lady." Mrs. P. Gillespie gave an interesting talk on current events.

The topic, "Gene Oxenham," was ably handled by Miss Margaret Bruce and Mrs. Robert Nelson. Mrs. James McFarlane and Miss Jennie Plunkett read several of his poems. Miss Margaret Bryce sang one of Gene Oxenham's songs.

Mrs. Ferguson conducted several interesting contests. Acknowledgments were read by those who received Christmas baskets from the club. Dainty refreshments were then served by the hostess.

Mrs. Kate Brought of Halleybury is home owing to the illness of her father, Patrick Roach.

Mr. and Mrs. Archie Cocks of Peterborough spent the Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Shearer.

Shower Is Held For Peggy Clarke

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, Jan. 10. — A lovely shower was held on Friday evening by members of the Girls' Club of the United Church, in honor of Mrs. Allan McMullen (nee Peggy Clarke), whose marriage took place on Saturday afternoon. The shower was held at the home of the Misses Edith and Muriel Russell.

In addition to the several individual gifts from the members, the bride was presented with a beautiful silver basket from the club, of which she was an active member.

An enjoyable evening was spent, at the conclusion of which refreshments were served by the hostess, Mrs. A. Russell, assisted by the class instructress, Miss Minnie Williams.

Facts and Fancies

HERE'S A HINT

A bit of pottery, ceramic, pretty glass bottles, etc., intrigue any woman. She loves them for her living room, and for her bedroom or boudoir. And remember, one odor of toilet water no longer suffices the up-to-date woman. She should have one for her daytime toilet and one for evening, at least.

Gift for Man

An extremely handy gift to the college man or the traveller, whose space for toilet accessories is limited, is a combination toilet kit and military brush. The top of the brush is really a pigskin case, containing shaving cream, razor, toothpaste and brush. A zipper around the outer edge of the case holds the contents firmly in place when not in use.

JUST BETWEEN US WOMEN

"For fear of flattering, sincere people go on side by side with those they love an admire, giving them, all the time the impression of utter indifference. Parents are so afraid of exciting pride and vanity in their children, . . . that a child sometimes goes sad and discouraged by their side, and learns with surprise, in some chance way, that they are proud and fond of him. There are times when open expression of parent's love would be worth more than church or sermon to their children, but—the parents cannot utter it, will not show it."

From "Great Thoughts."

Dear Friends:

And it is not only in the home that we are shown utter indifference. They like us, they like what we are doing, but never a word of approval do we hear. It is not alone when we are children that this happens, and so we go through life with a wonder in our minds as to why in the world we are here.

How much betted we can work if we get a word of encouragement. How starved we feel for the lack of it. The world seems all too ready to condemn and blame, and if it isn't the younger generation that is getting it, it is the government or the church or something else.

It is the easiest thing in the world to criticise. Any fool can do it. All they have to do is open their mouth and talk as their belly guides them. And you hear it wherever you go.

But how seldom you hear the word of praise. They can talk of the faults, but how rarely do they mention the good points. And every last one of us needs a word of pra once in a while.

We are so accustomed to bein blamed that we are all braced for it, ready to defend our actions as best we can. But if someone says a kind thing to us, we become confused, embarrassed, ill-at-ease, no matter how well-deserved it may be.

And so, now that good resolutions are in order at the beginning of the year, let us resolve to say more nice things to one another, and less nasty ones.

Let the older ones realize that if they had been born in this generation, they would likely do as they do. Let the younger one remember had they been born earlier, they would have done as we did.

Every generation thinks the younger ones are going to the dogs. The papers used to be full of the horrors of wearing corsets, and tight lacing, when I was a girl. I hated the darned things, and used to get into a lot of trouble from Mother for hiding them.

Then someone else used to yell their heads off because we wore too many clothes. (Petticoats to you) Now they yell because girls don't wear enough, and don't wear corsets either. Another kind got deadly serious because people, especially women, got too fat. Now they are hooting because they are too thin.

Heigho! It's hard to please everybody. But maybe a word of encouragement would work where all this blame does no good at all. So, let us start right at home. Give appreciation there, for, like charity, it should begin at home. Then keep at it with those you meet. Don't be afraid your friends will get all puffed up, and in a little while this appreciation will come sifting back to you.

Your Friend,
ROBERTA.

Eggs Benedictine

Split English muffins in half. Toast and butter them. Broil thin slices of ham and lay on muffins. Lay poached eggs over ham and top with a tasty sauce or well seasoned white sauce.

Build Your Own

Why not build your own radiator covers of hardboard, which is light, easily worked and not affected or warped by the heat of the radiator? Keep a four-inch cutaway at the floor to permit fresh air to enter. A wood top with a wire grille will complete the circulation.

MARRIED

EVANS — FENNER. — At George Street Parsonage, quietly on Friday, January 7, at 2 p.m., Rose Fenner to Peter Evans of Hamilton; Rev. M. C. Parr officiating. The attendants were Mr. and Mrs. George Jefferies. Mr. and Mrs. Evans will live in Hamilton.

DIED

MILLER, Mrs. Sarah E.—On January 9, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. T. J. Wallace, 18 Bayfield Crescent, Toronto, in her 55th year, Sarah E. Hazlitt, widow of the late William Miller, Otonabee. Private funeral, Tuesday, January 11, at Keene, Ont.

LAIDLAW, Elizabeth.—In Peterborough, on Sunday, January 9, 1938, Elizabeth Laidlaw, eldest daughter of the late Thomas Laidlaw and Jane Mercer, of Hamilton, Ontario, a beloved sister of Andrew Mercer Laidlaw of Peterborough. Service at the home, 379 Reid street, on Monday evening at 8 o'clock by the Rev. A. W. Young of St. Andrew's Church. Interment in Hamilton Cemetery on arrival of C.P.R. morning train, Tuesday, January 11. No flowers by request.

GEARY, John.—In Peterborough, Saturday night, January 8th, John Geary, son of the late William Geary and Johanna Collins. Remains resting at the Duffus Funeral Parlors until 1 p.m. Monday, then taken to the residence, Lot 2, Con. 3, Ennismore, where the funeral will take place on Tuesday morning to St. Martin's Church for Requiem Mass. Interment in St. Martin's Cemetery.

WILSON, Mrs. Jane.—Monday, January 10, following a lengthy illness, Mrs. Jane Wilson, widow of the late Robert Wilson, in her 89th year, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. J. F. Gillespie, 275 Thomas street. Funeral Wednesday, January 12, at 2.30 o'clock from 275 Thomas street, to Little Lake Cemetery.

McCRACKEN, Mrs. Elizabeth.—On Sunday, January 9, 1938, Elizabeth Wall, widow of the late Francis McCracken, 650 Stewart street, in her 64th year. Funeral on Wednesday at 1 p.m., from the above address, with the Rev. George S. Easton, pastor of Trinity United Church officiating. Interment at Little Lake Cemetery.

FINLEY, Mrs. Daniel.—In Peterborough early this morning, Elizabeth Prevost, wife of Daniel Finley, daughter of late Nelson Prevost and Margaret Haelly, and sister of Mrs. Kathleen Courngea, Mrs. Annie Goulah, Edward and John Prevost of Tweed, Mrs. Julia Morrison of Belleville, and Mrs. Sarah Paquette and Mrs. Mary Brioux of this city. The remains will rest at the residence of her sister, Mrs. Joseph Brioux on Brioux Avenue. Funeral announcements later.

IN MEMORIAM

EVANS.—In loving memory of our dear Daughter, Bella, who passed away three year ago to-day.
Silent her voice and vacant her chair,
Sweet are the memories that linger there.
We miss her and mourn her in silence unseen
And live in the memory of joys that have been.
—Ever remembered by Mother, Dad, and Sister, Nancy.

EVANS.—In loving memory of my dear Sister, Bella Evans, who passed away three years ago to-day.
The rolling stream of life rolls on,
But still the vacant chair
Recalls the love, the voice, the smile,
Of our Bella, who once sat there.
—Ever remembered by Rene, Jim, Betty and Jimmy.

INGRAM.—In memory of Mr. Henry Ingram, who passed away so suddenly, January 10, 1936.
Gone, but not forgotten.
—Ever remembered by his housekeeper, Mrs. Puffer, Lang.

IN MEMORIAM

EVANS.—In loving memory of Bella, who died January 10, 1935.
Her loving face I hope to see again
Though the days have passed away.
Sleep on, dear wife, and take your rest,
They miss you most who loved you best.
—Ever remembered by her loving Husband.

EVANS.—In loving memory of Bella, who died January 10, 1936.
Deep in our hearts lies a picture
Of a loved one gone to rest;
In our memories' frame we will keep it
Because she was one of the best.
Sweet are the memories that never fade
Of one we loved but could not save.
Sincere and true in heart and mind
What a beautiful memory she left behind.
—Ever remembered by her loving Mother and Father-in-law.

RIGHTMYER.—In loving memory of Mother, Annie Rightmyer, who passed away January 9, 1937.
We know that she is happy
In our Saviour's home above,
Growing fairer as she lingers
In the sunshine of His love.
—Ever remembered by Son, Gordon, and Family, Toronto.

CARD OF THANKS

U.S. LINES TO BUILD 20 NEW VESSELS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—(AP). —Signing of subsidy agreements between the United States government and seven ship lines assured to-day strengthening of the merchant marine coincidental with proposed expansion of the navy.

The Maritime Commission, whose job it is to put new life into merchant shipping, announced approval of long-term contracts for construction by 1942 of 20 new ships for the foreign trade.

There was a possibility the number might reach 63. In addition, arrangements for another 25 ships has been made previously. Cost of the 25 ships is estimated at $65,000,000 to $75,000,000.

The new agreements provide annual subsidies of 7,350,000 for the seven companies.

Under the long-term agreements, the shipping companies would start 14 of the 20 ships this year. Besides those to be completed by 1942, plans for 23 more vessels would be developed by those firms.

RED LEADER DIES PURGE FOLLOWS

MOSCOW, Jan. 10.—(CP-Havas). —Everyone who had anything to do with recording the death of Gregory Ordjonikidze, commissar of heavy industry, who died at his desk Feb. 18, 1937, has either disappeared or been arrested, it was reported here to-day.

Unconfirmed rumors said the purge had reached inside the Kremlin walls and carried off two doctors in charge of the Kremlin hospital, Drs. Levine and Mertz.

These doctors signed the statement issued by G. N. Kaminsky, then commisar of health, on Ordjonikidze's death. Kaminsky was "purged" out of office in March. Prof. Pletneff, reported to have refused to sign the statement, was believed to have been arrested.

Ordjonikidze was stated to have died of heart failure due to overstrain.

Meanwhile authorities closed the Greek church at Odessa and it was reported that 3,000 Greeks, most of them naturalized Soviet citizens, were arrested during the latter months of 1937.

SAX "PRETTY INSTRUMENT"

TORONTO, Jan. 10.—(CP).—Often cast into outer darkness, musically speaking, the saxaphone is at last being accepted in the sedate company of strings and other musical ancients. Caspar Cassado, Spanish cellist and composer, now in Toronto, says the saxaphone is "a pretty instrument" and age will further increase its prestige.

Anxiety Over Hong Kong As War Supplies Pour Through

Aid To China Stirs Anger Of Whole Japanese Nation

(By Max Lekus, Central Press Canadian)

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—In the present dynamite-laden Far Eastern crisis, the problem of Hong Kong looms as the sorest spot of all the multitude of dangers—internationally speaking.

Recent disputes in the British parliament have mirrored the great anxiety prevailing in Great Britain over the future of this isolated outpost of the Empire.

In view of the present victorious invasion of the Japanese forces into the interior of China, it is becoming increasingly clear that the age of Occidental privileges in China is nearing its end.

Wl · Japan Eyes It

Undoubtedly Hong Kong already is a sore wound in the sides of the Nipponese army. For through the great port of Hong Kong, China has received—and still is receiving—shipments of war supplies, raw materials and manufactured articles of various kinds.

In the minds of most people, Hong Kong is the name of a city. Actually Hong Kong is a British crown colony of 390 square miles, with a total population of 850,000 people of whom 19,000 are Occidentals. The island of Hong Kong is 11 miles long and from two to five miles wide, comprising 32 square miles. The remainder of the colony consists of the Kowloon peninsula on the mainland, with a mile-wide channel separating the island.

Hong Kong's history is packed with adventure, war and disaster.

Before it became British in 1841, the island was dreaded as a hole of fever and disease as well as the notorious haunt of pirates preying on shipping in the South China seas. Even today reports of piracy come every year from the not far distant Bias bay.

Hong Kong Ceded

Here is how Hong Kong became British:

In 1839 an opium war broke out between China and Great Britain. The English resented the importation of opium into China by foreign traders. In 1841 the British occupied Hong Kong and established there a navy base. The following year China made peace with Britain and ceded Hong Kong.

In 1849 the port of Hong Kong was the gathering place of tens of thousands of coolies who embarked there for the gold fields of Australia and California.

Throughout the years Hong Kong has been ravaged again and again by the terrific typhoons that rage in these parts. In 1906 more than 10,000 persons were killed by typhoons and damage to shipping went into staggering millions. Only last autumn a typhoon did heavy damage to shipping at Hong Kong.

Modern Hong Kong's centre is the city of Victoria, on the island proper. A splendid harbor has made Victoria one of the world's most important ports.

Three Levels

The island itself is hilly, its highest point scaling 1,325 feet high. As a result, the streets of Victoria are so slopy that the city consists of three levels.

The lowest level houses the port buildings and the business centre as well as the warehouses. Higher up, on the next level, are parks and government buildings. And highest are the mansions of the wealthy Occidentals. All this is topped by the British governor's executive mansion, which occupies the highest point, called "The Peak."

While the humidity in Hong Kong proper and in the lower levels on Victoria is high, Ocidentals withstand it by retreating to Victoria's peaks where the temperature invariably is cooler by several degrees.

Hong Kong is policed by a force consisting of English, Chinese and Indians, commanded by British officers.

Vulnerable from Air

In view of the present world crisis and the possibility of a martial contest over the possession of Hong Kong, the British have for some time armed the island until it now is virtually impregnable. Greatest danger to a garrison may result from bombing plans which could destroy the water reservoirs. To combat this danger, the British now are constructing huge underground tanks. Also, a labyrinth of underground passages and exits have been built connecting the island with the mainland.

Today there are two distinct opinions among British militarists regarding Hong Kong in case of war. One group advocates the abandonment of the colony and withdrawal of the China naval squadron to Singapore. The other school advocates defense of Hong Kong, "Little bit of England in China," as it is called by the British, at all costs.

Observers, however, believe that neither Japan nor Great Britain desires to make an issue of Hong Kong. But some incident may precipitate a crisis.

CENTREVILLE

Mrs. Dawson Rutherford was hostess to the Women's Missionary Society of Centreville Presbyterian church, on Wednesday. The president, Mrs. D. Rutherford, presided and following the devotional exercises, and the consideration of some business, an interesting and instructive program was presented. Mrs. Willis Hall gave an informative paper on New Year's resolutions and recreations. Miss Grace Johnson and Miss Allie Berry sang a delightful duet. Mrs. Thomas Skitch read a beautiful poem entitled, "Mother's Prayer." Following a fine reading by Miss Allie Berry, dainty refreshments were served and all enjoyed a social hour.

Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Deyell of Banff, B.C., spent a few days at the home of his father, as they were enroute to Bermuda to spend a month's holidays.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Rivers and daughter, Margaret, have returned from a week's visit at the home of his father, Rev. Mr. Rivers, of Bolton.

Mrs. John McKague attended the funeral of his cousin at Bowmanville on Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Isbister, after visiting friends at Detroit and Atlantic City, have returned.

Mrs. W. W. Brown has returned from Glengarry, where she visited her brother.

ENGLAND MOURNS HUMOROUS JUDGE

LONDON, Jan. 10—(CP).—London's law courts will miss Mr. Justice Rigby Swift, for the senior King's Bench judge was a great scholar and had delivered many memorable judgments known both for wisdom and clarity.

But the death of Mr. Justice Swift at 62 was perhaps equally mourned by the newspapers, for he was always "good copy." He had a robust humor, a natural kindliness for the novice but an unsparing determination to carry out his convictions.

Some of his more widely published aphorisms were:

"No one engaged to be married has ever come up to expectation." "Wives cannot be treated as pianos and the husband say how much per leg he paid." "I speak only two languages—English and Forensic." "A man ought not be allowed to leave money if he does not know what to do with it."

He had been a judge on the King's Bench for 17 years. From 1910 to 1918 he was Conservative M.P. for St. Helens, but he left that life in good humor, saying to his victorious opponent, Sir James Sexton: "Well, Jimmy, you have won a magnificent victory. You many as well finish the job. Here is the key of my locker in the House of Commons."

TRENT RIVER

Mrs. Jacob Gardner of Norwood was a recent visitor with Mr. and Mrs. Thos. K. Thompson and family.

Holiday visitors with Mr. and Mrs. Percy Johnston, "Cedar Lodge," were: Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Johnston and daughter, Margaret, of Peterborough, Mrs. G. O. Walker of Toronto, Mr. Arthur Andrews of South Monaghan, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Taylor and Miss Ruth, Mrs. Stanley Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. Jas. D. Milne of Campbellford.

Mrs. Wm. Longmuir of Grandview, Manitoba, has been a visitor with Mr. and Mrs. James Longmuir and family.

Miss Ferne Longmuir of Toronto was a New Year's visitor at the parental home.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Wildman have taken up residence on their farm, Norwood Road.

Mr. Thos. Tyler has moved to Mr. Joseph Tedford's house, vacated by Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Wildman.

Mr. and Mrs. Jimmie McMillan of Havelock were Thursday visitors with Mr. and Mrs. Wm. McMillan and family.

Thursday visitors with Mr. John Lawson and sister, Mrs. John Free, were: Mr. and Mrs. Robert Reid and Jackie of Norwood, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Free of West Seymour.

RED CROSS HEAD DISPUTES SOCIETY LOSING ITS GRIP

TORONTO, Jan. 10. (CP).—Norman Sommerville, chairman of the central council of the Red Cross Society of Canada, Saturday took issue with an article in Lancet, British medical journal, which said the Red Cross is no longer a symbol of neutrality and added "it may as well disappear."

Mr. Sommerville's statement follows:

"The neutrality of the Red Cross is recognized by governments and armies and enjoys special privileges by reason of that neutrality. It is the one agency which provides for the exchange of war prisoners. And its neutrality is so well recognized that in the event of Red Cross personnel being captured in the course of the performance of their duties, they are at once returned to the army from which they came.

"The writer of the article in Lancet seems to have misunderstood the meaning of the word, neutrality. Needless to say, a Red Cross unit can only operate behind or in conjunction with one or the other of the fighting forces, but Red Cross neutrality consists in this—that each Red Cross unit and hospital treats and relieves the sufferers of the opposing army with the same care and solicitude as they give to the army to which the unit may be for the time time attached.

Treat Friend and Foe

"The Red Cross knows no distinction or friend or foe on the field of battle. It is humanity's agency for relieving the sufferings of both of them.

"The Red Cross Societies of the world operate through the international committee at Geneva, which offers its services to both sides in any conflict. In Abyssinia, Italy refused but the Abyssinians accepted aid. In Spain today, the international committee is acting with equal neutrality on both sides of the conflict. In the Chinese conflict, both sides were offered the aid of the Red Cross. Japan replied they had made provision for their needs. China accepted.

"The international committee has, therefore, sent out a call to all Societies of the world to assist. The Canadian Red Cross Society, in conjunction with all the churches of Canada, has planned to launch a campaign for funds for the aid of war sufferers in China. It will begin at the end of the present month."

FENELLA

A very enjoyable evening was spent in the Communit Hall on Wednesday evening, January 5, when a goodly number of neighbors and friends gave a shower in honor of Mr. and Mrs. N. Chestnut (nee Mrs. Denna Talling).

Rev. L. W. Scott acted as chairman and a very pleasant program opened with singing "Blest Be the Tie That Binds"; recitation by Reginald George; solo by Mr. Lewis Roberts; recitation, "Gossip Lawn," by Mrs. F. George; solo, "I Love You Truly," by Mrs. L. W. Scott. Games were put on by Mrs. H. George and Mrs. M. Lonsberry.

The happy couple were asked to come to the platform. Mr. Lewis Roberts read the address and Mr. Stanley Hutchinson presented them with a dainty tea service on behalf of the chivariri boys. The happy couple made a very suitable reply. All joined in singing "They are jolly good fellows" and lunch was served.

KEENE

Mr. and Mrs. Charles McIntyre (nee Jean Elmhirst) and Mr. and Mrs. Ross McIntyre (nee Edyth Elmhirst) celebrated their first wedding anniversary on New Year's Day at the latter's home near Mather's Corners.

The guests enjoyed a sumptuous turkey dinner, among those who attended were: the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Elmhirst, the groom's mother, Mrs. Agnes McIntyre, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Greystock and daughter Doreen, Misses Mabel McIntyre and Bertha Elmhirst, the Messrs. James, Harold and Arthur Elmhirst.

British Militarists Split

British militarists differ regarding strategy to be followed at Hong Kong in case of war—one group advocating abandonment of the colony and withdrawal of the China squadron to Singapore; the other group, the defense of Hong Kong.

INSTITUTE PLANS ON CRIPPLES' AID

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MOUNT PLEASANT, Jan. 10.—The January meeting of the Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. W. H. Lowe, when the roll call was responded to with a "Made-in-Canada article used in the home", the majority of the number answering the roll.

At a previous meeting, it was decided to give 20 cents per member toward appliances and care for children crippled by infantile paralysis. Mrs. Gardiner reported that she had collected $4 toward the project. The business regarding the quilt was completed. The ladies are sponsoring a crokinole party in the Institute Hall on January 11 and arrangements made for some.

The program for this meeting, in charge of Mesdames M. Jones and A. Tully, consisted of readings by Mrs. T. Graham, Mrs. M. Jones, Mrs. A. Tully; also a recitation by Mrs. H. Gardiner. An enjoyable contest was in charge of Mrs. V. Jones. Twelve members and two visitors were present.

Lunch was served by the hostess assisted by Mrs. G. Shield and Mrs. M. Best. Mrs. C. Morden extended an invitation to the ladies to meet at her home for the February meeting.

Entertains Class

Mrs. Garnet Shield recently entertained the members of the "Hustlers' Class" of Mount Pleasant United Church at her home, when the evening was pleasantly spent in games and crokinole. The hostess later served lunch to the guests.

Personals

Miss Ruth Tully is receiving congratulations from a wide circle of friends, having passed the November examinations for nurse registration. Miss Tully is a graduate of Ross Memorial Hospital in Lindsay.

Mr. Herman McLean of Toronto was the guest for New Year's of Mr. and Mrs. C. Morden.

MARMORA

Mrs. W. A. Sanderson underwent a serious operation in Nicholls Hospital, Peterborough on Wednesday forenoon.

Mr. T. E. Laycock is confined to his bed through illness.

Mrs. Neelands of Owen Sound is visiting her sister, Mrs. D. Thomson.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Gawley spent Sunday in Campbellford.

SEES CHINA VICTORIOUS

DETROIT, Jan. 10—(CP).—Japan will be defeated by her victories, and China will be victorious by her defeats, predicts Rev. Paul Yu Pin, Chinese-born Roman Catholic Bishop of Nanking, who is visiting Detroit.

To Japan, this is a war of aggression, while for China it is one of existence, says the 38-year-old bishop. Eventually the Japanese will become exhausted from their efforts at conquest, and the war will end this year, he prophesies.

BENSFORT

On Tuesday afternoon the regular monthly meeting of the W.A. and M.A. of Bensfort United church was held at the home of Mrs. Fred Perrin. On account of the bad weather and the "cold or grippe" epidemic there was not as large an attendance as there may have been. The president, Mrs. C. Barnard, opened the meeting and presided for the business. The roll call was responded to by "My New Year's Resolution." It was decided to hold the next meeting on February 1st in the basement of the church. The meeting in the afternoon will take the form of a sewing-bee and the program will be in charge of Group 3. Supper will be served in the evening to all, including the Young People's Society, etc. Admission 15c. A program of crokinole, games, etc., will be arranged by the W.A. and M.A.

After all business was discussed Group A had charge of the meeting with Mrs. J. Pue presiding. Miss Marion Moncrief and Mrs. C. Emberson gave two missionary readings. Rev. E. M. Cook was present at the meeting and assisted by reading the scripture, leading in prayer and giving a short address on the new study book.

Lunch was served at the close by Group A.

Mrs. Frank Barnard visited Mr. and Mrs. J. Hall on Tuesday and Wednesday.

Mr. Reginald Achison of Bensfort will grind chop on Monday, Wednesday and Friday, instead of Tuesday as was previously published.

Miss Agnes Brackenridge visited Mr. and Mrs. George Finnie on Thursday evening.

LAYMEN PLANNING 'LADIES' NIGHT'

MARMORA, Jan. 10 — Though not so well attended as usual, an interesting meeting of St. Paul's Laymen's Association was held in the Parish Hall on Friday evening with the president, H. B. Smith, in the chair.

Following prayer by Rural Dean A. B. Caldwell and adoption of minutes, the president reported on the euchre tournament and recent drawing. It was decided to hold ladies' night on February 4th. Rural Dean A. B. Caldwell gave a New Year's message, supplying some fruitful thoughts on "Enthusiasm."

Past President W. J. Cottrell gave a talk on some Sussex villages visited by him when overseas, under the title of "South Down Rambles." Refreshments were served after the Benediction had been pronounced. A quiz contest to run over four successive meetings is to be put on by the Entertainment committee, the winner to receive a prize which is being donated.

Public Defenders are being introduced into South Africa.

Censorship Cause Of Nazi Film Shortage Berlin Play Houses Revive Old Pictures

BERLIN.—An acute film shortage has developed in Germany. The supply of films is running so low that Berlin's leading movies are reviving last season's hits.

Thus, one of the most fashionable film theatres in the Berlin west end revived Marlene Dietrich's "Desire," and Berlin's biggest movie house, the Ufa Palace, is showing an old Austrian comedy.

The chief reason for the shortage is that a surprisingly large percentage of films sold to theatres could never be delivered because they had been banned by the censor. Thus, it is said that one-fourth of films announced by the biggest German firm, the Tobis, could not be released "for technical reasons." As a result, there is great distress among Berlin's extras.

Film producers have become so uncertain owing to the risks of censorship that they have greatly curtailed production. There are many applicants for every bit of a role, but only very few can find employment.

American films like "Born to Dance" still pack houses in Berlin; others, such as "Good Earth," are not allowed, either because leading roles are played by non-Aryans or for political reasons. the censor. Thus, it is said the

Montana Air Crash Takes 10 Lives One An Ontarian

2 Woodcutters Watch Fatal Plunge in Mountains, But Heat From Blazing Wreckage Blocks Rescue

BOZEMAN, Mont., Jan. 11 —(AP)— A biting blizzard threw a snowy shroud over the bodies of 10 persons, including Douglas MacKay of Winnipeg, killed when a Northwest Airlines plane crashed and burned in the Bridger mountains 14 miles north of here yesterday.

Piloted by Nick Namer, who had flown more than 1,000,000 miles without injuring a passenger, the plane went into a tailspin and plunged nose-first into a small clearing. The nose was snapped off by the impact with the frozen ground.

Searchers found all aboard dead, but the storm forced them to give up until late today the task of bringing the bodies here. A guard was left at the crash scene.

Gallatin County officials said snowplows would open the roads when the bodies are brought down by bobsled.

U. B. Publicist A Victim

MacKay, 37, prominent Canadian newspaperman and publicist, was publicity director of the Hudson's Bay Company at Winnipeg. He was returning home after a business trip to the United States west coast and met death in the broken and blazing plane on his 13th wedding anniversary yesterday.

MacKay was a native of Woodstock, Ont., and former employee of The Canadian Press. In 1924 he joined The Canadian Press parliamentary staff in the press gallery at Ottawa. He resigned in 1928 to become press representative of the Canadian Steamship Lines in Montreal.

In 1931 he became director of publicity of the Seigniory Club, Montreal, and two years later joined the Hudson's Bay Company.

The plane crashed about 98 miles southeast of the State capital, Helena, some 360 miles south of the Canadian border, and almost due south of Medicine Hat, Alta.

Two woodcutters, C. A. Larson and Glenn White, were working about 200 feet from where the plane crashed, but were unable to approach because of the flames. They went for help and met Sheriff Lovitt I. Westlake and a party of forest rangers.

Northwest Airlines officials in St. Paul listed the other dead as Namer, Co-pilot F. W. West, both of Spokane and these seven passengers:

W. E. Borgenheimer, about 39, Basin, Mont., who had cancelled a reservation on a later plane to speed

OTTAWA SHIVERS WITH 18 BELOW

TORONTO, January 11—(CP). — Toronto was the summer spot of Ontario to-day with the comparatively high temperature of 18 degrees above zero. Cold spot on Ontario's weather map was Ottawa, whose 18 degrees below zero topped even Northern Ontario where Haileybury reported 14 below.

Meteorological Service officials reported the weather "pretty cold over Ontario except in Toronto and immediate vicinity."

The Lower Lake region forecast was for east winds with some snow or sleet to-night. In the Ottawa Valley continued cold was forecast. There will probably be some slight snow or sleet in Western Ontario accompanied by west winds, but the weather will be a little milder, the forecast said.

Southampton on Lake Huron reported zero, while it was two above at London. To the east, Trenton reported two below zero and Montreal four below.

HURT ON WAY TO HOSPITAL

TORONTO, Jan. 11—(CP). — Her left wrist fractured in a fall on an ice-covered sidewalk, an elderly woman was being driven to hospital for treatment when the automobile in which she was a passenger collided with another car. She was treated for facial cuts and chest injuries as well as the broken wrist.

PREDICT FROZEN VEGETABLE SALE TO EQUAL CANNED

TORONTO, Jan. 11—(CP). — In the future, frozen vegetables will be marketed as extensively in Ontario as the canned product, the annual convention of the Ontario Vegetable Growers' Association was told to-day by R. W. Arengo-Jones, Assistant Director of the Dominion Agricultural Department's Agricultural Branch.

He advised growers to co-operate with those who were packing frozen vegetables. Great strides had been made in this departure in the last few years. The Government official also predicted a successful future for the marketing of dehydrated vegetables.

Gathered from all parts of the province, the 150 growers in attendance were welcomed by Howard Carrothers of Port Colborne, Associated President. Mr. Carrothers said marketing was the most important problem facing the growers.

Other speakers at the morning session included T. F. Ritchie, of Ottawa, an official of the Federal Horticultural Branch; L. F. Burrows, of Ottawa, Secretary of the Canadian Horticultural Council, and R. L. Wheeler, Federal Fruit Commissioner, Ottawa.

Flavor, Texture Retained.

Discussing the market for frozen and dehydrated vegetables, Mr. Arengo-Jones said flavor and texture were retained by fast freezing. The frozen product was packed before freezing and kept at zero temperature until used.

Retail distribution was not possible, owing to high refrigeration cost, and the market was confined to hotels, clubs and restaurants. But he was confident that in the future marketing of frozen vegetables would be on a scale comparable to canned vegetables.

It was possible to dry vegetables in such a way that when dehydrated and cooked, they would approach the fresh product in nutritive value. Mr. Arengo-Jones said more than $6,000,000 worth of fresh vegetables —harvested weeks before they were sold—were imported annually from the United States.

Mr. Ritchie told the growers more good food could be raised from a small acreage of vegetables than any other crop. He described experiments made last year on Federal and Provincial experimental farms.

$350,000 Convent Burns At Falls

All 40 Nuns, 65 Pupils Reach Safety Uninjured As Blaze Illuminates Country for Miles Around

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., Jan. 11—(CP)—The $350,000 Loretto convent and academy which graced the heights behind the Horseshoe falls was a mass of ruins today following a fire which swept the 75-year-old institution.

Although the fire was not discovered until pupils were reparing for bed last night, there was no loss of life. Without panic, the 40 nuns and 65 pupils fled to safety and the refuge of Niagara Falls homes.

It was reported there was a certain amount of looting during confusion last night, but nothing of great value was missing. Every taxi in the city was pressed into service to carry the students and nuns to places of shelter. Flames still rose today among the ruins.

When the flames, believed to have spread from an overheated furnace in the basement, began shooting through the walls and roof, the nuns escorted the children from their third-floor dormitory to another part of the building untouched by fire. Private automobiles, taxis, trucks and other conveyances were used to take them to city homes and the Fox Head hotel made available for them.

The five-storey building of frame and stone construction burned like a torch. Three companies of Niagara Falls and Stamford Township firemen attempted to fight the blaze but were hampered by low water pressure and a strong wind. They concentrated on saving nearby Mount Carmel seminary and other church buildings.

The blaze illuminated the country for miles around. Strangley outlined was the huge cross on the Year's Exports Above 1929 — Predicts Upward March After Period Of Adjustment

TORONTO, Jan. 11 (CP).—About 85 per cent of Canadian people improved or maintained their economic circumstances in 1937, S. H. Logan, president of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, told the annual meeting of shareholders here today. Canada as a whole, he said, continued to make favorable progress.

The Dominion's export trade in 1937 had a value exceeding $1,000,000,000. Mr. Logan said, and in volume actually exceeded that of 1929. Aided by commercial trade agreements, enterprising exporters had made such good use of Canada's great natural wealth as to broaden the whole scope of export business and to adjust it to abnormal changes in the character of world trade.

The general manager, A. E. Arscott, told shareholders that the Dominion's business volume as a whole was 10 per cent greater last year than in 1936, notwithstanding the influence of what he said was the sharp recession in the United States. In several branches of Canadian economy a record level of productivity and employment was reached.

Probably never before had international commerce shown such divergent trends as in the recent years of intense economic nationalism, said Mr. Logan. In the countries most devoted to this policy of self-

TORONTO. — A Toronto evening paper quotes an "inmate who was released today" as saying that there was a sitdown strike Saturday at the Langstaffe Jail Farm, immediately north of Toronto. The newspaper states that the prisoners refused to do their regular jobs as a form of protest against lack of heat in their cells Friday night.

Pastor's Pantry Proves Poor Picking, Prowler Publishes Protest

Vancouver, Jan. 11 (CP)

VANCOUVER waited today to see who would be the next victim of "Bill the Prowler," who keeps the public informed of his raids.

Bill's loot in the past week has been flood-lighting equipment from the lawn of Mayor George C. Miller's residence and cold potatoes from the outdoor larder of Rev. Willard Brewing, United Church clergyman.

Each crime was publicized afterwards by letters to a Vancouver newspaper (Sun). His latest he announced by a note reading:

"And now the mystery of Dr. Brewing's larder and why don't he keep food good to eat in it, not cold spuds, Bill the Prowler."

Mrs. Brewing said only cold potatoes were available in her larder because she stopped leaving snacks for hungry prowlers when they began stealing dishes.

ENTIRE SOCIAL CREDIT SCHEME SAID ILLEGAL

Not in Provincial Bounds Dominion Counsel Claims

OTTAWA, Jan. 11 (C.P.). — The entire Social Credit plan of the Alberta Government is unconstitutional, it was submitted to-day to the Supreme Court by Aime Geoffrion of Montreal.

The Dominion counsel in the reference to determine the constitutionality of three Alberta Bills to which Lieutenant-Governor John Bowen reserved assent last September, said he was not asking the six Judges to pass on Acts outside the terms of reference, but in his opinion the whole Social Credit scheme was beyond provincial jurisdiction.

Mr. Geoffrion submitted that abstract terms used in Social Credit theories must be understood by the Judges before they can pass on the legal questions involved.

If the Court was considering Communism, it should study the theories and writings of Karl Marx or Lenin to determine the meaning of the words and terms, Mr. Geoffrion submitted. Similarly, to understand the meaning of the Alberta Bills the Judges must know the meaning of terms like the "Monetization of credit and treating credit by book-keeping entries" as used in the legislation.

Motives Irrelevant.

O. M. Biggar, counsel for Alberta, took the ground it was unnecessary for the court to go beyond the question of the legal competence of the province to pass the Bills. Motives of the Government were irrelevant and the court should pay no attention to the Dominion contention the

Toronto Reds Wrote Strike Article Chief Newhall Says

Judge Coleman Finds Crown Failed to Prove Obstruction of Chief of Police by Welch

Testimony of two newspaper reporters who were eye-witnesses to the battle of police and pickets at the Bonner-Worth mill on August 10 featured a defense which won acquittal of Alex. Welch, United Textile Workers organizer, after a County Court trial yesterday. Welch was charged with obstructing Police Chief Samuel Newhall in the course of his duty on the occasion of the strike riot.

"I am clearly satisfied that the alleged act of obstruction has not been definitely proved," Judge D. B. Coleman of Whitby said, announcing his finding. "Except for the excitement of the events immediately proceeding there is no doubt in my mind but that this charge would never have been brought up."

The judge said the onus of proof was on the Crown and that he felt the Crown had not proved obstruction. Referring to evidence of the two newspaper reporters, K. P. Copping of The Examiner staff and J. F. Peterson, representative of a Toronto newspaper, which indicated Welch had merely approached Newhall in a civil manner and asked a civil question, he stated, "In view of their evidence I must remain in reasonable doubt."

On the motion of his defense counsel, J. L. Cohen, K.C., of Toronto, legal adviser during the summer-long textile strike, Welch was honorably discharged. Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., conducted the prosecution.

Sensation Created

Sensation of the afternoon was Chief Newhall's declaration that Toronto Communists wrote an article about the strike which appeared under his own name in the National Police Review.

Following testimony of David G. H. Melton, manager of the Bonner-Worth mill, in which events earlier in the morning were detailed, Albert Clark, one of the special Provincial Police constables on duty at the scene, was called. He testified that Newhall told Welch several times to move on and that he refused, putting his hands on Newhall to push him aside. The police chief then ordered Welch's arrest, he said.

Cross-examining, Mr. Cohen asked: "Did you hear the chief tell Welch it was none of his business in reply to Welch's questions?"

"Not exactly."

The witness stated Newhall was quiet in his manner and admitted Welch was also quiet.

"Was there anything offensive in Welch's attitude?"

"No."

Not Excited

"Then Welch was no more excited than any of the others?"

"I guess all of us were excited that morning."

"The Chief didn't take very kindly to being questioned, did he?"

"The Chief said something like 'Don't bother me'."

Third witness called by the Crown was John D. Rogers of the Peter-

COUNSEL IMPLIES RELIEF TO BLAME

OSHAWA, Ont., Jan. 11 (CP)— Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Woods appeared before Magistrate Frank S. Ebbs today charged with failing to provide the necessities of life for their six months old baby girl.

Crown Attorney Allin Annis said the child was born on July 1, 1937, in Oshawa hospital. She weighed five pounds three and a half ounces at birth. In six months under the care of the parents the baby gained only one ounce, he said.

"Here is a child in a condition the Humane Society would not allow a dog to exist in," said the Crown.

Frank Regan, defence counsel, pleaded that "to suggest that a mother with six children on relief can give the same care to a child as the hospital is not fair."

Dr. Grant Berry, child specialist, said he was not prepared to state definitely that the child's condition was due to neglect. The baby is receiving hospital treatment and showing an improvement.

Writ For $20,000 Is Served On Chief

Chief Constable Newhall and Reporter Clash Following Trial of Alex Welch

A writ for $20,000 damages for alleged false arrest and forcible detention was served on Chief of Police Samuel Newhall by J. L. Cohen, K.C., after Judge D. B. Coleman had acquitted his client, Alex. Welch, United Textile Workers organizer, of a charge of obstruction in County Court Monday.

Service of the writ by Cohen personally on Newhall as he was leaving the courtroom was immediately followed by a scene in which the Police Chief, in anger, attacked Keith Copping, Examiner reporter whose evidence along with that of Jack Peterson, local reporter for a Toronto evening newspaper, had featured the defence of Welch.

Newhall approached the reporter and charged publicly that his evidence in the case, sharply contrary to his own, was perjured in favor of "the Communists". Warned to cease his slanderous remarks, the officer threatened to "get even" with the reporter and implied that he could reveal a hinted police record. Informed by the reporter that he had had no trouble with the police or dealings with them of any kind other than through his duties as a newspaper reporter, Newhall warned the Examiner representative to "stay away from the police station". The entire Examiner reporting of the big summer textile strike had been colored by Copping in favor of the "Reds" Newhall declared.

When the Police chief threatened to arrest Copping for refusing to obey his order to "move along" out of the barrister's room, Mr. Cohen advised him to cease his abuse. The Chief then ordered the member of the bar from the room and received a severe dressing down.

Newhall's threat to arrest the reporter was implied a second time when he stepped from the Court House main entrance a few minutes later and found the reporter standing in a group on the steps. "Another meeting of Reds and Communists," Newhall declared. He stepped up to the reporter and shoved him, ordering him to move along "if you know what's good for you". The reporter ignored the order, however, and left the scene unmolested a minute later.

Long Bitter Fight Seen Ahead In Both China And Spain

Loyalists Far From Beaten And Main Chinese Army Playing Waiting Game

By George Hambleton
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

LONDON, Jan. 11 (C.P. Cable).— Bitter fighting in China and Spain lies ahead. In the view of authorities here the struggle is likely to be long, with the ever-present danger of complications.

A few months ago expert opinion predicted a victory in Spain for General Franco. The recovery of the Republican Army has surprised even its critics. Given new enthusiasm by the capture of Teruel, the Republican Army now talks of taking the offensive.

In this changed scene everybody wonders what Premier Mussolini will do. With one army in Ethiopia and another in Libya, will he take the opportunity to withdraw from Spain or will Germany and Italy send more volunteers and supplies to Spain?

After six months of undeclared war Japan drives ahead in China. Japan his captured great areas of territory, but holds them precariously. The defeated forces of Chiang Kai-Shek retreat but the core of the Chinese arm remains intact.

Chinese national effort has not broken under the strain. An unusual feature of the struggle is that the Japanese so far have been unable to buy over any Chinese warlord of importance. In the past some warlord or other usually has SEVEN-YEAR-OLD Susan Leone hid beneath the bedclothes and prayed "they won't forget me" as fire destroyed the $350,000 Loretto Convent and Academy here last night.

"She was frightened stiff," Father Haag said. "I just grabbed her and ran."

TIMBER GRANTS KEY OF TROUBLE IN NEWSPRINT

Macaulay Says Hepburn New Facing His Folly

TORONTO, Jan. 11 (CP). — Pre-election policy of the Ontario Government's Department of Lands and Forests is responsible for "the threatened collapse of the newsprint industry in Ontario and Quebec," Leopold Macaulay, Conservative leader in the Provincial Legislature, told the Toronto Business Men's Association today.

Mr. Macaulay charged that the Government of Premier Hepburn gave timber concessions to United States companies prior to last October's general election, permitting export of raw pulp. Ontario companies were compelled to manufacture their pulp into newsprint in Ontario, paying higher dues than the United States interests.

"Although election day is only three months old, the Hepburn Government is already confronted with the folly of their pre-election timber grants," he said. "Ontario and Quebec mills competing in the United States are feeling the effect of this unfair competition which is bonused by the Hepburn Government.

Quebec Not To Blame.

"Already Mr. Hepburn and Premier Duplessis of Quebec have had to put their heads together to see how this damage can be undone. Of course, Quebec is in a stronger position than Ontario, because they have never permitted the export of raw pulp to the United States, and they cannot be blamed for the threatened collapse of the newsprint industry in Ontario and Quebec.

"This is the first fruit of the revolution in the Department of Lands and Forests that was supposed to bring a new era of prosperity into the pulp and paper industry in Ontario."

Mr. Macaulay said the "most notorious" of the timber contracts with United States interests gave the Sensenbrenner - Alstead interests 2,600 squares miles in the Long Lac district of North-western Ontario "at a price lower than is paid by the ordinary, every-day settler in Northern Ontario."

Correspondence between Premier Hepburn and Prime Minister Mackenzie King concerning power and waterways, made public late last month by Mr. Hepburn, "exposed" a by-product of the timber deal, Mr. Macaulay said.

More Water for Chicago.

"It appears now that the province has arranged with the Sensenbrenner-Alstead timber interests to provide a waterway for their logs from the Long Lac area to Lake Superior, thus diverting thousands of cubic second feet of water into an international waterway, without any provision for getting that water back by treaty rights at Niagara," he said.

"In fact, the Chicago drainage canal authorities might very well grab these additional thousands of cubic second feet of water for use in their drainage canal. Chicago canal had refused instructions from Washington so why should they not grab this extra water, as we have no treaty rights to guarantee against its withdrawal?

"It is quite evident that no such arrangement should have been made with the Sensenbrenner-Alstead interests till a binding treaty had been made with the United States that would assure Ontario use of this water at Niagara."

It was ironical, Mr. Macaulay said, that a delegation of United States publishers sould visit Mr. Hepburn last week "to insist that this flow of Ontario raw pulp should continue to the United States so that they could break down the prices of newsprint and thereby throw thousands of Ontario workmen in our pulp and paper mills out of employment."

NEWSPRINT PARLEY

MONTREAL, Jan. 11 — (CP) — Problems arising from the newsprint situation in Ontario and Quebec are slated for discussion to-day at a conference between the premiers of Canada's two central provinces.

Premier Mitchell Hepburn arrived from Toronto accompanied by Hon. Peter Heenan, minister of lands and forests, and Hon. Colin A. Campbell, public works minister.

Farmers Save 15 Per Cent Fuel Costs By Using Rubber On Tractors

Ottawa, Jan. 11—(CP)

THOSE giant balloon tires they're wearing a lot on farm tractors these days are not just another freak vogue. Far from being merely a novelty, they have a dollars-and-cents value to the farmer in fuel actually saved, the experimental farms branch of the Dominion Department of Agriculture said today.

Rubber tires were really only a novelty five years ago but last year one quarter of the 10,261 tractors sold in Canada had air tires. The department calculates an average saving of 15 per cent of fuel costs results.

Making fuel tests with rubber tires half worn, and with the same tractor on iron lugs, departmental tests showed rubber tires saved 5.5 per cent. in cultivating, 9.4 per cent in ploughing and 24.3 per cent in one-way disking. Other tests averaged 16 per cent saving.

DECISICER FACES ON MURDER COUNT IN GIRL'S DEATH

Jury Blames Unknown But Suspects Sportsman

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., Jan. 11.—(CP).— Vernon Spencer, 40-year-old Wixom, Mich., sportsman, was held on a charge of murder to-day. A charge laid before a coroner's jury decided that Helen Grier died last Oct. 28 in a Northern Ontario hunting lodge "from a bullet fired by a person unknown, with strong suspicion of Vernon Spencer."

The seven-man jury, inquiring into the circumstances surrounding the mysterious death of the Pontiac, Mich., stenographer in a cabin she and Spencer occupied, returned its verdict after 25 minutes' deliberation last night. As the jury deliberated, Crown authorties swore out a warrant naming Spencer as the man who killed the woman.

Miss Grier, 28, was found shot to death in a cottage she and Spencer had occupied each year since 1932. Testimony at the inquest which opened last Friday night and was adjourned for the week-end showed she had died of a .22-calibre bullet fired from a rifle found beside her body by investigating police.

Spencer, who once played in the outfield for Toronto Maple Leafs of the International Baseball League and with the New York Giants of the National League, has been held in custody since Oct. 29 as a material witness. It was he who notified police of the tragedy in the secluded cottage 38 miles north of here.

Suspect Spencer.

The verdict, signed by each member of the jury, read: "We, the coroner's jury empanelled to inquire into the death of Helen Grier find that she came to her death at Dr. (A.A.) Holcombe's cabin on Long Lake, Algoma, on October 28, 1937, as the result of a bullet wound made by a shot from a .22-calibre rifle, fired by some person unknown with a strong suspicion of the shot being fired by Vernon Spencer."

Constable Thomas Crawford, last of eight witnesses, told the jury last night of finding the pyjama-clad body upon the floor of the cottage, owned by Dr. Holcombe of Northville, Mich. The hair of the head was stuck to the floor by blood, he said. Rigor mortis had set in when he arrived on the scene October 29.

The constable said the butt of the rifle was at the feet and the end of the barrel at the elbow. Dr. E. R. Franklin, noted medio-legal expert, testified at the Friday night session: "If this girl did shoot herself, she must have rested the butt of the gun on some shelf or something because she was not strong enough to hold the gun herself in the position she would have to hold it to shoot herself."

In a statement to police when taken into custody after the tragedy, Spencer said he and Miss Grier had spent several hours on the day of the shooting firing at targets before the cabin. Miss Grier was clad in pyjamas, he said. He said he found the body when he returned from a solitary trip up Long Lake in search of game tracks.

HEPBURN SILENT, PARLEY CONTINUES

MONTREAL, Jan. 11 (CP).—Seeking stability and standardization for the newsprint industry of Ontario and Quebec, Premier Mitchell Hepburn and Premier Maurice Duplessis resumed their conference today the situation described by the Ontario Government leader as "serious."

Further discussion of price control and possible government action to give added protection to the industry, in which $450,000,000 is invested in the two provinces, was expected to occupy attention of the government delegations throughout most of the day.

Yesterday the two Premiers, flanked by their respective Forestry and Public Works Ministers, met behind closed doors and at the end of the day-long session, neither Premier Hepburn nor Premier Duplessis would disclose what transpired. The meeting was arranged by the Ontario Premier after a conference in Toronto last week with representatives of Ontario paper companies.

GIRLS IN CHINA TRAIN AS SPIES

HANKOW, China, Jan. 11.—(AP).—Girls in China are being trained as spies to ferret out Japanese military secrets.

They range in age from 15 to 30, but most are less than 20. They are intelligent, resourceful and pretty. More than half are university graduates.

Their training is divided into three groups: Military, espionage and propaganda. Only those of perfect physical fitness are allow to undergo military training. The others take courses in professional spying work or propaganda work.

This correspondent visited one of these female spy-training schools in Honan province. There groups of attractive young women wore the regulation Chinese army uniform of grass-green color, including steel helmet, Sam Browne belt, revolver holster and canvas shoes.

EMERGENCY TAXES STAY IN NEW YORK

ALBANY, N.Y., Jan. 11.—(AP).—Governor Lehman recommended to the New York State Legislature last night a continuation of New York's existing emergency taxes, but no new imposts, to finance a 1938-39 state budget of $385,824,459.

This is a decrease of $15,000,000 from the record budget finally adopted for the current fiscal year, but $20,000,000 more than Lehman's original recommendation.

At the same time the Democratic Governor predicted complete elimination by next June 30 of the present $10,000,000 deficit—all that remains of the $94,000,000 debt which he inherited when he succeeded President Roosevelt as Governor.

Summarized, the Governor's budget message recommended:

1) $46,000,000 for unemployment relief in addition to $22,671,902 for retirement of bonds and interest for previous relief financing.

(2) $20,000,000 for capital outlays.

(3) $33,283,000 for highway and parkway construction.

(4) Modification of the capital gains and lossprovisions of the State income tax law, designed, he said, to stabilize state revenue.

Actual receipts for 1936-37 exceeded expenditures by $45,700,000, the Governor said.

CHEESEMAN SENDS OATH VIA WIRE

PORT ARTHUR, Jan. 11.—(CP).—Composition of Port Arthur's city council remained in doubt to-day after last night's inaugural meeting. Flier Al Cheeseman, re-elected Alderman Jan. 3, was not present to take his oath of office and his status has been referred to Ontario government officials.

Cheesman is in the north with Sir Hubert Wilkins, seeking six Russian fliers, missing since August 13 on an Arctic flight.

From Point Barrow, Alaska, Cheesman Saturday wirelessed his oath of office, taken before a notary. The original is on its way in the mail but likely will not arrive for eight weeks.

Whether this telegraphed oath made Cheesman eligible to take office upon his return depended on the ruling of A. E. Horton, Ontario Deputy Minister of Public Welfare.

If Cheesman is held ineligible, city officials expected J. P. Ibbetson, who received the most votes of the defeated candidates, would take the seat.

Bills formed a part of an attempt to establish a new economic order in Alberta. They should be considered only in a strictly legal sense.

The Albert counsel presented a motion to strike from the Dominion factum 52 pages of opinions, newspaper accounts, radio speeches, and various quotations which attempted to elucidate the Social Credit theories of Major C. H. Douglas.

After a five-minute conference, the Judges decided to make no decision on the Biggar motion at this stage, leaving it until the Dominion case is completed.

DUPLESSIS FIGHTS ANY CENTRALIZING OF RULE IN CANADA

MONTREAL, Jan. 11 (C.P.). — Outspoken in the cause of provincial autonomy, Premier Maurice Duplessis let it be known to-day he wants no stepping on Quebec's constitutional toes.

His belief provincial "rights" must not be yielded up was on the record again, with a warning, specifically, that Quebec must not be touched by "those who appear to be wanting to centralize authority." He was on record, too, as telling Prime Minister Mackenzie King that the Federal Government's national unemployment insurance scheme would receive Quebec's support only if it could be worked "without infringing on the rights and autonomy of the provinces."

The outline of Quebec policy on the projected insurance plan came in a letter to the Dominion Prime Minister. The warning against "centralization" was uttered at a banquet address last night, a few hours after Duplessis had made public his letter to Mr. King.

The Federal Prime Minister had proposed the provinces permit the amendment of the British North America Act to facilitate establishment of the insurance plan on a national scale, rather than through enabling legislation. The Duplessis reply was that Quebec's Government thinks "the best elements of stability and certainty are within the B. N. A. Act, and that it is much safer to preserve the stability of the constitution."

In a previous letter, Prime Minister King had suggested the plan of enabling legislation might be "uncertain and unstable." To this, the Quebec Premier asked: "What do you think of the stability and certainty of Federal legislation on unemployment insurance which could be essentially modified every year, by the Federal Parliament?"

Three Not in Line.

The Quebec reply left this province one of three who have not yet committed themselves to favor the B.N.A. Act amendment. Of the others, only Alberta and New Brunswick have not agreed to give up their provincial prerogatives to smooth the way for the Federal proposal.

From a somewhat different direction, Duplessis championed the rights of the provinces at last night's banquet for F. D. Baril, new director-general of the Quebec Tourist Bureau. "Hands off Que-

Competition Among Truckers Blamed For Low Rates

Owner Suggests Board Fix Minimum Charges And Also Fix Salaries Of Drivers

TORONTO, Jan. 11 (C.P.).—The Chevrier Royal Commission, looking into the whole business of the carrying of goods and passengers for gain on Ontario's highways, today had before it a suggestion from the head of a trucking concern for the establishment of a board to fix minimum truck freight rates.

The suggestion came yesterday from Gordon Strathdee, owner of Strathdee Transport, Limited, Toronto, second of two witnesses examined at the first day of the inquiry since the Christmas adjournment.

Strathdee, who operates trucks between Toronto, Orillia, Barrie and Bracebridge, said the industry's chief difficulty as far as he was concerned, cutting of rates below a profitable level, didn't start with the railroads, but with competitive truckers.

Answering a question from Commissioner Roy Sayles, who with Mr. Justice E. R. E. Chevrier, chairman, and Prof. Clarence Young, Toronto, makes up the Commission, Strathdee said he favored giving the board power to fix wages as well as rates.

Paying Men 27 Cents.

Strathdee said competition had compelled him to reduce wages of his city pick-up drivers. They receive 27 cents an hour. If rates were raised, attention should be given to wages before higher taxation was imposed.

His company was making no money, said witness. Until three years

School Dismissed Ten Minutes Early Principal Suspects Boyish Prank

Form dim memories of his own youth, R. J. Bolton, principal of Central School, wouldn't put it past some youth the advancing of the minute hand of the official clock Monday afternoon, thereby clipping ten minutes off the afternoon, and accomplishing a slightly earlier dismissal than usual. When the gong sounded out of line with her watch one of the teachers thought it meant a fire drill signal and started their orderly exit. But others concluded their watches must be skipping a few beats, even in a chronometer manufacturing city like Peterboro. Somehow or other Mr. Bolton's clock gained ten minutes in one afternoon, a sharp variation that immediately aroused doubts about some boy spirit of conformity, when the staff's watches were compared.

JAPS ARE HINTED ABOUT TO DECLARE WAR OFFICIALLY

TOKYO, Jan. 11 (AP)—The highest government and military officials of Japan, meeting in the presence of the emperor, today drafted formally "the empire's unshakeable policy toward China."

The details of that policy and whether it contemplated a formal declaration of war against China, with whom Japan has fought in undeclared conflict for six months, were held in strictest secrecy.

It was announced semi-officially the Japanese government would issue within a few days a manifesto clarifying its future action in China.

(The Havas News Agency said the personnel of the Chinese embassy in Tokyo were reported to have asked for their passports in anticipation of a declaration of war.)

Following the conference, Premier Fumimaro Konoye reported details to members of the cabinet advisory board who had waited at his residence.

While the results of the main conference were not known, one informant asserted two alternatives were presented: China's surrender or continuance if the warfare.

sufficiency drastic import restrictions were placed on foreign foodstuffs, with the result world trade in these has been kept at practically the low depression level of 1932.

World Trade Up

But by 1937, the bank president continued, there were such large gains in other raw materials and manufactures as to raise the volume of world trade as a whole, exports and imports combined, by about 25 per cent over that of 1932. Mr. Logan said that while the volume of Canadian agricultural exports in 1937 was slightly less than in 1932, exports of all wood materials rose by about 70 per cent over 1932. Mineral exports gained by 170 per cent.

Part of the current pessimism resulting from recent steep declines in commodity and security prices is a reflection from 1932 and due also to the troubled state of Europe and the Orient, he said. However, he added, the hope might be ventured that after a period of adjustment and stabilization the upward march of business will again be resumed. "Canada is a country," Mr. Logan said, "which despite its ups and downs has exceptional recuperative power and unlimited possibilities."

The increase in heavy industries more than offset declines in others, said Mr. Arscott. The introduction of new products evolved mainly during the depression period has enabled the heavy-industry group to become more diversified and they had achieved more stability in their own operations and imparted to industry in general more steadiness than was possible a few years ago.

Mining has been in the vanguard of Canada's economic advance, he said. The powerful influence of the expansion in mining upon Canadian business in general was not fully reflected by the new record in 1937 of $450,000,000 in production value. Many branches of industry benefitted from mining activities.

BITTER FIGHTING IS SEEN AHEAD

gone over to the enemy at a critical moment.

A Formal Declaration?

British experts are studying the legal position in the event Japan formally declares war against China. Such a declaration, it is pointed out, will give Japan an advantage but also will give rise to new complications. In the normal way, if Japan declares war, the other powers will declare their neutrality.

This, in effect, means recognition of belligerent rights. Japan's blockade of the Chinese coast—if recognized as effective—then will become legal and Japanese warships will have the right of search on the high seas.

But while Japan might thus check the flow of munitions to China she will have other difficulties to face. She first will have to issue a list of contraband. Then rules will have to be laid down covering rights of search outside territorial waters. In addition, with an actual state of war in China, where many occidental countries are deeply interested, the danger of dragging in somebody else will be intensified.

There is the further question of whether a formal state of war would not bring the United States neutrality laws into force and stop the export of American war supplies to Japan.

TWO DIE AT SEA

COBH, Ireland, Jan. 11—(AP).—The liner Manhattan of the United States lines reported two deaths on her arrival today after a stormy voyage from New York.

Lothar Uhleman, a seaman, was washed overboard while fastening deck canvas. A baby girl, Christianne Lemaire, travelling with her mother, died and was buried at sea.

Retires

At the annual general meeting of stockholders of The Canadian Bank of Commerce in Toronto today Sir Joseph Flavelle (LEFT) Chairman of the bank's directorate announced his retirement. Sir Joseph was succeeded by Sir Thomas White, former Minister of Finance (RIGHT).

Sheep, 100; good and choice quotted, $8.50 to $8.75; most sales $8.50 down.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

Late weakness at Chicago and Buenos Aires induced general profit-taking on Winnipeg Grain Exchange to-day. Final quotations were 3¼ to 2 cents lower, May $1.27¾, July $1.19¼, and October $1.00⅝ to ¾.

Prices moved down about a cent at the start in sympathy with unresponsive action at Liverpool following advances both here and at Buenos Aires yesterday.

Liquidation did not threaten price structure until near the close, when traders began taking profit on futures advances of about 11 cents since December 31, 1937.

DECISION RESERVED ON 1ST REFERENCE IN ALBERTA CASES

OTTAWA, Jan. 11 (C.P.). — The Supreme Court of Canada to-day prepared to hear argument on the second of two references before it arising out of Alberta Social Credit legislation and conflict between the Federal and the Aberhart Governments.

The court yesterday heard argument and reserved judgment on the first reference concerning power of the Dominion Government to disallow Provincial legislation and the right of the Lieutenant-Governor to reserve assent on such legislation.

The second reference concerns the validity of three Bills passed by the Legislature relating to taxation of banks, credit regulation and newspapers.

Arguing before the court yesterday on the first reference, Aime Geoffrion, Dominion Government counsel, said power of disallowance and right of assent, conferred by the British North America Act, are explicit and remain unaffected by the constitutional developments which have taken place since the passing of the Act in 1867.

For Alberta it was contended by O. M. Biggar, Government counsel, that the powers were affected by the change in status of the Dominion in relation to the Imperial Government and Parliament.

It was now agreed that the Imperial authorities would no longer disallow Dominion legislation and the Act declared the power of the Dominion Government and the Lieutenant-Governor in relation to Provincial legislation was the same as that of the Imperial authorities in relation to Dominion legislation.

Bills By the Legislature.

The argument starting to-day concerns Bills passed at the third session of the Alberta Legislature this year and relates to the powers of the Legislature and the Dominion Parliament rather than to those of the Governor-General and the Lieutenant-Governor.

One Bill provides for the imposition of tax on the paid-up capital, reserve funds and undivided profits of banks operating in Alberta. The Alberta counsel will argue it is within the powers of the Legislature and Dominion counsel supported by counsel for the chartered banks will take the stand it is unconstitutional.

The second deals with the regulation of credit and would require credit institutions in Alberta to take out licenses. It also provides for the establishment of local directorates to supervise the policy of credit institutions and a majority of the local directors would be appointed by a body created by the Provincial Government.

The Bill relating to newspapers is called "an Act to ensure the publication of accurate news and information." It would require newspapers to publish amplifying or corrective statements following any statement published relating to Government policy at the demand of a Provincial official.

It would also require them to disclose the names of writers of articles, news items, and editorials and the source of information behind any material published. Powers would be conferred on an official to prohibit publication of newspapers violating the Act and to prohibit publication of the writings of particular writers and of information from particular sources.

Alberta counsel contend the measure is constitutional and the Dominion counsel, supported by representatives of the newspapers of Alberta and of Canada generally take the opposite stand.

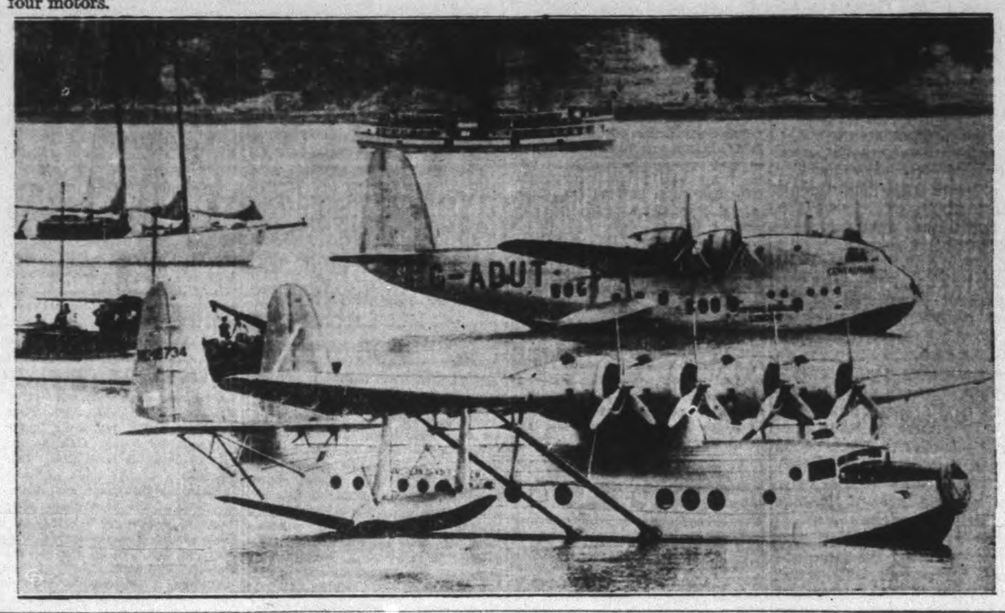
Giant Flying Boats

Symbolic of man's conquest over the oceans is this picture of the newest in British and American flying boats, designed for trans-oceanic mail and passenger service. The photo was made at Auckland, New Zealand, when the American clipper was preparing to fly back to Honolulu for the second half of its inaugural flight to Australia and New Zeaand, bearing mail and freight. While there is little difference in weight between the two ships, it will be noted the architects have planned the hulls on different styles. The British Imperial Airways' Centaurus, (background), is solid in appearance with wings that are built into the hull itself, while the American clipper aeroplane's wings are set above the fuselage. Each has four motors.



Snow Boys Tow Truck And Opposition But Old Dobbin Does The Trick

Penetang, Ont., Jan. 10 (CP) NEARLY four feet of snow cover the ground in this district following nearly a month of intermittent snowfall. Although principal highways have been kept open at all times back roads are very thoroughly blocked. The Ontario ski zone meet held over the weekend had too much snow for ideal skiing conditions and huge quantities of surface snow had to be shovelled away from Midlands new ski jump before the competition started.

This afternoon one of the town's two service trucks, answering a call for help from a stranded motorist, itself became so badly mired that the help of the opposition garage was called in. The second towing truck broke its derrick and horses were called to finish the job. Residents were treated to the sight of the first towing truck being hauled down the street behind the team.

MRS HAROLD PAYNE W.M.S. SECRETARY

(Examiner Correspondence.)

WARSAW, Jan. 11.—The first 1938 meeting of Warsaw United W.M.S. was held in the S.S. room on Thursday, January 6, with a fair attendance. Mrs. Wilkinson took the chair for the opening exercises. Reports of expense fund and allocation were given. Some donations were given which brought the amount up to about the allocation.

Mrs. Allan Payne refused to take the corresponding secretaryship and Mrs. Harold Payne was appointed.

The 1938 officers took their places with Mrs. Allan Taylor in the chair. "Standing at the Portal" was sung. Mrs. Robert Moore led in prayer and Mrs. Taylor read the Scripture lesson. Mrs. Arthur Payne and Mrs. Roland Payne sang a duet.

A letter from Miss Morton was read stating the allocation for 1938 was raised by $20. It was decided to write her that the members did not feel they could raise the amount. Mrs. Wilkinson was appointed delegate to the convention in Knox Church, Peterborough on January 25. After a closing hymn Mrs. Wilkinson closed with the benediction.

Prefers Coal Cave To Warm Cell

Montreal, Jan. 11 (CP-DISCOVERED living in a little rock cave on the slopes of Mount Royal, Yvan Vernchuck, 53-year-old Russian, was arrested by detectives on a charge of vagrancy and lodged in a cell at police headquarters.

Taken into custody yesterday, Vernchuck complained last night about the warm temperature of his cell and told officers he had been sleeping in his unheated cave all winter in nothing more than his underwear. His ragged clothing, he said, was hung on a tree limb outside his hideout each night. He said he dug the cave last autumn because he

NORWOOD

INSTITUTE MEETS AT FERGUSON HOME

(Examiner Correspondence.)

NORWOOD, Jan. 11.—The Women's Institute held their January meeting on Friday afternoon, at the home of Mrs. Rork Ferguson.

The meeting opened with the repeating of the Institute ode. Reports of the district convention were given in a very pleasing and interesting manner by Mrs. G. Bitten and Mrs. Wm. Buchanan.

All those present joined heartily in some community singing. A very interesting paper was given on the "Institute Motto"—"The Best Doctors in the world are Dr. Diet, Dr. Quiet and Dr. Merriment," by Mrs. R. Ferguson. Mrs. E. Cuthbertson favored the ladies with a piano solo. Following the business part of the meeting a delicious lunch was served by the hostesses Mrs. H. Beckett, Mrs. E. Cuthbertson and Mrs. F. Stewart.

Body On Tracks A Mystery

TORONTO, Jan. 10.—(CP). — His body lying on the eastbound Canadian National Railway tracks, Fred Bailey of suburban Lakeview was found dead to-day.

"What happened is a mystery," Toronto Township Constable J. Belford said. "His body was badly crushed but if a train had passed it the injuries would have been more severe.

"His false teeth were found about 10 feet away. There was nothing to indicate the man had been carried there. There was no snow on his clothes nor was there any gravel or anything to indicate he had been crushed against a pavement or roadway."

Basement Ceiling Damaged By Fire

(Examiner Correspondence.)

APSLEY, Jan. 11.—Fire broke out in the basement of the United Church on Sunday morning just as the Sunday School assembled. The alarm was given by the ringing of the church bell and help was speedily at hand. Walter Tucker was the first to arrive and found the beams in the basement well alight. Other villagers soon arrived, and with their help the fire was soon under control. An overheated furnace pipe was the cause. Had it occurred at a later hour after school was dismissed the church would probably have been destroyed. As it is the damage is only slight.

LIFE MEMBERSHIP IS GIVEN MEMBER NORWOOD SOCIETY

(Examiner Correspondence.)

NORWOOD, Jan. 11.—Mrs. R. S. Fennell was hostess on Wednesday afternoon to the members of Women's Missionary Society of the United Church for the first meeting of the new year, with a good attendance present. The president, Mrs. H. Robb, was in charge and opened the meeting, after which she gave a talk on "The Church in Action and Purpose," followed by prayer.

The various secretaries read their reports. Mrs. W. Puffer was appointed as delegate to the Presbyterial meeting with Mrs. B. Scott as alternate. A committee was appointed to make arrangements for the Day of World Prayer. Mrs. L. E. Nelson was presented with a life membership certificate by Miss Rose Squire, on behalf of the Mission Band.

Mrs. G. A. Brethen was in charge of the devotional part of the meeting which opened by the singing of a hymn, followed by the Lord's Prayer. The scripture lesson was taken by Mrs. Sine after which Mrs. W. E. Binkley favored the ladies with a piano solo. Mrs. R. Parker read the devotional leaflet. A review of the study chapter, "The Ministry of Healing," was ably given by Mrs. Ivey, followed by the singing of hymn and repeating of the Mizpah Benediction, brought the meeting to a close.

A delicious lunch was served by the hostess and a social hour spent as some of the members of the Evening Auxiliary presented the dramatized leaflet, "Cancelled Prayer."

SCHOOL BOARD MEETS IN NORWOOD

(Examiner Correspondence.)

NORWOOD, Jan. 11.—The January meeting of the Board of Education was held recently with members present, John Marks, chairman, E. T. Buck, W. L. Bailey, W. Bitten, F. Webster, R. Nevins, W. H. Giffen and W. Burgess.

On motion of Bailey and Bitten the supply committee was authorized to purchase music for the high school

A vote of thanks was tendered Mr. Cutcliffe for looking after the treasurer's books, on motion of W. Burgess and W. Bitten.

On motion of Burgess and Bitten, that the chairman, secretary and G. A. Brethen be a committee to co-operate with Havelock and Lakefield school boards and arrange and interview with Alex L. Elliott, M.P.P.

The high school inspector, Mr. Jenninga, of Toronto, made an official inspection during the past week. The inspector also had an interview with members of the board on Friday afternoon in regard to the new branches of study re household science and manual training on the new course of study.

MORE SELF-RELIANCE

BARRIE, Ont., Jan. 11 (CP). — Unemployment relief no longer is an emergency problem, but one that will remain with Canada for many years unless some solution for it is found, in the opinion of Hon. Canada's Export Trade Exceeds $1,000,000,000

President S. H. Logan and General Manager A. E. Arscott Present an Encouraging Report for 1937 to Shareholders of The Canadian Bank of Commerce

Presenting an encouraging statement covering operations for 1937, Mr. A. E. Arscott, General Manager of The Canadian Bank of Commerce addressed the annual meeting of the Bank's shareholders in part as follows:

We have come through an unusual year, marked in its early part by a high rate of economic activity over most of the world, and later by a slowing down in several countries and a sharp reversal of the recovery movement in the United States. For Canada, 1937, like the intervening years from 1933, was mainly one of progressive adjustment. In several branches of our national economy a record level of productivity and employment was attained. Notwithstanding the influence of the sharp recession in the United States upon certain of our industries as well as upon our stock and commodity prices, Canada's business volume as a whole was 10 per cent. greater than in 1936.

HEAVY INDUSTRIES ADVANCED

One of the outstanding features of the year was the expansion in the heavy industries which had previously lagged so much in the progress of Canada toward recovery. The increase in this group more than offset the decline in others. While the steel and automobile members are shown officially as having made the greatest rate of progress, certain others whose records are known to the Bank, but who do not publish statements, made quite as good headway. A further feature of the heavy industry situation, and one which deserves wide recognition, is the introduction of new products evolved mainly during the depression period when efforts were being made to counteract the deflationary effects then felt in the standard equipment departments. As a result of this enterprise, these industries have become more diversified and now offer a greater range of products. They have, therefore, achieved more stability in their own operations and imparted to industry in general more steadiness than was possible a few years ago. Unfortunately there were some lines of industry in which the progress of the previous year was not maintained.

MINES PRODUCED $450,000,000

As in former years, mining has been in the vanguard of Canada's economic advance. The powerful influence of the expansion in mining upon Canadian business in general is not fully reflected by the new record in 1937 of $450,000,000 in production value. That figure represents merely the net result. Many branches of industry benefited from mining operations because these operations involved heavy demands for equipment and materials.

In agriculture, the year was one of sharp contrasts. As is well known, drought affected the centre of the Western grain belt so disastrously as to destroy all commercial wheat over about 40 per cent. of the planted area and to inflict upon the Province of Saskatchewan the most severe setback ever experienced in the history of Canadian agriculture.

It is not surprising, therefore, to find that as a result of these adverse conditions and of rising agricultural costs, the farm purchasing power of the Dominion in 1937 failed to maintain the increase of the four preceding years, although the year was the most remunerative of the past decade in favoured crop areas, comprising a large part of Ontario and sections of Quebec, British Columbia and the Maritime Provinces.

PROMISE FOR 1938

It is highly gratifying that preseason moisture conditions in the Prairie Provinces are the most promising since 1933. In about 70 per cent. of the total wheat area the autumn precipitation was either above average or nearly normal, some of the heaviest rains falling in districts which reaped short crops in recent years. This gives us a much more cheerful outlook for the present year, and affords strong grounds for the hope that at long last a turn in the cycle has come and that the Canadian West will again resume its rightful place as one of the greatest grain-producing area of the world.

BANKING TRENDS

Conditions affecting Canadian banking have undergone a marked change in recent years. In the early days when great economic activity prevailed through the development of the older Provinces and later when the West was being opened up, the problem of the banks was to gather sufficient deposits to enable them to take care of the ever-increasing demand for loans. The World War added enormously to this demand which, after a brief post-war interval, continued active during the succeeding decade. Following the crash of 1929, however, a period of sharp contraction occurred, owing to drastic liquidation of commodities and securities, with the result that the banks have found themselves with more funds than they have been able to employ profitably, the precise reverse of former conditions.

LOW INTEREST RATES

The recovery in business, commencing in 1933, gained impetus until the peak was reached about the middle of the past year. During this period industry operated on rising price levels and consequently production and services yielded larger earnings. The banks, however, have been less fortunate and have not benefited to the same extent as trade and industry because their inventories are composed of cash and credit and, as you know, instead of the rise in interest rates which followed previous depressions, these have remained low or fallen further, partly by reason of a broader credit structure, but chiefly as the effect of governmental policy. This policy has been prompted on the one hand by a desire to refund maturing issues and to obtain new money at as low a cost as possible, and, on the other hand, by a wish to encourage business to expand by making it cheaper to borrow. To my mind this policy is sound up to a point, but beyond that fails to achieve its purpose because private capital will not take the natural risk involved in constructive enterprise without a fair rate of interest return. Failing that it will remain on deposit with the banks or seek temporary employment in short-term high-grade securities.

GENERAL CONDITIONS

We have come a long way on the road to recovery since the dark days of the great depression, but we now find ourselves in another period of readjustment. This is not peculiar to Canada, but is being felt even more acutely in other countries, notwithstanding intensive remedial efforts on the part of their governments and the adoption of highly empirical regulations and restrictions designed to safeguard against major fluctuations in business and production. It has transpired, however, that these measures, while they have had a temporary stabilizing effect in some quarters, have retarded healthy progress in others, and it has, in my view, been now clearly demonstrated that the old well-known fundamental principles still govern the economic life of nations. These, however, are not being allowed to function in their natural way but are continually thwarted in their operation by the artificial, so-called emergency, measures I have mentioned. Nevertheless, there is, I believe, a growing realization that these fundamental principles are sound and also that business fluctations are bound from time to time to occur. In endeavoring to appraise the outlook we are handicapped in our search for helpful precedents because of the many factors which now affect our economic life but did not formerly exist. I need only refer to the restrictions which have been imposed on world trade, the control of foreign exchanges, the vast armament programmes and the ever-present possibility of further international complications. It is my firm belief, however, that Canada with her vast natural resources, her wide range and variety of products which the world so greatly needs, and the industry, capability and enterprise of her people, is in a more favoured position than almost any other country to withstand any temporary recession in general trade and to participate fully in the advance which will inevitably occur when the necessary adjustments have been made and confidence is again restored.

Canada's Mines produced $450,000,000, a new record—and Mineral Exports were 170% above those of six years ago.

Pre-season moisture in dry prairie areas of recent years suggest drought cycle is ended.

We have entered another period of readjustment.

PRESIDENT S. H. LOGAN'S ADDRESS

The years 1937 was one of the most favourable that many Canadians have ever enjoyed.

It is quite apparent that the economic progress in Canada during 1937 was due largely to a series of favourable developments affecting the country's export trade. This trade, though recently on a declining scale from the record volume of the preceding year, had a value above one billion dollars and, like that of 1936, was, on a comparable price basis, actually greater than in 1929.

Canada usually occupies fifth place in world export trade. It is indeed remarkable that this industrially young country, with a population of less than twelve millions, should be able to produce exports about one-third as large as those of the United States, a more highly developed nation, with a population of nearly one hundred and thirty millions and still in possession of vast natural resources.

EXPORTERS' ENTERPRISE

The great extent and variety of Canada's natural wealth partly explain her high standing in international trade. So, also, do the commercial trade treaties effected by our forward-looking governments of the past five years. And, of course, in recent years there has been the stimulus of general economic recovery, spreading and accelerating from 1932 until early in 1937, by which time world industrial production had risen to an unprecedented level. To make the most of their opportunities, however, Canadian exporters had to show, and did show, a marked degree of enterprise and of adaptability to materially altered world conditions.

It was in the diversification of exportable products, however, that the variety of our natural resources and the enterprise of our exporters showed to the greatest advantage. Changes in tastes, which alter currents of trade, are of common occurrence, but probably never did international commerce show such divergent trends as in the recent years of intense economic nationalism. In the countries most devoted to this policy of self-sufficiency drastic import restrictions were placed on foreign food-stuffs, with the result that world trade in these has been kept practically at the low depression level of 1932. But by 1937 there were such large gains in other raw materials and manufactures as to raise the volume of world trade as a whole (world exports and imports combined) by about 25 per cent. over that of 1932. This expansion may be ascribed to various causes, among them, the world rearmament programme, but one should be particularly emphasized, namely, the fact that the limited resources of raw materials, notably wood and base metals, in the countries mentioned, have made self-sufficiency more difficult than in the case of food-stuffs. The Old World, including the Orient, has had therefore to satisfy its growing demands for these materials by drawing upon the supplies of richly endowed countries such as Canada.

FOREST AND MINE

Now let us consider Canadian export trade in this period of abnormal change in the character of world commerce, taking three classes which make up 90 per cent. of our exports. The volume of agricultural exports in 1937 was slightly less than in 1932. But notwithstanding a continued narrow American market for our lumber, exports of all wood materials rose by about 70 per cent. over 1932 to account for about one-fifth of all exports. The most striking development was, however, in mineral exports, which gained by 170 per cent. and thus were more than one-quarter of our total trade, as compared with 15 per cent. six years ago.

CONSTRUCTIVE POLICIES

In outlining the progress of Canadian export trade under exceptional difficulties, I have emphasized the achievements of constructive business enterprise in this naturally favoured land. The question might well be asked: Who in Canada are most likely to be effective in creating new wealth, employment and purchasing power for our people—men who have by their enterprise so greatly expanded our trade and industry and opened new markets for Canadian products, or those who seek to assume control of, or even to overthrow, the nation-wide systems of business and finance through whose efficient operation such nationally beneficial results have been achieved?

PRESENT SET-BACK TEMPORARY

In the past few months we have witnessed steep declines in commodity prices, such as usually presage a business recession. A drastic fall in the exchange values of securities is likewise a warning, for stock exchange movements are generally accepted as barometers of the future state of business. Falling commodity prices are signals to the business man to avoid excessive inventories. Falling security prices affect the volume of retail sales, at least in luxury goods. They also cause many to defer purchases which they would otherwise make. Memories of the last depression are fresh in the public mind. Part of the current pessimism is a reflection from 1932 and due also to the troubled state of Europe and the dangerous situation in the Orient. The hope may be ventured, however, that after a period of adjustment and stabilization the upward march of business will be again resumed. It must not be supposed that all speculation in stocks is economically harmful. An outstanding illustration of this statement is the remarkable growth of our mining industry, highly speculative in nature, which now has a production value of over $400,000,000 per annum. While no one can for a moment condone speculative investment to an extent that overstrains individual resources, the public must be willing from time to time to risk money in new enterprises if our natural wealth is to continue to be progressively developed. Canada is a country which despite its ups and downs has exceptional recuperative power and unlimited possibilities. It is one of the best in which to live and work.

THE PROBLEM OF PEACE

The greatest problem of the world today, including of course the United States and Canada as vital parts of it, is the settlement of European affairs upon a basis that will remove the constant threat of another world conflagration, and the termination without western entanglement of the disastrous war now going on between Japan and China. This problem must be left to the skill and wisdom of statesmanship in the various nations concerned. The individual can do but little and prediction as to the course of events is idle and futile. We, in Canada, have faith not only in the might but also in the good sense, calm judgment and wise forbearance, even in the face of grave and wilful provocation, of the British people and their Government. We have also confidence in the power, influence and right intentions of our great neighbour and kindred democracy to the South. The chief interest of both the British Empire and the United States is world peace. By their joint or cooperative action it is most likely to be achieved and made permanent. To the extent that Canada is able to assist in the realisation of this great ideal our Government should be able to depend upon the support and encouragement of the Canadian people.

Fighting Diphtheria

In view of the fact that the efficacy of immunization against diphtheria has been demonstrated beyond a doubt it is disquieting to read in a recent report issued by the Ontario Department of Health that not one-third of the children of Ontario are protected against this disease and that a recent drop in the number annually immunized has been followed by a rise in the number of cases reported throughout the province.

It is evident that, in the words of Shakespeare, the snake has only been scotched and not killed, and that if diphtheria is to be effectively controlled it will be necessary to see that the immunization process is systematically and consistently carried on. There is a new crop of children every year and it is desirable that these infants should be immunized as soon as practicable.

Surprising it is to find that in 406 of the 894 municipalities in Ontario toxoid has never been administered under official auspices and that in some 200 other places toxoid campaigns have been been conducted only spasmodically.

Fortunately, Peterborcugh, one of the pioneers in this work of protecting its children against the dangerous disease, is included in the list of 275 municipalities where immunization has been carried on from year to year and where as the Provincial board puts it, "the incidence of the disease is markedly reduced."

That is a satisfactory condition but the situation throughout the province shows that we cannot afford to rest upon past performances.

The war against diphtheria must be carried on relentlessly year after year; any indication of an armistice means that the disease will get a fresh foothold and become a serious menace again.

Omemee's New Rink

The citizens of Omemee are to be congratulated upon the opening this week of their fine new skating and hockey rink, a modern structure made possible by the fact that the ratepayers of the community by their ballots authorized the village council to issue debentures for $10,000 to cover the cost of the building.

In providing facilities for hockey out of public funds the Omemee council is covering a somewhat new trail in municipal business although Lakefield some time ago took over the village rink from a private company and operates it as a public enterprise. Out in New Westminster, B.C., too, the ratepayers are being asked this week to endorse the installation by the municipality of a system of artifical ice in the arena there.

After all there is no logical reason why municipal councils, if the majority of the citizens approve, should not provide facilities for hockey, Canada's national winter game. Parks are furnished by municipalities for baseball, football and other sports and hockey, a characteristically Canadian game, providing recreation and exercise for the young folk who play it and entertainment for their elders who delight in watching it, has a right to claim similarly generous treatment.

We have an idea that Omemee will find it has made an excellent investment in furnishing the community with a modern rink. The young folk of the village—and the older ones too—could easily locate other places where their time would be much more uselessly and wastefully spent than in the very fine arena that is now ready to throw its doors open to the public.

Nothing Is Foolproof

Reckless driving reaches its finest flower at the very spots where it might reasonably be expected that safety first principles would be followed as a matter of course. By that we mean that at protected railway crossings where warning devices have been installed to save the driving public from its own folly, some motorists go out of their way to get themselves into trouble.

That may seem like an extreme statement but as former governor Al Smith used to say, let us examine the record. And when we do we find as reported in the latest bulletin issued by the Board of Railway Commissioners and dealing with dangerous practices at protected crossings in Canada that between May 1 and October 30 last year there were 148 cases where drivers of motor vehicles were in danger at such points on the Canadian National Railways while from April 1 to September 30 the Canadian Pacific railway reported a total of 210 simflar cases.

That is the kind of thing that makes officials of safety organizations throw up their hands in despair. When every effort has been made to make certain crossings are fool-proof and then along comes a motorist who blithely ignores a warning signal, dashes by a watchman, or even insists upon crashing through railway gates so that he can get tangled up with a train there does not seem to be much that can be done about it. It becomes a discouraging process trying to educate folk to be careful at unprotected crossings when back in your mind is the realization that there are a good many people who cannot be prevented from getting into trouble even at those points where warning apparatus has been installed.

The Council Is Stronger

The appointment of James Dutton as a member of the council to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Ald. Max Sloan last year, not only followed a well-established precedent in local municipal circles in that he was the highest among the defeated candidates at the recent election but it was most emphatically a case of the office seeking the man.

Members of council who have been in touch with the work done by Mr. Dutton in the last two years and who better than anybody else in the community are able to size up the worth of the man and the value of his services have been insistent that the appointment should go to him. That he finally consented to accept is due to his keen sense of responsibility as a citizen and not because of any personal desire to get back into office.

We believe that the council, rather than Ald. Dutton is to be congratulated. His acceptance of the onerous post of chairman of the relief committee, a position that demands tact and patience and a willingness to devote long hours to the city's business must have caused every other alderman to heave an inward sighof relief for it is a thankless post that no one in the council covets and which only a well-developed spirit of public service such as Ald. Dutton possesses would lead anyone to assume.

The 1938 council is the stronger because of the inclusion of Ald. Dutton who returns to his desk simply because of the pressure that has been brought to bear upon him because of the hope that he has of being able to contribute useful service in the public interest.

Public-Spirited Families

The swearing in of Ald. Herbert Bradburn as a member of the city council calls attention to the fact that Peterborough has been fortunate in possessing a number of public-spirited families whose members have been willing to assume the responsibilities of municipal service and to play no small part in the development of their home community.

Ald. Bradburn for example brings into the civic arena a name already honored in municipal circles. His father, W. H. Bradburn, served for years as a member of the council and as mayor and on top of that contributed a good record as a member of the Utilities commission and as a representative of this riding in the Legislature. Ald. Bradburn's uncle, T. E. Bradburn, also made a useful contribution to the public service of Peterborough.

Peterborough's new mayor, James Hamilton, also bears a name that was long honored in public office here. His father, the late Peter Hamilton, a well-beloved citizen, was for many years a member of the Board of Education, and had the honor for some time of being chairman of that important body.

The record of the Denne family naturally comes to mind in this connection. The late Henry Denne must necessarily be included in any list of the builders of Peterborough for he was a public-spirited citizen who played a prominent part in educational matters here as member of the Board of Education for a long time, including a period as chairman of the Board and who contributed community service as president of the Little Lake Cemetery Company and in other capacities. And on his death his torch was passed to two of his sons, T. H. G. Denne who was a member of the council and afterward mayor and then Roland Denne whose record as a member of the Board of Education, and of the city council, his useful years as mayor, his long term as president of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition Board, his association with the Little Lake Cemetery Board and his present service as member of the Utilities Commission are fresh in public memory.

Still another example is furnished by the Matthews family for T. F. Matthews after years of splendid service as chairman of the Utilities Commission now sits back on the side lines and watches his son, Gordson S. Matthews, ably discharge the duties of the same responsible position.

A community is fortunate indeed when the zeal to serve passes down from generation to generation as it has in so many cases in Peterborough.

The 1938 Chairmen

Probably the most surprising feature of the selection of chairmen by the city council was the refusal of Ald Gordon to accept any portfolio. It has been the practice in Peterborough that the chairmanships should, so far as possible, go to the most experienced members of council and Ald. Gordon, by that test, was qualified to take over the leadership of any one of the important committees. He has not seen fit to do so and as a result it has been necessary to throw the burden of a very important committee, the property committee, upon the shoulders of a new member of council, Ald. Herb. McCannan. With the possible motorization of the garbage system and the liklihood of something having to be done in regard to the incinerator, looming up as matters to engage the attention of the property committee this year, it will be appreciated that the new alderman has been handed no light task by his colleagues.

With the refusal of Ald. Gordon to accept preferment there were not enough experienced aldermen to go round the portfolios and another new alderman drew a post when Ald. Wilfred Huycke was made chairman of the Legal Committee, his training, of course, fitting him for that appointment.

The other committees are in good hands. Ald. Cotton after experience in a number of other council departments takes over the portfolio of finance. Ald. E. R. Wilson and James Juby have exchanged positions, the former taking the Board of Work and the latter the Fire, Water and light and the shift will add to the general knowledge of the two aldermen regarding the work of council. Ald. Glover has the manufacturer's committee and will continue to press for new industries for Peterborough, feeling that they are vital to future growth and development here. The onerous task of directing relief operations has been left on the doorstep of Ald. Dutton, newly appointed member; and the parks are once more under the control of that veteran lover of the city beautiful Ald. Walter Stocker.

The chairmen are in a sense the cabinet of the council and the appointments that have been made will appeal to the public as about as satisfactory an alignment as could be made, in view of the fact that one of the senior members of the council declined to accept any responsibility of leadership.

NOTE AND COMMENT

It is stated that every automobile fatality costs in Ontario about $50,000 so that even as a business proposition reckless driving does not pay.

Dreams do come true sometimes. We have just been reading about a New Yorker who has married a magazine-cover girl.

Gas mask training is to begin in Winnipeg this week. We had an idea that such training might start in Ottawa but probably the folk in the capital are considered immune to gas.

In view of the fact that $4,265 was collected in Oshawa last year for canine licenses the folk in Bowmanville will probably say the Motor City is certainly going to the dogs.

Oshawa Home and School Association wants all children sixteen years of age and under off the streets by 9.30 o'clock. The youngsters will retort by saying they do not feel like staying home alone.

SO WHAT'S THE USE

(By A. R. K.)

¶ The doctor gazed upon my tongue, he poked his finger at my lung, looked likewise at my eyes; you are a lazy lout he said, too fond of parking in your bed, you need some exercise.

¶ If I would walk four miles a day and eat plain things like peas and hay, my vigor would increase; my muscles would get strong as steel, I'd be surprised how well I'd feel, when I shed pounds of grease.

¶ He told me of the things to do, upon a paper wrote a few, so I would not forget; he said I had much flabby fat, I should be thinned out like a rat, he told me things, you bet.

¶ I walked four miles like what he said, I was too tired to go to bed, I found I could not sleep; when I sat down to hay and peas, I longed for rarebits stuffed with cheese, or roast carved from a sheep.

¶ I lived in torture for ten days and tried to mend my foolish ways, and harden up my frame; I tried to shed my surplus fat and take the lard from off my slat, but it was all in vain.

¶ For when I ate such simple stuff my appetite grew large and rough, I always called for more, but when I parked upon the scales instead of being hard as nails—I'd put on nine pounds more.

THE TRAGEDY of the lost seacoast towns of England which have been engulfed by the relentless encroachment of the sea was told in a recent lecture by Professor Gillian of Leeds University who cited the particular case of vanished Ravenspur, now beneath the waters of the Humber.

✧ ✧ ✧

Ravenspur, once one of the most flourishing towns in Yorkshire, was a royal port in the fourteenth century. The water swept away its principal church in 1335 but the town grew and prospered for two centuries more.

✧ ✧ ✧

Then it gave up its fight against the sea and now it quays, its noble churches and its inns are washed away.

✧ ✧ ✧

There have been other tragedies. The Holderness coast between Bridlington and Spurn has been eroded by the ocean for centuries and it is estimated that the water has advanced there some three and a half miles since the Roman invasion and has eaten up 78,000 acres of rich farm land.

✧ ✧ ✧

Between Flamborough Head and Spurn Point over 40 villages have disappeared and churches which are now beneath the sea include Ravenscrow 1330, Old Withernsea, 1461, Runswell, 1700, Burstell Priory, 1720, Owthorne, 1786-1818 and Old Kilnsea 1823-31.

Eccles is another place which has been lost to the waves. For years its church tower stood on the beach but now even those last ruins have gone. The Welsh coast, too, has known the greed of the sea and today the proud city of Caer Wyddnod which disappeared beneath the waves in the fifteenth century is remembered only by historians.

✧ ✧ ✧

The saddest story of all however is that of the proud city of Dunwich, now fathoms deep off the Suffolk Coast. Once the most important port of East Anglia Dunwich battled with the sea for many centuries. By the middle of the 11th century much damage had been done, more than 400 houses were destroyed in 1347 and finally the last of the village disappeared beneath the water in 1739.

Inventions Increase.

THE NUMBER of applications for British patents last year showed an increase over 1936 when 35,900 were registered, and it is indicative of the trend of the times that the principal inventions for which patents have been taken out were for electrical appliances. A striking feature too was the quantity of useful inventions by young persons acting on their own initiative. Munition work activity has been responsible for a large number of inventions in the way of precision tools, non-inflammable, splinterless screens for aircraft and the discovery of entirely new principles in the control, and speed of airplanes.

✧ ✧ ✧

Several devices for the home will lighten the work of the housewife but in this connection inventions by women showed a decrease during the year.

✧ ✧ ✧

Among the interesting inventions registered last year were a seating indicator for buses and picture shows, apparatus for remedying telephone—cross talk, an electric bulb fixed to the nose-piece of spectacles, a flame-operated switch for extinguishing fires in vehicles and a means for keeping flags fully extended.

✧ ✧ ✧

Workmen clearing out the Queensmere pond on Wimbledon Common in England found a pistol which is believed to have once belonged to Jerry Abershaw, the famous highwayman. The weapon was buried in the mud. It was a long-barreled affair with a single lock of the type used in Abershaw's day.

He Has a Tough Job.

BRITAIN HAS many tought jobs to hand out to those who serve her and probably the most unevlable post in the Empire is that held by Sir Bernard Reilly who has spent nearly 20 years in Aden, which the soldiers know as "Hell's Gateway," and who was appointed first British governor there in 1931.

✧ ✧ ✧

During the Abyssinian war he had a particularly trying time and for many years he has had trouble with Arab raiders from the Yemen.

✧ ✧ ✧

Recently a band of them murdered two British Arab officials, placed their bodies in a motor-car and ordered the driver to take them to Aden and present them to the Governor.

✧ ✧ ✧

Most people know that in the 17th century the Puritans tried to abolish Christmas by law but not many perhaps remember that in more recent times an attempt was made in parliament to change the name of the great festival. A somewhat militantly Protestant M. P. introduced a bill to substitute "tide for "mass" in such words as Christmas, Candlemas, Michaelmas etc.

✧ ✧ ✧

The member's own name was Massey-Massey and a witty Irish member smothered the bill in laughter by suggesting that its introducer should begin by calling himself Tidey-Tidey.

Letters To The Editor

Correspondents Discuss Various Topics.

NOT RELIGIOUS ORGANIZATION

Editor Examiner:

Sir: In reply to Mr. Burnham's letter in reference to the Rosicrucian Order, may I point out that the history of the Order, as well as the monthly "Rosicrucian Digest," is in the Public Library, available to all.

The rest of his letter is simply speculation and guess, and as far removed from the facts as, for example, the guess of a non-Mason would be in regard to the higher arcana of the Masonic Order.

To correct any misapprehension I would like to state most emphatically that the Rosicrucian Order is NOT a religious organization, for it's membership includes those of all races, of all religions. The only religious qualification required is a firm belief in God. A religious census of the delegates attending the annual conventions lists every variety of Protestant, Catholic, Jewish and other beliefs. So far from the Order discouraging belief in revealed or other religion, it encourages its members to adhere to and support wholeheartedly whatever faith to which they may belong. Furthermore, the Order will not admit atheists or professional spiritualistic "mediums" to its ranks.

It would take too much space to even begin to list those who in the past and present have contributed to the world's progress through their association with the Rosicrucian Order, but among them are to be found the great artists, musicians, scientists, mystics, philosophers and religious leaders and teachers of all schools of thought.

In conclusion, may I say that the articles appearing in the Examiner, that are eagerly read by hundreds, clipped and sent to other parts of Canada and the U. S. A., are solely designed to stimulate thought among Christians and non-Christians alike. They arouse interest by their unusual mystical angle, but as far as possible they are based on the records contained in the four Gospels, or parallel passages in the other scriptures, or on the writings of the great Christian saints and mystics.

They are written in the hope that readers may be led into regarding the sublime and eternal truths that Jesus taught as things to be built into our daily lives. I am sure that no-one who has the welfare of humanity at heart, can quarrel with that aim.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for your kindness.

I remain,
R. PARTHING.

ABOUT OLD COINS

Editor Examiner:

Sir: In the issue of the Examiner of Dec. 22nd a Mr. Jess Brown of 45 Hunter Street states, that he has a coin of George III, minted in 1826, as George III reigned from 1760-1820, so this coin could not be minted in 1826, the reigning King then was George IV who reigned from 1820-1830. Then in the issue of Jan. 3rd. a Mr. Smith of Campbellford states, that he has a coin of Georgius II of 1175. This is impossible, as the reigning King of England at that time was Henri II, the first of the Plantagenet line or house of Anjou. Now regarding the letter of Mrs. H. R. Armstrong of Millbrook of Jan. 8th. in the Examiner, I will try and explain some of the inscriptions or legends on the coins. In 1791 the Colony of Canada was divided in Upper and Lower Canada, the then currency of lower Canada up to 1841 was divided in "Bank tokens" "Bouquet tokens" and Trader's tokens." The "Bank tokens" are in denominations of Penny or Deux Sous and halfpenny or Sou and are in copper, one of the rarest is the one with a view of the Bank of Montreal on it, showing front and gable in perspective and with the date 1838. The "Bouquet tokens" have on the obverse side a bouquet of flowers, ears of grain etc. tied with ribbon. The legends are "Agriculture and Commerce" and below it "Bas Canada" which is the French for Lower Canada, on the reverse side is a wreath of two branches of laurel tied with a ribbon and the legend "Token, Montreal" Un sou. Then there are the Provincial and Trader's tokens, these tokens, though not coins in the ordinary sense, not having been issued by kings or governments, play a more important part in the history of the country, then the regal coins do. The trader's tokens were issued by the people, the legends commence on the obverse and are continued on the reverse of the token, on the field within the inner circle is usually the value of the coin, the initials of the issuer, the trade company etc. Then there are the "Wellington" tokens, with the bust of Wellington in unifrom, and with the names of the battles fought in the Peninsular war like, Vimiera, Talavera, Bussão, Badajoz, Salomouce. Then the "Ship"tokens with the legend "Ships, Colonies and Commerce" on the obverse and "For Public Accommodation,, on the reverse. Then there are the several tokens of Upper Canada as the "King's head" the "Brock" tokens with the legend, Sir Isaac Brock the hero of Upper Canada, the "Sloop" tokens. Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island had their tokens, one of them, which has "Self Government and Free Trade" on the reverse and "Prince Edward Island 1855" on the obverse. Then New Foundland had its "Rutherford" tokens 1841-1846. Some of the lower Canada tokens were issued by the Th. and W. Molson Brewers, Distillers, Montreal, and on the reverse they have the legend "Cash paid for all sorts of grain 1837."

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for the valuable space you have given me in your paper.

I remain yours truly,
EMILE BAUMER.

Hood Contest Has Interesting History

Game Was Played In Lincolnshire, England, Before Columbus And Cabot Were Born

(From the St. Thomas Times-Journal.)

ON A DAY in January about 600 years ago a Lady Mowbray was riding through the village of Haxey, North Lincolnshire, when her hood blew off. Twelve gallant laborers rushed to capture and restore it, and Lady Mowbray thereupon granted a piece of land at Haxey to provide a hood contest for all time to come. The game is being played there this day. And thus:

The player in command is known as the "Lord," who is accompanied by a "Fool" and twelve men known as "Boggins." The Lord is dressed in a scarlet tunic with a Morris dancer's hat adorned with flowers. The Fool's face is blackened and his sacking trousers are hung with ribbons. The Boggins wear red jerseys. Soon after mid-day the party regale themselves with ale in the village inn and sing ancient songs. Then they march along the street to the church, where the Fool is hoisted on a wall and makes a comic speech. Tradition requires that his speech be terminated by applying a piece of lighted paper to the seat of his pants. At one time they used to warm his pants by holding him over a fire. The speech ended, the players proceed to the Lady Mowbray ground, an open expanse of plowed land. The Lord distributes his Boggins in a wide circle. He then takes up a hood which is tied neatly with sacking and chants the formula:

"Hoos agin hoos, toon agin toon,
If a man meet a man knock a man doon
—But don't hurt him."

The Lord throws the hood down and the villagers rush to capture it and try to break through the ring of Boggins. Invariably the holder is touched, and he must return the hood to the centre to be thrown up again.

So the game goes on for an hour. Then comes the "sway." A special hood, made of leather, is thrown to the crowd, who gather over it in one gigantic scrum, composed of the men of the five rival hamlets which form the parish. Each strives with might and main to push the scrum towards its own quarters. Some times a state of equilibrium will keep the players locked immovably for a quarter of an hour on end. As twilight deepens, the "sway" slowly but surely takes a definite line of direction; till finally the victor side, with songs and cheers, bears off the hood to its favorite inn, there to be rewarded with a dole of free beer.

To some this may seem a somewhat foolish and childish procedure, yet on this day the villagers of Haxey stage the annual hood contest which has been held every year except during the World War since the Middle Ages. And there is something intriguing in the thought that this game has come down through many generations of these villages as a direct link with mediaeval England; that it was played before Columbus and Cabot were born. It is one of those ancient traditions belonging to an age when Britons were primitive, and the knowledge of their existence adds to the amusing surprises which the Old Land offers to visitors in so many ways.

ILL-CHOSEN NAMES.

(Halifax Chronicle)

WHAT'S IN A name? A great deal; Iceland and Greenland have their wires crossed. Iceland is the most fitting name that Greenland could have, and while Greenland may not just be exactly appropriate to Iceland, it would be far more fitting than the name she now staggers under. It is a wonder that Iceland with its sturdy independence and its long and honorable history, does not change its name to something which at least would not give a stranger the shivers, and to something which is more like the actual country it describes.

A Bible Message For To-day . . . .

HE THAT cometh from above is above all: he that is of the earth is earthly, and speaketh of the earth; he that cometh from heaven is above all. And what he hath seen and heard, that he testifieth.

. . . He that hath received his testimony hath set to his seal that God is true. For he whom God hath sent speaketh the words of God: for God giveth not the Spirit by measure unto him.—John iii, 31, 32, 33, 34.

✧ ✧ ✧

Now there are diversities of gifts, but the same Spirit. And there are differences of administrations, but the same Lord. And there are diversities of operations, but it is the same God which worketh in all. But the manifestation of the Spirit is given to every man to profit withal. . . . For by one Spirit are we all baptized into one body, whether we be Jews or Gentiles, whether we be bond or free; and have been all made to drink into one Spirit.— I Cor. xii, 4-7, 13.

And the Spirit and the bride say, Come. And let him that heareth say, Come. And let him that is athirst come. And whosoever will, let him take of the water of life freely.— Rev. xxii, 17.

TIME FOR DAY OFF

(Ottawa Journal)

KITCHENER sends out a holiday news item that Miss Minnie Schultz of that town hasn't missed Sunday school in 36 years. Our own statistics show that she must have been among those present when the roll was called 1,976 times. That represents, we think we may say without hurting anybody's feelings, a vast amount of Sunday school, and if we were Miss Minnie we think we should stay at home next Sunday, enjoy a quiet snooze, and see what happens.

The trouble with performances of this sort is that they come to possess an exaggerated importance. A man who boasts that he hasn't been late for work in thirty years, or hasn't been sick in ten years, or has been up at six o'clock every morning since he was twelve years old, or hasn't missed church since 1902, begins to think that dreadful things will happen if he breaks his record. So its maintenance is apt to be the major interest if his life, and it is not surprising if sometimes he makes a nuisance of himself with talk of his blessed record.

THE AGE OF TALK.

(The New Outlook)

IT IS ONE OF the tragedies of the post-war era that we have had much talk and little action. Conferences which should have been the prelude to more decisive policies have ended in the futility of many words. We have discussed economic difficulties, the problems of war and peace and the menace of rearmament. Our fears have now become facts; economic selfishness has run riot and the threat of war is upon us. The conference method of international diplomacy has failed because nations lacked the will to turn their words into actions.

RING OUT THE NEW

(The New Outlook)

AT THE funeral of the village renegade, a well-intentioned friend ventured the hesitant tribute that "he wis not as bad all the time as he was some of the time."

The words might almost serve as an epitaph of the year that is ending.

SENIOR PETES AND BELLEVILEE IN TIE FOR O.H.A. GROU[illegible] FRACAS

Belleville Redmen Gain First Place Tie With Senior Petes By Defeating Queen's 6 To 5

Homesters Show Marked Superiority By Getting Four Goals In First

BELLEVILLE, Ont., Jan. 11 (CP) —Belleville Redmen put themselves back in the running for Senior B Ontario Hockey Association group honors here last night, when they defeated Queens 6-5. The game counted four points, and Belleville moved into a tie for the leadership with the Peterborough squad.

Showing a marked superiority in the first period, the Redmen rammed home four counters although "Flat" Walsh's team scored in the first thirty seconds of play.

In the second frame Queens collected three markers with one tally being registered by Redmen. Queens tied the contest up midway through the third frame, but Belleville, having a little edge in condition, notched the winning tally and played a defensive game for the remainder of the pastime.

Gets Two For Redmen

Ruttan scored two goals for Redmen. Wilson and the Jackson brothers notched a pair of the counters. Wilson was high scorer of the night with two goals and an assist.

Holland with a pair of counters, Donihee with two goals and Carver with one constituted the goal total of the squad.

Lineups:—

Belleville—Goal, Bowen; defence, Murphy, Bentley; centre, C. Jackson; wings, Wilson, W. Jackson; subs, Baines, McGuire, Akey, Stark, Ruttan.

St. Peter's Beaten By All Saints 7-3

All Saints' opened their Junior City Hockey League on Monday night at the Brock Street Rink before a slim crowd with a 7-3 victory over St. Peter's. The winners had a 2-1 edge in the first and second periods and a 3-1 margin in the third, always showing a bit better punch to cop the duke. Mortimer got three goals for them in a nice effort, with Wade notching two, Williams one, and Clark one. Nicholls paced St. Peter's with a pair of markers and Pammett got one. Some fair hockey was shown in this lively tussle. The teams:

All Saints — Goal, Agnew; defence, Conlin, Williamson; centre, Mortimer; wings, Williams, Legon; alternates, McDonald, Deering, Wade, Clark.

St. Peter's — Goal, Fleming; defence, Scully, Prete; centre, Nicholls; wings, Sullivan, Pammett; alternates, Primeau, Hawks, Jopling, Cauley, Rex.

Referee—Ned Vitarelli.

W. G. Morrow, umpire for District No. 3, has called the preliminary games in the District Cup competition for next Friday morning—to be played at Peterborough.

W. E. Reesor, Lindsay, umpire for District No. 3, has called the preliminary games in the Tankard competition for next Monday morning—to be played in Lindsay.

We curlers have no kick coming now, about the weather—it is ideal—and believe us, the boys are making the best of it—a full house now every night....Alex. Kay and his junior boys got off to a good start yesterday afternoon. One dozen young lads came out, and for about two hours were instructed by Alex. on the basic principles of curling. We may be a little shy on Tankard material this year, but we expect good results from what we saw yesterday. . . We wish to thank the curlers for their fine co-operation in our endeavor to beat this business. The ice was in first-class condition last night.

HASTINGS CLUB BEATEN 7 TO 3 IN ROUGH GAME

(Examiner Correspondence.)

WARKWORTH, Jan. 11.—Warkworth Juniors defeated Hastings Juniors 7 to 3 in an East Peterborough Junior League game played here last night (Monday). It was a rough game, with 14 penalties being handed out. Warkworth had a nice passing attack, while Hastings failed to get going on the small Warkworth ice surface.

After three minutes of play, H. McKee opened the scoring when he scored Warkworth's first goal. Phillips tied it up for Hastings a minute and a half later, when he scored on a pass from Puffer. Bowen made it 2 to 1 for Warkworth after eight minutes of play. Three minutes later, Greenley gave Warkworth a 2-goal lead when he scored from the blue line.

After five minutes of this second period, Bowen made it 4 to 1 for Warkworth when he scored his second goal of the game. H. Edger made it 5 to 1 when he tallied a minute later. Puffer scored Hastings second goal after thirteen minutes when he took Radford's pass. In this period penalties were handed out to H. Edger, R. Edger, Beatty (2), Turner (2) and Stickles.

Puffer scored his second goal of the game after 5 minutes of play in the third period to reduce Warkworth's lead to 2 goals. Four minutes later H. McKee made it 6 to 3 for Warkworth. Bowen with the smartest goal of the game, completed the scoring after fourteen minutes of play. He went through the whole Hastings team to beat Montgomery.

Stars of Game.

For Warkworth Bowen, H. McKee, Greenley and Buchanan were the stars. Phillips, Puffer and Radford were outstanding for Hastings.

The teams:

Steele Meets Steel And Freddie Steele Wins

Freddie Steele, of Seattle, Washington, handsome middleweight boxing champion, took time off from his training duties to show his prowess as a strong-arm man. Here is the result; Fred has bent the strong steel bar amost double without apparent effort. He is getting into shape for a title bout against Fred Apostoli and it should be a swell scrap. Both are aggressive intelligent boxers and both are young.

EUROPE'S HARPING IRKING BRITAIN

NEW YORK, Jan. 11 (CP).—Sir Gerald Campbell, British Consul-General in New York, Sunday told a church Epiphany service that Britons were tired of being shouted at from continental Europe.

"It makes us very angry to be shouted at like antiquated microphones," he said, "especially when it is obvious that persons who shout are so busy shouting they have not the time to listen for any answer."

Sir Gerald said Britons were apprehensive but it was a "live fear," the kind in which people try to fight back and find a way out of their difficulties.

He felt sure many of his countrymen would be willing to give Germany colonies provided they were not to be used as a recruiting ground "to get more troops and more power to force greater concessions."

But, he added, "we of the democracies have good ears and we listen to what is told us, and what we hear does not reassure us or make us more willing to make concessions."

Canadiens Blank Bombers 9 To 0

Canadiens pried off the lid in the Junior City Hockey League with a 9-0 triumph over Bombers on Monday night at the Brock Street Rink before a handful of customers. The winners looked too good for the other gang, but it was tight enough for two periods, Canadiens scoring twice each in the first and second stanzas. They went to town as the Bombers tired in the third and racked up five more to pile up the count. Johnson and Longevin got two each, while Todd, Curtin, Riel, Connolly, and Barnes got one apiece. The teams:

Bombers — Goal, Moher; defence, Harle, Akers; centre, Parnell; wings, Bennett, Andrews; alternates, Lewis, Wildman, Millard, Sharpe.

Canadiens — Goal, Cournyea; defence, Curtin, Ridley; centre, Johnson; wings, Todd, Connoky; alternates, Barnes, Longevin, Campbell, Riel.

Referee—Ned Vitarelli.

SKIPPER RESTING AFTER SHIP SINKS

MATANE, Que., Jan. 11 (CP). — Home safely after what he said was the "most harrowing experience" of his career as a St. Lawrence River navigator, Captain Ulric Tremblay is "quite content just to sit around for a while and take things easy."

The grizzled, middle-aged skipper reached his home here, 200 miles below Quebec on the St. Lawrence's south shore, Saturday. With him were Edmond Tremblay, Fred Nolan and John Baker, the crew of the 40-foot schooner Sam Ferry Ann, now at the bottom of the St. Lawrence Gulf.

The seamen came to Matane from Perce, where they had been picked up from the Sam Ferry Ann's small life-boat. They had spent four days in the open boat in the Gulf when Arthur Mauger, a mail-runner from Perce, found the rowboat drifting more than a mile from shore.

Monarchs Cop 3-2 Win From P.C.I.

Monarchs nosed out a 3-2 nudge over P.C.I. on Monday night at the Brock Street Rink to start their Junior City Hockey League schedule. It was the best game of the evening there with both sides dishing up some promising looking puck play, flashing speed and combination in spots with fair checking most of the route. It was 2-1 for Monarchs in the first, neither side scored in the second, and both counted in the windup inning. Morrow and King were the P.C.I. scorers, while Wellman, Conroy and Dorris did the sharp-shooting for the victors. The teams:

P.C.I. — Goal, Elliott; defence, Ward, Csumrick; centre, Parnall; wings, King, Morrow; alternates, Leether, Gillespie, Scriver, Thornton, Peterson, Mortimer.

Monarchs — Goal, Lomax; defence, Hough, Wellman; centre, Rochetta; wings, Dorris, Conroy; alternatives, Connolly, Gaudette, Collins, Jordan.

Referee—Ned Vitarelli.

Skiing Hints

By Fritz Loosli
INSTRUCTOR, TORONTO SKI CLUB

Mr. Loosi swings into tempo turn.

TEMPO TURN

After the lifted stem without pole has been taught, I break away from the usual method of teaching, and start the pupil at once in the exercises for tempo turn.

Before beginning high speed in tempo running, turn the lifted stem without the help of the pole when turning, and use a smooth sliding motion to bring the skis parallel after each left and right turn. The weight should be transferred entirely during the second half of the turn to the outside ski and should be practised until perfect timing and rhythm are secured.

Here is where the beginner has the advantage on the experienced skier who knows the jerked and open christiania. Not knowing the pressure on the heel required in the christiania, he will be less apt to skid the tail end of the skis, which is the most common fault in learning the tempo turn. The weight should be on the ball of your feet with knees well bent forward, upper part of the body bent only slightly, and the hips well in, which means not trailing behind.

It was a general belief for years that high speed running was only meant for the racer. It is much easier to run downhill in high speed running position than the old upright technique or the low crouch in the now forgotten Arlberg technique. Now that ski lifts are being erected in every resort where longs runs are available, a high speed running position will enable you to get far more runs without making you legs like sticks. When travelling at great speed, the wind resistance was a handicap in the old downhill technique, but in high speed running position the wind gives you that lifting impression called commonly by the skier "the feel of it." If your tempo turn is done smoothly and with rhythm, skiing becomes a romance of the snow.

The lifted stem should be practised, as your technique progresses, with the skis closer together and, finally with skis completely parallel, but I strongly advise to begin with the half stem position in order not to jerk the tempo into a christiania.

The next article will deal with tempo turn and with all the artifices used to get the proper feel of this aristocrat of all turns.

Junior Colts Run Wild In Last Half For Impressive Victory; Head Group With Three Wins

Clark Brothers And Tompkins Among Scorers For Visiting Victors

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Jan. 11.—Peterborough Colts whitewashed Havelock Wreckers 8 to 0 last night (Monday) in an O.H.A. Junior 'B' hockey game, played in the Norwood arena. There was no score in the first period and the Colts scored 4 times in the second and third periods. Played before a good crowd it was a fast game with seven penalties being handed out. Havelock received four and the Petes three.

After the opening face-off McMullen led a rush for Havelock and centered it across the goal mouth but no one was there to take his pass.

Aboud of Havelock, was given the first penalty of the game for tripping and the Petes moved every man up. Brady missed a real chance when received a nice pass out from the corner only to shoot it wild. The Petes continued to put the pressure on as they peppered Harnden in the Havelock goal from all angles. Kitchen broke away twice in succession but was outguesed by McNabb and Aboud returned without any score. Al Clarke of the Petes received a penalty also for tripping, but Tompkins and Jopling kept the play right in the Havelock end.

Clark Scores First Goal.

To open the second period, with the Petes a man short, McMullen and Kitchen broke away for Havelock but McNabb was right on, as he turned Kitchen's shot into the corner. The first goal came after three minutes and thirty seconds of the second period, G. Clark scoring on a lone rush. White of the Petes received a penalty for boarding and while he was off G. Clark scored his second goal on a pass from Tompkins to make it 2 to 0 for the Petes. The goal came after eight minutes of play. G. Clark missed a sure third one when his back-hand shot missed by inches. White, Creighton and Craig combined for a nice rush as the Petes started turning it on. Aboud then received his second penalty for tripping and the Petes swarmed all over Havelock. While he was off the Petes made it 3 to 0, Tompkins scoring unassisted after sixteen minutes of play. Kitchen of Havelock, got right in but McNabb beat him. Jopling received a penalty for slashing. Moore got in close but he shot high. With just one minute to go and with Jopling in the penalty box, Brady sank the Petes' fourth counter.

Swamp the Homesters.

To open the final period Kitchen and McMullen teamed up but McMullen missed a perfect pass in front of the Petes' goal. After two minutes of play Al Clark scored to give the Petes a 5 to 0 lead. Just thirty seconds later Walker scored for the Petes to give them a six goal lead. Haggerty of Havelock got in close but McNabb locked his shot. Tompkins and Brady got right in but Brady's shot went wide. Tompkins and Jopling then rushed but Harnden outguessed Jopling. Aboud received his third penalty of the game for tripping and while he was off Jopling made the score 7 to 0 for the Petes.

The Petes continued to turn the pressure on and missed many chances to increase their lead. White and Creighton kept the puck in the Havelock end but couldn't manage to get a shot at Harnden. With just two and a half minutes to go Tompkins took G. Clark's pass to make it 8 to 0 for the Petes and wind up the scoring. The game ended with the Petes still storming in, but the bell rung with no further scoring. McNabb, Tompkins, G. Clark and Creighton were the best for the Petes. Hoffman, McMullen, Moore and Pollock were Havelock stars.

The teams:

Petes— Goal, McNabb; defense, Brady and Walker; centre, G. Clark; wings, Tompkins and Jopling. Subs, White, Creighton, Craig, Al Clark, Berwick and Heath; sub goal.

Havelock.—Goal, Harnden; defence, Hoffman and Whitney; centre, Moore; wings, Kitchen and McMullen; subs, Pollock, Haggerty, McCutcheon and Abcud.

Referee—Max Board, Peterboro.

The Summary.

First Period—

No. score.

Penalties — Aboud, Moore and Clark.

2nd Period—

1 Peterboro, G. Clark 3.30
2 Peterboro, G. Clark, (Tompkins) 8.00

TWEED LEADS TRENT LEAGUE WITH 3-2 WIN

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, Jan. 11.—Playing before a small crowd in the local arena on Monday evening, the Tweed blue and whites copped a 3-2 victory over Stirling, to take the lead in the series.

With Tip Tummon in the penalty box, Stirling took a one-goal lead.

In the second period, Tweed equalled the count when W. Leal tallied with Ingram serving a penalty. Geraldi and Long were the other bench warmers in the period. During the first half of the game the play was cautious, with neither team opening up until near the last of the second period.

Both teams tallied in the last period, with Elsbury tallying for Tweed and Robinson taking a pass from Ingram to tie the score. J. Tummon and Elsbury for Tweed and Fraser for Stirling went to the bench in this canto.

Taking a pass from Tip Tummon in the overtime Leo Meraw sunk the winning counter, with the Stirlingites pressing hard to tie the score as the period ended. Both teams played a cautious and close game, with neither side opening up, depending on the breaks. Four of the goals were scored with the opposing side short-handed. Both goalies were called upon to make some clever stops.

Summary.

1st Period—
1 Stirling—Ingram (Acres).
Penalties—T. Tummon.
2nd Period—
2 Tweed—W. Leal.
Penalties—Ingram, A. Geraldi, H. Long.
3rd Period—

Murray St. Drops 7 To 4 Decision

All Saints' Seniors took a 7-4 Church Hockey League win over Murray Street at All Saints' rink Monday night. In the first frame, Inkpen and Whatman scored on passes from E. Spencely for Murray. E. Spencely and Johnston tallied in the second, while All Saints got four, Platt tallying two and Fisher and Frost one each. The winners came on strong in the third with Platt getting a pair and Frost one. This latter pair and Fisher stood out for the winners, while the scorers all looked good for the losers. All Saints ran in four in five minutes in the second to sew it up, finally winning to take top place. The teams:

All Saints.—Goal, Smith; defence, Seabrook, Rusew; centre, Platt; wings, Frost, Livingstone; alternates, Fisher, Alton.

Murray Street.—Goal, H. McNabb; defence, O. McNabb, F. Spencely; centre, E. Spencely; wings, Inkpen, Whatman; alternates, Holmes, Wilson, Johnson.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

LOCAL SENIOR "Y" volleyball team starts its season next Saturday in Toronto, playing two teams in the first round-robin series of the winter competition. Peterborough plays Central "Y" and the Y.M.H.A. of Toronto, the winner to advance into the second series in search of a Provincial championship. Jim McClenaghan is calling for a practise of the locals tonight at 6.30 and tomorrow eve at 5.30 in the Y.M.C.A. gym. This squad, with a few changes, took the intermediate title of Ontario two years ago, but lost out in senior playdowns last winter. The Peterborough outfit looks powerful this semester and ought to go places.

OFFICIAL OPENING of the brand new rink in Omemee takes place tomorrow (Wednesday) in the gloaming. A gala p.m. has been planned with figure skaters from Toronto, a game between Omemee and Little Britain, an exhibition tussle between Lindsay juniors and our Colts, music, speeches and whatnot. Omemee has a rink to be proud of now, a large enclosed arena with everything up to the minute. Quite a crowd from around the district will no doubt be on deck to see it opened tomorrow night. Joe Primeau and Hal Cotton will referee the hockey.

NO PUCK fray here tonight but the O.H.A. senior "B" Petes play Queen's University at 8.30 tomorrow e'en in the Brock St. rink. It is the only scheduled appearance of Queen's here this winter and the game will count as a double one, four points for the winner instead of two. On account of the long trip between these towns, they're playing but one tilt in each burg instead of the usual two—as with other squads in the group. Fans here seemed quite pleased with the Petes' showing against the Fliers last Friday—when the Airmen won out in overtime—and many have ordered season ducats for all senior scraps. There should be another bumper house to greet Coach Pick Hines' Petes when they skate out to tackle Flat Walsh's students from Kingston on Wednesday twilight. Fans are again asked to refrain from smoking during this contest.

EDDIE THOMAS went out the other day and bolstered his Belleville Redmen with the addition of three players, Akey, Ruttan and Stark—the latter a Provincial cop who played for Prescott and Lake Placid. Other two are from Picton district. And the Redmen last night took a four-point win over Queen's, 6 to 5, on Quinte ice with a big first period. Queen's were better through the second and third heats and outscored 'em handily but hard checking by Belleville held the students off. No doubt, theKingston crew—it was just their first fixture—will be tougher tomorrow here. The Petes had to go overtime to get a one-goal edge on Belleville, so judging by that we expect the Queen's U. outfit to make things quite warmish for the locals. They have players from all over, Toronto, Ottawa, Quebec and Western Canada. Belleville's four-point victory puts them in a top place tie with the Petes.

DOWN IN Oshawa last evening, Herb Payne's intermediate Bees from this bailiwick buzzed around in vain—they got no honey. In fact they took a 4-1 swat from the Motor Citizens, who made more bee-lines to our goal than we vice versa'd (well, there's such a word now!), which was the payoff. Some 400 fans yawned through a waltz number in which the homesters had a bit of an edge but not from here to Hangchow, by any means. They were more used to the big ice surface and showed a margin on speed and passing in close. Bees battled hard but looked disorganized and the game resembled shinny at times, with much close-checking and oodles of stoppages. Ho, hum.

* * * * * * *

EACH SIDE scored in the first, though our goal was a gift, one of the Oshawans amazing his own goalie to pieces by whamming the bootheel into the home cage. They jumped us for a brace in the middle canto and added another in the third as penalties began to open crevices in the locals' hive. Ellis, Heal and Clarke went best for the Peterborough gang, and Clarridge, Authors and McEwen shaded the winners. It is now one win and one reverse for the Bees, and two straight nods for Oshawa. The latter team is on top whilst we're next in a tie with Whitby, then Cobourg and then Port Hope. It is a good group and will see some swelegant scraps yet. Whitby is here next Monday for the intermediates' first home fixture.

OUR COLTS romped away with an 8-0 verdict over Havelock in an O.H.A. junior "B" joust in Norwood last eve. Before a goodly crowd on fast ice. A nice scoreless first frame, but the Hayden huskies slipped in four in the second session and ditto in the third. We were in Oshawa so didn't see this setto, but guess we couldn't have missed so much! Gee Clarke Tompkins and Jopling are reported to have gone well up front with the rest not so dusty, either. Too much individual stuff, we're told, the lads forgetting all they are being taught about combination. Havelock put up a fair battle but seem to have been outclassed. The Colts play Fenelon Falls' intermediates tomorrow in Omemee, we now hear, instead of the Lindsay juniors—the latter having a game Friday and declining this one.

* * * * * * *

LOTS OF action, Operative 7¼ informs us, at the opening of the Junior City Puck Loop last night at the Brock. Nearly two thousand fans stayed away from this triple-header, and who are we to criticize? A neat number betwixt P.C.I. and Monarchs with the latter getting a 3-2 nod. The one between Bombers and Canadiens saw the latter bombing the Bombers with a 9-0 bomb. And All Saints grabbed off a 7-3 scrap from St. Peter's. Good and bad hockey scattered around the rink here and there. Next games are next Monday night at the Brock.

MADOC SEXTETTE SCORES 7-6 WIN IN T.V.L. BATTLE

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MADOC, Jan. 11.—In a fast overtime T.V.L. hockey battle Madoc defeated Belleville 7-6 in a regular league fixture on Monday night.

Carrying the play from the first face-off the locals ganged up on the Belleville defence and gave Hinton in the nets a bad time of it. Five times in the first two minutes of play they tore through the defence only to be beaten by the goalie. Midway through the period, Kellar picked up a loose puck from a scramble in front of the Madoc nets evaded the defence and sunk the first counter for Madoc.

The only penalty of the period went to St. Dennis for carrying his stick high, abusive and insulting language to the referee brought him a major penalty.

Add To The Count

In the second period after a minute of play, Smith scored again for Madoc on the rebound of Kellar's shot. Seconds later Alexander again rang up a count on a pass from Smith. Belleville hit the score sheet when Day completed a beautiful play, the assist going to Ethier. Kellar scored on Smith's rebound for Madoc and Belleville got two more, Semark and McGuire being the marksmen.

Penalties went to Reeves and Ethier for pushing. Period ended 4-3 for Madoc.

In the third frame Hawthorne counted on a lone effort. Penalties went to Hawthorne and McGuire for mixing it, to be followed by Hailstone for boarding. Madoc being short-handed, Belleville put on the pressure and McGuire counted on Ethier's pass. With both teams at full strength again, Semark waded through the Madoc team and sank the tying count. Semark again counted for Belleville on a lone effort to be followed immediately by Smith's tally from Kellar.

In the overtime period Semark was chased for changing. With Belleville short a man Kellar split the defence and drove the puck behind Hinton for the winning counter.

During the second period Alexander received an injury to his knee making it necessary for him to leave the game.

The teams:

Madoc — Goal, Hulin; defence, Hailstone, Smith; centre, Heyworth; wings, Alexander, Kellar; alternates, Reeves, Munro, Hill Hawthorne.

Belleville—Goal, Hinton; defence, G. Ethier, Townsend; centre, Semark; wings, Harvey, McGuire; alternates, Day, Sunderland, Storms, Bleakman, St. Dennis.

Referee—Vaughn Jack, Madoc.

Trinity Bantams Tie St. John's 3-3

Trinity Bantams and St. John's went to a 3-3 Church League puck draw at All Saints' Rink last night. Tying goal was scored with 15 seconds to go by Trinity. These teams are tied for first place. Fallen scored for Trinity and Crowter for St. John's in the first, the latter getting the lone goal of the middle chukker. Batten scored for St. John's and Horton got two for Trinity in the third to sew it up in a neat number. The team stars were: McBain, W. Moore, Batten, Frank; Horton and Fowler. The teams:

Trinity.—Goal, McBain; defence, Horton, Fowler; centre, Henry; wings, Harrison, Dorset; alternates, Taylor, Fallen, Murduff, Webster, Beatty.

St. John's—Goal, W. Moore; defence, Farrow, Batten centre, J. Moore; wings, Dutton, Frank; alternates, Crowter, Clark, Scott, Howard.

Campbellford Cops Close 4-3 Hockey Victory From Trenton

Phillips Couch And Reddick Score For Winners In Even Battle

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 11.— The largest crowd of the season saw Campbellford take a 4 to 3 victory from Trenton in what was easily the best game of the season on Monday evening. Marked by considerable more team play than has been exhibited in previous games the locals displayed a style which, if they continue to develop, should give them a leading position in the league. The teams were evenly matched and ideal ice conditions made the game the fastest of the season. Phillips, Couch and Reddick did the scoring for the locals and Lemoir scored twice for the visitors while Reddick was given credit for their second goal in the first period when he attempted to clear in front of the Campbellford net and Turner in trying to knock it out in front caught it in his hand and pulled it back of the crease to give the visitors an extra goal.

Homesters Get First.

After five minutes of the opening period and with both teams checking hard, Phillips got the pass from Couch behind the blue line and shot a hard one for the first goal of the game and the only count of the period. In the second period Lemoir opened with a shot from the blue line which evened the score for Trenton and with both teams playing hard the locals were kept within their own blue line until Reddick scored for Trenton and then Campbellford succeeded in breaking through, but Steenburg was able to ward off several hard shots and the period ended with the score standing 2 to 1.

In the opening minutes of the third Lemoir slipped another hard one past Turner to give the visitors a two goal lead after which the Campbellford line of Phillips, Reddick and Keating, slipped through the Trenton defense and lost the puck behind the goal where Phillips recovered it and put it in from around the corner with only six minutes left to play.

Following the face-off Phillips and Reddick again started down the ice with the puck, past the blue line through the defense. Reddick took the pass and scored with a hard one into the corner of the net to even up the score. The play continued fast with Trenton taking the puck down over the Campbellford blue line several times during the remaining minutes but on each occasion losing it when checked hard by the defense. One of the nicest plays of the game gave Campbellford the winning goaol when Phillips carried the puck down through the defense and passed to Couch, who scored from within a few feet of the goal with only two minutes to play, ending the game 4 to 3.

Referee—O'Malley.

COTTON CONDEMNS NEW STYMIE RULE

LONDON, Jan. 11 (A.P.).—Henry Cotton, British open golf champion, on Monday condemned the new stymie rule adopted by the United States Golf Association. The new United States Golfers' Association rule eliminates stymies when the nearer ball lies within six inches of the cup.

"The new rule is unnecessary," said Cotton. "Soon we'll be going to the United States and asking: 'What rules are you people using this year?' Pretty soon we'll be picking payers to send to America according to their knowledge of the rules."

The champion said he was angry about rule changing because the British Professional Golfers' Association had just passed a rule demanding that the ball nearest the hole in medal competition be putted first.

"This is just like the new American rule," Cotton compained. "The game is wonderful just as it is and until the rule makers really find some radical change needed, they should leave it alone. I can't do anything about our rule, but I've got a good mind to refuse to putt when my ball is nearest the hole, and be disqualified."

Gets Grid Job

Successor to Harvey Harmon, derailed football coach of the University of Pennsylvania, will Probably be George Munger, who is a freshman tutor. Munger is shown here.

Judging by the size of the crowd at Nassau on Sunday, the big hill is going to be popular again this year. Snow conditions were as good as any we've seen—plenty of depth, and light, powdery texture. After watching a few rolling falls by different down-hillers, we conclude that the human body is largely rubber. No casualties, but if some of the not particularly expert insist on running wide open from the top of that hill, they will have to be wired together.

Class tonight (Tuesday) at Victoria Park at 7.30. If you will come up to the Park and learn a few turns, to get control, you can run any hill without fear of trouble. We might mention that the type of instruction Jack Holland is giving free, would cost money anywhere else.

Thursday night, we have the night run at Jackson Park, which was well attended last week. Don't be backward about coming out. Everybody has a good time at these meetings.

Jack Holland and Karl Baadsvik, representing our club, made a splendid showing at the Midland meet last weekend. No room today, but the full results will be given in this column tomorrow.

Eastenders Take 4-3 Hockey Win

Mark Street Juveniles nosed out All Saints, 4-3, on Monday night, in a neat Church Hockey League tilt at All Saints' Rink. Two of the winners' goals were flukey, and All Saints had the better defence. Mark Street went into first place with this nod. Carpenter and Eason scored in the first to hold it even, while Mason and Eason counted in the middle go. Ackford got a pair in the third and Eason one. The latter, with Mason, Morley and Carpenter were outstanding players in this tight battle. The teams:

All Saints — Goal, Lacheur; defence, Carpenter, Morley; centre, Ackford; wings, Robinson, Reid; alternates, Mills, Constable.

Mark Street — Goal, Robinson; defence, Agnew, Gamble; centre, Eason; wings, Vivash, Mason; alternates, Curtis, Ralph.

Referee—D. Charlton.

Omemee Takes 5-2 Win From Oakwood

OMEMEE, Jan. 11.—The Omemee Hockey Club were too much for Oakwood in a regular league fixture played at Omemee's new ice palace on Monday night, and the homesters were successful in gaining a 5-2 victory. Line-ups:—

Omemee.—Goal, Fisher; defence, F. Parsons and Tom Parsons; centre, Tripp; wings, Weir, Brockley; alternates, Reeds, Jamieson, Ellis, Stewart and Brocks.

Oakwood.—Goal, Greenway; defence, Cornell and B. Cornell; centre, P. Braund; wings, V. Jewel, E. Braund; alternates, B. Braund, A Hill, Begg, A. Jewel, R. McErchre.

Referee.—A. Nichols of Lindsay.

INTERMEDIATE BEES BEATEN 4-1 IN MOTOR CITY O.H.A. FRACAS

Homesters Shade Local Crew For Better Part Of Fracas; Penalties Costly In Third

Payne Crew Drop First O.H.A. Fixture Of Season To Group Leaders

The local intermediate Bees were stung last night in Oshawa by a 4-1 count before 400 fans in the Motor City arena, the same score by which Herb Payne's crew opened their O.H.A. intermediate "B" schedule with a win in Port Hope last week. It was the second straight victory for the Oshawa outfit.

Playing a rather disorganized brand of hockey on the large ice surface, the Peterborough crew were shaded somewhat by the homesters most of the way. They battled hard, however, and held down the score, with penalties proving costly to them in the third heat. The score was 1-1 in the first and 3-1 going into the third. The locals' goal was a lucky one.

Oshawa Faster

It was a fairly fast, close contest through most of the route, with Oshawa showing more speed and finish in close. Checking was close all the way and made for hockey that resembled shinny in spots. Play was clean enough, with 10 penalties being drawn for minor infractions, the Petes suffering half of them. Gardner had his nose cut and two home players were hurt, all accidental injuries.

Clarke, Ellis and Heal went best for the Bees, with most of the others turning in a good performance and fighting hard, too. Clarke made some fine close-in stops to rob the Motor Citizens in goal, while Ellis checked well on defence and was always dangerous rushing, and Heal did some fine checking in the centre zone and carried the puck plenty. Cadd returned to the puck wars and showed much of his old form. Clarridge, Authors and McEwen shone for the winners, with Hooper good at times, and the rest showing a lot of form most of the distance. Considerable whistle-blowing for blueline infractions slowed up play, also.

Take the Lead

Early in the opening period, Bagnell banged one by Clarke on nice combination in close with Clarridge and Authors. It was even and speedy for a time. Goodchild went off for boarding and four Petes pressed hard. A Hill-Coughlin combine came close but they failed to dent the twine. With Oshawa at full strength again, Coughlin got credit for a goal when Authors batted the puck in his own net to clear it as Coughlin and Gardner pressed. It was slower and ragged later till Bagnell was gated for boarding, when the Bees buzzed around again but in vain, though Burton and Gardner made McEwen hop..

The second opened at a hot clip with both sides in turn threatening. But Oshawa took the lead near the halfway mark when Authors took a short pass around defence from Clarridge and picked a corner Gardner went off with a cut nose and Oshawa showed an edge on speed, Clarke going fine to hold them out. Patton finally made it 3-1 when he faked a pass at defence and went right in alone to blast the disc into the hemp. Hooper and Magee were chased for roughing it in gentle style and Ellis made a grand try just before the frame finished.

Spotty Period

The third was a spotty stanza with good and bad hockey shown, fine combination for a few minutes and then shinny, with each side in turn holding an edge on play. There were frequent penalties and ganging up, too. Authors went off hurt and later Patton had to be carried off when he hurt his shoulder. Coughlin climbed the boards for tripping and Magee got the finger for charging, leaving the Bees shy two men. Clarke went fine in goal and Ellis, Creighton and Cadd did yeomen service in stopping the ganging homesters cold till all were back. The Bees pressed for a minute till Ellis got it for charging and Oshawa again ganged up with Hooper scoring on a corner passout from a Peterborough stick. Bagnell got it next for slashing with Everett going shortly for tripping, leaving them two short, but the visitors failed to cash in as they ganged up hotly. Magee drew his third penalty for tripping but Authors' penalty shot was stopped. The Bees were sending four and five men up and pressing hard at the finish.

The teams:

Bees: Goal, Clarke; defence, Magee and Ellis; centre, Coughlin; wings, Burton and Gardner; alternates, Heal, Creighton, Hill, Brown, Cadd.

Oshawa: Goal, McEwen; defence, Patton and Bagnell; centre, Authors; wings, Armstrong and Clarridge; alternates, Rowden, Goodchild, Everett, March, Hooper.

Referee—Max Reesor of Oshawa.

Summary:

First Period

Oshawa—Bagnell (Clarridge, Authors) 3.00
Bees—Goodchild 7.00
Penalties—Goodchild and Bagnell.

Second Period

Oshawa—Authors (Clarridge).. 8.00
Oshawa—Patton 17.00
Penalties—Hooper and Magee.

Third Period

Oshawa—Hooper 12.00
Penalties—Coughlin, Magee (2), Ellis, Bagnell and Everett.

STRONG DEFENSIVE HELP TO TORONTOS

TORONTO, Jan. 11.— (CP). — There seems little doubt that part of the stotry of why Toronto Goodyears are out in front of the pack in the Senior 'A' Ontario Hockey Association grouping is because of their strong defence.

Goodyears, unbeaten in six starts and gunning for their seventh straight win to-night when they play Brantford Rangers at Brantford, have only been scored on 13 times this season in League play. A lot of the credit there can go to Harry McQuesten for his great goal-tending.

Port Colborne Sailors have scored more goals than Goodyears, but have played one game more. The Tars have notched 44 goals to 41 for Goodyears, but they have been scored upon 27 times.

The game against Brantford, now in fourth place in the league standing, gives Don Metz an opportunity to break the first place tie between Red Reynolds of the idle Sailors and himself. Metz has 20 points, made up of an even number of goals and assists, while Reynolds has scored 12 goals and helped in eight others.

Schriner And Drillon Share Honors As Goalies' Nemesis

Here are the two men who share the point gathering honors in the National Hockey League race and though the pace is hot, Gordon Drillon, the young Toronto Maple Leaf star, has kept ahead of the pack virtually all season to date. Not very far behind and with an even better record on goals scored is Dave "Sweeney" Schriner, deadpan ace of New York Americans and league top scorer for two years in a row. Schriner is at the LEFT, while Drillon is the lad donning his gear for another sally after scoring bouquets. This pair may wage a merry tussle right down to the wire for the distinction of harassing N.H.L. goalkeepers

DORATY IS BACK IN THE BIG TIME WITH ADAMS TEAM

NEW YORK, Jan. 11 (CP). — Detroit Red Wings, making a rather sorry defence of their National Hockey League championship so far this season, move on to Boston to-night for a game against the Bruins, in which little Ken Doraty comes back to the big time.

Manager Jack Adams, looking around for something that might revitalize his Wings, picked on the pint-sized Doraty to act as a spark-plug, and announced the tiny right winger would be brought up from Pittsburg Hornets of the International League for tonight's game.

There's not much of Doraty, but the 30-year-old midget has shown plenty of dynamite before this and that's what Adams needs in the worst way to send his Wings into the playoffs.

Remember When—?

Doraty is still famous for his historic goal that brought Toronto Maple Leafs the N.H.L. title in 1933 after 2 hours 4 minutes and 56 seconds of gruelling play against the Bruins.

And if Doraty can supply the punching power that Adams wants tonight, there seemed little doubt he would clinch his third spot in the big time. Prior to playing with Toronto he was with Chicago Black Hawks, after flashing his way along the Saskatchewan ice ponds to fame as an amateur with Regina Pats.

Adams also announced a shift in his defence line, replacing Scotty Bowman with Orville Roulston, a Hornet defenceman.

BEARS' LEADER HAS GOOD MARK

PASADENA, Cal., Jan. 11.—When football laurels are passed around for the 1937 season, many will remember Leonard (Stub) Allison, the young veteran of University of California, who directed the Golden Bears to the Rose Bowl in his third years as coach of a major eleven.

Allison is only 41, a comparative youth who headed the grizzled sages of the gridiron in the race toward the New Year's Day classic, the richest plum of the football year. But Allison's rise is no "Rags to Riches" story; it was a slow, steady climb over a period of twenty-five years in which, as participant and instructor, he obtained the necessary athletic experience to call on when his opportunity arrived.

The short, husky coach was perhaps the outstanding athlete in history of Carleton College in Northfield, Minn. From 1913 to 1917 Carleton was undefeated, and during two of those years was known as a "point a minute" eleven. Leonard Allison, end, was one of the prominent reasons for this success. He was named All-Conference end for three successive years and received honorable mention on the All-America. Additionally, he captained the football, basketball and baseball teams.

Remember When—

(By the Canadian Press.)

Billy Burch of New York Americans was the National Hockey League's top marksman. Scoring statistics for Jan 11, 1927, showed Burch leading with 13 goals and seven assists. Next in line were Dick Irvin and Babe Dye, of Chicago, with 16 points.

Queen's Puckists Here Wednesday

Queen's University and the Petes tangle tomorrow (Wednesday) evening at 8.30 o'clock in the Brock St. rink in an O. H. A. senior "B" fixture. It will be the only scheduled appearance of Queen's here this season and the game will count four points—instead of the usual two—for the winning team. Following the fine senior "B" overtime tussle here last Friday night when the Trenton Fliers pulled out a decision over the Petes, local hockey fans have expressed much satisfaction with the way Pick Hines' Petes are shaping up and no doubt another big crowd will be on hand tomorrow night to see them in action.

The Petes will probably lineup the same tomorrow as they did last game here. With several more workouts under the belts they should be swinging into their true condition and ready to dish up a dandy fast battle. Coach Flat Walsh will bring his strongest possible gang of students from Kingston for this four-point fixture and the Queen's mentor is rated highly as a puck pilot. With a good sheet of ice likely, a fine hockey game should result. Fans are requested to refrain from smoking at this game both to assist the players and to make for better vision for the spectators.

HENLEY, England—(CP).—Henley Regatta stewards reported a loss of $665 on last year's competitions. The regatta, however, has a balance of $4,105 in addition to $25,000 invested.

CLINT SMITH IS LIKELY PROSPECT FOR BING TROPHY

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—(CP.) — Protege of hockey's outstanding gentleman, little Clint Smith, playmaking star of New York Rangers, is among the contenders for two of the National League's most prized awards.

Under the watchful eye of Frank Boucher, seven times winner of the Lady Byng trophy as the "most gentlemanly" player in the major circuit, Smith with a clear penalty record, seems headed for similar recognition and, if eligible, stands a good chance to gain the Frank Calder outstanding rookie award.

"It's not because he's not aggressive that he doesn't get penalties," said Assistant Coach Boucher, whom Smith has replaced on Rangers' first string line. "He never steps back but he's naturally a clean player and should sail right along with a clear record."

With five goals and 11 assists, Smith ranks fifth among American division scorers in his first full campaign under the big top. But it is a controversial question around Madison Square Garden whether Smith and other players who had short stays in the N.H.L. last season, qualify as rookies.

Manager Lester Patrick of the Rangers thinks only first-year players should be considered, but most of his men, as do the Americans, figure players similar to Smith, who was used in but two games in the N.H.L. last season, should qualify.

"I think if a player has not had more than two weeks in the league in a previous season, he should be eligible," said Butch Keeling, veteran Ranger left winger.

Drillon And Dillon Battle Continues For Goal Honors

Leafs' Right-Winger Has Four-Point Edge On Star Of Rangers

MONTREAL, Jan. 11.—(CP).—Toronto Maple Leafs' "Drillon Night" wasn't Gordie Drillon's night from a scoring point of view, but the young Leaf managed to pick up enough credits elsewhere during the last week to hang on to a comfortable lead at the head of the National Hockey League's scorers.

Though Gordon went pointless on the Toronto night in his honor Saturday, he gathered three in other cities, and last night's official N.H.L. statistics give him a total of twenty-seven. That puts him four up on Cecil Dillon of New York Rangers, whose four goals during the week pulled him up a point nearer the leader.

The Ranger star's thirteen goals, according to the statistics, give him the leadership in actual tallies. Drillon is credited with twelve goals and fifteen assists, top total in the helping-out department.

(Summaries published after the games credit Drillon with two goals and one assist during the week. With the eleven and thirteen totals showing in last week's official figures that would give him thirteen goals and fourteen assists, tieing him with Dillon in goals and dropping him into a tie with Syl Apps of Leafs for most assists. Apps, in last night's figures, is credited with an assist he picked up in Toronto Jan. 1, which hitherto had not been put on his record).

(Nick Metz of the Leafs also was not credited with one of the three goals indicated for him in published summaries. On the other hand, Pep Kelly and Bob Davidson each is given a goal, though none appeared in the week's unofficial summaries. Harvey Jackson is given one assist more than the unofficial count).

Penalty leader of the loop continues to be Allen Shields of Montreal Maroons. Big Babe Siebert of Montreal Canadiens has edged his way into second place with forty-two minutes on the penalty bench, five behind Shields.

Stays With Argos

Lew E. Hayman, coach of the Dominion championship winning Toronto Argonaut football team, will stay in the Queen City for another season at least, exploding the belief that he would move to Montreal. Lew turned down handsome offers in the Quebec metropolis to stay with the Double Blue. He won his second Dominion title with the Argos in a bitterly fought 4-3 title meeting against Winnipeg last December.

RAMBLERS HAVE CHANCE FOR GAIN

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 11—(CP)—Philadelphia Ramblers have a chance to gain ground in their sectional International-American Hockey League race as they play Springfield Indians in the only scheduled game.

Ramblers are at present four points behind the idle Providence Reds, who are sitting in first place in the eastern section with 27 points. If Indians won it would boost them into sole possession of third place in that section for they are now tied with New Haven Eagles at 14 points apiece.

This is the fifth meeting this season between Indians and the Ramblers and the count stands even with two wins for each team. Indians, however, took their two victories at the start of the season, when they were hitting up a rapid pace and were leading their division.

In November Indians whipped Ramblers 3-0 one night and came back the following night for a 2-1 victory. However, Ramblers took the next contest 6-4 and then just last week won 4-2 over the Springfield outfit.

To "get justice for themselves," he said, Quebec and Ontario had "got together." The belief that "charity begins at home" had inspired the alliance. But he emphasized that: "It's not a matter of ganging up, but to stop a raid against Confederation."

"It was time to recognize, he declared, that "there is a movement on foot to try to centralize authority in Canada." The unity of Canada was "doomed to failure" on the day such a movement was put into practice.

The Only Statement.

The only break in the silence around the conference came at the luncheon recess when Hon. Peter Heenan, Ontario Lands and Forests Minister, said the meeting had not been called as an outcome of the discussions he had last week with a group of United States newspaper publishers.

The Ontario Premier said last week his government was "vitally concerned" in the present situation. Most of the paper companies, he said, "operated on Crown lands and "23 are practically parners with them.".

He wanted the mills to remain open to provide gainful employment for the men engaged in the newsprint industry. "This business recession in the United States came like a bolt from the blue."

Government "direction" of the industry in the two provinces was forecast by Premier Dupleasis six months ago when a sulphite mill at Chandler, Que., was re-opened. He felt that, with the co-operation of Ontario, the two governments "will not administer, but direct, the newsprint industry."

observatory tower which withstood the flames until the walls toppled.

Church Escapes.

Our Lady of Peace Church, a 120-year-old structure and the convent grounds, remained untouched by the flames. The strong wind appeared to be carrying sparks away from the famous shrine.

The academy's famed art treasures were believed saved. Priests from the seminary assisted in removing the sacred vessels, statuary and jewels.

Confusion prevailed at times due to the large number of persons attracted by the fire. Parents sought their children at the academy and in some cases it was hours before all were located at homes in the city.

Five-year-old Rose Marie Brett of Niagara Falls, N.Y., youngest pupil in the academy, was found by her frantic parents sleeping in a Niagara Falls home a quarter-mile from the scene. She had been taken there during the exodus of pupils and for a time her whereabouts was unknown.

Students from all over Canada and many parts of the United States attend Loretto Academy. In summer, the shrine attracted thousands of tourists.

A visit to the building was one of the stops for Lord Tweedsmuir and his party when the Governor-General paid an official visit to Niagara Falls in May, 1936.

Only Just Re-opened.

The convent is located in Stamford Township, at the edge of the city and not far from the Canadian Falls. The school re-opened yesterday after Christmas holidays. The fire started in a wing of the building completed only a few years ago.

The fire was similar to that of the Clifton Hotel, destroyed on December 31, 1932. The hotel was burned down with a loss of $1,000,000.

The convent overlooked Horseshoe Falls, spray from which leaves convent roads coated with ice throughout the winter. The ice-covered roads further impeded firemen, who were battling the blaze without sufficient water pressure. Niagara Falls, N.Y., Fire Department offered its aid, but this was declined owing to the poor water pressure.

One of the sisters said there was no disorder of any kind, as there was plenty of warning given to vacate the building.

"The thing which makes us most joyful is that there was no loss of life, not even one child injured," she said. "Some of the children may have screamed in fright, but they were quickly reassured. The older children helped the younger ones."

MONTANA CRASH TAKES TEN LIVES

to the bedside of his dying mother in Wisconsin. Word reached Basin about the time of the crash that the mother had died.

Lloyd Levin, 33, returning to his home at Detroit, after visiting his ill mother at Butte, Mont. He was a mechanic.

Al H. Croonquist, 47, of Billings, Mont., State traffic manager for the airline, and one of the organizers of the Montana-Wyoming Dude Ranchers' Association.

Walter Ton, postal inspector, St. Paul.

Ted Anderson, mechanic in the St. Paul shops of Northwest Airlines.

I. E. Stevenson of Seattle.

Cause Unknown As Yet.

Croil Hunter, president of Northwest Airlines, issued this statement at St. Paul:

"It has been determined that all on board lost their lives.

"Until a thorough investigation has been conducted by both the airline officials and the Department of Commerce we will be unable to make any statement as to the definite causes surrounding the same."

F. W. Whittemore, vice-president in charge of operations, said company representatives were en route to the crash scene to investigate.

Sheriff Westlake, who led the searching party over tortuous roads and trails to the wreckage, said he "counted nine bodies" in his hasty examination.

Airport officials at Butte, the planes last stop before the crash, said eight passengers and two crew members were abroad.

The Sheriff reported the bodies were badly burned, three had been thrown, or fallen, from the fuselage, and the others—he could not tell if there were six or seven—were tossed into the front of the shattered airliner.

State's First Crash.

The passengers were the first ever killed in a transport plane in Montana, and the first to meet death on a Northwest Airlines flight. The National Safety Council awarded the Line a certificate last year for its 11 year record of flying 47,000,000 passenger miles with no passenger fatalities. The plane, bound for Chicago from Seattle via Minneapolis, had been grounded for a time at Butte because of bad weather.

A post office official at Helena, Mont., said the plane, a new 14-passenger Lockheed Zephyr, carried mail.

Coroner Howard Nelson of Gallatin county, started for the scene last night but was turned back by the blizzard.

Sheriff Westlake said snow drifting over the wreckage would delay an investigation.

Weather in the Gallatin Valley was fair at the time of the crash. The sky was cloudy but visibility was fair. A strong west wind was blowing.

Air officials expressed the unofficial opinion the pilot had flown north of his course in an effort to avoid air currents prevalent over the rocky canyons of the Bridgers. The plane crashed about 12 miles off the radio beam.

MacKay Old Woodstock Boy

Born at Woodstock, Ont., December 6, 1900, Mr. MacKay is a son of J. F. MacKay, former manager of The Toronto Globe. He received his early education at Woodstock public schools and Woodstock Collegiate. He attended University of Toronto and Columbia University in New York.

In 1932 Mr. MacKay began his career as a writer, when he became a free-lance correspondent in London, England. In 1924 he joined The Canadian Press parliamentary staff in the Press Gallery at Ottawa, and continued in that service until 1928, when he resigned to become press representative of the Canadian Steamship Lines in Montreal.

In 1931 he became Director of Publicity of The Seigniory Club, Montreal, and two years later joined the Hudson's Bay Company as Publicity Director of the Canadian Committee; editor of The Beaver, the company's quarterly magazine, and in charge of the company's general historical work.

"The Honorable Company," a history of the Hudson's Bay Company, written by Mr. MacKay, was first published in 1936. The book was unique in that it was the first such history to be written since the company's achieves were made available to the public. He spent many months in London, England, gathering data.

On January 10, 1925, he was married to Alice Ruth Higgins, Ottawa newspaper reporter. Yesterday was their 13th wedding anniversary. There are three children: Douglas, John, and Mary.

Toronto Communist Reporters Wrote Police Review Article

borough police force. He testified he saw Welch approach Newhall and demand to see the people who had been arrested. Newhall refused and Welch was "insistent," Rogers said. "They got to pushing each other."

"Where were the accused's hands?"

"On the chief's tunic."

"What did they say?"

"After saying 'You can't get in there Alex,' the chief said 'Now Alex, are you going to get out of the road?' After he had refused several times, the chief ordered his arrest."

Mr. Cohen asked the witness how long a period the incident occupied and he got an estimate of three minutes.

Evidence of William A. Clark, similar to that of the preceding witness, was that he had seen Welch push Newhall and then saw Welch taken into custody.

"You're the one who let off that bomb after the workers were in the plant?" Mr. Cohen suggested in cross-examination, referring to the cannister of tear gas which had been released.

"Yes," the witness replied.

"That's what started all the commotion, was it not?"

"No, that's what stopped it."

Three Minutes

Clark testified that he could not hear the words which were exchanged between Newhall and Welch. Mr. Cohen asked how long a period was occupied by the incident, Clark estimating three minutes. When the lawyer held a watch and asked the witness to estimate the actual passage of three minutes, Clark called the three minutes exactly.

"Welch comes from the crowd in a very excited manner and wanted to know who the people were who were arrested, where they were, what charges were against them and a lot of other foolish questions," Police Chief Newhall said in response to Mr. McElderry's request for his version of the incident. "I told him it was not the time to argue the point. I said if he wanted to come down to my office at the police station later I would give him the information he wanted. He insisted on getting into the plant and started pushing me. I told him to move along several times but he kept pushing. The last time he pushed I ordered Clark and Rogers to arrest him."

Under cross-examination, Newhall estimated the period of the incident at about three minutes. He was asked concerning the charge of inciting to riot, subsequently dismissed, which was laid against Welch. Why, if he already wanted Welch for the inciting charge, did he wait until Welch allegedly obstructed him before making the arrest, Mr. Cohen demanded. Newhall replied that a summons could have been issued at any time to bring him in on the other charge. He denied that the inciting charge was "trumped up" down at the Police Station to strengthen his case after Welch had been brought in on the obstructing charge.

Did Not Answer?

"When Welch asked you how many had been arrested you did not answer him," Mr. Cohen suggested.

"I told him it was not the time or place for foolish questions."

"So you think it was a foolish question?"

"I did at that time. A riot was going on."

"There was no riot then."

"They were just as hostile as ever and liable to break out again."

"You never play to the grandstand, do you Chief," Mr. Cohen suggested.

"Never."

Mr. Cohen produced the September issue of the National Police Review and asked the witness if he could identify the lead article contained in it entitled: "C-I-Ommunism by Chief Samuel Newhall."

"I didn't write it," the witness declared heatedly. "They sent it down to be signed."

"You say you never play to the gallery?"

"No."

Mr. Cohen read the first paragraph of Newhall's article to the court:

"The courageous, British stand of Chief Samuel Newhall and his small band of constables at Peterborough, Ontario, against the C.I.O. is a source of inspiration to other industrial centers in Ontario, and Canada at large. Next to Premier Hepburn, Chief Newhall was a very definite factor in settling the Peterborough disturbance without a loss of life."

Denied Authorship

"Did you ever make such a statement?" Mr. Cohen asked the witness.

"I did not. It was one of your own Red reporters from Church street, one of your own Communist reporters on the Clarion sent that to the paper. I know every one of them in the country. That's why you don't like it."

"You admit you signed it?"

"That's all I did. I just signed it."

Mr. McElderry announced the case of the prosecution closed when Newhall's evidence had been concluded.

Mr. Cohen called the accused to the box as the first defense witness. Welch related there had been a disturbance at the scene but that at the time of his arrest all was quiet. He said he wanted to find out what had happened.

"I thought the best place to find out would be from the Chief," he testified. "I went over to him and asked him. He said 'It's none of your business.' I said to him 'I feel I have a right to know.' He said, 'I'll show you. Run him in.'" He was then placed under arrest, he related.

No Desire

Welch denied he had pushed Newhall or laid a hand on him, or that he was trying to see the prisoners as Newhall had claimed. He stated, "I had no desire to go in and see the prisoners."

He said his manner in approaching Newhall was peaceful. The Chief was standing on the sidewalk in front of the main gates. During the course of his conversation with Newhall, he was standing on the edge of the sidewalk two or three feet from the Chief and did not alter that position, he testified.

Cross-examined by McElderry, Welch declared that to have touched Newhall he would have had to move closer than three feet. He told the questioner he was not a Communist, that he was secretary of the National Textile Council. The excitement of the morning arose when the police chief went through the picket line, he said. He related he tried to get Mayor Macdonald through the picket line to address the assembly.

"I put it to you that you pretended to help the Moyar through the line but actually prevented his passage through," suggested Mr. McElderry.

"I did everything I could to assist him."

Welch said he was not perfectly calm at the time but was not agitated to the same degree as Newhall. He declined to term the disturbance of the morning "rioting."

Missles.

"Was it not true there were missles thrown?"

"I was at the side of the Mayor," he replied. "If there were any missles I'd have known."

"You say there was excitement?"

"Yes."

"And feelings were running high?"

"There was excitement."

"Are you on the Communist list?"

"I don't know what you mean."

"Are you a Communist?"

"No."

"Have you ever been a Communist."

"No."

Mr. Cohen interjected: "He's just on Newhall's list."

Norman Haig, Bonner-Worth employee who had served in the rotating picket on the morning of the disturbance and was standing on the south side of McDonnel street when Welch's arrest occurred was called by Mr. Cohen. He testified he could not hear what was being said across the street. He saw Welch cros sover and stop in front of Newhall apparently to ask him some question. The police chief seemed excited and the next thing that happened was Welch's arrest, he stated.

The witness estimated the elapsed time at thirty seconds. When asked by the defence counsel to guess the passage of time, envisioning the chonology of events in his mind, the witness called a halt at 15 seconds.

Under cross-examination, he stated he was one of the rotating pickets. He denied his object was to stop workers entering the plant, saying it was to urge the workers not to go in.

"Did you do that?"

"There was no chance.'

Keith Copping, Examiner reporter, was then called by Mr. Cohen. He said he was on the scene and within a distance of several feet from Newhall and Welch when the arrest took place. The incident opened when Newhall pointed across the street and said, "There he is now" the witness testified. Welch came across the street and quite civilly addresed a question to the police official, he related. He said the question was either, "I want to see the people you have arrested" or "I want to see about the people you have arrested."

Copping stated Welch may have had his hands in his pockets and that his entire manner was that of a man approaching another to ask for a match or for the time.

Newhall did not reply to Welch's question, merely asking in a hostile manner, "Are you going to move along?" Welch repeated his request and the Chief ordered one of his men: "Lock him up," Copping related.

"How long a period elapsed during this?" Mr. Cohen asked.

"Between 30 and 45 seconds."

Asked to run over the events in his mind while timed, the witness called a halt at 25 seconds. He said the arrest was ordered so quickly that Welch would not have had time to comply with the request to move on had he been disposed to do so.

Asked if he was a Communist, he replied, "No."

Mr. McElderry asked the witness if he had not written many articles given him by Welch while he was covering the strike during the summer. Copping stated he might have written one or two directly from that source but not many. He denied that he was biased in any way, stating he had always endeavored to follow his instructions to remain strictly impartial.

J. F. Peterson, local reporter for a Toronto evening newspaper, substantiated largely Copping's evidence. He said he was on a flight of steps twenty feet away from the point where Welch and Newhall stood. He saw no move by Welch to touch Newhall, he said.

"You heard the Chief say Welch's arms were against his chest," suggested Mr. Cohen. "Did you see that?"

"No, nothing of that sort. I was standing across the laneway when I saw Welch going toward the Chief. I noticed them talking and in a very short time Welch was arrested."

"Did anything else occur."

"No."

"If anything else had occurred would you have noticed it?"

"Yes, I think so."

Cross Verbal Swords In Radio Debate

Special Committee Is Named To Investigate Possibility Of Enclosed Market In City

W. C. Ackerman Is Re-appointed For Three-Year Term On Library Board

In completing the city's administrative organization Monday night the council appointed Aldermen Stocker, Dutton and McCannan to the Board of Health, on Alderman Glover's motion, seconded by Alderman Wilson.

W. C. Ackerman was reappointed for three years as the council's representative on the Public Library Board, effective February 1 next. Fred J. A. Hall will also continue for the next two years his duties as a member of the comittee entrusted with the distribution of the charity funds of the estate of the late Almira Grover Foley.

Malcolm McIntyre, former alderman, tendered his resignation as a member of the Nicholls Hospital trust. His term does not expire until June, and the council decided to ask him to reconsider his resignation.

Interim-Payments

Interim payments of $22,000 requested by the Board of Education and $2,000 by the Separate School board monthly for January and February until these boards complete their estimates were approved by the council.

The Public Library board's requisition of $12,500 for the year, an increase of slightly more than $1,000 was also passed with Alderman Glover's explanation that the board was planning certain necessary renovation of the library premises.

Invited To Church

The council accepted an invitation from St. Andrew's Church to attend the morning service on January 23 in company with members of the Board of Education, the Utilities Commission and other municipal officials who could attend.

Authority to borrow $669,000, until the 1938 taxes are received was a routine resolution which simply sets forth the total amount which may be borrowed under the restrictions applied by the Ontario government.

Mayor Hamilton was authorized to send any emergency deputations that might be deemed necessary in circumstances that did not provide time for consulting the council. A resolution by Alderman Gordon, seconded by Alderman Glover, requires that the expenses of the members of any deputations shall be reported monthly by the finance committee.

"There are really no expenses I've seen...." Mayor Hamilton began, but he did not complete the sentence.

Market Enquiry

On Alderman Gordon's resolution, seconded by Alderman Huycke, a special committee composed of Mayor Hamilton, Aldermen Wilson, Hyckle, Glover and Gordon and City Engineer Parsons was appointed to investigate and report on an enclosed market, with further advice as to whether it should be a free market or not.

Alderman Gordon said several members of last year's council had examined the public market in Hamilton and one or two others. The Hamilton market has 1694 farmers and growers registered as renters, Ald. Gordon said. "Our market is almost closed for four and a half months. Growers come here during most of the year from as far as

The council hummed along pleasantly, and concluded its business without waste of motion.

CHIMNEY FIRE.

A chimney fire at the home of Patrick Menogue, 387 Mark Street, took the firemen on their only run overnight. No trouble was caused by the blaze.

MAGISTRATE'S COURT

When he pleaded guilty before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., this morning to a charge of stealing two pairs of men's socks from a local department store, an accused person who urged leniency "because I am a married man with two children," was sentenced to one month in the county gaol. He was stated to have a previous record. Alice Lipke, alias Burns, of Toronto appeared on remand but reserved her election and plea on a charge of stealing a sum of money from the dwelling house of Mrs. Max Vincent. On application of her counsel, the Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C., bail was reduced from $1,500 to $1,000, and the woman was further remanded until January 18.

STREETS ARE CLEARED.

The Board of Works has been keeping its grader in action during the past several days. Practically all streets of the city have been scraped of snow and the men were busy levelling snow shoulders on the more heavily travelled streets in the south-end today.

PRESENT AT HEARING.

During the latter portion of the trial of Alex. Welch on a charge of obstructing an officer in County Court Monday, Judge Smoke sat on the dais beside the trial judge, D. B. Coleman of Whitby. Present also in the court-room was Magistrate O. A. Langley, who presided on occasions of Welch's appearances in Police Court. Few spectators were present when the case opened shortly after 1 p.m., but the spectators' section of the court room was comfortably filled by the close.

PREFER POLES ON STREET.

Mayor Hamilton, Alderman Wilson and City Engineer Parsons were instructed by the council Monday night to interview residents on Mark Street in regard to the Bell Telephone Company's plans of removing poles from the street line to the rear of the properties. Some of them are obdurate, and apparently prefer to have the poles along the street in front of their properties instead of being hidden at the rear.

REEVE KELLY ASKS FOR CO-OPERATION HASTINGS COUNCIL

HASTINGS, Jan. 11.—Members of the Hastings council and Hydro Commission took their oath of office at the inaugural meeting held in the council chambers Monday morning at 11 o'clock.

"I feel a great responsibility has been placed upon my shoulders and I feel sure that the boys (councillors) will help in every way possible, stated Reeve Kelly in his address to the council. "I want everything up and above board and I am sure you will use your best judgment at all times.

Charles Lynch: "I wish to welcome the two new members to this council and I want to thank those who gave me such a large vote."

William McEachnie: "I will certainly try to do the best I can, regardless of race or creed and I hope the New Year brings lots of sunshine.

I. Bond: "I am a stranger at this business and if we all pull and work together we will be sure to succeed."

Stanley Stevenson: "I wish the Reeve a very successful year and we should all strive to help him."

Herbert Stephenson: "I want everything clean and above board and I also want all business done to be clear in the mind of the public."

J. M. Baker was appointed clerk and treasurer at a salary of $200 per year. His 1937 salary was $180, and he said that extra work on back taxes and on the relief books warranted a raise. Reeve Kelly stated that Mr. Baker had been an excellent clerk and treasurer. The motion was made by Lynch, seconded by Stevenson.

Council Names Committee To Interview City Trust

Seek To Find Where Council Stands In Regards To Accumulated Surplus

In advocating an interview with the City Trust Commission in regard to their accumulated surplus, Alderman Glover stated at Monday night's council meeting: "We should get some idea of where we stand, and find out whether we can get any of it or not."

Alderman Gordon had lightly mentioned the City Trust Commission's funds a few minutes earlier in the meeting, and apparently that provided Alderman Glover with a cue for his proposal.

"Ald. Gordon has referred to the City Trust monies, and Mayor Hamilton in his address this morning said that certain matters of a contentious nature should be cleared up. The surplus held by the Commission has been bothering councils for years back, and I would suggest that we appoint Mayor Hamilton, Ald. Cotton and Ald. Gordon as a special committee to see if they can arrange a meeting with the members of the City Trust, and see just what we can do. If they agree that something can be done, and we might have to go before the Ontario Municipal Board, then let us do so."

Before considering any action in consulting higher authorities in Toronto, Ald. Dutton said he would like to see "unanimity at this end."

"If we all get together," he added, "we might be able to push things a good deal further. If a private bill has to be passed it might be well worth while, but I do think that before reaching that stage we should all be in complete agreement here."

The committee named by Alderman Glover was appointed to consult the City Trust Commission with the intention of requesting an early interview.

FREIGHTER'S CREW SAVED

MARSEILLE, France, Jan. 10 (A. P.). — The Navy Ministry learned to-day when the French freighter Garuja ran aground off Almeria, Spain, on January 6, the entire crew of 30 were saved. The ship's owners had feared the Garuja had been attacked, but the Ministry eliminated that possibility.

CAR IS WRECKED WHEN HITS TRUCK

A car being driven south on Aylmer street by Dr. C. M. Scott was badly damaged on Monday when it was in volved in collision with a motor truck operatedby O. R. Kidd, 569 Patterson street. The motor truck was reportedly coming out of the gateway of the Nashua Paper Company's plant and when Dr. Scott tried to apply his brakes, he skidded into the truck because of the icy condition of the roadway at that point. Another traffic accident resulted in damages to the headlights, fenders and radiator grill of a car being driven by Miss Fern Fanning, 709 Water street. The accident occurred, in the vicinity of Water and Dublin streets, and was allegedly caused because of two other cars which were double-parked at that location. The car which was double-parked was reported by police to be owned by Jack Bateson, 710 Water street.

79 Years Old

G. A. Welbourn of Lakefield, who celebrated his seventy-ninth birthday on Monday is one of Lakefield's oldest residents. Mr. Welbourn was born in Holloway, Ont. (near Stirling) in 1859 and has spent the past 28 years in Lakefield. Mr. and Mrs. Welbourn have two sons, Willard of Cobourg and Ray of Lakefield and three grand children.

JAMES MURDUFF CLAIMS REPORT UNFAIR TO SON

James Murduff complained to the council Monday night that The Examiner's report of Friday night's relief committee meeting did an injustice to his son who was contributing seven dollars a week to the family. He said the committee offered him $3.61 a week to keep the family of eight.

Mayor Hamilton replied that the council could not be held responsible for any newspaper report, and Alderman Gordon commented that the Examiner needed some changes in its editorial staff "and I'd like to do it."

Ald. Dutton, chairman of the relief committee, said the general rule was to allow three dollars a week for personal purposes to any employed son of a family on relief. In October, he said, Mr. Murduff's son earned $70.38 and the relief was $27.01, a total of $97.39. In November the son's wages were $43.78, the father's $47.60 and relief was $20; in December the son earned $65.40 and relief was $28.59; and this month wages were $12 and relief $27.64.

"I think there are any number of families not on relief who are not so well placed," Ald. Dutton said. "We have tried to be fair. We made allowance for things the young man needed, tools, clothing, and attendance at night classes.

"If there is anything we can do more than that I would like to know it. If anything reported was a reflection on the family I am sorry."

He also said Mr. Murduff had not complied with a regulation requiring persons on relief to report on a form provided them the amount of earnings in any month.

"This is a general rule," Ald. Dutton said. "In a great many cases we forget about such earnings, because the committee realizes that families need things that have to be bought. But, when the ratepayers are contributing money to aid families they are entitled to information as to any monies earned."

"They've started this and I'm going to finish it," Mr. Murduff said, asserting that his son was doing his duty to the family, paying $7 a week from his earnings.

GIRL GUIDE HURT OUT TOBOGGANING

OMEMEE, Jan. 11.—Struck while tobogganing on Mount Ebow near Omemee in company with the Fourth Company of the Lindsay Girl Guides at their annual toboggan party, Elva Kennedy of Lindsay sustained two torn ligaments in her knee on Saturday.

The accident occurred when she was riding down the steep hill with two others on the sled. About halfway down, the toboggan took a sharp turn, throwing the girls off, with Elva rolling down the hill. The other two managed to remount the sled and continue on, only to collide with the victim with a heavy impact.

She was taken on the toboggan to Dr. M. D. Earle's home. A doctor's examination revealed that her legs were badly hurt. An X-ray showed that two ligaments had been torn. Both legs were badly swollen.

The Guides, about twenty-four, journeyed here on the C.N.R. train on Saturday morning and enjoyed the tobogganing party. They were the guests of Mrs. Earle of Omemee for dinner, after which games were played. They returned on the evening train.

HORTICULTURAL MEETING.

The annual meeting of the Peterborough Horticultural Association will be held Thursday evening in the office of Frank C. Paterson, representative of the Ontario Department of Agriculture. Election of officers and other business looking forward to the coming summer will be dealt with, and to stimulate attendance several door prizes will be given away.

Merchants Losing Business Through Manufacturers Selling Below Retail Prices

Half-Holiday The Year Around Discussed By Business Men's Association

More than $2,000 is being taken from Peterborough merchants every year, because local manufacturers are selling goods to their employees and others below retail prices, it was claimed at a meeting of Peterborough Business Men's Association last night.

In the confident belief that the evil can be remedied in a spirit of friendly co-operation, the meeting which convened under the chairmanship of James Geraghty, recorded a resolution asking that the executive of the B.M.A. meet at a round table conference with heads of various local industries in the near future.

Well Attended.

The meeting which was well attended by a group representative of various retail trade classifications, was of the opinion that employees had the right to buy goods at reduced prices from their employers, but strong objection was raised to what was claimed widespread abuse of the system which had extended to persons outside the factories.

To many of those who were present for the first time, Mr. Geraghty outlined the aims and objects of the Association. He declared it was an organization open to all business and professional men of the city for the discussion of problems of importance arising from time to time. The membership, he said, was 190 representatives of every professional and business classification.

It was the duty of all business men, Mr. Geraghty maintained, to study problems common to themselves and pertaining to the general welfare of the city. Some of the problems, he mentioned, concerned business hours, unfair practices, and tourist trade.

"If we do not look after our own interests," Mr. Geraghty suggested with a smile, "we may wake up some New Year's night and find we have a Council composed of agitators and 'Reds,' and we don't want that."

Mentions Specific Case.

Referring to a specific case of what he termed "unfair practices," he claimed was selling to their employees and through their employees to the general public goods far below the retail prices.

He felt it was only necessary to go to the firm in question and tell them the merchants were of the opinion it was an unfair practice, and he said, "I feel we will get their co-operation."

Another question under discussion was that of a Wednesday half-holiday for local merchants the year around. The meeting voted in favor of proceeding in an endeavor to attain this end.

At the present time a city by-law requires butchers and grocers to close on Wednesday afternoons during June, July, and August. To further extend the half-day holiday a canvass has to be made of all the merchants concerned and 75 per cent. of the merchants in the various trade classifications must demand the holiday before it can be enforced.

To Tender Dinner.

Fred Overend, president of the Chamber of Commerce, announced details in connection with the dinner to be tendered on the evening of February 8 to about forty guests from municipalities on the route of the Yonge-Street-Port Perry-Bethany-Peterborough Highway, who co-operated with Peterborough interests in the scheme.

Mr. Overend pointed out that previous dinners had been held at Port Perry and Newmarket, and Peterborough men connected with the project felt acquaintances made then should be renewed and Peterborough merchants and business men should reciprocate. He pointed out that the new highway when completed would be the means of opening new trade channels to local merchants, declaring, "The people of those sections are ready and willing to trade with us if we will receive them."

CPR TELEGRAPHERS HONOR TWO MEN

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, Jan. 11. — H. W. Roche, Havelock C.P.R. station agent, and J. H. Moore, operator, were in Toronto on Saturday evening attending a large gathering of C.P.R. telegraphers, who assembled at the Royal York Hotel and banquetted two of their members, just recently retired from their ranks, Messrs. G. R. Robinson of Trenton and W. H. Ivory of Toronto, whose service was in the aggregate of 90 years. A very enjoyable time was spent after presentations of travelling bags were made to each, with best wishes from all present.

The presentation was made by J. W. Anderson, of Peterborough, retired two years ago from the C.P.R. Prominent officials of the company present were: D. S. Shannon, superintendent Trenton Division, O. A. Brocher, chief despatcher of Trenton Division, and members of the Telegraphers' Order, J. D. Bell of Toronto, chairman; J. Philips of Ottawa, third vice-president; E. Worth, representative of Ontario District.

OBITUARY

VERNA JEAN KILLINGBECK

The death occurred this morning after an illness of six weeks' duration of Verna Jean Killingbeck, 9-year-old daughter of Percy Killingbeck and Annie Richmond. She died at the family residence, 4 Brown street. Besides her parents the child is survived by three brothers, Russel, Jack and Bob, and a sister Leona. She was a pupil at May's School and attended Park Street Baptist Church. The funeral is to be held on Wednesday at 3 p.m. from the family residence, with the Rev. C. C. Boyter officiating. Interment at Little Lake Cemetery.

MRS. DANIEL FINLEY DIES SUDDENLY

Returning from a visit to some friends in the south end of the city, Mrs. Daniel Finley, 254 Stewart Street, collapsed on arriving home early Monday morning and died less than an hour later.

Her funeral is to take place on Wednesday morning at 8.45 o'clock from the residence of her sister, Mrs. Mary Brioux of Brioux Avenue, to the Church of the Sacred Heart for celebration of Requiem Mass at nine o'clock. Interment will be made at St. Peter's Cemetery.

Born near Tweed, she was a daughter of the late Nelson Prevost and Margaret Haelly. Going to Hamilton as a young girl, she resided there for some years before coming to Peterborough. She had lived in this city for the past ten years, and attended Sacred Heart Church.

Besides her husband, she leaves five sisters: Mrs. Kathleen Courneyea and Mrs. Annie Goulah, both of Tweed; Mrs. Julia Morrison, of Belleville, and Mrs. Mary Brioux and Mrs. Sarah Paquette of this city, also two brothers, Edward and John Prevost, both of Tweed.

How Mayors Change In Peterborough

Returning to the role of just another taxpaying citizen, George A. Macdonald attended the inaugural meeting of the Council Monday morning and was accorded a chair on the dais beside his successor, Mayor James Hamilton. As the new council was sworn in by City Clerk Armstrong, the Macdonald mayoralty term and years of sterling service to the city reached their inevitable end. The former Mayor expressed his congratulations to the new council, explained the purpose of the Claims Committee which on Ald. Gordon's suggestion was combined with the Legal Committee, and then left the city's affairs in Mayor Hamilton's hands at the close of the session.

RIVER FROZEN OVER.

Winter has taken possession of the lake and river all the way from the Locks Bridge to Hunter Street. No stretches of open water were seen today even where the current flows fastest.

Notice

The monthly meeting of Ontario Music Teachers' Association will be held Wednesday evening, Jan. 12, in Board room of Y.M.C.A. at 8 p.m. Mrs. Dorothy Allan Park will address the teachers and all members are requested to attend.

COMMITTEE RE-APPOINTED TO CONSIDER PARKING PROBLEM IN CITY

Problem Is Becoming Acute Central Parking Space Must Be Acquired By Council

Executive Of National Council Of Women Will Meet Here February 1

The executive of the National Council of Women will hold their Spring meeting in Peterborough on Tuesday, February 1, a deputation from the Local Council of Women informed the City Council Monday night and asked for a grant of $25 to assist in entertaining the visitors. Mrs. (Dr.) C. M. Scott, president of the Local Council, briefly outlined the importance of this convening of the National Executive, and suggested several means by which the city could lend its assistance. Mrs. Scott was accompanied by Mrs. Ed. Wand and Mrs. N. Stanger.

The council was asked to place a banner of welcome at the corner of George and Charlotte Streets, to provide cars at 4.30 p.m. to enable the visiting ladies to see Peterborough's show places, and also make a grant of $25 to augment the finances of the Local Council of Women in the entertainment of the guests at supper in the Y.M.C.A. The National President will give the main address at the dinner at which the twenty-fifth anniversary of the local council will be celebrated. The executive sessions will be held at the Empress Hotel.

The request of the deputation was granted on Alderman Stocker's motion, seconded by Alderman Glover.

Street Cleaning Department.

A special committee, Aldermen Wilson, Glover, Dutton and McCannan, was assigned by the council to enquire into the advisability of establishing a street cleaning department independent of the Board of Works and Property Committee. The proposal was broached by Alderman Dutton, and seconded by Alderman Glover.

Alderman Dutton pointed out that part of the work of cleaning streets has been done by the Board of Works and the collection of garbage has been under the direction of the Property Committee. The special committee, he said, could consider whether it would be advisable to establish a separate department to coordinate the work of sweeping the streets, collecting garbage, flushing the streets, and any other allied details and bring in a report to the council at an early meeting.

To Get Prices.

The council had sent several deputations to a number of cities, including Toronto and Hamilton, last year to investigate their methods of collecting garbage, and had broadened their enquiry to include local markets, street flushing and several other matters of interest to Peterborough.

Alderman Dutton said it might be the council's intention to buy certain necessary equipment this year. A combination street flusher and oiler had been mentioned by recent councils, and whether any definite action was undertaken this year the council would be assisted in its deliberations if it had available the prices of such equipment. On Alderman Dutton's motion, seconded by Alderman Glover, a special committee composed of Aldermen Wilson, Cotton, Dutton and Bradburn was named to get the prices and have them on hand for the other committee.

"This information would simply be passed on to any committee that might need it, and without infringing on its rights," Alderman Dutton said.

The Parking Problem.

On the suggestion of Alderman McCannan, the city's problem of providing parking space for automobiles is to be reconsidered by the special committee of last year, including Mayor Hamilton, Aldermen Cotton and Dutton, with Alderman McCannan added as a new member, and Chief Constable Newhall. They have the council's authority to enquire broadly into Peterborough's parking accommodation and to report some recommended solution to the council.

Ald. McCannan said that this problem was becoming acute, and because the accommodation was not adequate, he believed Peterborough might be losing business. Central spaces might be acquired or rented, and ample parking facilities would improve the safety of the down-town streets.

"We all agree that a serious condition has arisen," Ald. Gordon said. "I think the parking problem was in Ald. Glover's platform, and if he will take it up I'll give him whatever support I can."

Ald. Glover said he was waiting to see what the council wished to do about it.

Ald. Dutton recalled that the special committee last year had considered the question and incidentally learned that twenty transport buses were coming into Peterborough with passengers. They had agreed to co-operate with the council in relieving the parking on Charlotte Street. "We found that the great difficulty was that if we were going to enforce a by-law to regulate parking we would have to provide sufficient space for cars. That taxed our wisdom, and it is a step in the right direction to continue the efforts that were begun last year," Ald. Dutton said.

Ald. Cotton recalled that the old bowling green at Brock and Aylmer Streets had been examined, but to make it suitable for parking, the ground would have to be "filled and raised." Ald. McCannan said there might be central spaces available. W. R. Turner and Sons on Simcoe Street had a property, he said, that they might be willing to place at the city's disposal for this purpose. It would accommodate about 150 cars.

The naming of the committee concluded the discussion.

Ceylon Natives Quake At Bear Tracks

Colombo, Ceylon, Jan. 11 (AP)

FOOTPRINTS nine inches wide and many feet apart, found again in the Himalayas, have revived native mutterings about the legendary "abominable snowman" of those mystic mountains.

However, F. S. Smythe, member of the 1933 and 1936 Everest expeditions, has returned from a recent trip to the Himalayas with the opinion that the tracks were made by an immense bear. He said he followed the tracks in the snow for several days, but did not see the beast.

Successful Euchre At Campbellford

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 11. — A crowd of nearly seventy-five attended St. Joseph's School last week to attend a euchre party held under the auspices of St. Mary's Parish, Campbellford. After cards lunch was served and a dance was held in the school, with music being supplied by Messrs. Thomas O'Rourke, D. Johnson, Thomas Lee. Winners of euchre prizes were Mrs. Sam. Bibby and Mr. Thomas Collins of Campbellford.

The convenors who were in charge of the evening were Mrs. Joseph Quinn, Miss Francis Lynch and Mrs. Ed. O'Connor.

Personals.

Miss Edna Marks Toronto is spending a week's vacation with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. V. Marks, Grand Road.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Irwin, Front Street, are attending the funeral of the latter's brother, Mr. William Chapman, in Bath, Ontario, and will return on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Basil Linton of Edmonton, who have been guests of Major and Mrs. A. T. Linton, Second Street, during the past week, are returning on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Anderson were guests on Friday of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Barry, Hastings.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Garneau, Trent River, visited friends in town on Saturday.

LINDSAY

FENELON FALLS HOME IS BURNED

LINDSAY, Jan. 11. — At 2.30 o'clock on Sunday morning fire entirely destroyed the frame residence of James Grant, at Fenelon Falls, together with the contents. Mr. and Mrs. Grant and two small children escaped from the burning house in their night attire and did not save anything. But the time the village fire brigade arrived he house was doomed. There was no insurance on the house or contents.

Jack Windover, of rubber cheque fame, did not enjoy his suspended sentence very long. Some days ago both he and his father appeared in court, charged with issuing worthless cheques in Lindsay and Bobcaygeon. The father was convicted, but the son was given suspended sentence. Saturday, however, he was again arrested. It is charged that when purchasing a $500.00 car at a local garage he issued a cheque for $253.00 as initial payment. The cheque was found to be worthless. It was issued to the Bank of Montreal at Trenton.

Provincial Officer Griffin was in town Monday and took back to the northern town a Bobcaygeon youth who is charged with breaking and entering. The accused was arrested on Saturday by Provincial Constable Adair.

A FUTURE CLIENT?

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., Jan. 11 (CP)—It is hardly likely that Master Gordon Yule, a pupil at Kent Public School in Toronto, is contemplating a honeymoon. But when he wrote to Niagara Falls asking information about historical points of interest in the scenic city, Mayor Carl D. Honniwell looked after the matter and saw that descriptive folders were sent to the Toronto boy.

Freer Divorce

Here is Alderman Nathan Phillips, member of Toronto's city council, who will urge that body to support before the government of Canada a move to loosen Canadian divorce laws. Mr. Phillips advocates bringing Canadian legislation governing divorce into line with the relaxed English laws.

WORLD NO WORSE THAN IN OLD DAYS SAYS MRS. BLACK

CALGARY, Jan. 11 (CP).—Mrs. George Black, 72-year-old member of the House of Commons for the Yukon, visited friends in Calgary yesterday en route to Ottawa for the opening of Parliament.

She has one vital objective in mind, Mrs. Black told newspaper interviewers on her arrival here. That is, "to prevent the Yukon being gobbled up" by Premier Pattullo of British Columbia who some months ago proposed to annex the Yukon.

Mrs. Black doesn't find the world any worse or a harder place to live in than it was in the old pioneer days.

"I doubt if things are as bad as they seem at first glance," she continued. "You see, when we were young news didn't get around so fast. The rapidity with which we get news today makes us feel that things are more and more desperate.

"Life now takes what it always did take—internal fortitude. It takes grit and courage and imagination.

"I think we have made a mistake in pap-feeding unemployed. I'd always want to help sick men, old men and helpless women and children, but it's bad for people to get something for nothing.

"I've had a hard life. I never got anything for nothing, and I'm still here."

MILLBROOK

Ed Williams, of the local branch of the Bank of Toronto, is relieving at the Keene branch for the current two weeks.

Miss Wilma Fallis, R. N., night supervisor of the Woodstock General Hospital, spent the week end, the guest of her aunt, Mrs. H. Ball, Fallis Line, and her cousin, Miss Luella Kennedy.

Mrs. H. W. Johnston's many friends will be glad to know that she is recovering satisfactorily from her recent emergency operation for appendicitis at the Nicholls' Hospital, Peterborough, last Wednesday night. Dr. H. A. Turner is in attendance.

Miss Jean L. Burnham returned home at the week end after spending the holiday week in Toronto, the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Howe, and of Mr. and Mrs. Roger Rogerson —the latter having been Gladys Tucker before her marriage, formerly of Millbrook.

The boys and girls of the Sunshine Mission Band held a sale of homemade candy on Saturday afternoon, from the home of Mrs. J. Ridge, associate superintendent. A neat sum was realized toward the allocation of fifty dollars for 1937, which is to be remitted to the Presbyterial treasurer in the early part of this week.

Messrs. J. N. McGill and T. Howard Collins were in Toronto at the week end.

The executive of the Horticultural Society held an informal meeting on Friday, arranging for the annual gathering on January 14, for reports and election of officers. Ten dollars was voted at a gratuity to the secretary-treasurer, Miss May Attwooll, for her efficient services during 1937.

Tax-Free Homes

Declaring that the state's financial position justifies his action, Governor Hugh L. White (ABOVE), of Mississippi, startled the state legislature by urging that all homes in Mississippi, be exempted from all taxes, state, county, district and municipal. The governor's startling proposal was greeted with cheers.

COMMITTEE IS NAMED TO PROBE ENCLOSED MARKET

Belleville and Whitby. Five provincial highways converge in Peterborough, and the local market could be made of greater advantage for business than it has been, while tending to reduce the cost of living. Accommodation might be provided for farmers enabling them to leave any surplus, if they wished to do so, until the following week. In 1937 the cost of sheet metal rose to such an extent that it was not feasible to have enclosed market constructed."

Ald. Gordon said it might be possible to arrange for rental of space for automobiles during the week, thereby paying for part of the cost.

Mayor Hamilton asked whether the county would participate in modernizing the market.

"I discussed it with several members of the county council and other men from the county, but whether they would contribute anything to a property that is vested in the city is a question," Ald. Gordon said. "Another point with them is whether the market would be free or tolls charged. There is no doubt we are many years, probably half a century, behind the times in the way the market is maintained."

Random Pick Ups!

It struck me, while observing George Parsons attempting a penalty shot at Normie Smith and recalling some other similarly abortive attempts this year, that we are probably seeing the last of that circus gesture and for one, I won't be sorry to see it go.

☆ ☆ ☆

I think that you will agree with me that the Bums' rush given King Clancy in Montreal just at a time when everybody in the world is supposed to be feeling nappy and be at least thinking "good will to all" is quite possibly the most unreasonable punch thrown in the face of a fair-minded sportsman since the dawn of time.

☆ ☆ ☆

You know what happened. The team, without Conacher, was like that of Detroit without Goodfellow, Canadiens without Seibert, Rangers or Leafs lacking the driving initiative of Patrick and Smythe. Of Boston Bruins without a Shore or Americans suddenly deprived of Dutton. Maroons were like a model T engine in a 1938 chassis.

☆ ☆ ☆

It couldn't be done, Bingo, any more than you could expect to bring Man O War back to the race after he has grown old and slow and send him in on even terms to compete against charging colts and restive dancing fillies. Another angle to consider, Bingo, is that Clancy was a terrible bust, as we say, as a coach. That he lacked every quality a leader is expected to release.

☆ ☆ ☆

It still won't mix. No coach in the world can succeed unless he has the support of his players and the complete co-operation of the club management back of that. Did Clancy enjoy either in his brief reign? Don't make me laugh.

☆ ☆ ☆

I submit he lacked team support because of what I have seen as a travelling recorder of hockey happenings. Maybe the boys didn't have it to give. Let that one lie. But the indictment to be drawn against the general management is clear in the words of their dismissal in which they tell him Gorman is to be his successor.

☆ ☆ ☆

Why did Ford build TWO new cars for 1938?

Left, the Standard Tudor Sedan. . . . Right, the De Luxe Fordor Sedan

It's a natural question. And there's a logical answer—to meet a definite demand for a car like the new De Luxe Ford V-8 for 1938.

The De Luxe was designed for those who like the basic Ford features but want more size and style. It brings both size and style at low Ford prices.

THE DE LUXE—THE STANDARD

The De Luxe is an addition to the Ford line. It is spacious, with richer appointments. Sedans have a larger luggage space. And under the hood is the 85-horsepower V-8 engine.

The new Standard Ford is in many ways a better car than the 1937 Ford V-8, bought by more people than any other 1937 car. It is newly styled, inside and out. It is even lower-priced than the De Luxe, but built to the same high standard of mechanical excellence. It also gives the performance and thrift of the 85-horsepower V-8 engine.

LOW PRICE—HIGH PLEASURE

V-type 8-cylinder engines were used only in expensive cars before Ford produced them efficiently at a low price. Since then, four million Ford owners have found that enjoyment and economy can be built into the same 8 cylinders by good design. The Ford V-8 engine brings 8-cylinder pleasure into the base of the low-price field—in first cost and operating cost. Owners report 22 to 27 miles per gallon of gas.

With two beautiful designs and two price ranges, it's easier than ever to pick a Ford car that fits your personal preference. Whichever one you choose, you'll get the service and value for which the Ford name stands. . . . There's a Ford dealer near you.

HOLLYWOOD

Garry Cooper was tops for high ranking salaries in the U.S. entertainment world with $370,214 according to government statistics issued this week. Ten movie and radio stars received more than $200,000 salary last year.

In addition to Cooper this group included Ronald Colman, $362,500; Claudette Colbert, $350,833; Mae West, who led the list for the preceding year, $323,333; Madeline Carroll, $287,913; Warner Baxter, $284,384; Marlene Dietrich, $269,333; Ruth Chatterton, $249,500; Charles Boyer, $249,145; and Rudy Vallee, $238,744.

Oscar Lau, Paramount studio property man, may reap a fortune because he was directed to produce a violin for a picture.

He found one in his own attic which Phil Boutelje, studio music director, thinks may be a genuine Stradivarius. The violin was brought to this country from Germany by Lau's grandfather and has reposed in Lau's attic for many years. He never was interested beause he cannot play.

He recalled it when Gene Raymond needed an instrument for "Stolen Heaven." When Boutelje began playing it, he was amazed by its tone.

Lau is not building his hopes too high because people have been fooled before.

Here is a letter, lean long and lanky Gary Cooper received from a South Dakota women's society:

"In an effort to raise money for the church we are making ladies' kitchen aprons out of the shirt-tails of noted men throughout the world. We would appreciate it very much, therefore, if you send us one of your shirt-tails. We thank you very much for this favor and hope to be able to reciprocate sometime."

Gary went them one better. He sent them a whole shirt, out of which, if the ladies cut sharply and wisely, they ought to get two or three aprons.

Making musicals is Hollywood's biggest gamble, but if they contain plenty of music, plenty of specialties and plenty of novelties they are sure-fire moneymakers.

You can take that from Buddy de Sylva. He started the long strong 10 years ago when he produced "Sunnyside Up" with Janet Gaynor and Charles Farrell.

He experimented when he made "You're a Sweetheart," with Alice Faye, by sacrificing size for speed.

"I got the idea from modern music," he said. "Maybe you've noticed that modern music travels at a faster tempo than the songs of yesterday. It's more exciting, more thrilling, than the older and slower compositions.

The New York critics liked Robert Montgomery in "Night Must Fall" even if most of his fans objected to seeing him play a criminal. So Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer will star him in "Pepe le Moko," a French mystery novel which has already been made into a motion picture abroad.

The hero is a criminal who escapes from the Paris police and hides in Algiers where he becomes an underworld character of the native quarter.

The French film was directed by Julien Duvivier, who is now under contract to M-G-M, so it is more than likely that he will also make the American version.

The hottest piece of gossip in months is the rumor that Mary Pickford, Douglas Fairbanks and Charlie Chaplin have offered to buy Samuel Goldwyn's interest in United Artists.

The Goldwyn-Korda efforts buy this company from the celebrated trio have failed, the tables are now being turned and Mary, Doug and Charlie will endeavor so my informant says, to force the sale.

This accomplished, they will combine their distributing organization with one of the important film companies. Columbia is mentioned as that studio.

Sally Eilers spent today in jail. Now don't get me wrong or her either, Sally was only hunting for atmosphere for "Condemned Women," which she starts at R-K-O on Monday for Producer Robert Sisk and Director Lou Landers. Sally has been eager to do this play ever since she read it but because of previous studio committments, it looked as if Barbara Stanwyck would get the lead. However, with Barbara doing "Distant Fields" and Sally now at leisure, well, rain or shine, it's an Ellers movie with Louis Heyward in the top male role and Anne Shirley and Lee Patrick in second femme leads.

Clark Gable will never again be idle as long as he was in 1937. Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer will see to that for believe it or not he was off with Miss MacDonald, barely missed this list too.

Irene Dunne came close to getting into the favored 10 femme list because of work in 'Theodora Goes Wild' and 'Awful Truth,' with 'Magnificent Obsession' and 'Show Boat' furnishing earlier build-up. Cary Grant, with his 'Topper' and 'Awful Truth,' is rated a comer. Harry Bauer was viewed in France as a character actor favorite, much the same as Emil Jannings in Germany.

The Moppets

Deanna Durbin probably made the greatest strides among juvenile or youngster stars abroad. In her case, it was that of a clever comely youngster, gifted with a voice, clicking, returns indicating she was building as big as in U.S.

Popularity of Nova Pilbeam in England helped this talented youngster. Freddie Bartholomew's absence from screen slowed his chances for big draw in 1937. Bobby Breen is a big favorite in South Africa and Australia.

While most U.S. films do not take in more abroad than in America, there are some which actually outgross the domestic market. Foreign departments considered this in compilations. Also that lavish expenditures on story, music and production outshone the star in some cases.

Though some features do only 2 per cent in the foreign market, some major companies know from records that certain pictures actually secure 60 per cent of total revenue outside of the U.S. In compiling draw of stars, the theatre outlets and distribution setup, as well as the total revenue derived from foreign nations, were considered.

Jeanette MacDonald made the first 10 because she's bigger in foreign field than any American singer. Also boosted by fine story and production, with Nelson Eddy helping and rating some of credit.

Line of differentiation between ninth and 10th places, and 11th and 12th positions were negligible. Thus Charles Boyer, favorite for some time in Europe, was coming along rapidly both here and abroad, barely missing a spot probably because not enough U.S. pictures were generally distributed in foreign lands Erroll Flynn, cashing in on 'Captain Blood,' 'Charge of Light Brigade' and 'Prince and Pauper,' also is crowded out by small margin. Same is partly true of Bette Davis, who made big strides in foreign field, partially because of sensational type of film given her.

Claudette Colbert, Carole Lombard and Jean Arthur also missed getting into first 10 only because of heavy competition. Latter derived much strength because teamed with Gary Cooper but not enough to get her into higher brackets.

Tyrone Power failed to get into big 10 listing, though rated among first 10 most popular male stars probably because a newcomer. Same is true of Sonja Henie, who will go places in the foreign market in a really big way once she is better known. Joan Crawford, though tabbed as one of the best 10 femme stars, missed the boat in the general foreign field by slim margin, possibly because dwarfed by surrounding male satellites.

Edward G. Robinson gained fame abroad as being typed for gangster roles. Although Ronald Colman was not especially active in 1937, his work in 'Lost Horizon' and 'Prisoner of Zenda,' nevertheless enabled him to get into the first 10 list for males. Nelson Eddy, aided by appearing

Famous Soprano

JEANETTE MacDONALD

Jeanette MacDonald, wed last June to Gene Raymond, was born in Philadelphia. Making her professional debut at the age of 14, the famous soprano has created a reputation for herself on the New York stage, as a concert artist in Europe and has a large box office following as a result of her work in pictures. Although she has been before the microphone before the present series of programs on which she is appearing is the first of her own series.

Motion Picture Actors Among Top U.S. Salaries

ALFRED P. SLOAN, JR.

GARY COOPER

WILLIAM S. KNUDSEN

A total of $1,391,403 was earned in salaries during 1936 by the three men shown (ABOVE), according to figures released by a United States congressional committee which had been given the information by the U.S. treasury department. Topping the listof high salaried workers was Alfred P. Sloan. Jr., of General Motors, who received $561,311. Second on the list was William S. Knudsen, vice-president of General Motors who received $459,878. Heading the entertainment world was Gary Cooper, who was tops with a salary of $370,214. The committee also revealed that of 13 men who received in excess of $300,000 for the year, nine of them were officials of General Motors.

Gary Cooper Heads Box Office In World Of Motion Pictures

Variety's Survey Indicates Trend Towards Spectacles And Musicals

Greatest box office names around the world (excluding the United States) in 1937, in order of money draw were:

1. Garry Cooper.
2. Greta Garbo.
3. Clark Gable.
4. Shirley Temple.
5. William Powell-Myrna Loy.
6. Fred Astaire-Ginger Rogers.
7. Robert Taylor.
8. Marlene Dietrich.
9. Paul Muni.
10. Jeanette MacDonald.

Variety's correspondents all over the globe were assigned to locally survey their respective countries, in order to rate the '10 best' in their territories. Against these opinions were checked the reports from foreign sales departments of the major film distributors.

The relative standing above was derived from proportioning local popularity against the business done in the various parts of the world, and in ratio to the income of the respective companies outside the U. S. Thus, a star or team combination might be tops for one company in one particular locality, but the business done in that country would be a negligible portion of the foreign total, as compared with other countries.

To further round out this survey —and of general interest to the trade, the stars, et al.—some of the more salient comment contributed by Variety's correspondents in certain key sectors is published in detail. Only where the situations have undergone some new trend, chiefly due to political aspects, is this information appended.

List is noteworthy in that only four new names are added, and for the persistent strength of Gary Cooper, Greta Garbo and Clark Gable. Cooper, who was in runner-up spot last year, goes to the top because of the consistent popularity of 'Mr. Deeds,' 'Bengal Lancer' and 'The Plainsman," with 'Souls at Sea' in smaller degree, because just hitting foreign marts. Seems little doubt but that 'Lancer' and 'The Plainsman,' both Cecil B. DeMille productions, really put him over the top, not only because spectacular productions generally click in the foreign field, but also because the DeMille type of production is more or less understandable in the universal market. This is attested to by tremendous draw his films have abroad, as compared even with the domestic field.

Chaplin and Cantor Missing

Charles Chaplin drops from the first 10 because he had no new production to herald his name or indicate popularity. In a lesser sense this was true of Norma Shearer, though rated by her own company near the top. Grace Moore also slipped behind, her place being taken by Jeanette MacDonald, because latter was in more big productions with widespread appeal. Laurel-Hardy team, still sensational in countries where pantomime is regarded as an art, missed inner 10 circle because not as active or figured as big as rivals in 1937.

Eddie Canto, missing last year, again failed to make the grade largely because his new picture has had few showings thus far in foreign field. Latest feature and subsequent ones may bring him up in 1938. Charles Laughton also is absent because of minor screen efforts, chiefly made in England.

Greta Garbo jumps up from sixth spot to second because of 'Camille' and 'Conquest.' Her old popularity was greatly enhanced by these efforts. Clark Gable stays in third position against new and old rivalry to a vast extent because of appearances in numerous b.o. films. Interesting sidelight is the comment of one sales manager (not on Gable) that the true test of a player's popularity is to obtain business on a weak picture, at least abroad.'

Marlene Dietrich went from seventh to eighth because popularity with fans on foreign soil faded against heavy opposition. Fact that Ernst Lubitsch is known abroad for his sophisticated type of direction continued, however, to aid her.

Shirley Temple, at top last year, fell back to fourth, feeling sterner competition. Possibly wrapped up in this decline in popularity is the hard-boiled fact that it is difficult for the public to maintain its allegiance to a child star no matter who. Still near the top in England, with two most recent films (both with foreign locales) helping, but general sameness is decried abroad.

Powell-Loy, Muni New

William Powell and Myrna Yoy are new names within the coveted 10, with teaming in pictures, old to U. S. but new in foreign lands, meaning much in gaining fifth rating.

Team of Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers slipped back from fourth place through no particular fault of theirs. Placing them in separate starring vehicles, an interesting experiment, hurt b.o. draft, and only their known draw enabled them to do so well with virtually one co-starrer. Wound up sixth.

Robert Taylor, heralded favorite at home, moved from last to seventh spot, as fame spread in Europe.

Paul Muni is a new addition landing in ninth place because of 'Pasteur,' 'Good Earth' and 'Zola' Might have finished higher if 'Zola' had been released earlier and secured more bookings as consequence. Bannings of it in some countries also hurt.

the screen for nearly a year and that is far too long for a gent as popular as Gable.

The moment he finishes "Test Pilot" he will be rushed into "Too Hot to Handle," a newsreel thriller which John Lee Mahin and Lawrence Stallings are now finishing for Larry Weingarten.

Put it down to the Panay bombing influence when the newsreel boys did such splendid work because "Too Hot to Handle" is evidently suggested by that recent news event.

Lawrence Hammond, a newsreel photographer during the Ethiopian War, has been engaged as technical director and a company is already working in the jungles of South America to obtain shots for a voodoo sequence.

Fur Hood

JESSICA DRAGONETTE

The most becoming fashion of wearing a soft hood over the hair, which prevailed a number of decades ago, has been revived this season.

Jessica Dragonette's favorite evening cape—a hooded ermine in burnoose effect, is shown. The hood is worn set far back on her head, setting her pretty blond hair off to advantage.

MAE WEST MOST LIKELY WASHED UP

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 11.—Reported Paramount will not renew with Mae West, following her latest, 'Every Day's a Holiday,' which was produced by Emanuel B. Cohen (Major) for Par release. This likelihood is in spite of opinion that her latest picture is superior to her prior effort, 'Kondike Annie.'

Currently the Par, N. Y., is running a trailer on 'Holiday' and studying audience reaction to it, which is generally favorable with considerable applause for Miss West noted, but also some hisses.

Not Movie Struck

Pictured at her desk in Washington, D.C., is Miss Marian Hepburn, 19-year-old sister of Hollywood's Katherine Hepburn. Marian is in her third year at Bennington college, Ver., and right now the things that interest her most are organized labor, the study of government and a little sociology on the side. That's why at present, she's working for John L. Lewis' affiliate union, the United Federal Workers of America. Marian is secretary to Arthur Goldsmith, U.F.W.A. school official. Getting a job is part of her college course, which explains why she is working in the U.S. Capital.

CHAPTER 36.

Lucille Merrick, the little Frenchwoman, clasped her hands. "Do you think you can save Mimi?"

"I know I can. Things have happened which make it possible," I replied.

Her wise eyes studied me for a moment, then she said, "Do I dare tell you something?"

I looked down at her, "Please."

"She loves you. But she loves her world. And you must be stronger than her world, stronger than herself. Don't let her get away from you. She has talked to me. She has told me nothing in words. But I have looked beneath the words. She would have married Andy if it had not been for you."

"You are sure?" My pulses were pounding.

She nodded. "You must never let her know I have spoken of it . . ." She made a quick movement towards the other room. "Would you like to see her pretty dresses?"

We were just in time, for when Mimi entered, a second later, Mrs. Merrick was holding up a crisp gown of apple-green and saying, "It is to have a silver sash."

Silver sash . . . silver rain . . . a golden world . . . Mimi with shadows under her eyes trying to say in an unconcerned fashion, "It was too bad to keep you waiting, Jerry."

I caught her hands in mine. "Don't you know I'd wait for a thousand years?"

She was obviously self-conscious. She turned a little toward Mrs. Merrick. "Aunt Lucille, were you showing him my pretty things?"

But Mrs. Merrick had disappeared as suddenly is if an earthquake had swallowed her up. There was a swinging door which led to the kitchen, and she must have used that, but the thing had the effect of her being taken up in a cloud or removed by some other miraculous means of transportation.

Mimi and I stood, a little apart, looking at each other, and the things that Mrs. Merrick had told me gave me courage.

"Mimi," I said, "are you glad to see me; are you?"

I knew she was glad. And I took her in my arms, wondering a little at my temerity. She clung to me; hid her face against my coat. She was crying.

I smoothed her head. "Don't," I said, "my dearest."

But she cried on in a heartbroken way, and at last she said, "It has been dreadful . . . with everybody wanting to marry me . . . and I don't want to marry anybody. . . ."

"Yes," I said, "you do. You want to marry me."

"But I can't, Jerry. I don't want to be poor. I don't know how to be . . . and you haven't any money."

"Love doesn't think of money."

"Doesn't it?" wistfully. "But life is real. It isn't just romance. And we can't live on dreams——?"

"Suppose I should tell you of a dream which can come true, Mimi? Of a long low house set in a circle of mountains? Of wide acres that are mine—of the days that we shall ride together, of the nights when a great fire will blaze on our hearth."

I delighted in the amazement with which she regarded me. "Did you say that it might come true, Jerry?"

"It is true, my darling. Uncle Jerry is dead, and everything that he had is mine. . . ."

"Do you mean that you are—rich?"

"Not measured by such fortunes as Andy Fuller's. But there's the house and the land, and plenty of people on the place to do things for us. You'd be like a little queen, and I a king."

That was the way Uncle Jerry had pictured it, so was I, after all, greatly to be blamed if I made her see it as a shining palace?

"We will be away from all this shallowness and hollowness . . . and I shall do big things because you are there . . .And we'll go east and see my plays produced, and have a taste of the world, but always we shall come back to our castle, to our own hearthstone. That's what marriage will mean to us, Mimi—love and each other. Home, and the two of us in it."

I was eloquent with all the passion of my youthful idealism. She listened, and at last I saw her touched by radiance of her decision to marry me.

"But it seems too wonderful to be true, Jerry."

"It is both true and wonderful."

My scheme as to how the thing might be done had been spectacular. I had seen myself flaunting the fact of my improved fortunes in the faces of Mimi's mother and of Andy Fuller. I had seen Mimi's world crowding the church while she came toward me up the aisle in all that bridal loveliness over which I had pondered as a boy. I had seen Andy, my defeated rival, glowering at me from among the shadows.

But Mimi destroyed at once my melodramatic illusions. "We must get the thing over before we tell anybody."

"Do you mean that it is to be—clandestine?"

She nodded. "I am not sure I like that word, but it is the only way."

"Why is it the only way?"

Her eyes were stormy. "I shall die if I have to fight for my happiness, Jerry."

That settled it for me. I would not have her hurt or troubled. And Mrs. Merrick had said that Andy and her mother were wolves.

It was Mrs. Merrick who helped us make our plans. We called her in and found her an enthusiastic fellow-conspirator.

"If I didn't trust you, Jerry," she told me at the beginning, "I couldn't do it. But I won't have Mimi sacrificed."

We decided it was best that no one should know of my having called on Mimi. I was even to carry the roses away with me, that all traces of my presence might be removed. The little maid was reticent, and masculine callers were too frequent to cause any comment. Mimi's trunk was to be packed and waiting when the expressman should arrive late that night. It was the maid's evening out, and Mimi and her mother were going to a dance at the Woman's club. I would whisk Mimi away from the dance long enough to let the expressman in, and then whisk her back before she was missed. I had suggested that she content herself with a bag and leave her trunks, but she was scornful. "I have a thousand things to take with me."

We were to be married at Mrs. Merrick's. We still had the hours of the afternoon to get the license. We had, I think, a sense of breathless hurry, as if something might happen if we delayed. Yet at my moment of leaving her, Mimi demanded: "What shall I do if I ever regret it, Jerry? How do I know that I'll be happy?"

"But you do know it, don't you?"

"I'm not sure."

"I'll make you sure. When you are mine—forever."

Dreams Tell You of Your Hidden Wishes

Barred by wires from climbing a winding stairway—a faceless man approaching! It's just a dream—couldn't really happen!

Yet it's a mistake to dismiss this dream as meaningless. Especially if you know these facts. This dreamer, a widow, yearns for a husband's devotion. The evening before, she looked at pictures collected on her honeymoon in France. Her memory dwelt on the lovely chateaux with winding staircases beautifully carved.

A dream-analyst tells her that the faceless man and the wires which thwarted her represent her unfulfilled wish to remarry and visit the French chateaux again.

You, too, see dream-dramas in your sleeping hours. Our 32-page booklet tells what they mean. Find hidden messages, discover your secret wishes. Learn about dream symbols, and common types of dreams — wish-fulfillment, cosmic, levitation, and others.

Looking Back
On This Date

(By FRED WILLIAMS)

One hundred and twenty-three years ago to-day, January 11th, 1618, a boy was born at Glasgow, Scotland, who was destined to change the whole future of British America. John Alexander Macdonald was born in Scotland, but the theatre of his life was the very small Canada to which he was brought as a lad, and which he made the foundation for that Dominion which now stretches from sea to sea under the Union Jack, the flag which he loved and which covered his funeral when he was buried in 1891.

John A. Macdonald is to Canada what George Washington is to the United States; but how many Canadians regard him as such? More than once I have had friends from the United States who had studied Canadian history ask: "Why do you Canadians so ignore your great men?" One of them, a distinguished public man, indeed a minister plenipotentiary from the United States to Canada, told me that if Canada was the United States, the 11th day of January would be observed as a public holiday just as our neighbors respect and praise Washington and Lincoln on their birthdays. My only excuse was that we were yet too close to John A. Macdonald to forget the political passions and hatreds which he created. (The same can be said also of his great successor, Sir Wilfrid Laurier.)

Is it too much to hope that, in years to come, even if only in the schools, the recurrence of Sir John's birthday may be made an occasion to recall his services to Canada and the Empire? etc. me commend to you a passage by Professor George W. Wrong:

"Macdonald was a great patriot. He had imagination and courage; and he, more than any other leader, had helped to weld into a united state the varied elements in the life of Canada. To-day his faults, some of which, with the frankness of a great character, he freely acknowledged, are well-nigh forgotten, and he is remembered as a skilful leader of men, with little thought of personal gain, threw his energies into building up a great British State to include half a continent."

Why, indeed, stop at Macdonald? Why should not each province include in its school curriculum, on the right anniversaries, the stories of the Builders of their Land? Howe and Tupper in Nova Scotia, for example? The Good Book tells us to honor our fathers for the foundations they laid. Are we doing that in our schools today? I fear not.

DOROTHY DIX

Wives Should Always Be Ready for a Frolic and Be Good Entertainers When their Husbands Desire to be Entertained.

EVERY wife should be her husband's playmate. The people of whom we are most fond, those whom we enjoy most and who are most necessary to us are those who add to our pleasure; who make life gayer for us and who keep us pepped up and amused. This is a tip that all wives would be wise to take.

Unfortunately, few women feel that entertaining their husbands is a part of their wifely duties, and that is why so many men put on their hats as soon as they have had their dinner and fare forth in search of some livelier diversion than they find at their own firesides. For the Tired Business Man is no myth. He is a real person whose day's work leaves his nerves fretted to fiddle strings and he craves something to relieve the tension, something to make him laugh and forget his troubles.

But he seldom finds this at home. His wife meets him at the door with a budget of bad news. The rent is due. The coal is out. Goodness knows how they are to eat if meat goes any higher. The baby broke his pet pipe. The teacher has written a note about how Johnny is falling behind in his studies. Aunt Sally is coming for a long visit. And so on and on. Doubtless it is all true and the wife has had her hard day also, but it is the result and not the formula we are considering, and no one will contend that any man can pass an agreeable evening listening to his wife croon the blues.

Women are always complaining that their husbands won't take them stepping out of evenings, but the reason they don't is because the wife is so often a wet blanket who takes all of the starch out of any occasion. She may have picked out the show or the movie herself, but she blames it on her husband if she doesn't like it, and doesn't understand why he dragged her to see a thing like that. The seats never please her and she tells him that, of course, he would always let somebody put the worst on him. She spoils the big moment of a play by demanding to know if he thinks the baby has got uncovered, or if the house has caught on fire. If they go to a restaurant she spoils the treat by adding up the bill and telling him they can't afford it.

Just watch the ordinary couples at any place of amusement and you will notice that while the unmarried women are working like coal-heavers to entertain their dates and are at least pretending to have a good time, nine out of 10 of the wives are making no effort whatever to amuse their husbands and are not disguising the fact that they are bored stiff. Mighty few men feel that it is worth while spending their money on a killjoy, which may explain why so many wives are left at home when their husbands feel the need of a little recreation.

Wives should be their husbands' press agents. This is for their own good as well as the husbands' because, little as women realize it, they write their husbands' price tags. Many a wife ruins her husband's chances in his business or profession by her whining and complaining that, of course, she can't have a new car because John just doesn't seem to know how to get along and make money, or that nobody sends for Tom when they get sick. Many a woman, just because she enjoys being pitied and posing as a martyr, gets her husband the reputation of being a libertine or a drunkard, when all that he has done is to be polite to an old school friend or drink a cocktail.

Many a man is advertised into success by his wife's discreet bragging. Half the time the reason we think Mr. Jones such a grand man and Dr. Smith such a great doctor is because their wives have told us so.

Finally, every wife should be a mother to her husband. No man ever entirely grows up. Always somewhere there is the little boy in him that wants his wife to treat him just as his mother did. No matter how great and famous he is, or how many other men he rules, he wants his wife to make a fuss over him, chuck him under the chin, talk baby talk to him and tell him he is Mother's itsy, bitsy boy and the boolfulest fing in the world.

He may have his chest covered with medals for bravery, but he wants his wife to hold his hand and think he is going to die every time he is sick. He wants his wife to understand that every little boy has to play hooky every now and then, and when he does he wants her to treat him as Mother did—spank him and kiss him and forget all about it. Every woman has to be many women to be a good wife.

Mighty Good Medicine

Watermelons, it is now asserted, have a certain therapeutic value in the treatment of kidney disease. At last we have a medicine which is not only easy, but a joy to take.

✧ ✧ ✧

Imagine the smil on a patient's face when the doc writes out his prescription: "An ice-cold slice, to be taken every four hours."

✧ ✧ ✧

The huge green Alabama berries are certainly the biggest pills in medical history, but they are bound to go down the quickest of all.

✧ ✧ ✧

We don't know who first discovered watermelons, but he makes Columbus look like a piker. Chris. found a lot of land but the other fellow gave us a ruby paradise with an emerald ring around it.

✧ ✧ ✧

Farmers we have just learned, often bury watermelons in the fall to keep them from freezing. That news just about decides us to go treasure hunting to-night.

✧ ✧ ✧

Watermelon isn't ordinary grub by a long shot—it's really food for the soul. We have never seen anyone eating watermelon who wasn't smiling and happy as a lark.

✧ ✧ ✧

One of the things we could never understand is how the great poets ever managed to overlook one of Mother Nature's grandest gifts—His Majesty, King Watermelon—and instead wasted their paeans of praise on such ordinary matters as roses, moonlightmoonlight and a lady's moonlight and a lady's limpid lamps!

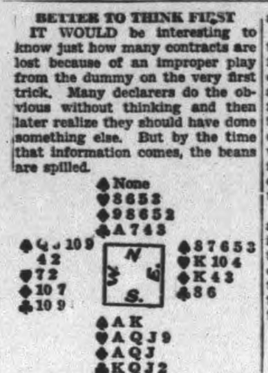
BETTER TO THINK FIRST

IT WOULD be interesting to know just how many contracts are lost because of an improper play from the dummy on the very first trick. Many declarers do the obvious without thinking and then later realize they should have done something else. But by the time that information comes, the beans are spilled.



(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)

North and South landed in a contract of 6-Hearts on this deal. South started with 2-Hearts, North raised to three and South jumped to six.

When the spade Q was led the declarer discarded a diamond from dummy and won in the South hand with the K. The club 2 to the A in dummy furnished an entry for a heart finesse, which was successful. South now laid down the heart A, hoping the K was a doubleton, but it failed to drop. So a trick was lost to the heart K and a later one to the diamond K.

Declarer's first objective when the opening lead was made was to find out how he could enter the dummy four times. This could be accomplished only by trumping the first spade lead in the dummy and trying the heart finesse. The second high spade would have provided another entry to the dummy for another heart finesse. The play of the ace would then have cleared that suit.

After the leads of the clubs K and Q, with each opponent following, the club J could safely be overtaken with dummy's A to provide one lead of the diamond suit. With this proving successful, the club 2 to the 7 would furnish another entry for a second diamond lead.

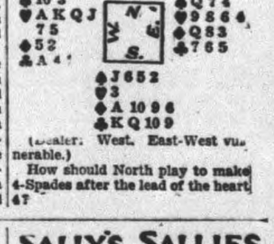
Tomorrow's Problem



(Dealer: West. East-West vulnerable.)

How should North play to make 4-Spades after the lead of the heart 4?

THE STARS SAY . . .
By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Wednesday, January 12.

This should be a very auspicious day for all old matters, for solidifying the fortunes and for achieving the ambitious, judging by the mutual and lunar aspects. The judgment may be slow but sure, but influential friends will prove an important factor in shaping results.

Those whose birthday it is are confronted by a year of opportunity for substantial growth in the fortunes and possessions, possibly through inheritance, trust, deed or other token of favor from elders or superiors.

A child born on this day may be efficient and ambitious, with many sound traits of mind and character to promote its aspirations and win the support of its elders and superiors. It would be well to train it in less sarcastic and critical speech.

BEDTIME STORY
By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY AND BUNTY'S NOSE.

Uncle Wiggily hopped over the fields and through the woods. He hopped up hill and down dale looking for an adventure. There was not as much snow on the ground now and the ice from the frozen rain had melted so it wasn't so hard for the rabbit gentleman.

"Ho, hum," said Uncle Wiggily to himself. "I wonder what sort of adventure I shall have this afternoon? It is getting late," he went on as he saw the sun going down behind the hill. "And as I am to call for Baby Bunty at Susie Littletail's party, perhaps I had better not look for an adventure. I'll get Bunty and go home."

Leaving the adventure for another time, Uncle Wiggily started to hop toward the home of Susie Littletail who used to live with him. Now Susie and her brother Sammie were at their own home again.

"Rat-a-tat-tat," knocked the rabbit gentleman on Susie's door.

"Oh, Uncle Wiggily, you are too late for my party," said Susie.

"Thank you, my dear," said the jolly old rabbit gentleman. He twinkled his pink nose just like the pink flashlight the Bob Cat had with him, hiding in the woods not far away. For the Bob Cat, who was very clever, though a Bad Chap, knew Mr. Longears was going to call to take Bunty home.

Not Invited.

"Thank you, my dear, for thinking I came to your party," said Mr. Longears. "But I didn't. You didn't invite me."

"Oh, I am so corry," said Susie, and tears came into her eyes.

"Now, my dear. There, there. It's all right," said Uncle Wiggily kissing her. "I couldn't have come to your party this time, anyhow. But I stopped to get Baby Bunty."

"Baby Bunty," exclaimed Susie.

"Yes, you know. My little orphan rabbit," said Uncle Wiggily.

"Oh, of course I know," said Susie. "As if I could forget Baby Bunty. But I am surprised at you calling for her."

"Isn't she here?" asked Uncle Wiggily, and he, too, was surprised.

"She was," said Susie, "but she went home a little while ago."

"Alone?" asked Uncle Wiggily.

"No, with Jackie Bow Wow. At least Jackie said he would go with Bunty through the woods almost to your bungalow. Bunty said she wasn't afraid to go home alone the rest of the way."

"Oh, all right," said Uncle Wiggily, hopping away. "I'll catch up to her."

The Bob Cat, with his pink flashlight, who, with the Fox and Wolf, was hiding in the bushes near Susie's house, heard this talk.

Makes It Easier.

"Ha, ha," laughed the Bob Cat in a Bad Chap's whisper. "It is turning out beautifully. I thought I would have to get you chaps to entice Bunty away while I teased Uncle Wiggily into making a mistake by following my pink light thinking it was Bunty's nose twinkling in the dark. Now it will be easier."

"Baby Bunty! Wait for me!"

"What are we to do?" asked the Fox and Wolf.

"Go to my den and wait," the Bob Cat told the Fox and Wolf. "I will sneak on ahead of Uncle Wiggily, and, by flashing my pink light, I will make him think I am Bunty. He will follow me. In the dark I'll lead him to my den where you two chaps are waiting and——"

"We'll do the rest," chuckled the Fox.

"You said it," growled the Wolf. Those two Bad Chaps slunk away. The Bob Cat sneaked off through the woods ahead and after him, though not seeing him, hopped Uncle Wiggily. He called:

"Bunty, Bunty, Bunty. Wait for me."

And if the letter doesn't jump out of the envelope and chase the stamp up the front steps, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily's glad surprise.

Splendid Reports At Omemee Guild

(Examiner Correspondence.)

OMEMEE, Jan. 11. — The annual meeting of the Women's Guild of Christ Church was held at the home of Miss Irene Clemett on Thursday afternoon, with a fair attendance of members.

Splendid reports of the year's work were given by the secretary, Miss Mildred Jones, and the treasurer, Mrs. Nurse. Miss Cornwall reported for the visiting committee.

After the business the rector, Rev. G. H. Johnson, took the chair and the election of officers for the year were as follows:

Honorary President, Mrs. G. H. Johnson; President, Mrs. W. Robinson; Vice-President, Mrs. Jamieson; Secretary, Miss Mildred Jones; Treasurer, Mrs. S. Nurse; Quilt and Apron Committee: Misses Irene Clemett, Maggie McQuade, Essie Wood; Fancy Work Committee: Mrs. V. Jones and Mrs. D. Deyell; Visiting Committee: Misses Carrie McQuade and C. Cornwall; Refreshment Committee: Mrs. Hill, Mrs. A. McQuade and Mrs. James Bannon.

Miss Hilda Clarke was chosen to represent the Guild on the Advisory Board of the church.

At the conclusion of the business, dainty refreshments were served by the hostess, Miss Irene Clemett.

PLAN MENTAL TEST

LONDON, Ont., Jan. 11.—(CP)—A mental extamination was ordered today for 29-year-old Wilmer Steele of London, held on a nominal charge of vagrancy while police investigate the story of seven-year-old Barbara Hebblethwaite that she was kept against her will for 24 hours at Steele's home.

The little girl was the object of a city-wide search. All Friday night and again on Saturday searching parties hunted London streets for her. She was returned home Saturday evening.

Central Home and School Association Meets.

The January meeting of Central Home and School Association was held in the kindergarten room of the school on Monday evening, Mrs. C. H. McWilliams presided over a splendid attendance, and opened the meeting with the Lord's prayer.

Owing to the postponement of most of the December group meetings, no reports of convenors were heard. A letter of thanks from Inspector K. T. Wightman for a donation to the milk fund was read. One hundred and fifty children are now being given milk.

The attendance picture was awarded jointly to the classes taught by Miss Doughty and Mr. Nicholls.

The anniversary of the founding of Home and School associations will again be observed in February. The meeting will be arranged in honor of the founder—the late Mrs. A. C. Courtice. A short discussion was held re the raising of funds, necessary to keep the association going and a bridge and euchre may result. Mrs. R. Wilson, Aylmer street was the lucky winner of a quilt made and donated by a few of the members.

An address on religious education was delivered by the Rev. R. T. F. Brain. A short musical program lent much enjoyment to the evening. Piano solos were given by Ruth Gaskill, Mary Lillow and Jean Lillow. Also a piano duet by Mary and Jean Lillow. Great praise is due these clever young musicians who are all pupils of Mrs. Brain. Gloria Loney received great applause in two splendid recitations. Miss Eleanor Haddow, accompanied on the piano by her sister, Miss Jessie Haddow delighted in two hymns sung in Spanish, "Rock of Ages" and "There Is A Fountain". Miss Jessie Haddow was also well received in an informal talk given on Bolivia.

Mrs. McWilliams called for a vote of thanks to the guest speaker and all the others who contributed to the program. This was heartily responded to in the usual manner. Mr. Brain closed the meeting with prayer.

WOMEN DID IT, MOSTLY

Color Is An Important Feature of Clothes for The Spring

Left, casual coat of aqua blue imported angora woollen and flame colored crepe linen dress; right, Burma brown lightweight woollen redingote lined with same printed silk crepe that is used for dress.

By LISBETH

THE TRAVELLERS seem to be occupying the fashion spotlight right now. Everyone yearns to get "away from it all" right after the Christmas holidays, so if you cannot, you can at least take the edge off the wanderlust by looking over the going-away clothes of your friends, and planning your own spring outfit.

Two little costumes for that winter vacation or your spring trousseau, whichever it is, are shown here.

At the left is a casual coat of aqua blue imported angora wool. Everything destined to wear next spring has a touch of color somewhere, stylists say. This bright-colored coat is worn over a flame colored crepe linen dress—one colorful garment over another, you see.

Redingote To Be Worn

The redingote, so popular last spring, summer and autumn, is again to be with us in the spring, it seems, and also is going a-traveling. The suit shown right is an ensemble in Burma brown, with a lightweight woolen redingote lined with the same printed silk crepe used to make the dress, which carries a design in white and black on the brown.

Hats are still to be worn back on the head, you see, from these two models. In fact, for the traveler and the smartly dressed woman next sping, the casual, "simple but smart" costume is the thing.

While we are on the subject of what the well dressed traveler to warmer climes should take with her, a very good choice for an evening wrap is a fine wool. It won't easily wrinkle, is soft and supple to fit into small space, and wool evening wraps are very glamorous this year. In fact, very soft, lightweight wool evening dresses also are popular this season.

Sheer wool jersey and lace feather-weight woolen are molded on classic lines for romantic dinner and evening gowns. They are ideal as background for the almost necessary metallic embroidery and jewled touches.

Capes Lined With Shot Taffeta

Broadshouldered, flowing capes, lined with shot taffeta or smooth satin, are frequently laden at the shoulders with brilliant encrustations in bold motifs. Slender, straight-lined capes, hanging straight and slim in the classic line of a Greek column, shine with sequin or satin bandings placed for flattery.

Glittering scrolls decorate the front closings of wool wraps of military type. Soft fur collars and fur bands are highlighted by the deep, rich colors of fine wools.

Coat style wool wraps are tailored and combined with equal success with scintillating touches. They are generally cut on fitted lines, slender and flattering. And for the young girl the satin-lined hooded coat with a soft hood to protect the hair and make an alluring frame for a sweet face, is an excellent choice.

JUST BETWEEN US WOMEN

"Whoever will prosper in any line of life must save his own time and do his own thinking. He must spend neither time nor money which he has not earned."

—David Starr Jordan.

And this: "We may envy the man who rests and enjoys; but the smile of Heaven broods rather on the front of him who labors and aspires."

—R. P. D.

Dear Friends:

Have you ever felt that a lot of your time was taken up by trivialities such as people dropping in at unexpected moments, or phoning at the wrong time, or oh, a hundred and one things.

We have a standing joke in our home. Let their be never a tinkle from the door-bell or the phone all morning, then let me decide to lie down for a few minutes, and away both of them go like mad.

My daughter thought I exaggerated a lot when I laughingly spoke of it to her, but she was sick for about a week about a year ago, and she had it shown to her how it worked. I got very tired doing the work and attending on her, besides wondering if I were doing all I could to make her better. (Ever get like that?)

So she would say after the noon meal, go and lie down for awhile or both of us will be sick. I'd say, what's the use? The phone and door-bell will start ringing one minute after I do lie down.

She retorted I was just imagining things. So I lay down and was just drifting off, when brinnng went the phone. I answered it and went back for another try. Away it went again, so up I popped again. Back to my couch once more, and just tucking the comforter around my feet, (which are always cold) and again it rang.

After that I decided to try and get forty winks on a chair, but it kept up a steady tattoo, and the door-bell started in to do it's stuff also. I answered ten phone calls in forty-five minutes, and the door-bell four times.

We laughed until we ached. She said on another day, try it again. Maybe it was just a co-incidence. But there was no co-incidence about it. It rang incessantly, and we had another good laugh.

Now, I have learned to take my rest at another time of the day. (Unless if I forget as I did today, and had the same experience) We need our friends as they need us, and the phone is a godsend to people shut in as I am.

But we need our time also, and we must learn to work it so that we lose nowhere along the line. If my friends like me well enough to call me and have a talk, I am glad, and try and work my day so that I will have time to do it.

When I do it to them, they also must make their adjustments so that their day will not be thrown out of gear. And for the second quotation, I cannot tell you how many people told me they were glad the holidays were over and they could get back into their daily work again.

There is something satisfying about our work which fills a place in our lives that nothing else can do. And I truly think "the smile of Heaven broods on the front of those who labor and aspire."

When you envy the man who rests and enjoys, just stop long enough to remember how much of a thrill you get in looking at your pay check which you honestly and truly earned, the joy you experience when you look at the work of your hands, the worthwhile feeling you have when your head touches the pillow and you drift off to sleep. Best Wishes From ROBERTA.

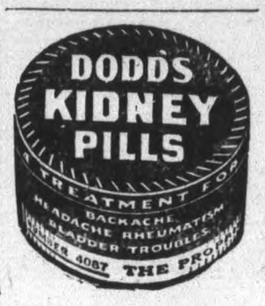
DOESN'T HURT, THEN

NEW YORK—(CP). — Women—and men, too—are seven times as welling to give through their wills as when they are alive, says Dr. Guy Morrill of Presbyterian Missions, after investigation.

SISTERLY TRIO

HARTFORD, Conn.—(CP).—The papers don't tell the ages of Mary, Catharine and Nellie Quinn, three sisters, but two of them have worked in the same mill a total of 115 years, while the third has kept house for the three.

People of England are smoking five time sas many cigarettes as in 1908.



Mary Moore Inquiry Column

QUESTION: Your letter and recipe book received and contents carefully noted. Thanks for the salute, but I am no hero, just a plain Englishman down but far from being out.

I cannot afford any help and also when I look back over the past I am given courage and strength to carry on. My late wife and I were born in the same house. We went to the same Sunday, day and High schools together, were baptized and married by the same minister, confirmed together and both served in the Great War. She is resting in the Nursing Sister plot here.

When I think of the good and bad times we carried on through it doesn't make me a hero to carry on. Our boys were proud of their parents and I still want to keep their confidence. I guess I had better stop this or you will think I am crazy.

I have tried out your suggestions this last week and they worked out O.K., but we have to have our roast on Sunday. That is all I have altered. Your suggestions have some sense to it, no canned cabbage, carrots and such like I have been told to get.

I would like a recipe for Xmas pudding and cake and hard icing, the real hard stuff. I am going to make a cake and pudding and ice the cake even if I faint in the attempt. I tried this last week—a very small one—I got cake outside and pudding inside. I did not bake it enough I guess so I will watch your columns for a recipe.

I will take no more of your time, and thanking yu again.—W.J.R.

ANSWER: It is so generous of you to give me a few more details of your state of mind. A fact is that I don't even believe you are "down". Anyone with your ideals is defintely on the upgrade.

Everyman's Dark Fruit Cake

One lb. seeded raisins (stemmed Lexias are best), 1½ cups water, 1½ cups sugar, ¼ cup butter, 2½ cups flour, 1 teaspoon baking powder, 1 teaspoon soda, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, ½ teaspoon cloves, ½ teaspoon allspice, 1 cup nut meats (walnuts or blanched almonds), ½ cup extremely finely sliced citron peel, 2 eggs. Wash the raisins and cook them with the water and sugar for 5 minutes. Add the butter and set aside to cool. Sift the flour, baking powder, soda, salt and spices together. Break the nut meats and thinly slice the citron (it should be so thin it is transparent). Then add them to the flour mixture. Beat the eggs until very light and fluffy. Add the raisin mixture, then the flour mixture. Beat to mix well. Pour into well greased 8-inch tube pan and bake at 325 degress Fahr. for 1½ hours. This makes a 3-lb. cake. If baked in two loaf pans spread mixture so that it is rather thin in the pans and do not have oven too hot. If preferred the pan may be stood on the rack in your roasting pan. ¾ inch boiling water poured in bottom of roaster, lid put on and cake steam-baked in this manner for 1½ hours. Then it is removed from the pan and baked in the dry heat of the oven at same temperature for ½ hour. This gives a lovely baked result.

Carrot Fruit Pudding

(Costs about 25 cents) for 12.

One cup each grated carrot, potato, suet, brown sugar, raisins, currants (well cleaned), sift together 1 teaspoon soda, 2 cups flour, ½ teaspoon each salt, cinnamon and cloves. (½ cup nuts may be added if desired.) If not moist enough when all these ingredients are mixed add 2 tablespoons water. Steam for 6 hours in pan three-quarters full and serve like plum pudding. Hard sauce for this is made by creaming 1 cup powdered sugar with ¼ cup butter, 1 egg well beaten, ¼ cup boiling water, 1 teaspoon vanilla. Rub sugar and butter to a fine cream, add egg and beat well. Just before serving add boiling water stirring, and vanilla.

Hard Icing for Christmas Cake

Two unbeaten egg whites, lemon juice, icing sugar. Place unbeaten egg whites in bowl, beat in one cup of icing sugar add juice of half a small lemon, then beat in sufficient sugar to make icing consistency of whipped cream. Beat till very light. Spread on cake direct or over almond paste which can be bought at grocery stores, and rolled with rolling pin to fit cake.

QUESTION: What is the best icing for Xmas cake? Kindly send me the recipe for almond icing. Thanking you,—Mrs. P. W.

ANSWER:

Almond Icing Paste

One lb. blanched almonds, 1 teaspoon orange flower water, 2 lbs. icing sugar, 2 eggs, 1 teaspoon almond essence. Put almonds through grinder, using finest cutter. Mix sugar in well. Add beaten eggs, orange flower water, and almond essence. Knead mixture well with hand as in making bread. Boil out to required size. Brush top of cake lightly with egg white to make the paste stick and press almond paste firmly on top of cake. Allow to harden before putting on white icing. When putting almonds through the grinder, use a few drops of rose water, or orange flower water, which will out their natural oil and make them go through the cutter much more easily.

QUESTION: Please send your recipe for Emem's Dark Fruit Cake. Have you a recipe for "Porcupine?" If you have, I'll be very glad to get these two recipes as soon as possible. —I. V.

QUESTION: Please send me as soon as possible recipe for Emem's Dark Fruit Cake. I am sorry to trouble you but I mislaid the recipe and have to ask your aid. Thanking you—A.F.

ANSWER: (To above two questions.)

Emem's Dark Fruit Cake

(I should really be impatient over the number of times I have had to print this but I wouldn't want to be without this recipe myself so all I will say is please clip it this time and put it away in your cake file or paste it into your best cook book.)

One lb. citron, 1¼ lbs. candied cherries (red and green mixed), or apricots, 1 No. 2 can crushed pineapple, 3 lbs. seeded raisins (Lexias are best), 1 lb. currants, ½ lb. raw almonds, ½ lb. flour, 1 teaspoon each cinnamon, baking powder, nutmeg, ½ teaspoon nutmeg, ½ lb. butter, ½ lb. brown sugar, 6 eggs. Slice the citron and cherries or apricots extremely thin. Wash the raisins and dry them well. Blanch and cut the almonds into strips lengthwise. Mix all of these prepared fruits and nuts together. Measure the flour after sifting once, then sift it again with the baking powder and spices. Combine the fruit and flour mixtures thoroughly. Cream the butter and sugar for at least 10 minutes until they are pale and bubbly. Add the beaten egg yolks and blend thoroughly. Add the crushed pineapple alternately with the fruit and flour mixture, stirring until everything is evenly blended. Beat the whites until stiff then fold them in.

Line 4 bread pans with unglased paper (size should be about size of a loaf of bread, but not so high of course). Grease the paper with butter and fill each pan ¾ full.

Place pans on rack in steamer or roaster and fill to a depth of ¾ inch with boiling water. Cover and steam at 275 deg Fahr. in oven, for 2½ hours. Remove cakes from steamer or roaster and bake in dry oven 1 hour at same or lower temperature. This makes about 10 lbs.

I am not sure what you mean by "Porcupine." I have a Porcupine Salad and another recipe for "Apple Porcupine" that I will give you on a chance that one of them is what you want.

Porcupine Salad

For each individual salad provide one large half pear with rounded side up on delicate curled inner head lettuce leaf. Stick into pear whole blanched almonds. Serve with Philadelphia cheese or unsweetened whipped cream.

Apple Porcupine

Peel Spy apples half way down and remove cores. Fill centres with brown sugar and place on baking pan with ¼ inch water and bake until tender. When nearly done remove from oven, sprinkle peeled portion with sugar and stick whole blanched almonds in the peeled surface. Replace in oven to finish baking and tinge almond tips golden. Serve with whipped cream.

We hope this is what you want and that we can help you again.

Dry, Hacking Coughs A Menace To Health

That dry, hacking cough that sticks to you in spite of everything you have done to relieve it is a source of danger, and the longer the cough sticks the more menace it is to your health.

Don't neglect the hacking cough. Get rid of it by using Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. It helps to stimulate, soothe and heal the bronchial tubes, allay irritation, subdue inflammation, loosen the phlegm and mucous, and aid nature to dislodge the morbid accumulations.

MR. ALEXANDER A. SOHM, 84-1st Ave., North Bay, Ont., writes:—"I had a very severe head cold accompanied by a dry, hacking cough. I tried various medicines to get rid of it, but they were useless until a friend told me to take Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. After using one bottle the cold was considerably relieved, and the dry, hacking cough had entirely disappeared."

India Out After Money Lenders Owed Nearly 4 Millions

Peasants With Average Earnings Of $20 a Year Are Chief Victims

By G. E. Powell
(Canadian Press Correspondent.)

CALCUTTA, Jan. 11. — (CP). — Carrying out their program of agrarian relief and endeavouring to placate associations of peasants, three provincial governments have tabled money-lenders' bills, one of which has been pased.

India's tillers of the soil, it is estimated, owe about $3,380,000,000. Primitive methods of cultivation, fragmentation of holdings, ignorance, improvident debts, unorganized marketing disease, and the vagaries of the monsoon have contributed to their predicament.

The Central Banking Inquiry committee estimated in 1931 the average income of an agriculturist in British India does not amount to more than $20 a year. With this depressing background to his working life, the peasant has had frequent recourse to the monely lender, who may be a wealthier peasant, a landlord, a shopkeeper or a money lender pure and simple.

Money-lenders and shopkeepers are often a cast different from the peasants. Some come from the distant parts of India. Pathans from the north west frontier and Maywaris from Rajputana are, for instance, found all over India.

In the era of high prices the peasant's credit was relatively good. He borrowed freely, and also had credit thrust on him. A Madras official report describes him in one district, "There was a regular house-to-house visit by money-lenders in 1928-29, who forced money on Ryots (peasants) even when they were unwilling to take loans. All lands are now either attached or mortgaged to money-lenders."

Nothing Much Left

Then came the slump, the prices of principal crops fell 60 per cent and have not made much recovery since. All the peasant had to show for his past comparative prosperity, as one official put it was a box of trinkets and more rarerly a well-built house. If gold, the trinkets proved useful when Britain went off the gold standard. Attracted by the advance in price, India's country districts have disgorged quantities of hoarded gold. But that has not appreciably lessened the deadweight of debt.

Before the new constitution came into force various bills were passed. Land alienation acts tried to prevent the wholesale passing of land to creditors at rock-bottom prices. Debt conciliation boards were set up in some provinces.

The relatively Conservative governments of those days—the nationalist Congress party was boycotting the legislatures — handled the money-lending classes comparatively gently. On the franchise then obtaining the wealthier classes had a strong hold on the legislative councils. The new franchise gives much greater voting power to the badly stricken countryside.

Bidding for its favors, candidates promised relief from debt. Congess in particular had an advanced economic program. Now the peasants are demanding honoring of pledges. Waving red flags they have marched in thousands to provincial capitals crying for a moratorium on their debts.

Most attention has been aroused by the Madras agriculturists' relief bill sponsored by the Madras congress ministry. Provincial newspapers, even some Indian owned, normally supporting the congress, express misgivings about the effect on rural credit. The bill is opposed by the European group in the legislature.

In 1935 the debts of Madras agriculturists were estimated at $750,000,000 with 93 per cent being owed to private lenders. The agricultural population numbers 34,500,000, whose average annual income per head from crops worked out at $10.

EIGHT SAVED FROM FIRE

MONTREAL, Jan. 11 (CP).—Five children and three women were rescued by firemen early today from a burning two-storey apartment and business building at Monkland and Oxford Streets. Damage was estimated at $35,000.

As streams of water were played on the building, firemen entered a window and carried to safety Mrs. Helen Drab, 38, and her five children, ranging from a month to 10 years old.

Two women in an adjoining residence, one a paralytic and the other in a plaster cast, were brought from the building and sent to hospital.

TIDY SUM GIVEN BETHANY CHURCH

(Examiner Correspondence.)

BETHANY, Jan. 11.—The Women's Auxiliary of St. Paul's Anglican church held their regular monthly meeting on Thursday at the home of Mrs. Dave Cairns. The president, Mrs. A. R. Holden, opened the meeting, the retiring treasurer's report was read by the secretary, which seemed highly commendable. A purse of $125 was unanimously placed in the hands of the church-wardens for application, whenver required for the promotion of church expenditure. Mrs. Holden read a chapter of the new study book.

Busy hands were employed on work prepared for bazzar sales and a very full afternoon's work accomplished. Mrs. Holden offered the rectory for the next meeting in February, when a donated quilt top will be quilted for the bale to be sent out in the near future. An order for knitting to be done by the society was introduced by a member at this meeting, which received unanimous approval.

The hostess, assisted by several ladies, served a very plentuous supper, provided by Mrs. Padgham, Mrs. Holden, Mrs. McCartney and Mrs. Cairns, and a social time enjoyed by all present.

Mrs. Sid. Armstrong was at home to a number of her lady friends on Friday evening, when several tables of bridge were enjoyed for several hours. Those present were: Mrs. Roy Jarvis, Mrs. Bill Mark of North Bay; Mrs. F. C. Dawe, Peterborough; Mrs. J. McKinnon, Mrs. Price, Mrs. Will Morton, A. Bray, Mrs. H. Payne, Mrs. F. W. Reynolds, Mrs. W. Brown, Mrs. D. Cairns, Mrs. C. Reynolds, Jr. Mrs. McCartney, Mrs. A. Holden, Mrs. G. Foster, Mrs. J. J. Clarke, Mrs. Carr, Mrs. Carscadden, Miss L. Morton, Mrs. W. Rowan, Mrs. H. Ryley, Miss Washington, Miss Winnie Nesbitt, Mrs. Padgham.

A number of Mrs. Armstrong's intended guests were prevented attending owing to the precarious driving on roads at a distance from the village.

High scores were awarded to Mrs. W. Mark and Mrs. Harold Padgham. Second in line were awarded to Mrs. W. Morton and Mrs. C. Reynolds, Jr. Third prizes were won by Misses A. Bray and Miss L. Washington.

Representing Canada at a Washington conference considering proposals for an international air service which would link American air lines with the forthcoming trans-Canada airway are these three aviation officials. They are Col. Vernon I. Smart, deputy minister of transport; J. A. Wilson, director of civil aviation for Canada; and Lt. Com. C. P. Edwards, chief of air services. The conference is expected to produce a plan whereby American air liners will make certain Canadian fields regular ports of call, while trans-Canada airlines will establish feeder services connecting with American lines.

MILLBROOK

INSTITUTE MEETS AT BURNHAM HOME

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, Jan. 11.—The first meeting of the new year of the local branch of the Women's Institute was held on Saturday at the home of Miss Pearl Burnham, Main street, with the president, Mrs. R. J. McKnight, in the chair.

Communications read by the secretary, Mrs. J. W. Hilton, included a request for a contribution from the Navy League, with circular explaining its work; letters of thanks from recipients of remembrances at Christmas time, including Mrs. W. E. Russell, who enclosed her membership fee for the current year; Mrs. J. McBride; Mrs. G. Brown; Miss Mary Skitch; and Miss Mary Hampton.

The secretary reported that fourteen boxes and a number of cards had been sent out under the "Christmas Cheer" project, and a new undertaking, discussed at some length, and finally decided upon, was the making of quilts to be given to cases of need locally, or if not required in this way, to be sold and thus add to the Institute's funds, which are at present in need of replenishing. At the February meeting the roll call will be answered with a quilt block eighteen inches square, in 'crazy' pattern, the smaller blocks being sewed to the foundation square.

The delegate to the annual convention for the Federated W. I. of Ontario central area, Mrs. Hilton, gave a comprehensive report of the three days' sessions, when over 500 delegates were in attendance.

Peterborough and other branches were mentioned as corresponding regularly with Institutes overseas, and the point was stressed that "any branch that wishes to correspond with an overseas society may secure a list of names by writing to Miss Powell, at Toronto." Health, child welfare, and education were the three items stressed at the convention.

The hostess served delicious candy during the social hour at the close, announcement being made before dismissal that the standing committee on Legislation, which was disappointed because its speaker could not be present, as planned, at the January gathering, will have charge at the February meeting.

Norwood Observes Week Of Prayer

(Examiner Correspondence.)

NORWOOD, Jan. 11.—The services observing the Week of Prayer in Norwood were brought to a close on Thursday evening when the last meeting was held in the United Church Sunday School room with Rev. A. S. Kempt of Havelock the speaker of the evening, who gave a very inspirational address. All the meetings were well attended and most interesting and instructive addresses given by the various clergymen of the village.

Rev. J. U. MacIntosh chose as his subject, "Thanksgiving," in the Anglican church on Monday evening. In the Baptist church, Rev. A. S. Cleland on Tuesday night gave a splendid address on "The Universal Church," and Rev. Mr. Lemon took as his subject, "Our National Life" at the meeting held in the Presbyterian church on Wednesday evening.

LAKE FREIGHT UP

CLEVELAND, Jan. 11 (AP).—The Lake Carriers' Association announced yesterday its annual report to be issued in March, will show the bulk freight commerce of the Great Lakes in 1937, totalled 134,688,239 net tons, the highest movement since the record established in 1929. Movements of the five mayor commodities—iron ore, bituminous coal, anthracite coal, grain and limestone —showed an increase of 20,273,491 tons.

BAILIEBORO

MAILMEN UNABLE TO COVER ROUTES

(Examiner Correspondence.)

BAILIEBORO, Jan. 11.— During the past week township roads have been opened for motor traffic to some extent. Although many of the concession lines running north and south are still closed to traffic.

On some quarter lines path masters have been forced to make the roads through the fields for sleigh and cutter traffic only and unless the weather becomes very mild the snow will not be removed from the regular road until spring. Motoring is very heavy on all the township roads and only the residents who are in urgent need of getting to town on business are venturing out with cars.

Bread trucks and mail men have only been covering portions of their regular beats during the past two weeks and in many instances every day, bread trucks have been hauled out by horses. It is generally thought that mild weather will only make traveling with motor cars more difficult as the ruts will wear deeper and the roadbed is already covered underneath the snow with a heavy covering of ice. Highway 28, both north and south from the village has been in excellent condition and only township roads have been seriously effected. The snow however has enabled farmers to get their year's supply of wood hauled as well as saw logs to the mills and other hauling done and in this respect the good sleighing has been a boon to the farmers.

Services Resumed In Norwood Church

(Examiner Correspondence.)

NORWOOD, Jan. 11.—The members of the United Church congregation have resumed their church services and Sunday School in the Sunday School room of the church which is near completion of the rebuilding followed the damages caused by the fire in the church about four months ago.

In the re-building the Sunday School room has been made larger by taking away two class rooms on the main floor and having a second story erected where four new class rooms have been made. The present room has the seating capacity for about three hundred persons.

Nearly 50,000 American motor vehicles entered Argentina in the last year.

YOUNG WOMEN MEET IN NORWOOD HOME

(Examiner Correspondence.)

NORWOOD, Jan. 11.—The Young Women's Auxiliary of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church held their January meeting at the home of Miss Lila Burgess with Mrs. Morgan in the chair. The meeting opened by singing of a hymn, followed by all repeating the Lord's Prayer in unison. Miss Annie Ferguson gave an interesting reading from the Glad Tidings followed by the scripture reading which was taken by Mrs. A. Bongard. Mrs. Ralph Cuthbertson led in the circle of prayer. Miss Ruth Wildman gave an interesting reading, "New Year's Resolutions," after which Miss Stewart gave the topic in a very pleasing manner, choosing as her subject, "The Early Life and Work of the Labrador Missionary, Sir Wilfred Grenfell." Miss Ruth Wildman, president, took charge of the meeting. Plans for raising money was discussed and the roll called, showing twelve members present.

Singing of a hymn and the repeating of the Mizpah Benediction brought the meeting to a close. The hostess then served a dainy lunch and a social hour was spent over the tea cup.

TRUCKER CLAIMS RAILS CUT RATES SLICED HIS TRADE

TORONTO, Jan. 11—(CP).—Special competitive rates set by the Canadian National Railways for both freight and express shipments from Kitchener, Ont., to Toronto took a great deal of business away from his company, A. J. Litvin, president of the K. and L. Motor Express, Limited, Toronto, said Monday.

Mr. Litwin was called for cross-examination a sthe Chevrier Royal Transport Commission, investigating the freght trucking and passenger carrying business on Ontario's highways, resumed here to-day. Evidence of Mr. Litvin, his figures confirmed by railway counsel, showed C.N.R. express rates to be lower than freight rates in some cases.

Mr. Litvin presented figures on taxes paid by his company and said he "couldn't stand an increase." Joseph Singer, Commission counsel, asked him if license reductions on trucks recently made had been passed on to the consumer. The answer was no.

Price Cut In Half.

Witness said when his company trucked chesterfield suites from Kitchener to Toronto the railway rate was 86 cents a hundred. Today it was 43 cents.

"We always got 50 cents a hundred but we have none of that business now," he said.

"Is it reasonable to believe that the railways to get business away from you, made reductions to that extent," asked the chairman.

"When the rate was put so low we put our vans away," said Litvin.

"The peculiar thing is I'm told the railways haven't got this traffic," said J. G. Gillanders, counsel for the Railway Association of Canada.

On boots, shoes, rubber goods, tires, leather goods, pajamas and shirts, all produced in Kitchener, C.N.R. express gave a special rate of 35 cents a hundred, Litvin read from a memo.

Mr. Duncan said the express rate, normally higher than freight, was in these cases lower than freight, the latter being 37 cents a hundred. Mr. Gillanders confirmed this.

Weight Limit Raised.

In addition to reducing rates the C.N.R. had reduced the weight required to get benefit of carload rates on furniture, said Mr. Litvin.

Lewis Duncan, counsel for the Automotive Transport Association, said witness would show the railways themselves were responsible more than anyone else for the disorganization of the industry.

"We're not concerned with the actual rate warfare," said Chairman Mr. Justice E. R. E. Chevrier. "Seems a pity we have to go into that issue as to whose is the guilt for this unfair competition."

"There is nothing morally wrong in railways cutting rates under the present law," said Mr. Duncan. "Though perhaps it is contrary to the Railway Act to carry freight at less than cost."

Mr. Singer suggested that if that were the case, the truck men had a solution in an application to the Railway Board for rate revisions. Mr. Duncan said he was glad to have the suggestion.

KIDNAP CHARGE IS LAID AGAINST LONDON MAN

Debris Of Missing Samoan Clipper Is Found At Sea

20-Ton Flying Boat Vanishes Tuesday After Oil Leak Forces Her Down in South Seas on Auckland Route

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 12—(AP)—The United States navy today notified Pan American Airways, which is seeking its missing Samoan Clipper, that an oil slick was discovered 12 miles west of Pago Pago and that a navy launch was recovering parts of wreckage. "Identification satisfactory," said the unsigned message to the navy.

That phrase "identification satisfactory" was understood by Francis Walton of Pan American, to mean that the wreckage was that of the missing Samoan Clipper, last heard from late yesterday when the plane reported it was turning back to Pago Pago. No mention was made of any surviving.

The Samoan Clipper carried neither passengers nor mail. She was loaded with 900 pounds of express for Australia. She left Honolulu Sunday with her crew.

Feared Menace of Fire.

Disappearance of Pan America's 21-ton Samoan Clipper when apparently only three minutes from Tutuila had led to fear here to-day that disaster—possibly a fire and explosion—had overtaken the Trans-Pacific flying boat in the South Seas.

An oil slick was reported sighted 12 miles from Tutuila, roughly in the vicinity where a column of smoke was sighted yesterday.

The plane and her crew of seven men, headed by the veteran Trans-Pacific aviator Captain Edwin C. Musick, had not been heard from since 3:27 p.m. E.S.T. yesterday.

The Clipper, close to Tutuila, said she would land within three minutes on her return from two hours of flight toward Auckland, N.Z., on the recently inaugurated California-to-New Zealand service.

Disappearance of the plane cast a pall over residents of Tutuila, who were on the fringe of the United States Navy's hunt last summer for Amelia Earhart, who vanished in the South Seas on a round-the-world flight.

The concensus here was the Samoan Clipper might have caught fire while dumping gasoline in preparation for a forced landing because of motor trouble.

After an unsuccessful five-hour search by a naval plane over the vicinity traversed by the clipper, the aircraft tender Advocet sailed from Pago Pago to continue the search through the night.

The Advocet had a rendezvous today with the searching plane, piloted by Lieut. T. B. Williamson, at the spot where oil slick was reported sighted.

TWO GUNMEN ROB BANK AT WESTON OF $1,000 IN CASH

TORONTO, Jan. 12.— (CP).—Two men held up the Weston branch of the Bank of Toronto at noon to-day, escaping with $1,000. The branch teller fired several shots after the car in which the robbers escaped. Weston is on the western outskirts of Toronto.

The hold-up men, armed but unmasked, overlooked several thousand dollars in the unlocked vault, bank officials said. Only G. A. Langstaff, the manager, and Dan Martin, teller, were in the bank when the two men entered the office and threatened them with long-barreled black revolvers.

The taller of the middle-aged bandits leaped over the counter, opened the door of the teller's cage and covered Martin.

"Get over, this is a hold-up," he said.

The other bandit, older and fatter than the tall one, entered the office at the rear of the bank and told the manager: "You get over too."

Back Out The Door.

As the bandits turned to leave Martin rushed into the cage, grabbed his revolver and fired at them. Martin rushed outside and saw the bandits running east along Eglinton Avenue toward a blue sedan about 75 feet from the bank entrance.

Martin let fly another shot at the retreating bandits but missed again. The light car was last seen going east along Eglinton.

A woman living in the flat above the bank saw the hold-up men leaving the front door and notified police.

It was the fourth bank hold-up in York County in nine months. May 4, 1937, the Royal Bank of Canada branch at Schomberg was robbed of $2,000; October 27 the Canadian Bank of Commerce branch at King was robbed of $600, and the branch of the same bank at Maple was robbed December 22 of $300.

Giant Battleships Loom For France

PARIS, Jan. 12 (A.P.).—Members of the Chamber of Deputies' Navy Committee declared to-day the French Government is considering construction of two 42,000-ton battleships to meet Italy's new naval building program.

Conferences of the Naval General Staff, Cesar Campinchi, Minister of the Navy, and the Chamber's Committee were said to have resulted in a decision to build the warships provided France's naval bases were adequate to receive them.

The navy has begun a survey of its bases and port facilities to determine that point.

TORONTO AVIATOR KILLED IN NORTH

SIOUX LOOKOUT, Ont., Jan. 12—(CP)—Pilot J. H. (Tim) McCoy of Toronto was killed today when the General Airways plane he was piloting crashed at North Pine near Hudson. McCoy was alone in the machine.

McCoy, 34, was flying from Sioux Lookout to Hudson, 5 miles west of here, when the plane crashed into a bush. Search parties found the burning remains of the plane from which the pilot had been unable to escape.

R. Botham of Hudson said he saw the machine fall. A search plane piloted by Bud Scouten of Hudson was unable to land within two miles of McCoy's plane and ground parties had to hack their way two miles through woods to find the wreckage.

Last Minute News Flashes

PARIS—"If Great Britain or another western power intervenes in the Sino-Japanese conflict they will find Germany and Italy at the sideof Japan," Rear-Admiral Shinjuro Yamamoto told the Cairo correspondent of the newspaper Paris-Midi today.

Tore Down Photo

Highway Patrolmen To Be Increased Across Province

Attorney-General Conant Starts Immediate Drive To Reduce Accidents—Orders Adequate Sentences

TORONTO, Jan. 12—(CP)—In future traffic act violations in Ontario which justify court proceedings "the prosecution shall be vigorous and the sentence adequate to the offence," according to Hon. G. D. Conant, attorney-general.

Mr. Conant announced yesterday an immediate and substantial increase of the motorcycle patrol force of the provincial police has been ordered. At the same time, he announced crown attorneys had been issued instructions as to how to prevent, where possible, and prosecute, where necessary, violations of the law.

Intoxicated or reckless drivers will be the particular target of the attorney-general's department. Instructions to crown authorities read: "Where there is evidence that a driver is intoxicated and also evidence of reckless driving, charges should be laid at once, both under the criminal code and under the highway traffic act. The charge of driving while intoxicated being the most serious, should be disposed of first."

BUDGET SURPLUS CHEERS N.B. HEADS

FREDERICTON, N.B., Jan. 12 (C.P.). — New Brunswick faced a new fiscal year to-day, cheered by Provincial Secretary-Treasurer C. T. Richards' report of the province's first surplus in eight years.

In a statement of finances of the province printed in a special edition of the Royal Gazette, a surplus of $29,090 on ordinary account was recorded for the fiscal year ending October 31, in contrast to the $283,579 deficit predicted in the 1937 budget.

Permanent paving of highways was held largely responsible for a jump of $9,125,978 in the public debt of the province, placed at a net figure of $66,433,682, after allowance had been made for sinking funds totalling $10,032,833.

Revenues soared to $7,869,483, more than $600,000 higher than the previous record year, 1930. Expenditures also touched a new peak at $7,840,393.

CONSCIENCE PRICKS

YORKTON, Sask., Jan. 12 (CP)—Alderman D. S. Larmour's refusal last night to vote favorably on third reading of a bylaw to license pinball machines means they may be operated here without license temporarily at least. A unanimous council vote was required for the bylaw's passage and Mr. Lamour said his conscience would not permit him to vote for "those machines."

Doctor Gives Life In Aiding Lepers

Montreal, Jan. 12 (CP)

FROM a native leper colony in far-off Nigeria came word yesterday of the death of youthful Dr. William J. Jotcham, native of Montreal, who left London, England, only seven months ago to serve in "the whiteman's grave." Dr. Jotcham, who was only 25 years old, was one of the youngest students ever to graduate in medicine from McGill University. After graduation he served six months in the London School of Tropical Diseases and then left to dedicate his life to aiding Nigerian lepers.

Owner Calls Police When Intruder Takes a Swing At Him Also

STRATFORD, Ont., Jan. 12—(CP)—Roy Brown, 26, Palmerston, was remanded a week for observation when he appeared before Magistrate J. A. Makins to-day, charged with breaking and entering. He was not asked to plead.

Brown was arrested earlier in the day when Bert Stubbs, living on the highway west of here, told police a man broke into the kitchen of his home, smashed two doors with an axe then allegedly swung the axe at Stubb's head.

The Stubbs family was awakened by a din at the rear door, Stubbs said. By the time Stubbs reached the kitchen one door was smashed and another door splintered. Jack Stubbs, a son, telephone police.

The older Stubbs told police the man grabbed him by the throat then swung the axe at his head.

When High County Constable Douglas and County Constable William Innes, Stratford, arrived, they found Brown on the highway near the house and took him in custody. Stubbs identified the man as the one who chopped up the doors.

Police said Brown was intoxicated and that he told them he was put out of an automobile by some other men and wanted to telephone, but the people did not answer his knock at the door.

Refrigeration On Its Way For Autos To End Sizzling Summer Rides

Detroit, Jan. 12 (AP)

THE automatically refrigerated automobile to make summer driving comfortable will not be long in making its appearance, L. W. Child, air conditioning engineer, said today in a paper prepared for delivery at the annual meeting of the Society of Automotive Engineers.

He suggested the use of a non-toxic gas and an engine-driven compressor, much like the system in the average household mechanical refrigerator, to give the motorist a cool ride in 100 degrees of temperature at midday.

"Just what form this system will take," he said, "depends upon future development work. However, it is certain that in the near future some form of safe, economical, automotive refrigerating system will appear.

Remanded To Jan. 19 Until Counsel Found For Defence

Wilmer Steel Has Nothing to Say When Accused Of Detaining Girl 7 All Night Against Her Will.

LONDON, Ont., Jan. 12—(CP)—Wilmer Steel, 29, of London, was charged today with kidnapping Barbara Hebblethwaite, seven-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Hebblethwaite (55 Clarence street). Magistrate Menzies remanded the prisoner to jail until January 19.

After Magistrate Menzies had read the charge Crown Attorney Norman Newton arose.

"Before the accused elects trial or enters a plea I would suggest he should have counsel," declared the crown.

"This is a very serious charge. I suppose he is without means. Perhaps if your worship would ask some member of the bar to act for him they would do so.

"I would not feel comfortable if this man were allowed to elect or plead without legal advice."

"This is a very serious charge," agreed Magistrate Menzies.

"Yes," said Mr. Newton. "May I suggest a remand."

Turning to the prisoner Magistrate Menzies asked: "Are you able to get a lawyer?"

"No sir," replied Steel.

"I will remand you until January 19," decided the magistrate.

Talks Very Little.

The prisoner was taken back to the county jail to await his next appearance in court. He offered no information to officials in court, speaking only when he was asked a question.

No report was given in court on the mental examination ordered by Magistrate Menzies when Steel first appeared in court on the vagrancy charge. The court announced that the vagrancy charge would be withdrawn.

He is held without bail.

Last Friday Barbara Hebblethwaite disappeared shortly after she walked out of Grovernor Simcoe School carry her best doll. She had been at a school party. When she failed to arrive home her parents called police and organized a searching party to look for her.

An All-Night Search.

All Friday night and Saturday, police, neighbors, and relatives searched. The little girl returned home on Saturday evening and told police she had been kept for 24

GERTRUDE POGUE DIES AT HER POST IN ADDIS ABABA

(Examiner Correspondence.)

OMEMEE, Jan. 12.—Word of the death of Gertrude Pogue of Reaboro at her mission station in Addis Ababa, Ethiopia, on Monday was received last night by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Pogue, in a cablegram from the Sudan Interior Mission.

Members of the family at the Ops township home this morning said they had no particulars of the death of the 25-year-old girl. She underwent an appendicitis operation at Addis Ababa on December 20 and death may have been the result of post-operative complications they said. They were awaiting further particulars.

Following by scarcely two years the death of her missionary fiance, Tom Devens of Toronto, who was the victim of Ethiopian native assassins, Miss Pogue's passing has an aspect of unusually dramatic tragedy. She had been in the mission field two and one-half years and met Devers at the far-away post.

Miss Pogue was born at the Pogue farm near Omemee and gained her early schooling in the public schools of the district and the Omemee high school. Studies at the Toronto Bible College followed and she also took a nursing course in Toronto. For a time she lived in Peterborough and was well-known at St. Paul's Presbyterian Church there.

Her desire to go into service in the Ethiopian mission field came to her one night when she heard a lecture of the famed Dr. Lambie, field secretary of the Sudan Interior Mission. She left her home here in May, 1935, to go to the mission field.

Canada's First Tin Mine Looms Near Timmins

Prospector Strikes Vein 12 Feet Wide By 500 Long And Stakes 24 Claims

TIMMINS, Ont., Jan. 12.—(CP).—Discovery of a tin deposit in Carscallen Township, 23 miles west of Timmins, was reported to-day by W. V. Hocken, prospector, who said as an assay made by the Ontario Department of Mines showed mineral taken from his property had values of six and seven per cent.

Hocken said he had staked 24 claims in the area. The vein on which he was working was 12 feet wide and 500 feet long.

Tin in commercial quantities has never been mined in North America, the world's supply coming from the Federated Malay States, Bolivia, Dutch East Indies, China and Siam.

FIVE TROOP DIVISIONS?

MONTREAL, Jan. 12 (CP)—Camillien Houde, former Montreal mayor and one-time leader of Quebec Conservatives, opened his campaign for election to the House of Commons last night by charging there is a secret report at Ottawa from the "British military organization" that says Canada should effect an armament program to enable it to send five troop divisions wherever necessary for defence of the empire.

"Toothache" Alcohol Draws $200 Fine

Winnipeg, Jan. 12 (CP)

WHEN Mary Mudray; her son, William, and his wife failed to convince Magistrate R. B. Graham alcohol found in their home was for toothache, they were fined $200 apiece. They went to jail for three months when unable to meet the fines.

Trenton Squadrons Fly Nightly In All Kinds Of Weather

Pilots Travel "Blind," Land By Lights, Preparing For Warfare Conditions

TRENTON, Ont., Jan. 12.—(CP).—Royal Canadian Air Force squadrons, flying in all varieties of weather, cruise nightly over this Eastern Ontario district. The flights, Wing Commander A. E. Godfrey, commandant of the Trenton Air Station, said to-day, are "only part of the regular curriculum."

Night-flying instruction is becoming an increasingly important branch of R.C.A.F. training activities. All pilots must qualify in what is known as "flying blind." Each night, from dusk until after midnight, squadrons of ski-equipped machines take off from the air station here, cruise about 50 miles and return to land on a floodlighted field.

At R.C.A.F. stations throughout Canada this training is aimed at teaching young pilots to take off and land at lighted airdromes, to navigate solely by instrument, to locate themselves at night by directional finding and, in general, to equip themselves wit hthat knowledge which modern warfare has made it necessary to acquire.

Two-way wireless sets are in operation during the nightly flights. A large tower atop one of the hangars carries a beacon for the guidance of the planes. Pilots use their own discretion as to the distance they fly, but the usual cruising range is about 50 miles.

Flights are made in all but the stormiest weather. During a heavy snow storm, machines are grounded and instruction in theory is given. All planes carry regulation lights, two forward and one rear with side lights on the wing tips. Motorists from Belleville and Trenton gather at the station nightly to watch the manoeuvres.

Revenge On His Wife Costs Hubby $25

Patchogue, N.Y., Jan. 12 (UP)

LEO Haisch became suspicious of how his wife, a waitress, spent her day off, he testified in Police Court today, so he investigated and found she spent it with a volunteer fireman. Haisch said he turned in a false alarm "to get revenge." He got a $25 fine. The volunteer fireman was fired for failing to answer the call.

Owner Refuses Roosternappers $25 Fears Pet Now In A Stew

Dallas, Jan. 12 (AP)

BEAUTIFICUS, a pedigreed rooster, was probably the meaty part of a stew today.

The deadline for his release by payment of $25 ransom passed last night and Attorney Maury Hughes, his owner, feared the worst.

Hughes had been instructed to place $25 in a tin can at a spot in the residential section. Failure to follow instructions, the ransom demand said, would place Beautificus in a stew pot.

Hughes knew the "roosternappers" were on the level—they enclosed two of Beautificus' tail feathers with their note.

Canadian Killed

A large transport aeroplane crashed in flames near Bozeman, Mont., killing Douglas MacKay, former Ottawa newspaperman and nine others. At Winnipeg, Mrs. MacKay said that MacKay was flying from Seattle, Washington, to Winnipeg. He was publicity director for the Hudson's Bay Company.

ACCUSED BRANDED VILLAGE HALF WIT IN MURDER TRIAL

CORNWALL, Ont., Jan. 12. — (CP).—Daniel Thauvette, 21, of Lancaster, charged with the murder of 16-year-old Alex Larinere on Oct. 21, was referred to by witnesses at preliminary hearing to-day as "the half wit of the village." The case was later adjourned for one week.

Dr. A. R. Laguire, jail physician cross-examined by Dodolphe Danis, K.C., defence counsel, said he had examined Thauvette, and rated Thauvette's mentality as that of a boy 12 or 14 years of age.

Dr. W. R. W. Haight, Lancaster, told Mr. Danis he knew Thauvette and while it is known he is not normal mentally said "I would not go so far as to say he is the half wit of the village."

Moses Dufresne, C. N. R. section foreman, swore he knew Thauvette well, and that he was considered to be "the village half wit."

Thauvette is alleged to have bat-

3 People And $400 Saved From Fire

OTTAWA, Jan. 12 (C.P.).—Three persons were rescued in sub-zero weather to-day when firemen fought a blaze in a stucco-frame house owned by John J. Shea, coal merchant.

From a window Monica Foubert and her brother, John, crawled to an adjoining roof, but Mrs. A. Foubert was trapped in a rear room by the flames and taken down a ladder by firemen. The two persons on the adjoining roof, shivering in a temperature of about 15 below zero, were taken to the ground by other firemen.

Shea took with him when he left home for work $1,400 that was hidden in the house. Jack Foubert, his nephew, left a wallet containing $400. Firemen found it. The edges were scorched, but the bills were intact.

FLIER DITCHED AS NEW ENGINE JUMPS SWITCH

173 Passengers Unhurt But 2 Crew Get Burns

CHATHAM, Ont., Jan. 12.—(CP).—Striking a switch at Fletcher station while speeding on its New York-to-Detroit run, the engine of the Michigan Central Railways passenger train jumped the tracks and buried its nose against the side of a built-up right-of-way early today.

Engineer Gregory Hogan and Fireman "French" McNabb, both of St. Thomas, Ont., escaped from the wreckage with superficial cuts about the head and arms and minor burns from heated lubricating oil which sprayed the engine. No one else was injured.

Passengers estimated to number 173 by Frank McElroy, assistant general manager of the company, were not even shaken.

About 200 feet of rail was torn up by the train which became disengaged from the engine and continued 500 feet over the line without leaving the track. The train pushed a derailed baggage car ahead of it.

Pending an investigation, officials of the company were unwilling to hazard any guess as to cause of the accident.

Near End Of Run

The express train which was taken in charge by the Canadian crew under Conductor Harry Newkirk of St. Thomas at Buffalo last night, was nearing the end of its run to Detroit.

From disposition of the wreckage, it appeared the engine, one of the latest type and purchased by the

NEWS CENSORSHIP SAID FEDERAL JOB

OTTAWA, Jan. 12. — (CP).—Newspaper censorship is a matter for the Dominion Parliament and not for a Provincial Legislature, Aime Geoffrion, Dominion Government counsel, to-day told the Supreme Court of Canada as he continued his argument on reference concerning validity of Alberta legislation dealing with newspapers, credit regulation and bank taxation.

Mr. Geoffrion reached the newspaper bill just before the court adjourned for lunch after spending nearly a day and a half on the credit regulation and a brief time on bank taxation.

Chief Justice Sir Lyman Duff asked what the legal argument against the newspaper bill was and why it was not property and civil rights under provincial jurisdiction.

Mr. Geoffrion said it might be incidental to civil rights but the liberty of the press fell under Dominion jurisdiction over peace, order and good government. He said liberty of the press was the freedom of persons to publish newspapers if they chose and without government influence as to what they published in their newspapers.

Ottawa's Right

"The Dominion government might regulate every newspaper in Canada in any way it chose," said the Chief Justice.

"Oh yes," said Mr. Geoffrion, "I am compelled to take that stand."

Mr. Geoffrion gave the court an outline of the Social Credit Act which is not part of the reference before the court but which, he said, was a key measure in a general scheme to establish Social Credit in Alberta and a measure which the court should examine.

He argued the Alberta credit clearing house was a bank under another name and that its transactions would be banking transactions, falling, therefore, under Dominion jurisdiction and beyond the powers of the provincial legislature.

"A point against you might be that it is just an elaborate system of barter," the chief justice remarked.

Mr. Geoffrion said barter was the exchange of one article for another, but the transactions with which he was dealing would involve exchange of goods for certificates of credit which would serve the same purpose as cheques on a bank or paper money.

Dominion's Cheese Lags In Britain

Market Expert Sees U.K. Production Easing Off And Believes Canadians Should Step Up Exports

LONDON, Ont., Jan. 12—(CP)—Exports of Canadian cheese to the United Kingdom are not increasing as fast as home production in that country is decreasing J. F. Singleton, associated director of market services, dairy products and cold storage, Dominion Department of Agriculture, said in addressing the convention of the Dairymen's Association of Western Ontario here today.

"Some keen observers in the United Kingdom are of the opinion that with unchanged economic conditions and buying power, the market cannot absorb a greater quantity of cheese than the 1936 volume of supply without depressing the whole price structure," he said.

"While there can be no assurance that such will be the case, it is reported that the make of cheese in New Zealand is not expected to fluctuate greatly during the next few years.

"The make of cheese in the United Kingdom is decreasing, and it is believed that with volume of imports from New Zealand remaining at about their present level, imports of Canadian cheese cannot increase by a quantity substantially greater than the decrease in the make in the United Kingdom without depressing the whole price level—that is, provided consumer purchasing power remains at present levels.

"The decrease in the cheese production of the United Kingdom during 1937 as compared with 1936 will, it is reported by the milk board of the United Kingdom, be approximately 24,000,000 pounds.

5,000,000 Pounds Less on Hand

"The increase in receipts during the first 11 months of 1937 was—from Canada 14,100,000 pounds, and from New Zealand 4,700,000 pounds, a total of 18,800,000 pounds.

LEGISLATOR ASKS N.Y. RING PROBE

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—(AP). — The "umpty-teenth" threat to investigate the doings of the New York State Athletic Commission, was made Tuesday.

Crawford W. Hawkins, a member of the State Legislature, has asked that body to authorize a sweeping probe into the conduct of New York boxing with special emphasis on the part, if any, gangsters and racketeers are playing in the fight game.

In a resolution introduced at Albany, Hawkins proposed creation of a committee of three State Senators and four Assemblymen to make the inquiry and report to the Legislature by March 1, 1939.

"I have been very much interested in newspaper stories that some of the fighters and some of the managers are owned or controlled by racketeers," said Hawkins. "If such a situation exists, I think we should know of it."

He said he wanted an investigation of both the general conduct of Commission and general practice in vogue in relation to professional and amateur boxing and wrestling.

Brig.-Gen. John J. Phelan, Commission Chairman, said: "I don't know what the resolution is about. Until I can see a copy of it I don't want to comment."

The fight clans greeted the news from Albany with a "ho hum, so what?" attitude. Most followers of the tin-ear profession predicted the Hawkins' resolution would be knicked around in committee for a while, then left to die a natural death.

Judge F. M. Field Retires Jan. 21

TORONTO, January 12—(CP).—Judge Frank Meade Field, a Judge of York County since April 21, 1931, will retire from the bench here Jan. 21, he announced to-day.

Besides county court cases, Judge Field has served as Judge of Admiralty Court since his appointment Dec. 7, 1932. He was called to the Bar of Ontario in 1887 after graduating from the University of Toronto and study at Osgoode Hall.

Member of a family long established in Cobourg, Ont., he practised law there and at Colborne, Ont., before his elevation to the Bench. He was a police magistrate at Colborne and for some years was a member of Cobourg town council.

TROOPS, ARTILLERY LEAVING INTERIOR IN NEW JAP DRIVE

SHANGHAI, Jan. 12 (AP). — The Japanese army spokesman announced to-day Japanese forces were "prepared for the next operation, if necessary."

He gave no hint of the objective of the "next operation" or of the conditions implied by "if necessary."

(The spokesman's statement was made while an Imperial conference met with Emperor Hirohito at Tokyo to decide Japan's future policy in China.)

Chian warfronts, the spokesman said, were quiet. Japanese planes rained bombs on the Hankow airfield and three newly discovered Chinese airfields in the interior. Japanese forces in Shantung Province pushed westward from Tsingtao, which they occupied without resistance yesterday, and southward toward the Lunghai Railway in a drive to trap thousands of Chinese troops.

(On China's southern coast, a Japanese cruiser and destroyer exchanged shells with Chinese Boca Tigris forts guarding the river approach to Canton, the southern metropolis.

Jap Destroyer Hit?

(The destroyer retired, apparently hit, after attemping to land a boatload of marines on Sampanchow Island. Four British-owned river vessels ran the gauntlet of shell-fire to safety.

(A Japanese push against South China to choke the flow of war supplies from the British Crown Colony of Hong Kong to Canton and thence to Hankow has been expected for several weeks.)

Heavy movements of Japanese troops and artillery from the interior to the coast were reported in Shanghai.

Foreign advices from Hankow said 24 Japanese bombers "flying very high" dropped 100 bombs on the airfield there.

The new raids on Chinese airdromes were designed to cripple reorganization of Mme. Chiang Kai-Shek's air force. Japanese planes bombed Liuchow, 900 miles southwest of Shanghai; Kiang, 500 miles to the south-west, and Nancheng, 400 miles from Shanghai in the same direction.

Two hangars were said to have been destroyed at Kian. Chinese said the Japanese bombers missed their objective at Nancheng and declared a Japanese plane was shot down at Liuchow. The Chinese also asserted their fliers destroyed 10 Japanese planes in a raid on the Japanese airfield at Kwangteh.

Blaze Threatens Nottawa Village

COLLINGWOOD, Ont., Jan. 12.—(CP)—Fire threatened the village of Nottawa, four miles south of here, early today when Joe Metcalfe's grocery store in the centre of the business district was destroyed by fire of unknown origin. Damage was estimated at $5,000.

The fire sent threatening embers over adjacent buildings and an adjoining harness shop was damaged. The fire was soon out of control of a group of volunteers who carried water and shovelled snow into the flames in vain.

Collingwood's fire department fought through snowdrifts to reach the blaze and after laying a half-mile of hose to the Nottawa dam brought the blaze under control in half an hour.

Report On Dance Given A.Y.P.A.

AIRLINER DEAD ARE IDENTIFIED FROM TRINKETS

Bodies Carried 4 Miles Over Mountain on Sleds

BOZEMAN, Mont., Jan. 12 (AP)—Identification of the bodies of seven of the 10 victims of the northwest airlines plane crash 14 miles east of here proceeded slowly today. Douglas Mackay of Winnipeg, and native of Woodstock, Ont., was among the dead. An inquest into the crash which occurred Monday will be held tonight.

Relatives and friends gathered at a Bozeman mortuary to identify rings, metal belt buckles or unburned clothing found on the bodies while officials investigated cause of the tragedy.

Coroner Howard Nelson said some of the bodies were dismembered, at least two lacking heads. One, he said, was merely a torso.

The coroner said Shevrons on the sleeves of Pilot Nick Mamer and co-Pilot F. W. West identified their bodies.

A belt buckle found on another body, he said, was identified by Kenneth and Russel Levin, of Butte, Mont., as that of their brother, Lloyd Levin of Detroit, as one of the eight passengers.

The bodies, each wrapped in tarpaulin, were carried four miles by bobsled from the crash scene and transferred to a truck which arrived here yesterday. The four-mile sled trip required three hours through the rugged, snow-covered Bridger range.

JAPS EXTEND RULE TO RICH SHANTUNG

SHANGHAI, Jan. 12 (A.P.).—The Japanese-dominated provincial government at Peiping planned to-day to keep pace with Japan's North China armies by taking over control of Shantung, China's "sacred" province.

Reports through Japanese channels told of the plan under which the Peiping regime would assume collection of taxes in the province of 34,000,000 population and receipt of customs at Tsingtao, rich port on the Yellow Sea.

Japanese Consul-General Shojiro Otaka reopened the Japanese Consulate at Tsingtao. The Japanese had taken over the Tsingtao Government immediately after they occupied it without resistance on Monday.

(A highly placed foreign observer said at Tokyo that Japan soon would recognize the Peiping regime as the legal government of China.)

Japanese forces driving south from Tsinan, provincial capital, and through the area around the birthplace of Confucius, captured Tsining. The city's fall opened the way for a swift advance on Suchow, Lunghai railway point 100 miles to the south.

Officers Elected Janetville M.S.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

JANETVILLE, Jan. 12—Mrs. R. J. Burn opened her spacious home on Wednesday afternoon for the January meeting of the W.M.S. when twenty members were present.

The treasurer, Mrs. H. Henders, gave a most gratifying report. There were 24 paid members and two life members which was an increase in membership. Twelve meetings were held during the year with an average attendance of eighteen.

Four bales valued at $100 had been packed in the Fall and sent to the stricken area in the West.

The allocation for the year was $77 and of this amount $75 had been handed in. The balance of $2 was contributed during the afternoon by various members in order that the full allocation could be sent.

The group system is found to be working splendidly, each group striving to outdo the others in membership, collections and in quality and value of the programs and meetings in general to the ultimate success of the Society.

The officers for 1938 are as follows: President, Mrs. J. Nicholson; 1st vice-president, Mrs. S. Stinson; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. J. R. McGee; secretary, Mrs. N. W. McGill; treasurer, Mrs. R. Henders; secretary Missionary Monthly, Mrs. Peel; supply secretary, Mrs. Howe; strangers' secretary, Mrs. R. J. Burn; literature, Mrs. P. Hamilton; temperance and peace, Mrs. Albert Heaslip; corresponding secretary, Mrs. E. A. Bradburn; secretary of Associate Helpers, Mrs. W. Sanderson; press, Mrs. Oswald McGill, Mrs. M. Armstrong; pianist, Mrs. M. Armstrong.

A vocal duet was acceptably rendered by Mrs. J. Howe and Mrs. J. Peel, accompanied by Miss Bessie Howe. The address of the afternoon was given by Rev. Mr. Bury.

The meeting closed with prayer and later a dainty lunch was served by Mrs. Burn and the members of her group.

President, Canadian Life Insurance Officers Association, who stated yesterday that, "Executives of life insurance companies have always felt that the true facts of life insurance should be placed fairly and squarely before the public. This has been done through the institutional advertising, sponsored by the Canadian Life Insurance Officers Association in the interests and for the information of policyholders and the public generally, which for 17 years past has appeared and will continue to appear in the press of every Province in Canada."

tered in Lariviere's skull with a wine bottle and a large stone. The boy was found lying beside the railway tracks west of Lancaster in dying condition, succumbing soon after reaching Cornwall hospital. A coroner's jury recently rendered a verdict naming Thauvette as Lariviere's slayer.

Dr. Alguire described superficial cuts he found on Thauvette's left hand which healed within a few days. He said "they looked as if they were caused by a sharp cutting edge."

Dr. E. R. Frankish, Ontario Government medico-legal expert, who was expected to report on his examination of exhibits submitted to him by provincial police was unable to attend the hearing to-day.

Admits Liquor Sale.

Henry Bougie, vendor at Ontario Government Liquor Store, in Lancaster, identified sales slip for bottle of wine purchased by Thauvette the day before the alleged killing.

Bougie agreed with Mr. Danis Thauvette was "generally known as the half-wit of the village." He said boys in the village used to tease Thauvette, and he would jump up and down, wave his arms and yell."

"He had been known as a half wit all his life," Bougie said.

"Then why did you sell him liquor," asked Crown Attorney J. G. Harkness, K.C.

"Because he wasn't on the Indian list," Bougie replied. He added he had never seen Thauvette under the influence of liquor.

ACID CASE CLOSES AS GIRL IS FREED

PORT ARTHUR, Jan. 12.—The Flanagan-Cox acid-throwing case became practically as a closed book when, before Magistrate C. D. Lemay, in Port Arthur Police Court yesterday afternoon, a plea of guilty was entered by Miss Flanagan, and the Magistrate suspended sentence for one year under a bond of $1,000.

Eileen Flanagan, charged with having, on Feb. 2, 1937, thrown a corrosive fluid doing grievous bodily injury to Charles W. Cox, M.L.A., Mayor of Port Arthur, appeared in court yesterday for the first time since the incident. Previous arrest and remands, while she herself was suffering from the effects of a portion of the scattered acid, took place through the reading of documents in her rooms in Fort William and Port Arthur hospitals. She had, during the summer, been in the mental hospital at Whitby.

In court yesterday Miss Flanagan appeared to be in excellent health, dressed in a black fur coat with grey trimmings and black hat. On the charge being read and questioned whether she wished summary trial or trial before Judge or Judge and jury, she asked for a Magistrate's trial, and pleaded guilty.

A. J. McComber, K.C., defense counsel, spoke of the mental agony his client had suffered, and of her previous excellent record in the community, asking sentence be suspended.

Crown Attorney Langworthy said he had no objection if the Magistrate thought that the proper course. Mr. Lemay agreed, and the parties proceeded to the Magistrate's office to prepare the bond. The case had taken but a few minutes. The court room was filled more than an hour before the hearing opened, and many were turned away.

FLIER DITCHED AS NEW ENGINE JUMPS SWITCH

New York Central Railways less than two months ago evidently broke away from its train when it jumped the track. Careening along the cinder path way which forms a platform about the station, it struck the building and demolished the west corner. From there it proceeded about 150 yards westward, finally rolling from the high right-of-way and coming to rest on its side. The front portion of the engine was buried in earth. Trucks were broken from the tender which was wrenched from the engine, tearing the automatic stoker from its position.

The engine tore telegraph wires from two poles and smashed a pipe line of the Union Gas Company which crossed beneath the railway track at that point.

Engineer Hogan and Fireman McNabb were taken to Tilbury and treated by Dr. McCall before being removed to their homes in St. Thomas.

The train was delayed 1½ hours while another locomotive was obtained from the Windsor yards of the Michigan Central Railways. It was then pulled back over the twisted trackage and proceeded on its way. The eastbound line was undamaged and traffic moved without serious delay.

Letters to her mother and father and members of her family in Canada revealed she was very happy at her work and was enjoying the experience of a totally different existence in the strange land. At first she was sent to Yerga Alem in southern Ethiopia and gave her time to study of the native language and training for her service. Shortly after the Italian invasion of Ethiopia began, she was transferred with other women from the isolated southern post to the comparative safety of Addis Ababa.

Although many missionaries were expelled from the country by the Italians after the conquest, Miss Pogue was among the small band of workers in the Sudan Interior Mission allowed to remain. She continued active mission work up to her operation in December.

Besides the parents, two sisters, Marion Pogue of Peterborough, and Eileen Pogue of Toronto, and one brother, David Pogueof Lindsay, remain. No particulars concerning the funeral were known today.

hours in a house against her will. She had been finally taken to the home of Adjutant George Hartas of the Salvation Army and left there by the man she said had taken her away.

Steel was arrested and held until to-day on a vagrancy charge.

When Steel was again brought into court a new charge was read to him. It was:

"That Wilmer Steel on January 7 and January 8 unlawfully did kidnap one Barbara Hebblethwaite and cause her to be confined at 5 Jean Street against her will, contrary to Section 297 A-1 of the Criminal Code.
